Among them, besides Byrnes, were W. Averell Harriman, proponent of lend-lease to Russia and now an Ambassador to Moscow, instrumental in the buildup of American supplies for the Soviet For East Army; former Ambassador Joseph E. Davies; Charles Bohlen, special assistant to the Secretary of State on Soviet affairs and a fluent interpreter; and Admiral William D. Leahy.

Decisions Due In Communique

The fact that official news from Potsdam is largely centered on social activities is not taken here as indicating any lack of appreciation of the problems to be solved. Decisions affecting Europe cannot be expected to be announced until the wording of the final communiqué is completed.

Details concerning Asia can be expected to be translated into action in the future without any published preludes for the benefit of Japan.

Churchill came to the dinner with Oxford Professor Lord Cherwell; Labor Party Leader Clement Attlee; Sir Alexander Cadogan, parliamentary Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and Major Arthur Birse, linguistic expert of the British Embassy in Moscow, who was awarded the Soviet Order for his liaison work at Yalta.

Stalin brought no high Soviet army officer with him, but it was recalled the Generalissimo throughout the war has been the deciding voice in Soviet military strategy.

Accompanying the Soviet leader, in addition to Molotov, were Andrei Vishinsky, deputy People's Commissar for Foreign Affairs; Andrei Gromyko, Soviet Ambassador to the United States; S. A. Sobolev, member of the Soviet Foreign Office, and V. M. Pavlov, interpreter.

ROLE OF ARBITER SEEN FOR TRUMAN

Singleton

London, July 20 (A. P.)—A United States foreign policy of independence—free from favoritism and yet friendly toward all nations of good will—may emerge from the Potsdam meeting of the Big Three, diplomatic quarters said today.

Representatives from Europe's smaller countries, who are anxious to avoid being caught in an Anglo-Soviet contest for wider spheres of influence, count heavily on the hope that Persident Truman will translate such a policy into the role of impartial arbiter in Europe's problems.

One diplomat privately cited four "straws in the wind" to support his contention that President Truman is determined to preserve a state of diplomatic neutrality in any differences of opinion arising between the major Powers and that his efforts are meeting with success. They were:

The President's decision to go directly to Potsdam rather than arranging a pre-conference session with Prime Minister Churchill; the careful observance of diplomatic protocol in the initial exchanges between the chiefs of state; the choice of Mr. Truman to preside at the meetings, and the President's emphasis in his speech today on his desire for peace and prosperity for the "world as a whole."

Sarge Wins Two Toasts From Stalin

Potsdam, July 20 (AP)—President Truman played Beethoven's Minuet in G on the piano at the joint request of Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill as a musical climax to his state dinner last night.

The President sat down at the keyboard after an American sergeant, Pianist Eugene List, had scored one of the strangest triumphs in musical history in winning two toasts from Stalin and a warm handshake from Churchill for his virtuosity.

Stalin Delighted

List, known on the American concert stage, played a Tchaikovsky selection, Chopin's A flat Polonaise and three preludes by the Leningrad composer, Dmitri Shostakoyich.

Stalin was delighted. He sprang up from his chair, walked over to the pianist, shook his hands, drank a toast to his health and asked him to play more.

What number the Russian leader requested was not identified. There are a number of Russian drinking songs, as well as many songs of the Volga, the Caucasus and the steppes of which Stalin is known to be fond.

Clasps List's Hands

List apparently knew Stalin's selection well, for as soon as he concluded the Generalissimo again came over to the piano, clasped List's hands and proposed another toast.

Through interpreter V. M. Pavlov, Stalin and President Truman engaged in an animated discussion of their respective preferences in folk music.

Then Churchill called for the Missouri Waltz, the favorite of Truman's native State.

List complied with easy grace and the Prime Minister came to his side, shook hands and thanked him for the performance.

FLEET AIRCRAFT BLAST SHIPS OFF COAST OF HONSHU

LANDSBERG

Widespread Raids Are Made Against Feebly Defended Nip Empire.

TWO VESSELS DAMAGED

Security Blackout Still Bars Details of Attack on Tokyo Bay.

GUAM, Saturday, July 21—(AP) While a security blackout still barred details of the American and British fleets' air-surface blows at Tokyo bay Wednesday and Thursday, Navy and Army headquarters today reported other widespread aerial thrusts at the feebly defended Japanese empire.

Lumbering search planes of the fleet damaged a medium cargo ship off eastern Honshu Friday, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced, and 80 Mustangs from Iwo Jima straffed central Honshu in the wake of a record pre-dawn strike by more than 600 B-29s.

Cargo Ship Set Afire

Other Okinawa-based search aircraft set fire to a small coastal cargo ship off southern Honshu Thursday.

Antiaircraft guns downed two Japanese planes attempting to strike Okinawa Wednesday night, in addition to three shot down by American night fighters. Three others crashed in futile attacks Thursday.

The speedy Mustangs from Iwo Jima, striking a few hours after the pre-dawn B-29 attacks on four cities and an oil refinery on Honshu island, shot up five airfields and other targets in the Nagoya-Osaka area.

One Mustang failed to return, bringing the day's losses to three planes. It was announced earlier that two B-29s were lost but that five crewmen were rescued.

The B-29 fliers returning to their Marianas bases reported they observed conflagrations spreading in the target cities of Fukui, Hitachi, Choshi and Okazaki. Another target, the Amagasaki oil refinery of the Nippon oil company, also was left burning furiously.

The Iwo P-51's shot down nine Japanese planes they caught in the air and destroyed two on the ground at Kagamigahara, Nishinomiya, Komake, Kameyama and Suzuka.

Strafe Factories

Hungry for more targets, the pilots ranged along the valley between Osaka and Kuto, strafing factories, power lines and powerhouses.

The field day for the big bombers and speedy fighters climaxed a week of air blows, including carrier aircraft strikes, at Japan and other important targets such as Japanese-held Shanghai on the China coast.

There was still no further word from the American and British warships and carrier planes of the U. S. Third fleet which vanished into a security blackout after bombing and bombarding Tokyo area targets Wednesday and Thursday.

Tokyo radio declared the fleet's ten-day rampage up and down Japan's Pacific coast was a "baiting scheme" and that the Japanese navy and airforce "are not coming out to fight" until an "advantageous time."

Fishing Port in Flames

The B-29 crewman declared Choshi, big fishing port, was "a mass of flames when we left." A great explosion lighted the sky over the Amagasaki refinery.

One of the Superforts in the Choshi force was the "Goin' Jessie," already famous. It completed the mission, it's 45th against Japan, in a continuation of its record of perfect operation.

At Okinawa crews of the first American air outfit redeployed from Europe said, after a raid with A-26 invader attack bombers against southern Japan, that bombing Germany was tougher.

The redeployed flyers met no opposition in the Monday raid, announced for the first time Thursday by the Seventh Air Force unit under Gen. Douglas MacArthur's command.

Other raids reported in MacArthur's Friday communique included a Monday attack by Okinawa-based bombers and fighters on Kagoshima, munitions and shipyard city on southern Japan, and the Tuesday raid on Shanghai airfields.

More than 200 bombers from Okinawa made the Shanghai mission, with escorting fighters.

4 Jap Cities, Oil Plant Fired In Record Raid

Guam, July 20 (AP)—More than 600 Superfortresses in record strength started great fires in five Japanese industrial centers with 4,000 tons of incendiary bombs today as Okinawa-based tactical air forces made the war's heaviest raid on Shanghai and Thunderbolt fighter-bombers sealed off rail transport to the Japanese city of Kagoshima.

The Superfortresses set Fukui, Hitachi, Choshi and Okazaki aflame and struck the Nippon oil refinery at Amagasaki in raids before dawn.

Bomb By Instrument

Bad weather forced the crews to bomb by instrument at all targets except Fukui, but results were declared to be good to excellent. Two B-29's were lost; five crewmen from one ship were rescued.

The Japanese Domei Agency admitted some damage from the attacks.

[In a followup on the B-29 raid, about 100 Mustang fighter planes attacked targets in central Honshu about noon today, Radio Tokyo said. They strafed the Okazaki and Toyohashi areas and made passes at Nagoya.]

Smoke 17,000 Feet Over Fukui

In the heaviest strategic raid of the war, the 600 B-29's hit five centers on Honshu from 60 to 200 miles from Tokyo in their campaign against Japanese "shadow" (small home) industries.

Crewmen reported smoke rising 17,000 feet high over Fukui and said "it looked like the target was destroyed completely."

There was almost no flak or fighter opposition over any target, but searchlights were so numerous that one flyer said it reminded him of the New York World's Fair.

At the Amagasaki oil refinery, fires were set so great that one airman said he saw them more than 100 miles away.

45th Trip For Goin' Jessie

The Superfortress Goin' Jessie, which dropped the Army Air Force's two millionth ton of bombs on the enemy last week, made her forty-fifth successful mission over Chosi, where her crew reported the target was a mass of flames. This one plane now has dropped more than 60,000 pounds of bombs on Japan.

The Tokyo radio reported that American Liberators scouted the Chosi area in the wake of the B-29's and that a lone B-29 reconnaissance plane was over Hitachi today.

300 Planes Over Shanghai

Meanwhile Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced from Manila that more than 300 tactical medium, heavy and attack bombers with fighter escort, all from Okinawa, crossed the East China Sea and hurled more than 290 tons of bombs on Kiangwan airdrome, just north of Shanghai.

Kiangwan, the greatest enemy air base in China, had four paved runways for bombers, two fighter strips and numerous buildings. Heavy cloud cover prevented accurate observation of results. Thunderbolts which escorted the bombers found and hit the Tinghai airdrome in Chu Shan Island opposite Shanghai in low-level attacks.

Kagoshima Hit

Coincident with these Tuesday raids, others of MacArthur's Okinawa-based Far East Air Forces hit Kagoshima on the main Japanese southern island of Kyushu, blocking three important railway tunnels and damaging a fourth. Kagoshima, a city of 180,000, site of a munitions works and a submarine shipyards, was thus cut off from rail communication with the rest of Japan.

Kagoshima's docks also were hit along with oil storage facilities.

Another force of MacArthur's tactical Thunderbolts put twelve 500-pound bombs into a 10,000-ton Japanese freighter and left it sinking halfway between Okinawa and Kyushu.

Meanwhile, navy search Privateers and Liberators had their best single day against Japanese shipping between the Asiatic mainland and the Japanese islands on Wednesday, sinking eleven and damaging five small coastal cargo ships. Fleet Air Wings 1 and 18 made the strikes, off the Korean east coast and opposite Honshu.

The 2d Marine Aircraft Wing, by shooting down three enemy planes, ran its bag to 500 since it entered the Okinawa campaign April 7.

Radio Blackout Hiding Moves Of 3d Fleet

Guam, July 20 (AP)—A radio blackout like that which preceded the first American naval shelling of Japan hid the operations of Admiral William F. Halsey's United States 3d Fleet today.

Even the verbose Tokyo radio stopped warning its listeners that the ships would be back to strike at another unexpected place.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz's communiqué today gave no hint of the movements of the American or associated British naval units. This was the eleventh day since Halsey began roaming, unchallenged, up and down the coast of Japan.

Nor did Nimitz disclose results of the joint air and naval bombardment of the approaches to Tokyo Bay.

The Latest Attack

The latest announced attack was the Wednesday-Thursday midnight shelling of Nojima Point, 50 miles from Tokyo, by cruisers and destroyers. The fourth naval shelling of Japan, that one came on the heels of a fierce sweep by hundreds of carrier planes over Japanese warships trapped in Tokyo Bay's Yokosuka naval base.

The bad weather that was reported yesterday may still be hampering observation of the results of these blows or the results may be being withheld purely because of radio silence while the fleet moves to new targets.

"Baiting Scheme," Japs Say

Wherever the Allied fleet is, Japanese broadcasts reiterated that the imperial airforce has no intention of trying to stop its attacks. Halsey's prowling along Nippon's shoreline is a "baiting scheme," Tokyo propagandists explained, and the "Japanese navy and airforce are not coming out to fight now. They are waiting for an advantageous time before they strike."

Radio Tokyo indicated clearly that this "advantageous time" would not come until American invasion forces begin storming Japan's shores.

A typical Nipponese commentary came from a military correspondent of the Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri Hochi, who suggested that the Japanese tactic "completely frustrated" Halsey's "main mission to size up our striking power to be deployed in the event of an invasion."

AIRDROMES AND DOCKS ARE TARGETS

Liberators, Mitchells And Invaders Carry Out Heavy Attacks

Manila, Saturday, July 21 (AP)—More than 200 Far East Air Force bombers and fighters lashed airdromes and docks at Shanghai Wednesday for the second straight day, headquarters announced today.

Continuation of full-scale raids to knock out the largest Japanese-held air and shipping center in China brought attacks on five airdromes by close formations of Liberator heavies, Mitchell mediums and Invader attack-bombers.

The 7th Air Force heavy bombers dropped 100-pound general-purpose bombs on Woosung airdrome on the banks of the Yangtze, causing three fires. Smoke rose 6,000 feet.

Few Jap Planes Bagged

Sixty-two [illegible] bombed and strafed Tachang airdrome, northwest of Shanghai, and Tinghai airfield, near the entrance of Hangchow Bay, cratering revetments and starting fires.

Woosung was hit for the second time by another group of heavies, which then pounded Kiangwan's six runways and the hangar area.

One grounded enemy plane was destroyed in this attack.

Two or three more parked aircraft were smashed when 44 A-26 attack invaders smacked Lunghwa airdrome in the old Chinese city section of Shainghai.

There was no interception in these forays.

Kyushu Raided Again

Kyushu, southernmost of the Japanese main islands, continued to draw the fury of 7th Air Force Thunderbolts, with 5th Air Force Mustangs roaming at will over the island in attacks on communication lines, bridges and shipping Wednesday.

The Mustangs damaged locomotives, boxcars and factory areas in two industrial suburbs of Kagoshima, major city of southern Kyushu. Both Kushikino and Miyakonojo, suburbs of Kagoshima, site of rayon mills and munitions plants, were bombed and strafed.

More than 35 Thunderbolts hit sulphur and phosphate mines on tiny Iwo Island in the Soumi group, just off southern Kyushu.

A flight of sixteen Mustangs caught a 6,000-ton freighter in Naze harbor at Amami Oshima, 110 miles north of Okinawa, scoring two direct hits and three near misses off her port bow. Smoke poured from the vessel after the hits.

First Strike At Honshu

A single 7th Air Force Liberator on a night mission made the Far East Air Force's first strike at Honshu. It bombed the sizable Miho airdrome's three runways, revetment areas and dispersal bays before dawn Wednesday.

Over Formosa, more than a score of Liberators showered fragmentation bombs on Matsuyama airfield, destroyed two grounded aircraft and damaged others. The bombers were met by heavy flak. On the south and west coasts of the big island, Lightning fighters strafed freight cars, trucks and storage facilities at Shinghiku airdrome.

Fifth Air Force Liberators from Okinawa also bombed a factory area at Canton and set a number of fires.

Seventh Fleet Liberators swept the Hainan and Indo-China coastline, shooting up freight train locomotives, boxcars and damaging a small freighter off Nha Trang.

Lull On Borneo

There was a lull in ground activity on Borneo, as the Australians consolidated newly won positions in the Sambodja oilfields and sent patrols over a wide area in the Brunei Bay area. Lightnings of the 13th Air Force flew in support, hitting Langkon, while Mitchell bombers smashed at Jesselton dispersal areas. The Mitchells scored seven hits on what were reported to be underground storage areas.

More than 25 RAAF Spitfires and Kittyhawks bombed and strafed Sandakan, on Borneo's northeast coast, while a pair of Liberators damaged a small freighter and river craft at the mouth of the Mahakam River.

Seventh Fleet PT boats strafed shore positions in Makassar Straits, below Balikpapan, while in the Solomons an Australian frigate bombarded Sohana Island in the north Bougainville area.

New Zealand, Australian and American Marine air groups supported ground operations in New Guinea and the Solomons and flew neutralization missions over Rabaul and Kavieng.

Yank, Jap Ballplayers Now Are In Different Leagues

Manila, July 20 (AP)—A shortstop and an outfielder who were teammates thirteen years ago met again at a 6th Division command post on north Luzon this week—but this time they were playing on different teams.

George A. Carlson, of Tulsa, Okla., who had won a Rhodes scholarship and attended Oxford University from 1931 to 1934, was a good outfielder and made the baseball team with ease.

Carlson liked the way a little Japanese shortstop handled hot grounders on the same team, so frequently they would celebrate a victory together.

Jap Officer Surrenders

This week, Carlson and his men from the 20th Infantry Regiment were tracking down enemy remnants in the Cagayan Valley when a Japanese officer came out with his hands high.

As the prisoner approached, the two men recognized each other immediately. The Nipponese officer was the Oxford shortstop of thirteen years ago.

He smiled.

Thought War Didn't Count

Carlson shrugged his shoulders. I guess he thought the last three and a half years didn't count," he said.

"He asked me for beer and cheese—and he expected to get them.

"He kept trying to be friendly but I guess he just couldn't understand."

Carlson paused and laughed. "I remember he said as they led him away to the stockade: 'I do hope old Oxford wasn't bombed.'"

OKINAWA RAIDED BY JAP BOMBERS

Three Yanks Injured in Latest Night Attack on Island.

OKINAWA, July 20 (AP)—Japanese planes have returned to Okinawa skies after an absence of nearly a month, indicating the enemy may not have yet entirely written off the loss of this strategic island, now a base for devastating raids on southern Japan.

They have caused four raid alerts in two nights but apparently little or no damage. Three Americans were injured slightly in the latest raid, made last night during a storm.

The Nipponese planes attempted to come in under protection of the storm and three of them crashed, one in an occupied area.

One tried to make a suicide run but missed.

As the enemy made these feeble attempts at an air come-back, an estimated 10,000 Japanese troops remained in hiding in the mountain wilds of the northern end of Okinawa. They are being hunted out and killed at the rate of 50 a day, headquarters of Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge's 24th Army corps said.

New information, headquarters said, indicated that there were 140,000 defenders on the island when the Americans invaded Okinawa last April 1. They included 50,000 Okinawans drafted by the Japanese for military service.

More than 110,000 of these have been slain or captured. The number of prisoners increased sharply after June 16. It was estimated that 26 per cent of those cornered since that date have surrendered.

More than half of the estimated 410,000 Okinawan civilians on the island are in internment.

No trace has been found of Americans captured by the enemy during the campaign. Two hundred thirty-six Yanks are listed officially as missing but there has been no announcement of the number that may have been taken prisoner.

10,000 Japanese Still Hiding Out In the Mountains of Okinawa

OKINAWA, July 20 (AP).—An estimated 10,000 Japanese troops are hiding in northern Okinawa's rugged mountains, the Army estimated today, a month after the island was captured.

The Japanese are being hunted down and killed at an average of fifty daily, it was announced at headquarters of Lieutenant General John R. Hodge, commander of the 24th Army Corps.

After a lapse of almost a month, Japanese planes have given Okinawa four air alerts in two nights. Marine night fighters shot down three of the enemy. Another raid was tried under cover of a storm. Three of the Japanese crashed, but only one in an occupied area. Three Americans were injured.

[A communique from fleet headquarters on Guam said that, in addition to the three that crashed on Thursday, three Japanese planes were shot down by American night fighters and two by anti-aircraft fire over Okinawa on Wednesday.]

Tokyo said, without confirmation, that the raiders "cornered and attacked a group of enemy warships" in Okinawa waters yesterday and sank a cruiser and a large transport.

While the eighty-two-day battle raged for Okinawa, vital as an air and naval base to prosecution of the war against Japan, enemy aerial attacks on shipping were frequent. The Japanese sank thirty-two American vessels and damaged some sixty in the entire Ryukyus campaign, including United States fleet attacks on the Japanese mainland.

Hodge's headquarters said new information indicates there were 90,000 Japanese garrison troops on Okinawa when the Americans landed April 1 and that the Japanese drafted 50,000 Okinawans for military service. This total of 140,000 defenders was nearly double the pre-invasion United States estimates.

More than 100,000 Japanese troops and Okinawan conscripts were killed in battle, and 10,000 have been slain or captured since the island was secured on June 22.

Colonel Cecil W. Nist, of San Antonio, Tex., said that during the vicious fighting for Okinawa more than 97 per cent of the Japanese troops preferred to die fighting or by suicide rather than surrender, but that since June 16, when they began surrendering in the closing days of battle, 26 per cent of those cornered have given up.

Of an estimate 410,000 Okinawan civilians on the island, 240,000 are in interment.

careful search of the island has failed to disclose the fate of Americans taken prisoner by the Japanese. There has been no announcement of the number of Americans believed taken prisoner, but it has been estimated as high as several hundred American casualty lists for the Okinawa campaign show 236 men missing. Men who were taken prisoner would be in that group.

4 Baltimore B-29 Men Decorated

Guam, July 6 [AP—Delayed]—Four Maryland Superfortress crew members have been awarded Air Medals for achievement in bombing strategic Japanese targets.

These men, while making possible the 21st Bomber Command's fast-recurring strikes, "displayed such courage and skill as to reflect great credit on themselves and the Army Air Forces," their citation stated.

Col. E. D. Reynolds, group commander in the 314 Bombardment Wing, has named the following men, all from Baltimore, receiving the awards:

Sergt. Calvin H. Boehm, mechanical gunner, 3512 Woodlea avenue; Sergt. Norman J. Fosler, Jr., tail gunner, 2622 East Hoffman street; Flight Officer Melvin A. Peterson, navigator, 2706 Hereford avenue, and Sergt. Albert G. [illegible]quhart, electrical gunner, 2831 [illegible]brook avenue.

Iron Lung Is Flown To Legaspi War Area

With U.S. 5th Air Force, Luzon, July 20 (AP)—Responding to urgent radio messages for help, a C-47 cargo plane of the 5th Air Force troop carrier command flew an iron lung into the rugged mountainous combat zone near Legaspi.

The patient, Private Robert S. Wilcox, Upper Darby, Pa., who had been stricken suddenly by a form of poliomyelitis, was reported in good condition when he later reached Manila hospital.

The big plane landed on an improvised runway, Wilcox was placed immediately in the lung, and it was manually operated by surgical technicians during the flight back to Manila. It was believed to be the first time an iron lung ever was flown into a battle area.

80 Mustangs Strafe Central Japan Areas

Guam, Saturday, July 21 (AP)—Eighty American Mustang fighters strafed the center of Japan today in a close follow-up of the record raid by more than 600 B-29's.

The second strike by P-51 Mustang fighters in one day hit the Osaka-Nagoya industrial district Friday as 94 of the fast raiders from Okinawa raked boats, airfields and aircraft factories in Okazaki, Oitsu and Kamizaki without meeting aerial opposition. Three Mustangs were lost, presumably to anti-aircraft fire.

Eighty Mustangs based on Iwo Jima struck earlier in the day at four industrial towns in the wake of a record predawn strike by more than 600 Superfortresses.

Search planes of the fleet hit a medium cargo ship off eastern Honshu Friday, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced.

The B-29 flyers returning to their Marianas bases reported they observed conflagrations spreading in

JAP ADMIRAL TALKS 2 WAYS

Warns Allies Of Sudden Blow, Tells Homeland The Reverse

San Francisco, July 20 (AP)—Radio Tokyo broadcast two versions today of an article by a retired commander in chief of the Japanese combined fleet—one for foreign consumption promising a sudden, decisive blow against the Allies, the other, for home-front listeners, admitting American air and sea supremacy but "gradual" victory for Japan.

The Admiral quoted was Sankichi Takahachi, 63-year-old navy chief in 1933-34.

Tokyo's English-language version said Takahashi declared the Japanese Navy and air force would soon "unleash that one last blow," and hinted that "that moment is not far off."

Battleships 'Auxiliary'

The Japanese-language portion admitted to the homeland that the "cautious tactics" by the Nipponese navy were dictated by Allied sea and air superiority, but contained a promise that this advantage would be gradually whittled down, presumably by surface and air suicide attacks.

The double-talk broadcasts were recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

Known as an advocate of the use of air power in naval strategy, Takahashi, in the Japanese-language broadcast, said emphasis on air strength in the Pacific had "entirely changed the traits of the combined fleet," reducing the battleship to the status of "auxiliary ship."

Air Force 'Healthy'

"As long as the air force, which is the main strength, is sound and healthy," he said, the present inability of the navy to fight "does not matter."

Takahashi told the Japanese that their sea and air forces might not be able at first to "find more than 30 minutes within 24 hours to strike the enemy in his sea and air supremacy sphere."

"However, as long as we can maintain our supply, this 30 minutes will be expanded to one hour, and later to three hours.

"Finally, all of the 24 hours will be brought under our sea and air supremacy sphere and this is the time we will be able to employ our sea surface force to make a pursuit attack against the enemy."

Cabinet In Session

Takahashi conceded Japan cannot use her surface forces independently now except in suicidal actions because of American air superiority. He said the reverse was true early in the war when Japan was "able to chase the enemy as far as Hawaii and Australia."

The earlier Japanese successes, he continued, were possible "because our main naval strength, that is, our air force strength, had overwhelmed the enemy's air power."

With the Japanese Navy now "in a similar situation," Takahashi said Japan was obliged to rely on suicide missions by sea and air in order to "gradually snatch away the sea and air supremacy of the enemy."

The war situation and other "problems of the day" meanwhile were considered by the Cabinet in a huddle with Premier Kantaro Suzuki.

Suzuki, Cabinet Hold Conference

San Francisco, July 20 (AP)—The worried Japanese Cabinet went into a huddle with Prime Minister Kantaro Suzuki today to talk over disastrous Allied bombings and warship attacks, Radio Tokyo said, even as big American planes rocked five more Honshu cities.

"Problems of the day" was the title given the conference by the enemy broadcast monitored here. The Nipponese leaders met privately with Suzuki in his residence.

Meanwhile the Tokyo newspaper Mainichi explained this week's four Allied naval attacks on Japan as merely "a feeble attempt at enticing the Japanese air force, which is now biding its time for action."

"Saving Strength"

The enemy air force's reluctance to fight was credited to the high command's desire to preserve its strength for the "decisive struggle."

Next on Radio Tokyo's schedule was a Naval Ministry official, who criticized those Japanese he said had become discouraged by the "real facts of this fierce war."

Vice Minister Takeo Tada told Ministry employés that "it is regrettable" that these people have become disinterested, neglectful and resentful" in performances of their duties.

The Government will attempt to relieve the food crisis, aggravated by bombing of transportation facilities, through mobilization next month of 1,500,000 school children to reclaim 25,000 acres of land, Domei agency announced.

Jap Keeps Faith In His Navy

San Francisco, July 20 (AP)—Insisting that the Japanese Navy is still "unshaken," a retired commander in chief was quoted in a Tokyo broadcast today as declaring that the nation's sea and air forces would soon go into action and the "day of victory" is rapidly approaching.

Admiral Sankichi Takahashi was the authority quoted. He said Japan's air arm "is being held back until the moment arrives," and "when that air arm goes into action, the surface force will also go into action to unleash that one last blow."

"Admiral Takahashi hinted that that moment is not far off," Tokyo said in the English-language broadcast monitored by the Federal Communications Commission.

He added, "Confidence of the Japanese Navy today remains unshaken."

14 Yanks Down 47 Kamikazes In A Day

Washington, July 20 (AP)—Fourteen Hellcat pilots of Air Group 30 scored a 47 to 0 victory over Japanese kamikaze planes seeking to attack Task Force 58 off Okinawa on April 6.

Led by Lieut. Roy F. Gillespie, of Bellingham, Wash., the American carrier planes knocked down the Jap suicide fighters and bombers in a spectacular 30-minute engagement. Not a Yank was lost or injured, the Navy reported today.

Air Group 30 is now home for rest and reassignment.

Total Bag Is 110 Planes

In its entire tour, Group 30 downed 110 enemy planes without losing a pilot in aerial combat.

Ensign Carl C. Foster, of Detroit, was high man in the April 6 "turkey shoot," bagging three fighters and three bombers. Later he accounted for two more, bringing his total for the tour to eight.

Ensign Kenneth J. Dahms, Winnebago, Minn., was credited with 5½, and Lieut. Johnnie G. Miller, Okarchie, Okla, with five.

High Man Has 11 Kills

Ensign James V. Reber, Jr., of Reading, Pa., was the high scorer of the entire tour, with eleven.

Operating from an Independence class carrier, Air Group 30 served with Vice Admiral Marc Mitscher's famed Task Force 58 during the period when it supported two major invasion. It destroyed or disabled remnants of the Japanese fleet and shot down thousands of planes.

Group 30 sank or probably sank eleven ships, including a destroyer, and damaged 46, including a light cruiser, a destroyer, three escort vessels and two submarines.

Londoners Protest Food Queues

London, July 20 (AP)—Hundreds of London women hissed and booed last night at a mass meeting when shopkeepers attempted to explain why housewives must stand long hours in line to buy food.

Five years of pent-up feeling was loosed at the few merchants who attended the meeting, called by Mrs. J. H. Lovelock, a vicar's wife, as part of her campaign to get something done about queues.

Merchants Need Help

"Why can't you keep your shop open longer?" one woman screamed at a merchant who was attempting to explain his difficulties.

"I need more staff," he answered. "I'm willing to pay 5 pounds ($20) for an assistant—if I could get one."

"I'll take the job," some of the women roared.

Dr. Edity Summerskill, chairman of the meeting, who tried unavailingly to win a hearing for the shopkeepers and quiet the din of boos and angry questions, said: "I had no idea feeling was as strong as this."

Only one man, a butcher, spoke back vigorously. He told the women to quit shopping at the same hour. "That's what causes queues," he said. His remarks were greeted with hisses.

Several women who could not get in the meeting waited on the outside and hissed the merchants as they went home.

Jews Attack Treatment Given Them By Allies

London, July 20 (AP)—The World Jewish Congress charged today that Jewish victims of Nazi persecution were being "treated with callous and shameful neglect and indifference by their new masters, the Allied Military Control authorities in occupied Germany," and appealed to the Big Three leaders for help.

Asserting that Jews and others now were "almost contemptuously described by the Allied military authorities as 'D.P's' (displaced persons)," the congress declared that "under this control, their conditions, except that they are no longer in peril of torture and murder, is little better than when they were under the heel of Nazi persecutors."

In a fourteen-point statement, the congress asserted that among other things, detention camps are "scandalously dirty and unsanitary," detainees are "ravaged by disease," and underfed, and that ex-Nazis have been put in charge of the victims.

150,000 P. W.'s to Aid British Farmers

London, July 20 (A. P.).—The Ministry of Agriculture said today that 150,000 prisoners of war would help British farmers harvest this year. Two-thirds of the prisoners are Germans.

HOUSING JOB GIVEN BRITISH OFFICIALS

Requisitioning By "Vigilantes" Shifted To Local Leaders

London, July 20 (AP)—The British Government today shifted the work of requisitioning empty houses for immediate use from the self-appointed "vigilantes" to the local authorities in an effort to relieve the housing situation in England and Wales.

The licensing of housing work by private owners and tenants also was turned over to the local authorities and the need of referring such work to the Ministry of Health or any central department was waived.

Notices Must Be Posted

Before the requisitioned houses can be occupied local authorities were instructed to notify the owner or agent and post a notice on the premises. If within fourteen days the owner then announced his intention of occupying the house himself, no further action would be taken.

Previously the so-called "vigilantes," many of them service men, installed homeless families in empty houses without permission of the owners, often making the changes at night. A court order then was required to evict the people.

5000 U. S. Tanks Lost in Nazi War

London, July 20 (A. P.).—The United States lost an estimated 5,000 tanks in the German war, according to Major Gen. Henry B. Sayler, chief Army ordnance officer in the European theater.

U. N. R. R. A. Purchases Listed

LONDON, July 20 (AP).—An official of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration said today the organization had been authorized to purchase $4,000 worth of needles, playing cards, toothbrushes, tobacco and other miscellaneous items for displaced persons in Europe. Previously these minor comforts were ignored by the U. N. R. R. A. in favor of more essential needs.

British Women to Canada

LONDON, July 20 (AP).—At least 42,000 British wives and fiances of Canadian service men will be transported to Canada by the end of next June, Lieutenant Colonel Victor Gill of Toronto, chief of the Canadian Wives' Bureau, estimated today. At present, he said, 22,000 women are waiting to go to Canada.

Polish Leader Loses Post

London, July 20 (AP)—Gen. Gustav Paszkiwicz, second in command of the Polish Corps in Great Britain, has lost his military status because he recognized the new Polish Provisional Government of National Unity, it was learned today.

It was not clear whether he was dismissed or changed status voluntarily. His friends said he was dismissed on orders of President Tomasz Raczkiewicz of the repudiated exiled regime in London. Others close to the exiled regime said the action was automatic.

NAZI BOMB FAILS TO END ARGUMENT

London, July 20 (A. P.).—Before the war the steeple on the Church of All Souls—built in 1822—was the subject of considerable criticism by Londoners, many of whom thought that the design was ridiculous and an insult to the church. There was even talk of tearing the steeple down, but the Germans settled the debate when they dropped a bomb on it in 1941.

Now a church commission has decided to rebuild the steeple—exactly as it was—as a relic of old London.

Skeleton Mystery Puzzles Liverpool

Liverpool, England, July 20 (AP)—Baffled police searched tonight for new evidence to help explain the mystery of a man's skeleton found sealed in a steel cylinder in a ruins left by a bombing.

With the skeleton, fully dressed in old-fashioned clothes, were two diaries dated 1884 and 1885, a postcard dated in Birmingham July 3, 1885, and a railway ticket dated June 27, 1885, and police said the remains had been at the site anywhere from 10 to 50 years.

A gold signet ring, seven keys and an undated billhead bearing the name of a Liverpool firm now out of business also were found in the cylinder, which was six feet nine inches in length and nineteen inches in diameter, and completely sealed except for a four-inch aperture at one end.

The discovery was made a week ago, and a formal coroner's inquest was held yesterday, but was adjourned for a month to allow time for investigation and a hunt for evidence.

The police said they were unable to determine who the man was, how and when he died, how his body came to be in the cylinder and how the cylinder came to be on the bombed site.

SKELETON BAFFLES LIVERPOOL POLICE

Liverpool, July 20 (A. P.).—The mystery of the skeleton in the cylinder has been baffling Liverpool police for a week.

The sleuths have not yet learned who the man was, how and when he died, how the body came to be in the cylinder and how the cylinder came to be on a bombed site where it was found

A coroner's inquest yesterday was adjourned for a month for collection of more evidence.

The skeleton was found a week ago by a bomb repair squadron. It was inclosed in a steel cylinder six feet long and nineteen inches in diameter and sealed except for a four-inch aperture at one end.

It was fully clothed and was lying on sacking with a sacking-covered brick for a pillow. The police deduced from the cut of the clothes that it had been there from ten to sixty years.

There were seven keys, a gold signet ring, a post card dated July 3, 1885; two diaries dated 1884 and 1885, a railroad ticket dated June 27, 1885, and an undated billhead of a Liverpool firm which had quit business.

WhyTheLapse? Pertinax Asks

Paris, July 20 (AP)—The French writer, Pertinax (Andre Geraud), in a copyright article from Washington published today by France-Soir, complained of a lapse of several days between the French official announcement that General de Gaulle was to visit President Truman and confirmation, still unofficial, from Washington.

"How is one to explain the ill will that seems apparent from the twelve-day delay?" the writer asked.

Criticizes News Agencies

Pertinax criticized the Associated Press and United Press in this connection. He wrote:

"General de Gaulle's visit to Washington was announced yesterday morning unofficially by the Associated Press and not at all by official communiqué. He will come later when definite dates are fixed. Thus twelve days have passed since the news was published in Paris. (Actually the French announcement was made July 6 and was reported by the AP on the same day; the AP's Washington dispatch on American confirmation was issued July 17.)

"For twelve days, based on an interpretation so maliciously disseminated by the two great agencies, the Associated Press and the United Press, the American public has been led to believe that the chief of the French Government had maneuvered a way of inflicting his presence.

"Have Not Said So Much"

"The two agencies have not said so much. But their insinuations had no other meaning.

"The Associated Press story (of July 17 confirming plans for the visit) provides some satisfaction. But why was it so late? And how is one to explain the ill will that seems apparent from the twelve-day delay?"

During the period between the Paris announcement and Washington confirmation the Paris Post speculated that "trouble makers" in Washington are deliberately confusing the situation.

U.S. Press Amazes French Critic

Paris, July 20 (AP)—Andre Siegfried, French critic, took a look today at American newspapers—he has been reading them for nearly 50 years, he said—and expressed astonishment that they were so good.

In a lengthy analysis in the Parisian newspaper Figaro, Siegfried, a member of the French Academy, said the American press "has reached maturity, but without having lost its youth."

"Especially it has preserved its real genius, which is that of a reporter," he continued. "It is interested in everything—in the way people walk, in men's neckties, in their weight."

Siegfried, who attended the San Francisco conference, said "even experts and technicians of various delegations (there) needed only to read the newspapers daily to keep themselves fully informed of what was happening all over the world."

The important change in the American press in recent years, the critic said, is the "increasing degree of interest in foreign politics which has mounted as the United States itself became an international power."

Marylander Has Role In Flag Raising

Berlin, July 20 (AP)—Two American military police corporals from the battlefields of Europe raised in Berlin today the flag destined to wave in triumph over Tokyo.

Wilbur Richard, of Portland, Ind., and Frederick J. Dangelo, of Wilmerding, Pa., handled the flag lines, while two other combat veterans, Corporals Charles Magnifico, Jersey City, N.J., and Abraham Liberman stood as the color guard.

Drawn up in the square in front of the somber former headquarters of the Luftwaffe district commander were Company 3 of Capt. William S. Parkins, of Dickerson, Md., and Company E of Capt. James W. Mooney, of Conrad, Mont., while Headquarters Company of the 41st Armored Infantry Regiment was distributed along the main walk from the entrance gate.

As General Patton passed by in the presidential party, Second Lieutenant Orville C. Belchen, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., one of the old-timers of the 2d Armored Division, said: "Sure, I remember him. I hit the beach at Port Lyautey on his North African landing."

Holder Of Silver Star

Captain Parkins is the holder of the Silver Star medal awarded him for gallantry in action during fighting in Germany on November 27, when the 2d Armored Division, to which he was attached, engaged the enemy near Merzenhausen.

He led his platoon through barbed-wire entanglements, heavy mortar and small-arms fire and then helped to organize two other units and ordered them to dig in shortly before an enemy counter-attack developed. During the action, Captain Parkins, then a lieutenant, personally directed the fire of 60-mm. mortars so successfully that the attack was repulsed.

The Maryland officer also wears the European-African-Middle Eastern campaign ribbon, the American Defense ribbon and the Combat Infantryman's badge.

Dysentery Attacks Soldiers in Berlin

Berlin, July 20 (A. P.).—Dysentery has broken out in mild proportions among American and British personnel in Berlin.

Lieut.-Col. John M. Redding said that ice made from polluted Berlin city water was chiefly responsible. All were warned against drinking water except from chlorinated lister bags. Berlin beer and bottled mineral water are being tested for purity.

Possibly a third of Berlin's civil population of 2,750,000 has the disease, public health officials estimated.

RUMORS ON HITLER TERMED UNSTABLE

Adolf Was Not Aboard U-530, German Admiral Says

JUL 20 1945

Kiel, Germany, July 20 (AP)—Admiral Eberhard Godt, operations chief for the former German navy underseas fleet, said today the German submarine U-530, which surrendered to Argentina last week, had left "Kiel or a Norwegian port" on March 3 and that neither Adolf Hitler nor Eva Braun was aboard.

The Admiral said that reports that Hitler and his mistress had been put ashore in Argentina by the U-530 were wild rumors.

"I certainly would have known if the U-530 had been earmarked for any special mission," Godt said in his first statement to the press since Germany's surrender.

Supported By Helmut

His statement was supported by German Admiral Helmut, a former commander of the cruiser Hipper and chief of small battle units, who said the U-530 was "leaking at the seams" and had been considered unsafe.

"Surely if Hitler and Eve Braun were going to escape from Germany by submarine it would not have been on the U-530," he said. "Her bow was sheared off by an American tanker on Christmas Day, 1943, when it attacked her off the east side of the Panama Canal. It was very lucky to return to base. It's amazing how she got to Argentina."

Heye Certain Hitler Is Dead

Former Commander Heye of the German fleet, Southeast Asia area, said he was convinced Hitler died in Berlin and added:

"If he intended to escape it would have been by air, not by sea.

"He didn't like ships—he even got sick riding on his yacht on the Rhine. If Hitler hadn't died, I would have heard from him.

"I do not believe he could have gone away as an unknown man," he added. . . . I say on my oath as a naval officer that I believe Hitler would not leave Germany.

"The Führer could not live anywhere as Mr. X."

Heye said he believed "there is an organized effort to keep the Hitler myth alive" and that some Germans, especially those in the Hitler Youth, hoped he would return some day "when they are worthy of receiving him."

No Spare Room On Sub

In the interview held in the presence of British naval intelligence officers Heye conceded that the 1,000-ton U-530 could make the long voyage to South America without putting into port for provisions or fuel.

He said that when last she went to sea she was in charge of a young officer making his first trip as commander. There was no spare room aboard the submarine, he said, unless two officers or crewmen were left ashore.

Six Subs Unaccounted For

Naval officers agreed that if Hitler had left Norway or Germany by submarine word of his escape would have leaked out among the sailors by now.

There has not been the slightest rumor of such a move on Hitler's part in the German Navy, Heye asserted.

The admiral indicated, however, that if Hitler had wanted to escape unnoticed by sea it would have been possible for him to use his "great powers of persuasion" to get young officers to form a crew and prepare for the trip in secret.

Admiral Godt's latest report to the British showed six German submarines still unaccounted for. He said he believed that no submarines put to sea after the German capitulation, since all were under strict orders from Admiral Doenitz to remain in port and be turned over to the Allies under the surrender terms.

Hitler-Plot Aim Seen As Saving Of Staff

Frankfurt on the Main, July 20 (AP)—Officers of the G-2 (Intelligence) Division of United States forces in the European theater are convinced that one primary purpose of the July 20 bomb attempt on Adolf Hitler's life was to end the war in such a way as to leave the German general staff intact.

In their judgment, the plotters, who made their bid for power just a year ago today, hoped after removing the Führer to negotiate a peace with the Allies that would perpetuate the general staff, at least, and leave it to prepare for the next war.

Members of G-2 who have examined hundreds of official interrogation reports have fitted together the fantastic details of one of the significant plots of history—which backfired into wholesale executions of Wehrmacht officers, altered the Army's entire command and accelerated the rush of the Reich toward its final defeat.

After Stalingrad

Capt. LeRoy Vogel, of San Antonio, Texas, said: "After the disgrace of Stalingrad the general staff realized that if anything at all was to be saved for the future, Hitler would have to go and some sort of peace would have to be negotiated while the Russians were still outside the Reich's borders. So plans for his assassination were put in motion."

By any comparison this plot was one of the sizzlers of the Nazi régime.

Its code name was "Valkryie," after the old Norse myth of Odin's handmaidens who selected the warriors to be killed in battle.

Civil Executives Included

As the plot expanded it spilled out of the ranks of the Wehrmacht clique into the civil service, and included many executives high in public life but opposed to Hitler. Prominent among these were Count von Helldorf, police chief of Berlin, and Dr. Goerdeler, former Mayor of Leipzig.

The exclusive Union Club in Berlin became a rendezvous, and there conspirators frequently met to shape plans and draw up lists of Nazis and SS officers earmarked for death.

In Paris, Berlin and elswhere, key Wehrmacht commanders were to be ready to make wholesale arrests of SS garrisons once the signal of Hitler's death was flashed.

"A Perfect Plan"

"It was a perfect plan, seemingly foolproof," said Lieut. Ernest Miller, of Astoria, L.I., N.Y. "It failed because of three trivial little incidents that could not be foreseen."

On the morning of July 20, Hitler arrived on schedule at his headquarters at Rastenburg, East Prussia. But at the last moment, for some unexplained reason, the regular briefing room was abandoned for a larger one upstairs. This was the first definite break against the plotters.

Officer With Brief Case

A few minutes later Colonel von Stauffenberg, of the general staff, came in. He carried a time-bomb in his briefcase. The fact that he was permitted to approach Hitler with a briefcase in hand distinguished him as an officer with wide privileges.

Stauffenberg casually placed his briefcase on the floor next to the desk, spoke a few words to an acquaintance and drifted out into the hall. When briefing began a few moments later he had no returned.

One of those unforseeable little incidents that sometimes alter history now took place. The briefing officer mentioned a place name that was unfamiliar to Hitler, and Hitler got up and walked across the room to have a closer look at the maps. This move, quite by chance, placed a massive oak desk between Hitler and Stauffenberg's briefcase.

Then Came The Blast

As Hitler stood squinting at the map a terrific explosion blazed through the room, killing six officers and maiming others. Hitler himself was thrown against the wall and partially stunned, but the lucky combination of the heavy oak desk, his curiosity about place names and the roomier briefing room saved his life.

Within six hours, one of the great blood purges of Hitler's regime was underway. Goebbels ascribed the plot failure to divine intervention. Hitler spoke briefly into a microphone, assuring the country his life had been spared.

fantasist who had a grudge against museums and similar institutions. A painting restorer in The Hague said that if one of the disputed works which he transferred to new canvas recently, "Pilgrims to Emmaus," was indeed forgery, then the painter must be considered a genius in that particular line.

Second Manner Adopted

"Pilgrims to Emmaus" was returned to the Boysmans Museum in Rotterdam only Thursday, along with other masterpieces from wartime storage in tunnels at Maastricht.

The Catholic daily newspaper De Volkskrant said that there were suspected Vermeers also in Germany, England and the United States.

The Amsterdamsch Dagblad said its editors "have at hand facts in detail" concerning the case which it would print as soon as a release was authorized by military intelligence.

Vermeer (1632-1675) rarely dated his pictures. Lemon yellow and blue mark all his works. He used the brush with strength and power in his early productions. Colors were bold. In his later years he adopted a second manner. His paintings was smoother, thinner, softer. His works in public and private collections were listed at 37 in 1939.

Picture Without Precedent

De Volkskrant reproduced two paintings side by side today under the caption: "Painted by the same brush." One was the head of "Mother," by Van Meegeren. The other was the head of Christ in "Pilgrims to Emmaus."

Het Parool said it was in the national interest that the affair be "investigated to the depths and cleared up completely."

"If the rumors prove to be true," the newspaper said, "then the best experts and completely reputable persons have been the dupes of a deception which was fashioned with unparalleled skill and in which, besides the forger himself, many middle men must have taken part."

The picture case is without precedent in Netherlands law. What the penalty might be was not announced.

Van Meegeren and other major figures in the Netherlands charged with collaboration have yet to be brought to trial. He was among the first arrested by Dutch interior forces after the liberation.

Painting Sensation In Holland

Amsterdam, July 20 (AP)—The authenticity of several paintings introduced to the public as newly discovered works of Jan Vermeer, Seventeenth Century Dutch master, is in question, and the case has become a national sensation in Holland.

Originally many of these paintings were introduced to the public by Hans van Meegeren, modern Dutch painter. Soon after the liberation of the Netherlands van Meegeren was arrested for collaboration with the Germans and is now in prison awaiting trial.

The press agency Anepaneta, which operates as a Government mouthpiece, asserted a few days ago that van Meegeren had made a statement that he himself painted the supposed Vermeers.

Investigation Demanded

Anepaneta quoted van Meegeren as saying he made 8,000,000 guilders ($3,024,000 at present exchange rates) forging the pictures and bamboozling the art experts.

Netherlands newspapers today demanded an investigation.

Art experts say they are not convinced that the statements attributed to van Meegeren are true.

The director of the Rotterdam Museum said the prisoner was a

Dutch Would Take Western Reich Area

Amsterdam, July 20 (A. P.).—A sizable section of Dutch opinion favors annexing western German territory to compensate for war damage, and interest in the Potsdam conference here today is chiefly concerned with this possibility.

J. Van Der Broek, former finance and commerce minister, has formed a working committee to propagandize this aim. The newspaper Het Parool has suggested the annexation of 3,861 square miles adjacent to the borders to help compensate for Netherlands war damage estimated at 14,750,000,000 guilders ($5,575,500,000).

Denmark Suspends All Money Transfers

Copenhagen, July 20 (AP)—All money transfers inside Denmark have been forbidden today and tomorrow and Parliament has been summoned for a three-day session starting today.

The newspaper Morgenbladet said a bill proposing extraordinary taxes on property would be laid before Parliament.

It was an open secret that all old bank notes would be declared invalid, and that on Monday new ones would be issued. It also was expected that banks would be closed over the week end.

KING SOLICITED HITLER TALKS, IS ACCUSATION

Van Acker Claims Ruler Refused To Join Belgian 'Maquis'

Brussels, July 20 (AP)—Premier Achille van Acker told the Belgian Parliament today that King Leopold solicited an interview with Adolf Hitler at Berchtesgaden, that later he refused to join the Belgian "Maquis," and that finally his removal into Germany was voluntary.

Van Acker made the accusations during a parliamentary debate on the whole royal controversy which boiled to a climax with enactment yesterday of a law exiling the monarch. He accused Leopold of having termed American and British generals "brutal and ill-mannered."

Leopold "has not betrayed Belgium," van Acker declared, but he "believed in a German victory" and made "so many mistakes there's nothing left for him" except abdication.

Premier Tells Of Memorandum

Van Acker, asserting that "Belgian state affairs are paralyzed" by the abdication crisis, stated that "the vital interests of Belgium cannot be sacrificed to one man, whoever he may be."

He declared "twelve well-known legal personalities" advised Leopold against any interview with Hitler, but that Leopold had his sister, Princess Marie Jose of Piedmont, "organize this meeting with Hitler."

He said he possessed a copy of a memorandum prepared by "personalities who accompanied the King" to Berchtesgaden. He said it showed that the King not only discussed with Hitler better treatment of Belgian prisoners and Belgian food problems, but that Leopold himself initiated conversations "on such political subjects as maintenance of the Saxe-Coburg dynasty, the military régime of Belgium, and German control of our foreign affairs. All these things were to be put into practice after the conclusion of peace."

Says Abdication Issue Forced

Van Acker, who was active in the underground during the German occupation, said he himself arranged for Leopold to join the "Maquis" as his brother, Regent Prince Charles, did. But, he continued, when he sent an emissary to the palace of Laeken where the monarch stayed during much of the occupation, the King gave nine reasons for not following van Acker's plan.

These reasons, the Premier said, included:

That Belgium would see bloodshed and he did not want to be here when it occurred.

That Allied commanders would meddle in Belgian problems and the King couldn't stand that if he were in Belgium.

That he didn't want to be in Belgium when Allied forces landed on the Continent.

"The King said that British and American generals were brutal and ill-mannered."

Van Acker said he had tried vainly during the last two months to avoid an abdication demand, but that the issue was forced by Leopold's "lack of comprehension."

Belgium System Defended

He described Belgium itself as "a prey of uncertainty" delaying reconstruction which "should be the only preoccupation of the country. . . . It is essential to put an end to this paralysis . . . everything is in danger of crashing down because of the attitude of one single man."

Van Acker said Leopold's life "has been full of tragedy"; that he fought in World War I while still a boy; that he lost his first wife (Queen Astrid) and was plunged into another war "with responsibilities too heavy for his shoulders."

As a result, he continued, the King "confused the higher interests of the nation with those of his person."

Defending Belgium's parliamentary-monarchy system, van Acker said "we must do everything possible to save it," and concluded his speech with a plea to "rally around" the young Prince Baudoin, Leopold's son.

Catholic Party Defends King

Referring to Leopold's second marriage during the war, van Acker declared "the King is not a man like others; he is considered to be a superman, and the pedestal on which the King stood has been destroyed by this marriage."

He asserted the "King has not reacted like the whole nation in the face of the German invasion. He was convinced of German victory and has not done all in his power to counteract the enemy's designs."

Only Catholic party speakers defended Leopold in the debate, and its leader, Carton de Wiart, successfully demanded from van Acker all documents upon which the Premier based his opening speech. Parliament adjourned the debate until Tuesday in order that party leaders might study the documents.

De Wiart defended Leopold's action in the Belgian surrender, asserting that Russia's attitude at that moment was "not what it should have been," and that the Belgian Government in London apparently believed at that time that Germany would win the war.

Belgian 'Paralysis' In Crisis Seen

London, July 20 (AP)—The Brussels radio quoted Prime Minister Achille van Acker as telling the Chamber of Deputies today that "Belgian affairs of state are paralyzed" by the abdication crisis which "must be overcome as quickly as possible."

Parliament legally exiled King Leopold III earlier this week.

"My personal opinion of the King is that he is not a traitor, but that he believed Germany would win," the radio quoted van Acker as saying. "We have shown patience, moderation and understanding, but Belgium's most vital needs cannot be sacrificed for a single man, whoever he is."

His remarks came in a debate over Leopold, who has refused to abdicate. Carton de Wiart, Catholic party leader, demanded a referendum on the issue and accused the Socialists of fearing public opinion.

FRANCO REVEALS CABINET SHIFTS

Foreign Secretary Dropped; Five Falangists Named to Posts.

MADRID, July 20—(AP) Generalissimo Franco completed a long-expected shakeup of his cabinet tonight, dropping Foreign Minister Jose Felix LeQuerica and Falange Secretary-General Jose Luis Arrese but appointing Falangists to five of the 12 cabinet posts.

Franco, who said in a speech Tuesday that Spain was entering a preparatory period for the return of a monarchy, appointed five cabinet ministers who were considered Monarchist sympathizers, although none has had the support of exiled Prince Don Juan or any Monarchist groups.

Spaniards have expected a cabinet reorganization since the time of the United Nations San Francisco declaration that no government organized with Axis help could become a member of any United Nations group.

Franco named Alberto Martin Artajo, Catholic lay leader, to succeed LeQuerica in the ministry of foreign portfolio.

Falangists named were Raimundo Fernandez Cuesta, former secretary-general of the party, appointed minister of justice; Jose Antonio Giron, minister of labor; Carlos Rein Segura, minister of agriculture; Blas Perez Gonzalez, minister of the interior; and Jose Ibanez Martin, minister of education.

Appointees considered monarchist sympathizers were Joaquin Benjumea Burin, finance; Fidel Davila Arrondo, war; Francisco Regaldo, navy; Eduardo Gonzalez Gallarza, air; and Jose Maria Ferandez Ladreda, public works.

Juan Antonio Suances, who like Artajo was considered neither a Falangist nor a Monarchist, was appointed minister of industry and commerce.

Arrondo, the war ministry appointee, was one of Franco's outstanding generals in the Spanish civil war. He served as a lieutenant in Cuba during the Spanish-American war.

Franco has asserted that the United Nations' declaration regarding Axis-aided governments did not affect Spain, but there has been much speculation regarding a cabinet reorganization since the announcement was made. Many Spaniards recalled that German and Italian troops marched in a Madrid parade in 1939 in celebration of victory in the civil war.

FRANCO SHIFTS HIS CABINET

Drops Lequerica And Arrese, Arch-Falangists

Madrid, July 20 (AP)—Generalissimo Franco completed a long-expected shakeup of his Cabinet tonight, dropping Foreign Minister Jose Felix Lequerica and the Falange secretary general, Jose Luis Arrese but appointing Falangists to five of the twelve Cabinet posts.

Franco, who said in a speech Tuesday that Spain was entering a preparatory period for the return of a monarchy, appointed five Cabinet ministers who were considered monarchist sympathizers, although none has had the support of exiled Prince Don Juan or any monarchist groups.

Spaniards have expected a Cabinet reorganization since the time of the United Nations San Francisco declaration that no government organized with Axis help could become a member of any United Nations group.

Artajo Succeeds

Franco named Alberto Martin Artajo, Catholic lay leader, to succeed Lequerica in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Arrese was displaced through the elimination of his Cabinet position —Minister Without Portfolio.

Falangists named were Raimundo Fernandez Cuesta, former secretary general of the party, appointed Minister of Justice; Jose Antonio Giron, Minister of Labor; Carlos Rein Segura, Minister of Agriculture; Blas Perez Gonzalez, Minister of the Interior, and Jose Ibanez Martin, Minister of Education.

Appointees considered monarchist sympathizers were Joaquin Benjumea Burin, finance; Fidel Davila Arrondo, war; Francisco Regaldo, navy; Eduardo Gonzalez Gallarza, air, and Jose Maria Fernandez Ladreda, public works.

Suances Views His Own

Juan Antonio Saunces, who like Artajo was considered neither a Falangist nor a monarchist, was appointed Minister of Industry and Commerce.

Arrondo, the War Ministry appointee, was one of Franco's outstanding generals in the Spanish civil war. He served as a lieutenant in Cuba during the Spanish-American War.

Franco has asserted that the United Nations declaration regarding Axis-aided governments did not affect Spain, but there has been much speculation regarding a Cabinet reorganization since the announcement was made. Many Spaniards recalled that German and Italian troops marched in a Madrid parade in 1939 in celebration of victory in the civil war.

Artajo, known as the outstanding lay spokesman for the Spanish Catholic Church, resigned as national director of Spanish Catholic action, the nation's largest civil organization, to accept the Foreign Ministry post.

He was born February 10, 1905, studied at the Jesuit-directed Areneros College and received a law degree from Madrid University.

A practical lawyer, he now is secretary general of a group of lawyers who advise the state council on legal matters. The council in turn is consulted by General Franco on new laws.

Anti-Allied Strikes In Trieste, Venice

Rome, July 20 (AP)—Strikes in protest against acts by Allied authorities broke out yesterday in Trieste and the Venice area, a Trieste dispatch to Rome's Risorgimento Liberale said today.

The Trieste strike was called over the arrest by Allied authorities of local Communists, the dispatch said, and the Venice strike apparently protested the membership of a committee nominated by Allied authorities to purge Fascists.

A Yugoslav telegraph agency dispatch received via London last night said that all work had been brought to a "complete standstill" in Trieste and the British-American government zone in the Slovene Littoral.

Tass Tells Of Arrests

A Tass dispatch from Belgrade, broadcast by the Moscow radio, quoted the Yugoslav agency as saying that "Allied military authorities recently freed the chairman of the Liberation Assembly of Trieste and several other anti-Fascists they had arrested. Immediately after this, Allied military authorities arrested several dozen anti-Fascists."

From Venice it was reported that the entire province was tied up last night by a general strike called by the Committee of National Liberation in protest against a commission nominated by the Allied military authorities to conduct a purge of Fascists. Late last night the Socialist party secretary announced an agreement under which he said the commission would resign and a list of candidates for a new commission would be submitted by the committee.

GI Blast Toll In Rome 24

Rome, July 20 (AP)—The number of known dead from Wednesday's explosion of a store of German mines at Viareggio reached 36 today, 24 of them soldiers of the all-Negro United States 92d Division or attached units.

Forty-eight soldiers, all members of the 92d Units, were injured seriously when the American Red Cross enlisted men's club was nearly demolished by the blast. Twelve Italians were killed and eight were injured.

Names of the American casualties were not disclosed pending notification of next of kin.

Alleged Murderer Of Matteotti Held

Milan, July 20 (AP)—Press dispatches said today Amerigo Dumini, St. Louis-born follower of Mussolini accused of murdering the Socialist Deputy Giamoco Matteotti in 1926, had been arrested by Italian police at Piacenza.

Dumini was reported to have been working under an assumed name as a driver for a Piacenza trucking concern.

Convicted Of Killing

A strong-arm man for Mussolini when the Fascists were gaining power in Italy by force and castor oil, Dumini was convicted of killing Matteotti soon after the decapitated body of the brilliant opposition leader was found, but was released by Mussolini after serving a few months in prison. In a speech before Parliament, Mussolini denied Fascists were responsible for the deputy's death. Since then Dumini has been variously reported dead or rearrested.

Dumini was born in St. Louis of an Italian father and an English mother. His father returned to Italy when he was a boy and took him along.

LEHMAN INVITES UNRRA INQUIRY

Answers Dirksen Attack on Agency's Operations.

Athens, July 20 (A. P.).—Replying to charges by Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R.-Ill.), Herbert H. Lehman said today that the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration "will always welcome a most careful study of its operations." Dirksen has demanded a congressional investigation of the UNRRA, asking among other things: Why do UNRRA food supplies appear in the black market in Athens? Why were 200 tractors left on the dock in Greece for a long time when they were allegedly needed in the field? Why is the UNRRA being investigated by British Intelligance?

Lehman, director of the UNRRA, said in an interview, "In the countries I have visited, UNRRA is, on the whole, doing excellent work and has already brought much relief to the people. As far as I have been able to ascertain, no substantial quantity of UNRRA goods appear in the black market. If there is any substantial evidence that UNRRA goods are appearing in the black market, I would like it submitted so that we can properly investigate it.

Cite Greek Lack of Transport.

Any tractors which may have been or are on the docks in Athens are merely awaiting trans-shipment to the provinces. To do this adequate means of transport are essential. Lack of transportation is one of the greatest problems in Greece. The railroads are completely destroyed and there are very few ships and trucks left. UNRRA has been seeking to provide additional trucks. If those which are being sought can be obtained the transport situation will be considerably relieved.

"I have no knowledge of any investigation by the British Intelligence."

Lehman is leaving by air tomorrow for Belgrade on the way to attend the third general conference of the UNRRA in London.

YIYANG, KEY RICE BOWL CITY, TAKEN

Soong Predicts Japan Will Be Defeated This Year

Chungking, July 20 (AP)—Chinese troops have captured Yiyang, key waterway-control stronghold just south of the Tung Ting Lake in China's great "rice bowl," the Chinese high command announced today as Premier T. V. Soong predicted victory this year or early in 1946.

On widespread fronts, the Chinese announced the clearing of 50 miles of the South China "invasion coast," and further advances toward Kweilin, while an American communiqué hinted at a Chinese thrust at Liuchow, 115 miles inside Indo-China.

The United States communiqué, without elaboration, said American fighters "in support of Chinese ground forces attacked machine-gun positions at Caobang in French Indo-China, inflicting casualties." The Chinese have not mentioned any drive toward Caobang.

Is Key Control Point

Yiyang, in Hunan province 55 miles northwest of Changsha, is a control point in enemy waterway communications between Changsha and Tung Ting Lake, which lies in the heart of the rice bowl.

From Yiyang the Chinese can threaten the stretch of the Canton-Hankow railroad between Changsha and Yoyang (Yochow) at the northeast edge of the lake. This rail line is the enemy's main communication avenue down his "corridor" splitting China.

A Chinese army spokesman meanwhile declared the Japanese had moved 100,000 troops out of Hunan in the last month, sending part of them to Shantung province in apparent fear of United States landings there. Shantung borders the Yellow Sea opposite Korea.

Recapture of Yiyang was another indication of a large-scale enemy withdrawal from South China. The communiqué did not say whether there was a battle for Yiyang, taken Monday, or whether the Japanese had abandoned it.

Nothing Decided In Moscow

Premier Soong told the Peoples Political Council the war with Japan would be finished by the end of this year, or the beginning of 1946 at the latest. He said nothing positive was decided yet through his recent Moscow conferences, which he described as incomplete.

The Chinese command declared its forces now controlled at least 50 miles of the coast fronting the South China Sea in Kwantung province, opening it for any Allied landing force.

A communiqué said Chinese troops had pushed 50 miles eastward from Tinpak—taken in a thrust to cut enemy communications between Canton and Hainan Island—to near Yeungkong, 120 miles southwest of Canton. Fighting continues near Yeungkong, it added.

Chinese Close On Kweilin

Northward, other Chinese columns closed tigher about Kweilin, former American airbase city. Units driving up the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad laid siege to Yungfu, 31 miles southwest of Kweilin, the bulletin said. Other forces pushing up a secondary road from Liuchow on Monday captured Laipo, 60 miles east of Liuchow, and then turned northward toward Yangso, 45 miles south of Kweilin.

Still other columns have been reported fighting in Kweilin's southern suburbs, and at a point 14 miles northwest of the city.

The Japanese have withdrawn some troops and supplies from Kweilin, but left enough men behind to stage a fierce battle if they choose, Maj. Gen. Kuo Chi-chih, new command spokesman, said.

5 Junks Destroyed

Farther east, hard fighting against retreating Japanese was reported raging near Wanan, on the Kan River, 55 miles north of Kanhsien, now in Chinese hands. Thirty miles north of Kanhsien, the Chinese command added, five Japanese junks loaded with loot and war supplies were destroyed in another engagement.

General Kuo declared the Japanese were preparing to send a relief force from Nanchang to aid the Japanese retreating from Kanhsien. Nanchang is 200 miles north of Kanhsien.

Kuo said two main enemy columns were moving northward from Kanhsien, on the Kan River toward Wanan, and another had struck crosscountry between Wanan and Suichwan, site of one of six Chinese-recovered American airbases.

Kuo declared some Japanese forces in North China were being sent to the Shantung coast, along with those taken from Hunan province recently. Other enemy forces were transferred from Hunan to Hankow and similar "nerve centers" where the enemy plans a last-ditch stand, he asserted.

2,000,000 Troops Estimated

The General estimated the enemy had 1,000,000 combat troops in China and Manchuria, plus another 1,000,000 auxiliary troops. All Japanese seaborne traffic between China and Japan has been interrupted, he declared, and no troops are being moved in either direction.

Kuo declared Japanese civilians are being trained for a full-strength defense of the Asiatic mainland, and that the enemy is reinforcing and fortifying the Shanghai and Nanking regions for a "death stand."

He added there was no sign that the Japanese intended to abandon the Hong Kong or Canton areas, or key centers such as Hengyang in the Hankow-Hong Kong corridor. The enemy also apparently intends to hold Hainan Island off the south coast of China, and is preparing for a long siege, he said.

Kuo described recent Japanese attacks on the Indo-China border as a smokescreen for redeployment of their forces in that colony. He declared the enemy is fortifying his positions around Dong Dang and all along the Indo-China coast, although minor units are trying to reach Canton in small boats.

Japan Transfers 100,000 Men To Chinese Coast

Chungking, July 20 (AP)—A Chinese Army spokesman, Maj. Gen. Kuo Chi-chih, said the Japanese had moved 100,000 troops from Hunan province to the coast of Shantung in the last four weeks, anticipating an American landing.

He estimated that 1,000,000 Japanese combat troops were in China and Manchuria, plus an equal number of auxiliaries. He said Japanese sea traffic between the islands and China had been interrupted and that no troops had been moved recently in either direction.

The Chinese high command also announced that a 50-mile stretch of the South China coast is firmly in Chinese hands and cleared for a seaborne invasion of the continent.

Chinese Near Yeungkong

Chinese forces, striking eastward along the Kwangtung province coastal highway from the town of Tinpak, which they recently took and thereby severed Japanese communications between Canton and Hainan Island, reached the vicinity of the road junction city of Yeungkong, 50 miles from Tinpak and 125 miles southwest of Canton.

Yeungkong is a little more than 600 miles northwest of Luzon.

Japs Fear Invasion There

This cleared a stretch, formerly held firmly by the enemy, where the Japanese announced they feared an American invasion.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was quoted in a Yank magazine dispatch made public yesterday, however, as saying in effect that an invasion of the continent would be unnecessary, that the enemy could be subdued by Chinese ground forces aided by American air power.

In Kwangsi province, Chinese forces which swung out in a wide arc eastward from recently-recaptured Liuchow have captured the important highway junction of Laipo and have turned north toward Kweilin, adding to the number of Chinese troops closing in on that largest of former United States 14th Air Force bases.

Fighting In Kweilin Suburbs

Laipo is 65 miles east of Liuchow on a circuitous subsidiary highway leading to Kweilin. Its captors immediately struck northward toward Yangso, 45 miles south of Kweilin, three-field American air base abandoned to the Japanese last October. Advance units are already fighting in the southern suburbs of Kweilin, the Chinese say.

Other troops moving up the Liuchow-Kweilin railroad laid siege to the road and rail town of Yungfu, 32 miles southwest of Kweilin and about 30 miles northwest of Yangso, the Chinese said.

Some 270 miles northeast of Kweilin, Chinese troops recaptured Yiyang, a Japanese stronghold south of Tungting Lake and 55 miles northwest of Changsha.

Waterway Control Point

Yiyang is a controlling point in Japanese waterway communications between Changsha and Tungting Lake and its possession by the Chinese also posed a threat to the stretch of the Canton-Hankow railroad between Changsha and Hochow.

In Kiangsi province, 220 miles southeast of Yiyang, the high command reported that a battle was raging in the vicinity of Wanan, on the Kan River, 45 miles north of the former American airbase city of Kanhsien, which was recently wrested from the Japanese.

Soong Expects Victory Over Japan by Early '46

Says Nothing Positive Was Decided in Talks With Stalin

CHUNGKING, July 20 (AP).—Premier T. V. Soong, who returned to Chungking recently from a visit to Moscow, declared today that the war with Japan would end this year or early in 1946.

Soong, addressing the People's Political Council, also declared that the Chinese government would be reorganized immediately, with a view to creating the strongest possible machinery for post-war reconstruction.

He said that while in the United States—where he attended the San Francisco Conference before going to Moscow—he had concluded arrangements for building up China's industry and fostering the country's economic development.

Soong said nothing positive had been decided by his visit to Moscow, during which he had several meeaings with Premier Stalin. He indicated, however, that negotiations initiated there were continuing.

Burmese Patriots Kill Jap Stragglers

Calcutta, July 20 (AP)—Patriot Burmese forces, fighting alongside British troops in the Sittang River area, have killed a number of Japanese troops trying to cross to the east bank and join the main enemy force concentrated at Nyaungkashe, 25 miles northeast of Pegu, Southeast Asia Command headquarters announced today.

On the section of the Mandalay-Rangoon highway between Toungoo and Pegu, British troops are daily taking a toll of enemy stragglers attempting to make their way eastward toward the Sittang.

English Evacuees To Return

Wellington, N.Z., July 20 (AP)—Children evacuated here from England in 1940 to escape German air-raids and the threat of invasion, will begin leaving shortly for their homes.

Argentine Exiles Call For Reform

Montevideo, July 20 (AP)—A committee of Argentine exiles, including members of all former Argentine political parties, today urged their countrymen to oppose the government of Gen. Edelmiro Farrell so as to insure, they said, the country "her freedom, sovereignty and international decorum."

A document signed by former Deputies Jose Aguirre Camara, Conservative; Julio A. Noble, Progressive Democrat; Nicolas Repetto, Socialist; Agustin Rodriguez Araya, Radical, and Communist Leader Rodolfo Ghioldi said "a union of Argentines should free the country from fascistic humiliation."

It added that exiles should urge the people of all political parties "to unite in a single movement to precipitate the downfall of the present regime."

For Union Of All Parties

For the first time since its inception last month the committee, in a 600-word statement, went all out for a union of all parties and shelving of all political differences until the present regime is unseated.

"Serious events provoked or produced by the dictatorship," the statement asserted, "have put the country on the brink of economic and financial bankruptcy and will sink it in institutional anarchy and segregate it from the community of nations.

At "Mercy Of Fascist Clique"

"With the people's sovereignty suppressed, freedom of the press nullified, foreign correspondents threatened with death and labor and political rights ignored, the republic now has been delivered to the mercy of the Fascist clique which gags it inside and demotes it outside. The ruthless political tyranny which (the regime) imposed in an inevitable step toward bellicose designs."

The statement declared Argentina now had "the tremendous privilege of becoming an asylum for war criminals, a lair for Nazis fleeing Allied control, a refuge for piratical submarines and a cauldron of threats to South American peace."

"The dilemma," it asserted, "is ineluctable—either the republic recovers its sovereignty and dignity outraged by the dictatorship or the dictatorship will sink the country in chaos, disaster and warring adventure."

UNITED STATES FIRST TO ADOPT BRETTON PLAN

House Votes Unanimously in Approving Minor Changes in Bill.

TRUMAN SIGNATURE NEEDED

Senate Completes Congresstonal Approval of Bill Increasing Export Bank Funds.

Washington, July 20 (A. P.).—The United States Congress today became the first big Power parliamentary body to approve the forty-four-nation Bretton Woods international monetary program.

Final approval was by unanimous voice vote in the House after that body had accepted minor Senate amendments to the measure originally passed by the House. The action sends the legislation to President Truman for his signature.

Earlier, congressional leaders had expressed hope that Mr. Truman would receive the legislation while attending the Big Three conference at Potsdam.

Export Bank Bill Passes.

The Senate completed congressional approval today of legislation boosting the lending authority of the Export-Import Bank by $2,800,000,000.

By unanimous voice vote, the Senate sent President Truman a measure increasing the bank's loan limit from $700,000,000 to $3,500,000,000.

This rounds out an administration monetary program which included authority, approved by the chamber yesterday, for American participation in a $9,100,000,000 International Bank for reconstruction and development and an $8,800,000,000 fund to support world currencies.

The increase in Export-Import funds will provide loans to finance American shipments of goods to war-devistated Europe. Leo Crowley, Foreign Economic Administrator, said about $1,000,000,000 would be earmarked for Russia.

Sees Trade Plentiful.

Senator Murdock (D.-Utah) told the Senate today that America's immediate post-war problem will not be to find international trade, but to take care of that which comes voluntarily.

Senator Langer (R.-N. D.) has suggested amending the Export-Import Bank legislation to provide for stationing representatives of the bank in major trade centers throughout the world. The legislation expands the bank's lending power from $700,000,000 to $3,500,000,000. The bank finances exports and imports.

Murdock said the increase was necessary to bridge a gap of eighteen months or so before the International Bank provided under the Bretton Woods agreement begins operations.

"We have a vast productive capacity and must export goods to use it fully," he said. "Lend-lease cannot be used for reconstruction and the bank will not operate for perhaps eighteen months. The Export-Import Bank will be faced with a heavy demand for credit."

Under questioning by Langer, Murdock said that the legislation in effect repealed the Johnson act so far as the Export-Import Bank is concerned. The Johnson act prohibits loans to countries in default on debts to the United States.

"Is not Russia a defaulter?" Langer asked.

Murdock said the predecessor of the present Russian Government had defaulted.

Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) said that the real purpose of the bill was to provide funds for rehabilitation in Europe.

"In effect what this is for is to supplement lend-lease," the Ohioan said.

He quoted Leo T. Crowley, Foreign Economic Administrator, as saying the $2,800,000,000 increase would be used up in twelve months.

Senator Hickenlooper (R.-Iowa) read a letter he said was from a manufacturer who quoted an agent in Venezuela.

This agent said that England, Sweden and Switzerland were offering items which could not be obtained, or only with great delay, from this country.

Saying there is ample reason why South Americans are "turning to Europe," the agent said:

"Prices are lower and deliveries are quicker."

ASKS BRITAIN FOR SUEZ TOLLS

U. S. Renews Request Under Reverse Lend-Lease.

Washington, July 20 (A. P.).—The United States is pressing Britain anew to absorb under reverse lend-lease Suez Canal tolls on American ships redeploying fighting men and equipment to the Pacific.

This was learned today, along with the fact that while the United States has lend-leased $9,000,000 in Panama Canal charges on British ships, it has also paid $11,345,390 on Suez tolls from the start of the war to last January 1.

As troops pour eastward to speed victory against Japan, shipping through the Suez gateway will mount.

United States-British negotiations on the Suez charges were revealed in an exchange of letters between Representative Robertson (R.-N. D.) and the Foreign Economic Administration.

The FEA told Robertson this Government first asked Britain to lend-lease the canal charges in the fall of 1942. After formal talks in London and Washington, however, Britain refused. The matter was brought up several times since then. The latest request was made last May 22 and new discussions now are underway in London.

The Suez Canal is owned by a corporation organized under French law. The British Government, as the major shareholder, holds 44 per cent of the stock. This was cited as a reason why Britain should bear the burden of getting American shipping through.

The British, however, replied that the tolls have to be paid in Egyptian pounds, recalling that lend-lease arrangements require that countries lend-lease only goods made from their own resources or services which mean spending their own currency.

The British said they already owed Egypt too much for war purchases and could not afford to incur any further debts to that country.

Lend-Lease Called 'Sickening' Immediate End Urged

Washington, July 20 (AP)—Immediate abolition of lend-lease was urged yesterday by Representative Ellis (R., W.Va.).

"Let us stop this senseless operation now," Ellis told the House. "The Congress should do this, before we are compelled to do so by an incensed public opinion."

Ellis declared that other nations are taking advantage of the United States under lend-lease. He added: "The story of our allies in the Middle East being swamped with American cigarettes, beer and precious canned goods, while our men were without, is a sickening revelation."

"Buying Our Goods Back"

"Gasoline sent them on lend-lease in United States tankers, delivered to the gasoline dumps of our allies in United States trucks, was later purchased by our forces —cash on the barrel head—at excessive prices.

"We pay $1 per head to the French-British company for United States troops passing through the Suez Canal to the Far East to drive the Japs out of the possessions of our allies. [The Foreign Economic Administration said later that a per-soldier cost cannot be determined because tolls are based on ship tonnages.]

"Making Monarchs Richer"

"Up until December, 1944, we had delivered $3,523,684,000 in lend-lease to the Mediterranean area. The consumer goods sent to the absolute monarchs, such as in Arabia and Egypt, add to their personal fortune. The goods are sold in the markets.

"Poverty and disease are prevalent and 99 per cent of the population received nothing and know nothing about lend-lease."

There was no immediate comment from lend-lease officials.

LEND-LEASE TO ITALY SET AT $100,000,000

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP)—Italy will receive $100,000,000 in lend-lease goods by November, Oscar Cox, deputy administrator of the foreign Economic Administration, said today.

Mr. Cox said that his agency already has been allocating such goods for Italy under a War Department directive approved by President Truman.

The Italian lend-lease material, he said, will not necessarily be used in direct contribution to the battle against Japan, now an Italian enemy, but to aid Italy's internal economy as a measure in our national defense.

This roundabout way of providing lend-lease war goods to a "non-lend-lease nation" was possible, Mr. Cox explained, under a provision in the act authorizing any Federal agency to obtain lend-lease whenever the national interest is jeopardized.

The presence of American troops in Italy, Mr. Cox said, in addition to Italy's recent declaration of war against Japan, were considered the two main factors in justifying lend-lease aid to Italy.

The goods are expected to include raw materials, transportation equipment, industrial and agricultural machinery and other materials needed to rebuild Italy's war-devastated economy.

ICKES WILL SEND COAL TO EUROPE

Sharpest Home Heating Fuel Cuts Of War In Prospect

Washington, July 20 (AP)—Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, announced plans today to send 6,000,000 tons of bituminous coal to Europe by January 1, confronting the nation with the probability of the most drastic home-heating fuel cuts of the war.

"The shipment of coal to the devastated countries of Europe is imperative in order to forestall disaster which the people of Europe would not accept supinely and without disorder," the solid fuels administrator said.

The 6,000,000-ton figure was qualified by the phrase "if possible," but no doubt was left that great quantities are to go, with 6,000,000 tons as the goal. Very roughly that amount of coal represents a year's supply for 1,000,000 American homes.

No definite allotments have been made. How coal will be shipped—whether through lend-lease or under some other arrangement—has not been decided.

Coal Outlook Gets Darker

The worsening coal situation both at home and abroad presented these probabilities:

1. Industry, with the probable exception of the utilities and the railroads, will be cut back an undetermined amount from previous allotments.

2. Home consumers who have been getting along on 80 per cent of normal prewar needs—much of it substitute fuels—may have to get along on less. Recently the solid fuel administrator said the 80 per cent was the minimum for safe health standards.

3. Rail carriers, already heavily burdened with emergency freight, will be called upon for greater exertions to move coal to East Coast shipping points.

4. The Army must act, one way or another, on a pending plea by Ickes to release at least 30,000 of the 130,000 miners now in uniform in order to increase our own domestic output.

Ickes said today that increasing production here through the employment of more miners is the "only sure way to avoid . . . disaster in Europe and further distress at home." He added that the only source of adidtional miners is the Army.

Wake Marines Gave Up Mainly To Save Civilians

Two Survivors Of Heroic Garrison Who Escaped Jap Prison Camp Tell Story Of Siege

Washington, July 20 (AP)—Two survivors of the heroic Marine garrison on Wake Island said today the defenders surrendered to the Japanese largely to prevent further slaughter of unarmed civilians.

Seventy civilians had already been killed, along with 49 Marines, when the little Pacific island was given up to strong enemy forces on December 23, 1941, they related.

The survivors, first to tell of the last hours on Wake, were First Lieutenants John A. McAlister, 26, of Blue Mountain, Miss., and John F. Kinney, 30, of Colfax, Wash.

They have just reached Washington after escaping from a prisoner-of-war camp near Shanghai, China. How they managed that is a secret.

Kept Planes In Air

The lieutenants said the Japanese killed two wounded men in a surrendered hospital, forced all the surrendering garrison to strip and tied them to posts for hours. They allowed the captives, no food and little water for two days.

They told a news conference that there were 435 Marines on Wake at the start, that the fiftieth Marine death came the day after surrender. A Japanese corpsman told them enemy casualties totaled about 500.

It was Lieutenant Kinney who was credited with keeping the island's few planes in the air by a process of patching, swapping parts, stripping and rebuilding.

Lieutenant McAlister was with the defense forces on tiny Wilkes Island, part of the Wake atoll, which was the last defending unit to surrender.

Not Allowed To Talk

Kinney said he was in an improvised hospital suffering from exhaustion when the surrender order came, and a surrender flag was raised over the hospital shack. When Japanese troops arrived, he said, all personnel who were able were standing with arms raised, but the Japanese nevertheless fired into the shack, killing two and wounding one.

Their story, from then on:

All of the surrendering garrison were stripped naked and tied to posts for several hours and then kept in the open for two days On Christmas night they were moved to barracks and given two meals a day from their own stores.

Except for about 300 civilians and a few specialist military personnel left behind as a labor battalion, and a few too ill to move, the island's garrison was put aboard the former passenger liner Nita Maru, on the afternoon of January 12. No one was allowed to take anything except the clothes he wore. All were locked up in holds below deck, not allowed to talk. and had to sleep on the bare deck.

Few Off At Yokohama

The ship arrived January 18 in Yokohama where a few enlisted men and officers were taken off. The remainder arrived in Shanghai January 24.

Food in the prison camp consisted of small portions of rice and occasionally some cabbage or carrots with a tiny piece of meat about every third meal.

The officers were paid $60 in Central Reserve Bank money monthly. At the time they left the exchange rate was 14,000 such dollars to one United States dollar. Ten Japanese cigarettes, "apparently made out of seaweed," cost $40.

The prisoners' health held up fairly well after Red Cross packages began to arrive which "kept us going." Attempts at escape resulted in ten-year sentences for "attempted desertion from the Japanese Army."

At Sea When Japs Attacked

When the first attack came December 8, Wake time, Kinney was 60 miles at sea with a four-plane patrol. The garrison's eight other planes were dispersed on the ground as much as possible, but the first attack destroyed seven and badly damaged the eighth. Of the island's 44 air personnel 20 were killed or seriously wounded.

The first sea attack came on December 11. This resulted in the sinking of a Japanese cruiser and two destroyers and damage to another cruiser and a transport.

Between the first and twenty-third attempts at landing the island was bombed continually, and by the time the landing was effected there was no plane left in flying condition.

That was when the final dramatic message went out:

"Enemy on island. Issue in doubt."

OLD GLORY IN BERLIN OWNED BY MAVERICK

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP) — The American flag that flew over Berlin today is destined to hang in the United States Capitol dome as "a symbol of liberty for our friends and respect from our enemies."

Those are the words of Maury Maverick, former Texas Representative and now chairman of the Smaller War Plants Corporation, who owns it. Mr. Maverick told the story of the flag today.

"When the Japanese struck Pearl Harbor, I was in a hospital with a heart attack," he related. "I called my office and told them to see Dave Lynn [architect of the Capitol] early the next morning and remind him that I had reserved a place for the 'war flag' more than a year ago. I knew war was coming.

"My people took the flag up to the Capitol, saw it raised and stay there on the roof all day. It was there when we declared war on Japan on Dec. 8. It was back up there again on Dec. 11 when we declared war on Germany and Italy. I have five affidavits to this.

"Then I wrote President Roosevelt a letter. I told him I would like to see it eventually hang in the Capitol dome as a 'flag of liberation,' as a symbol of liberty for our friends and respect from our enemies. I asked him to take it on those trips he made.

"The President wrote back, 'I like your idea of the flag of liberation.' I saw him, I think it was at his last church service, and he told me, 'This flag idea is working out all right and I want it to go on.'

"President Truman is the man with just the manhood and guts to see that it does go on."

RANKIN ACCUSED OF APING NAZIS IN 'RED' SCARES

JUL 21 1945

WASHINGTON, July 20—(AP) Representative Sabath (D-Ill) accused Rep. Rankin (D-Miss) in the House today of taking "every chance and opportunity that he can grab to put into the record statements that unfortunately seem to follow the policy and program of Hitler and Goebbels."

The Rules committee chairman made his speech in protest against publication of testimony that the Army has commissioned men whose background "reflect Communism." The testimony was given by H. Ralph Burton, General counsel of a military subcommittee of the House, and was put into the Congressional Record by Rankin.

Sabath characterized Burton as a "former representative of the Nazis" and said the attorney "should be investigated himself for his unAmerican activities."

Counsel Admits Error

Sabath spoke shortly after Burton had acknowledged that the name of Capt. Henry Clovis Collins, Napier Field, Ala., had been included by mistake in a list of 16 names of Army personnel made public several days ago by the committee.

Burton had testified that the 16 officers and enlisted men had backgrounds reflecting "Communism in some form." The name of Captain Collins, he explained, was confused with the similar name of a man who had been a panel member of the National Action Conference for Civil Rights.

At Dothan, Ala., Captain Collins said he never had heard of the organization.

He declared in a statement to the Dothan Eagle, that he "never had any political interests of any kind," and particularly that he never had any Communist dealings.

The captain said that before he entered the Army he practiced medicine at Montgomery, Ala., for seven years.

"I think it's a case of mistaken identity," Collins said.

Burton agreed and said the committee has no evidence of any kind that Captain Collins has a questionable background.

Burton, meanwhile, was lambasted on the House floor by both Sabath and Rep. Delacy (D-Wash).

Report Was Not Official

Emphasizing that the military subcommittee's statement was not an official report, Sabath said:

"It was merely the testimony of this former representative of the Nazis, a man who has been connected with a great many unAmerican activities, and I am amazed, I am surprised, that the Military Affairs committee should have a man of that caliber to investigate unAmerican activities when, in fact, he should be investigated himself for his unAmerican activities."

Of Rankin, the rules committee chairman had this to say:

"I regret exceedingly that the gentleman from Mississippi takes every chance and opportunity that he can grab to put into the record statements that unfortunately seem to follow the policy and program of Hitler and Goebbels. He is trying to create the same thing that they have brought about in Germany and other lands."

Delacy told the House that Burton in 1934 was chief counsel for Kurt Georg Wilhelm Ludecke, whom Delacy identified as "a personal representative in this country for Adolf Hitler."

Subsequently, he said, Burton was special counsel for the American Coalition of Patriotic Societies and was general counsel in Maryland for Father Charles Coughlin's Union for Social Justice.

"It seems to me," he commented, "That these facts are sufficient for us to doubt the wisdom of inclusion in the record" of Burton's testimony.

ARMY PLANNING 'SLEEP SHIFTS' ON PULLMAN CARS

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(AP) The Army is going to experiment with "sleep shifts" on pullmans in an effort to relieve the shortage of sleeping cars, it was learned today.

Under this system, a soldier will occupy a berth eight to 12 hours and then relinquish it to another soldier for a similar period. The remainder of the time will be spent in day coaches.

The first test train, made up of coaches and pullmans, will leave Camp Kilmer, N. J., at 9 a. m. Sunday for Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

A similar "shift" arrangement is used on Army transports where the shift lasts eight hours. Army officials said the length of the shift on the pullmans had not been set definitely.

Also today, the Office of Defense Transportation held that servicemen on troop trains must sleep two to a lower berth and one to an upper.

This has been the Army policy but the Navy heretofore has been assigning only one man to a lower. It said recently it intended to continue doing so.

ODT's order, called a step to make travel policy uniform, also prescribes two double seats or four single ones for each three servicemen in a day coach. The extra seat is for stretching purposes.

Meanwhile, the Senate War Investigating committee decided to hold public hearings on the problem of providing adequate troop transportation. ODT Director J. M. Johnson is to be the first witness on Monday.

Two Thirds Of U.S. Sleepers For GI's

New York, July 20 (AP)—Two thirds of the nation's sleeping cars are now available to American service men taking part in the country's greatest military movement—from the European theater, to their homes, to the war against Japan.

The Pullman Company said today a total of 151,000 beds, 115,000 owned by Pullman and 36,000 by the Government, are accommodating military personnel, and an additional 57,000 on regularly scheduled trains are reserved for the Government.

The company, under last Sunday's ODT order discontinuing sleeping-car service o ntrips less than 450 miles, transferred 895 Pullman cars to military service, making 4,260 available for troop movements.

Special Troopers

This number, the company said, does not include 1,237 special troop sleepers and 1,200 others on order.

Approximately 425 regular sleeping-car-service lines were discontinued under the order, 171 in the mid-West and 158 in the East. Ninety were canceled out of Chicago alone, 78 from New York and 26 from Washington. Fifty runs were discontinued temporarily in the Southeast, 22 in the Southwest and 23 in the West.

Flexible Pool System

The swift transition of the cars

from civilian to military service was possible, the company said, because of Pullman's flexible pool system, which, since Peal Harbor, has moved 29,000,000 troops, about two thirds of all the organized military passenger traffic in the country.

Pullman cars, which in 1944 traveled more than 28,000,000,000 passenger miles—three times that traveled in 1940—are "maintenance starved," the company said. At least 2,000 workers are needed in its six shops in Chicago, St. Louis, Buffalo, Atlanta, Wilmington, Del., and Richmond, Cal.

HOUSE APPROVES TAX RELIEF BILL

Measure Designed to Aid Business Heads for Truman's Desk.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(AP) A $5,700,000,000 program of tax relief for business won swift House approval today and headed for President Truman's desk.

It took the House, all set for an 11-weeks adjournment after tomorrow's session, just about a minute to concur in a Senate amendment to the legislation designed to help business through the transition from war to peace.

The Senate amendment struck from the legislation a House provision that would have allowed reorganized railroads to get tax credits for losses suffered by predecessor corporations. Senator La Follette (Prog.-Wis.) objected that this would grant an undeserved windfall to a small group of railroads.

The legislation generally increases, effective with the 1946 tax year, the specific exemption on excess profits taxes from $10,000 to $25,000.

The boost in the exemption, congressional leaders said, will help small business accumulate a cash reserve for postwar use. Backers said it would affect an estimated 12,000 small corporations and reduce their total tax liabilities by $160,000,000.

Other provisions of the bill are intended to place tax refunds and credits in the hands of corporations ahead of the schedule provided in the original tax law.

The legislation does not affect individual taxes or refunds.

NAVY TO RELEASE OLDER PERSONNEL

Point Formula Is Revealed, but Plan Will in No Way Be a Demobilization Measure

MORE YOUNG MEN SOUGHT

11,600 Officers and 19,000 Men Are Expected to Leave the Service by December

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP)—The Navy is considering a point formula for release of older personnel.

By December the plan is expected to release 11,600 commissioned and warrant officers, and 19,000 enlisted men.

The Navy emphasized that the formula would be in no way a demobilization measure, since the Navy's strength will not be cut below the present authorized maximum of 3,389,000 which was reached June 30.

Because it was not a demobilization measure, the Navy explained, the formula gave no weight to such factors as dependency and combat service which might be a part of a demobilization plan. It called the proposal a "computed service age formula."

The Navy said the purpose of the new policy would be to increase the service's over-all efficiency by releasing older men and men not fully qualified for general duty, thereby permitting the Navy, through voluntary enlistments and selective service, to increase the number of younger men qualified to meet future needs.

Under the formula, the Navy would release upon individual application, or upon resignation, some enlisted personnel and reserve officers who meet requirements.

Service age of officers and enlisted men would be computed by allowing one point for each year of age figured to the nearest birthday and one point for each four months of active duty in the Navy since Sept. 1, 1939.

The minimum computed service age required for release, resignation or discharge would vary for different categories of the service as follows:

Reserve line officers, enlisted reservists, Navy inductees, and enlisted regulars serving during the war under expired enlistments, 53 points; reserve officers of the supply corps, 55 points; and reserve officers of the civil engineers corps, 57.

Higher requirements were established for the supply and civil engineer corps, the Navy said, because these corps had fewer officers whose services could be spared.

The Navy said the minimum points were subject to future change governed by experience.

Reserve officers of the medical department and dental and chaplain corps are not eligible under the formula because of existing shortages in these branches. If and when the shortages are overcome the formula will be made applicable to them.

Links U. S. Aids In Berlin With German Firms

Voorhis Lists the Pre-War Affiliations of Some; Sees Threat to Peace

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP).—Many key American officials of the Allied Control Commission in Germany are officers of firms previously affiliated with German industries, Representative Jerry Voorhis, Democrat, of California, declared today.

Such a policy, he told the House, "is a mistake which may have the most serious consequences for the future peace of the world . . . by allowing the German war machine to be rebuilt."

Representative Voorhis said he did not "impute unpatriotic motives" to those he criticized, but believed "the only type of individual given any position of authority in Germany . . . should bethose absolutely clean from the past German affiliations."

The Californian asserted that firms with past German connections "have property to protect which . . . can only pay dividends if Germany's economy is revived as it was before."

Such a step, he added, would be rebuilding German's war-making power.

Those named by Representative Voorhis, and his listing of their name ,title and affiliation were:

Philip Gaethewe, head of the control commission's fuel and mining brach—formerly with the Anaconda Copper Company, as manager of its mines in Upper Silesia, Germany.

Brandon H. Grove, associated with Mr. Gaethke in the oil section—former head of the Socony Vacuum Company in Romania. Representative Voorhis asserted that the firm's wells "continued to produce oil for six months after this country was at war with Germany, which to put the matter with extreme conservatism, did not do the United States any good.")

Philip Clover, deputy chief of the oil section—Socony Vacuum's German representative, 1935-'39.

Peter Hogland, chief of conversion and liquidation branch—former head of Opel, General Motors Corporation branch factory in Germany, which, Representative Voorhis said, "has constituted . . . an integral part of the industrial fabric of the enemy nation."

Edward Zdunek, chief of the light engineering branch—former manager of the General Motors plant at Antwerp, Belgium.

Charles H. Powel, chief of the electrical and radio branch—chief of the Westinghouse Electric Company's foreign engineering activities.

R. E. McConnell, deputy chief of the economic division—official of the General Analine and Film Company, pre-war American subsidiary of I. G. Farben Company.

WLB Rules Labor Disputes Act Supersedes State Laws

WASHINGTON, July 20 — (AP) The War Labor Board held today that the law under which it operates is superior to an anti-closed shop amendment to the Florida constitution.

Rejecting a petition by the Attorney General of Florida, the board upheld a maintenance of union membership directive from the regional WLB at Atlanta in a case involving three AFL unions at the Port of St. Joe, Florida, paper mill. Industry members dissented.

J. Tom Watson, the state attorney general, asked the national board to intervene because of a state constitutional amendment adopted last November declaring the right of persons to work shall not be denied or abridged on account of membership or non-membership in a union. A U. S. district court recently held the amendment valid. The decision was appealed.

The paper mill did not appeal from the regional board maintenance of membership directive, but the state itself took up the issue.

The national board in its decision today held that the war labor disputes act is supreme when in conflict with either state law or constitution.

In reaching its decision the board said it was guided by Articcle 6, Section 2, of the U. S. Constitution, which states:

"This Constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof or which shall be made under the authority of the United States shall be the supreme law of the land, and the judges in every state shall be bound thereby, anything in the constitution or laws of any state to the contrary notwithstanding."

Under the standard maintenance of membership clause workers are allowed 15 days to decide whether to withdraw from a union. Those remaining members must keep up their union dues for the duration of the contract or lose their jobs.

The three unions involved in today's decision are the International Brotherhood of Paper Makers, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and International Association of Machinists. Together they represent about 450 workers.

MINERS WILL GET MORE FOOD POINTS

OPA Says Plan To Start During First Week Of August

Washington, July 20 (AP) — Big appetites growing out of strenuous manual labor won extra food-ration points for the nation's coal and ore miners today.

Beginning some time during the first week of August, the OPA announced, these miners everywhere in the country will be eligible for a supplementary grant of up to 50 red points a month for meats and dairy products. They also will qualify for an extra pound of sugar a month.

The same program has been in effect on a test basis since July 1 for coal and ore miners in the Denver and San Francisco regions.

Will Start Early In August

Expansion of the plan to include all such miners followed work stoppages at some Illinois coal miners where union leaders said the men were protesting against insufficient points for meat. Work was resumed when the OPA promised early this week that extra rations would be granted.

In announcing the expansion today, Max McCullough, rationing chief, said in a statement OPA's decision was based on findings of the National Research Council that "heavy, muscular work done by miners calls for an unusually high intake of calories."

McCullough added that "the great amount of administrative work involved is being pushed in order to place the program in general operation early in August."

Supervisors Not Included

The plan does not cover miners who obtain their meals at inplant feeding establishments. Otherwise, underground workers except supervisors are eligible, together with these surface workers:

Blacksmiths' tipple employés, men engaged in foundry or metal casting operations and those who do heavy construction work.

Those excluded, such as foremen, watchmen and policemen, "are able to meet their requirements with increased use of non-rationed foods and without supplemental rations, as do millions of workers in other industries," OPA said.

To obtain extra rations, workers must be employed at the site of the mine and be engaged in "heavy work that requires continuous exertion of muscular strength."

DENY SEAMEN GET SUBSTANDARD PAY

Washington, July 20 (A. P.).—Ship operators, opposing union demands for basic wage increases to offset cuts in war risk bonuses, told the War Labor Board today that American seamen are the "highest paid, best fed, and best lodged of any in the world."

Spokesmen for C. I. O., A. F. of L., and unaffiliated maritime unions testified yesterday that basic wages for seamen are now 34½ to 42 cents an hour, and that reductions in bonuses would carry them below the standard of living enjoyed by those on similar jobs on shore They seek a minimum of 55 cents an hour and time and a half for over forty hours. They work a fifty-six-hour week with no overtime.

John J. Burns of New York, council for a committee of general agents of the War Shipping Administration on the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts, told the WLB that the average earnings of ordinary seamen, exclusive of bonuses, are 72 cents an hour, not 34½, when food and lodging are counted in.

He asserted that the war bonus of $100 a month, now reduced to $80 and $40 in certain areas not in the more hazardous zones, is "not a basic wage and is not so regarded by the union." Seamen's wages are not substandard when food and lodging are included, he argued, adding that a forty-hour week "is fantastic for the operation of a vessel at sea."

NILES TO REMAIN PRESIDENTIAL AID

Washington, July 20 (A. P.).—David K. Niles, the last of President Roosevelt's original "anonymous assistants" still in office, will remain under President Truman. The White House released today a letter sent by the President to Niles last Tuesday welcoming his continued service.

The original group of six assistants became known as men with a passion for anonymity because President Roosevelt so described them once in telling about the kind of person best qualified for the work. Mr. Truman wrote Niles:

"Dear Dave: I am glad that at my request you are remaining on in your post as one of the administrative assistants to the President. I know that your long record in Government will be helpful to me as it was to the late President Roosevelt.

"For ten years you have taken an important part in the activities of our Government in Washington.

"Beginning with the work of relieving the distress of unemployment and later in the Department of Commerce, the Office of Production Management, and for the last several years, as an administrative assistant, you have had a hand in many of the important events over the last decade. It will be of great service to have the benefit of your ability and conscientious service, and the experience and information you have acquired during these years will be most valuable."

The group is scheduled to arrive in London Saturday night, via Newfoundland and Scotland.

11 Congressmen Off in a Plane for Europe And Middle East on 'Fact Finding' Mission

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP)—Eleven Congressmen representing ten House committees took off by plane today on the first lap of a forty-day "fact-finding" mission to the British Isles, Western Europe, Scandinavia, the Middle East and possibly to Moscow and Indo-China.

Representative Wickersham, Democrat, of Oklahoma, is chairman of the group. Other members are Horan, Republican, of Washington; Huber, Democrat, of Ohio; Feighan, Democrat, of Ohio; Weiss, Democrat, of Pennsylvania; Chelf, Democrat, of Kentucky; Merrow, Republican, of New Hampshire; Carnahan, Democrat, of Missouri; Ramey, Republican, of Ohio; Fulton, Republican, of Pennsylvania, and Dondero, Republican, of Michigan.

Both Mr. Wickersham and Mr. Merrow said before departing that a trip around the world should be compulsory for Congressmen.

"If all Congressmen had been over to see things first hand," the Oklahoman said at the airport, "the war might have been shorter."

Mr. Horan asserted that overseas investigations gave Congressmen "broader perspective" for action on legislation.

Mr. Fulton remarked "If the plane goes down, we have enough soap with us to float her!" The party carried 1,000 bars to use as gifts in soap-short areas. Mr. Dondero, assistant chairman of the group, said that he expected to meet his son, 22-year-old Navy Lieut. Robert Lincoln Dondero, in Newfoundland, where the son is stationed.

Mr. Wickersham represents the agriculture committee. Other committee representatives are Horan.

3 ATTENDANTS ORDERED HELD

Coroner's Jury Acts In Death Of Sailor Mental Patient

Washington, July 20 (AP)—A coroner's jury today ordered three attendants held for grand jury action in connection with the death of a sailor mental patient at the Government-operated St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

The sailor, Seaman 2/c Clark J. Leeper, 22, formerly of Phoenix, Ariz., died Wednesday of a ruptured liver, Deputy Coroner Christopher J. Murphy said. Leeper's parents now live at Richmond, Cal.

Another Death Investigated

It had been disclosed previously by hospital authorities that an investigation was under way to ascertain the circumstances under which Howard J. Crandall, 21, of San Diego, Cal., a discharged sailor, had died at the hospital.

The three attendants held for the grand jury, with individual bonds set at $1,500, were Fred A. Brown, 40; Lloyd L. Lacey, 50, and Samuel H. Siegel, 38.

Witnesses at the coroner's hearing said Seaman Leeper had become "upset" after being denied the privilege of walking about the hospital grounds because he made a "nuisance" of himself.

Four attendants were required to place him in seclusion, James Carter, a hospital supervisor, said, and furniture in Leeper's room was ordered removed, along with his clothing.

The sailor subsequently was found unconscious.

Blows "Unprovoked"

Cecil C. Morris, a hospital attendant, testified at the coroner's hearing that he saw Brown and Lacey strike Leeper, and that he saw Siegel kick the seaman once in the side.

Morris testified that, in his opinion, the sailor was only "stubborn" and that the blows were "unprovoked."

Dr. Winfred Overholser, superintendent of the hospital, said he wanted a complete investigation of the entire situation, because "we won't tolerate mistreatment of patients."

Overholser disclosed that Crandall died about two weeks ago from peritonitis which developed from a stomach injury. He said the death was attributed to injuries received in a struggle June 30 when he escaped temporarily from the hospital grounds.

ARMY TAKES OVER FIVE WARD UNITS

Chicago, July 20 (A. P.).—The Army took control today of five Chicago units of Montgomery Ward & Co., in a seizure which began December 28, 1944, on a presidential order stemming from a long labor dispute.

Major-Gen. David McCoach Jr., commanding the Sixth Service Command, and War Department representative in charge of seized Ward's properties, said that the Schwinn warehouse, display factory, central printing department, photographic department and administrative maintenance department were included in the seizure. He declined to comment on reasons for the action. A company spokesman said that Ward's had no comment.

The office of the C. I. O. United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employees issued a statement in the name of its international president, Samuel Wolchok of New York, which said that the action "is further indication of the continued action by the Army of putting into effect the WLB directives in these additional units."

The statement also said that their seizure "now extends to the workers (about 600) in these units maintenance of (union) membership, checkoff (of dues), seniority, grievance machinery, arbitration, and wage increases and back pay awards to the workers of the central printing department and display factory."

It was Ward's refusal to abide by the WLB directives, on the ground they were advisory and not legally binding, that led to the seizure. On January 27, Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan held the seizure was illegal, but the United States Circuit Court of Appeals on June 8 reversed him. An appeal to the United States Supreme Court is pending.

Probe Of Chennault Case Near End

JUL 21 1945

Washington, July 20 (AP)—A Senate committee appeared ready today to end its investigation into Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's retirement, although Senator Chandler (D., Ky.) said he is not satisfied with the Army's explanation.

Chandler told a reporter he thought the General might have been "given a raw deal" in a realignment of Air Forces command in Asia, which placed Chennault under Lieut. Gen. George C. Stratemeyer. Chennault asked for retirement as commander of the 14th Air Force.

Chennault Praised

"We lose a fine officer and the best man we ever had in dealing with the Chinese," said Chandler, who visited the China theater in 1943 when he said Chennault was carrying on the fight with second-rate equipment and against great odds.

"Chennault did a magnificent job there," Chandler added, "and his retirement will hurt our prestige in China."

At a closed hearing before the Military Committee yesterday Under Secretary of War Patterson reportedly testified that only military considerations figured in Chennault's decision to quit the army. Patterson specifically denied, members said, that opposition to Chennault by Chinese Communists had anything to do with the action.

Wedemeyer Urged Change

The change was made, Patterson is reported to have said, on the recommendation of Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, theater commander. Wedemeyer wanted a man trained in logistics to command the combined 10th and 14th air forces, rather than a tactical specialist such as Chennault, the Under Secretary was quoted as saying.

Senator Johnson (D., Col.) said the committee would be interested in hearing Chennault if he returns to the United States. He and other members indicated, however, that the committee probably will not pursue the investigation further.

Casualties Put At 1,053,101

Washington, July 20 (AP)—Army and Navy combat casualties reported since the war began now total 1,053,101.

This figure, reported yesterday, includes 244,810 killed, 639,048 wounded, 47,734 missing and 121,509 taken prisoner.

The aggregate was 3,997 more than reported last week, but one of the smallest weekly increases in many months.

Army losses totaled 917,442 and navy casualties 135,659.

2 LABOR DISPUTES DELAYING ARMY

Detroit, July 20 (A. P.).—The Army pressed today for the early settlement of two labor disputes said to have caused the grounding of hospital troop planes and to have delayed the shipment of war materials. Concern was expressed over retarded production of tires at the United States Rubber Company and a tie-up of lumber in 200 lumber yards of the Detroit area.

Major-Gen. Hugh J. Knerr, commanding general of the Air Technical Service Command at Wright Field, Ohio, said that fourteen hospital troop planes had been grounded in North Africa because of the lack of tires made in Akron, Ohio, and Detroit. Virtually the entire production force of 6,000 at United States Rubber was reported idle in a dispute involving the C. I. O.'s United Rubber Workers and the Mechanics Educational Society of America, an independent union.

A spokesman for the Army's Sixth Service Command said that unless 200 closed lumber yards were reopened by next week, a number of war plants would be lacking wooden crates to ship materials to the armed forces. A meeting was called today of management and A. F. of L. workers at the yards who struck on May 31 to enforce contract demands.

Strikers at the plant of the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation, where 2,900 employees have been idle, voted yesterday to continue their walkout until the company agreed to reinstate penalized workers. The Detroit City Council scheduled a public hearing for next Thursday on demands of the C. I. O.'s State, County and Municipal Workers Union, which has threatened a strike of 6,000 municipal workers.

Mitscher Thinks Foe May Lack Fuel

Washington, July 20 (AP)—Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher said today he believes a shortage of some critical item—possibly fuel—explains the lack of Japanese air opposition to the Navy's current operations around Japan.

Mitscher, recently named deputy chief of naval operations for air, said he did not agree with the opinion that the Japanese are hoarding their air power for a final all-out attack.

"I believe they are short of something they need very badly," Mitscher said. "What it is I don't know. It may be gasoline, but we won't know until we go in and find out."

The Admiral was brought in from the Pacific when he commanded the fast carriers of Task Force 58 in similar strikes at the enemy.

Vice Admiral Aubrey Fitch, whom Mitscher succeeds here, told the same news conference that it is his conviction the Japanese simply "started too late."

He said he believes the enemy originally had "misplaced faith in their outer defenses and shot the works there," and now are confronted with the job of extemporizing defenses in the homeland.

Admiral Fitch said he expected to assume his new assignment as superintendent of the Naval Academy on August 15. As the first naval air man to head the academy, Admiral Fitch said he expects to carry out Secretary Forrestal's expressed hope that all midshipmen in the future will be indoctrinated for air.

TRUMAN SPEECH HELD NOT TO COVER PACIFIC

WASHINGTON, July 20 (AP)—Senators made it plain today that they hoped that President Truman was exempting strategic islands in the Pacific when he said in his Berlin speech that the United States did not want "one piece of territory" out of this war.

Senator Harry F. Byrd, Democrat, of Virginia, who headed a delegation of Senators who discussed the island question with United States delegates at the San Francisco Conference, said, "We must retain those island bases. We need them to keep the future peace in the Pacific."

Senator Robert A. Taft, Republican of Ohio, said that he hoped all the islands north of the equator remained in American control. "Perhaps the President just overlooked that point in making his talk," he added.

Senator Carl A. Hatch, New Mexico Democrat, asserted that he was certain that the President agreed with the view of the Army and Navy that American island bases were essential. "I think the President was speaking of not retaining territory for selfish gain," he said. "Any Pacific area we keep will be for defense purposes only and is likely to be almost entirely worthless for any other purposes."

Senator Edwin C. Johnson, Democrat, of Colorado, suggested that perhaps Mr. Truman was alluding only to the European war, but Senator Allen J. Ellender, Democrat of Louisiana, said that in any event he believed the President was being "too liberal." "I believe that we not only ought to have the Pacific islands that we have conquered but that we ought to have control of some of the military bases we have built in other parts of the world," Mr. Ellender asserted.

Clearer Jap Terms Urged

Washington, July 20 (AP)—Representative Grant (R., Ind.), recently back from his second Pacific tour in six months, believes "if anything short of Japan's complete annihilation is meant by unconditional surrender, we should say so."

He told a reporter this action might bring an early end to the war "by making a dent in the Japanese will to fight."

"The Japanese military leaders have convinced their people we will completely wipe out their country if they surrender," said Grant. "By announcing that this is not our intention, we can kindle unrest among the Japanese and give them a chance to overthrow the war lords."

"In this way I believe we can finish the war this year. Otherwise I predict a long war—for at least another year."

Nominated To Be Rear Admiral

Washington, July 20 (AP)—President Truman today nominated Capt. Oswald S. Colclough, of Catasauqua, Pa., commanding officer of the U.S.S. North Carolina, to be a rear admiral. Among three Navy captains nominated to be commodores was Ben H. Wyatt, San Jose, a native of Whitley, Ky., and commander of naval air bases in the 1st (Boston) Naval District.

Deployees To Face Japs About Dec.

Washington, July 20 (AP)—The first army division redeployed from Europe through the United States probably will not reach Pacific battle areas until December 1.

This was indicated today with the disclosure that eight weeks of retraining has been prescribed for the Tokyo-bound troops.

Troops of the 86th Division, the first back from Europe, will assemble August 1 at Camp Gruber, Okla., to learn how to kill Japanese as well as they killed Nazis.

97th Will Be Next

This means that—if the eight-week training schedule is followed—the 86th will not be ready to move out until October 1. A couple of weeks more will be needed to get all of the division to an embarkation point. Probably an additional six weeks will be required before the 86th reaches the theater.

The next division to go into training will be the 97th, the second outfit to return from Europe. Upon completion of 30-day furloughs, its men will assemble about the middle of August at Fort Bragg, North Carolina.

Nine Other Divisions

Nine other divisions, all scheduled to be back in this country by the end of the month, are ticketed for Tokyo.

Divisions arriving in this country later may move to the Pacific much quicker, once furloughs are completed and troops reassembled.

Training for Japanese warfare is being carried on concurrently in Europe and the divisions em barking later will have an opportunity to complete a good part, or all, of their course overseas.

Duke of Windsor Visits Senate

Washington, July 20 (A. P.).—The Duke of Windsor was a surprise visitor to the Senate today.

He sat in the diplomatic gallery with Senators McKellar (D.-Tenn.), George (D.-Ga.), Fulbright (D.-Ark.) and a military aid.

The Senate was debating the $3,500,000,000 Export-Import Bank exxpansion bill at the time.

'COMMANDO' KELLY LEAVES ARMY TODAY

ATLANTA, July 20—(AP) Charles E. (Commando) Kelly, the technical sergeant who won the Congressional Medal of Honor for mopping up 40 Germans in Italy, leaves the army tomorrow and wants to "start work as soon as possible."

Kelly, who has served as small arms instructor for officers at Ft. Benning's Infantry school, will come to Fort McPherson to be discharged under a War department provision allowing winners of the medal, except officers, to resign.

The commando said he had several "good offers" from war plants at his home town of Pittsburgh.

Accused Italian Flyer Free on Bail in Boston

Mother of Di Nino's Fiancee Obtains His Release

BOSTON, July 20 (AP).—A former Italian air force lieutenant, who said he switched affiliations to Allied air forces after Italy capitulated, was free Thursday to pursue his romance with a Boston girl whose mother bailed him out of jail on charges of impersonating an American soldier.

Mrs. Vita Maldera, who said that her daughter, Mary, nineteen, would marry the former Italian officer, Enrico Di Nino, twenty-two, on July 29, posted bail of $5,000 with United States Commissioner Martin T. Hall.

The bail was set after Di Nino pleaded innocent yesterday and was held for hearing Aug. 1.

E. A. Soucy, Boston Federal Bureau of Information chief, said Di Nino was arrested after collecting $500 through false claims for back pay as a United States soldier.

Mr. Soucy quoted Di Nino as saying that he flew as an escort to Allied bombing planes after the Italian surrender and that he was shot down over Athens.

Thereafter, Mr. Soucy said, Di Nino posed as a staff sergeant in the 12th Air Force and was repatriated to the United States.

Di Nino and Miss Maldera met while pupils in a Boston school and renewed their acquaintance when he returned to this country for "redeployment."

Mr. Soucy said Di Nino came to the United States originally in 1937, at the age of fourteen, and returned to Italy three years later.

31,455 RETURN FROM EUROPE

Seven Ships With Veterans Arrive At New York

New York, July 20 (AP)—Led by superliner Queen Elizabeth, a victory procession of seven ships steamed into New York harbor today with 31,455 veterans of the European war.

The "Queen Bess" brought 14,576 officers and men of the 44th Infantry Division, whose commanding officer, Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, of Salt Lake City, laughingly declared:

"I hope to meet the Russians in Tokyo."

Marlene Dietrich, who General Dean said was "the first and only big-time actress we had seen up at the front lines," dangled her famous legs in welcome to the Queen Elizabeth and the Monticello, which arrived earlier.

Men Praised By Hodges

More than 7,000 members of the 2d Infantry Division, cited by Gen. Courtney H. Hodges for "holding the hot corner in the battle of the bulge," were aboard the Monticello, under the command of Brig. Gen. William K. Harrison, of Pulaski, Tennessee.

Following the Queen Elizabeth and the Monticello into port were the Le Jeune, Bret Harte, Nishmaha, Marine Panther and Frances Y. Slanger. Most of the returnees were slated for redeployment following furloughs.

General Dean said the 44th Di-Division, in combat 144 consecutive days, had more than 7,000 casualties. This division launched a drive in the Vosges Mountains last winter that ended with V-E day at Imst, Austria.

LONDON, JULY 20--(AP)--IN AN EDITORIAL PRAISING PRESIDENT TRUMAN, THE LONDON TIMES SAID TODAY THAT "HAPPY RELATIONS NOW PREVAILING BETWEEN THE PRESIDENT, CONGRESS AND THE AMERICAN PEOPLE ARE ONE OF THE BEST AUGURIES FOR SUCCESS OF A NEW WORLD ORDER."

CONTRASTING THE U.S. SENATE'S BACKING OF TRUMAN'S POLICIES IN HIS ABSENCE WITH THE WRECKING OF PRESIDENT WILSON'S PROGRAM BY A "LITTLE GROUP OF WILLFUL MEN," THE TIMES SAID THAT TRUMAN "COMES TO EUROPE SUSTAINED BY A NATIONAL VOTE OF CONFIDENCE SUCH AS WILSON NEVER ENJOYED" AND ADDED THAT "WHATEVER TROUBLES MAY LIE AHEAD IT DOES NOT SEEM CONCEIVABLE THAT THE TRAGEDY OF VERSAILLES WILL BE REENACTED."

LAUDING TRUMAN'S RELATIONS WITH THE CONGRESS, THE TIMES SAID THAT "NOT SINCE THE CELEBRATED 'ERA OF GOOD WILL' IN MONROE'S TIME NAMED HAS THERE BEEN SUCH A HALYCON PERIOD IN AMERICAN POLITICS AS IN THESE EARLY MONTHS OF TRUMAN'S PRESIDENCY." THE EDITORIAL ADDED THAT THE PRESIDENT WAS "LOYALLY CARRYING OUT THE MAIN DESIGN OF ROOSEVELT POLICIES.

LONDON, JULY 20-(AP)-THE DAILY MAIL SAID TODAY THE AGENDA OF THE BIG THREE CONFERENCE SHOULD BE MADE PUBLIC AND SUGGESTED THAT "THERE SHOULD BE PERIODICAL COMMUNIQUES -- NOT RECORDING PIOUS GENERALITIES BUT GIVING AS FAR AS POSSIBLE A RECORD OF PROGRESS MADE."

JUL 20 1945

THE NEWSPAPER SAID IN AN EDITORIAL THAT WHILE THE THREE STATESMEN NECESSARILY MUST NEGOTIATE IN CAMERA, "THERE IS NO REASON AT ALL WHY THE REST OF US SHOULD NOT BE TOLD WHAT THEY ARE NEGOTIATING ABOUT."

"TO SUPPRESS NEWS IS TO BE ENCOURAGE THE SPREAD OF RUMOR AND RIPKA ASSERTED THAT "IF THE TRANSFER IS NOT CARRIED OUT WITHIN A YEAR OR TWO, NOBODY WOULD BE SURPRISED TO SEE SOME VERY

HE SAID HE WOULD CONCLUDE TRADE TALKS WITH THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN AUTHORITIES HERE SATURDAY AND ADDED THAT HE WAS HOPEFUL THAT LIMITED IMPORTS MAY SOON REACH CZECHOSLOVAKIA BY RAIL VIA ANTWERP AND HAMBURG.

FOOD CONDITIONS ARE UNSATISFACTORY IN CZECHOSLOVAK INDUSTRIAL CENTERS, HE REPORTED, AND WOULD BECOME "HORRIBLE" IN WINTER. MANY PEOPLE ARE NOT WORKING BECAUSE THERE IS NOTHING TO BUY WITH THEIR EARNINGS, HE SAID.

BERLIN, JULY 20-(AP)-THE BERLINER ZEITUNG ESTIMATES THAT MORE THAN HALF OF THIS CITY'S 1,500,000 HOMES WERE DESTROYED DURING THE WAR AND THAT 16 YEARS WILL BE REQUIRED TO HAUL AWAY THE RUBBLE IF 10 TRAINS OF 50 CARS EACH DEPART DAILY.
HOWEVER, FROM OBSERVATION OF THE BUCKET BRIGADES INSTITUTED BY THE RUSSIANS, BY MEANS OF WHICH GERMAN WOMEN AND A FEW OLD MEN ARE MOVING THE DEBRIS, ONE GAINS THE IMPRESSION THAT IT WOULD TAKE 16 YEARS TO FILL ONE TRAIN.
AMONG THE ZEITUNG'S OTHER OBSERVATIONS WERE THESE:
AT THE PRE-WAR CONSTRUCTION RATE IT WILL TAKE 20 YEARS TO REPLACE ALL THE DESTROYED HOMES, AND THE COST WILL BE ABOUT TWO BILLION DOLLARS--USING THE PRE-WAR VALUATION OF THE GERMAN MARK AS EQUAL TO 40 CENTS. (THE MILITARY GOVERNMENT HAS PLACED A VALUE OF 10 CENTS ON THE MARK).
IT WILL COST $200,000,000 TO REPAIR THE 500,000 DAMAGED HOMES IN BERLIN, AND $400,000,000 TO REPAIR PUBLIC, BUSINESS AND INDUSTRIAL BUILDINGS.

APPROXIMATELY 30,000 PERSONS WHO HAD FLED THE NORTH SECTION OF HALIFAX AND DARTMOUTH, JUST ACROSS THE HARBOR NEAR THE DEPOT, STREAMED BACK TO THEIR HOMES LAST NIGHT AS THE DANGER WANED.
FIRE-FIGHTING UNITS LATE YESTERDAY GAINED CONTROL OF THE MIGHTY BLAZE WHICH HAD ROARED THROUGH THE DEPOT, TOUCHING OFF FOUR TERRIFIC BLASTS AND A RUMBLING SERIES OF MINOR EXPLOSIONS AND SPRAYING THE BEDFORD BASIN AREA WITH SHELLS AND DEBRIS. FIREFIGHTERS HAD MANAGED TO KEEP THE FLAMES FROM THE MAIN MUNITIONS MAGAZINE, WHERE 50,000 DEPTH CHARGES WERE STORED.
THE NAVY SAID THE SAILOR WHO WAS KILLED WAS ON SENTRY DUTY.
THE GREAT BLASTS DEMONSTRATED THE THREAT UNDER WHICH HALIFAX HAD BEEN LIVING FOR THE PAST SIX YEARS, E.L. COUSINS, WARTIME ADMINISTRATOR OF ATLANTIC PORTS, SAID IN AN INTERVIEW.
COUSINS, CHAIRMAN OF A COMMITTEE TO RECEIVE AND ADJUST CLAIMS ARISING FROM THE EXPLOSIONS, SAID THAT IN A SINGLE MONTH DURING THE WAR AS MUCH AS 5,000 TONS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVE HAD BEEN HANDLED ACROSS THE HALIFAX DOCKS AND SENT TO EUROPEAN BATTLEFIELDS.

SARNIA, ONT., JULY 20-(AP)-THE CANADA STEAMSHIP LINES, IN THEIR FIRST OFFICIAL STATEMENT ON THE BURNING OF THE STEAMER HAMONIC, SAID TODAY IT HAD BEEN DEFINITELY DETERMINED THAT THERE WAS NO LOSS OF LIFE AMONG PASSENGERS OR CREW.

CAPT. W.F. HOWELL, OPERATING MANAGER HERE FOR THE LINES, MADE THE STATEMENT AS THE DOMINION DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORT OPENED AN INQUIRY INTO TUESDAY'S BLAZE WHICH ENDANGERED 350 PERSONS.

INVESTIGATION HAS VERIFIED THAT THE FIRE BEGAN WITH THE EXPLOSION OF A TRUCK GASOLINE ENGINE IN A FREIGHT SHED ON THE DOCK WHERE THE HAMONIC WAS MOORED, CAPT. HOWELL SAID. THE MOTOR CAUGHT FIRE AS THE TRUCK'S BATTERY WAS BEING ADJUSTED, HE SAID.

ONE FIRE EXTINGUISHER IN THE SHED WAS "USED INEFFECTIVELY," CAPT. HOWELL REPORTED, AND NINE WERE BROUGHT FROM OTHER SOURCES. HE ADDED THAT THE RAPIDITY OF THE FLAMES' SPREAD WAS "ALMOST UNBELIEVABLE."

CAPT. HOWELL DISCLOSED THAT FLAMES FORCED THE MASTER OF THE HAMONIC, CAPT. HORACE BEATON, TO GO OVERBOARD. HE LATER RETURNED TO THE SHIP VIA THE COAL DERRICK WHICH REMOVED MANY TRAPPED PASSENGERS AND REMAINED ON BOARD UNTIL THE LAST OF THE CREW AND PASSENGERS HAD ESCAPED, HOWELL SAID.

THE GOVERNMENT'S INQUIRY, FROM WHICH A REPORT WILL BE SENT TO OTTAWA, IS BEING CONDUCTED BY CAPT. HENRY MORRISON FOR THE DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORT.

Japan Told to Surrender Unconditionally or Face Inevitable Destruction

JUL 22 1945

Official Broadcast Bids Enemy Leaders Yield Under Atlantic Charter

Truman May Have Terms in Potsdam

Reported Based on Foe's Yielding Arms, Stolen Lands, War Criminals

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The United States government officially told the Japanese today that unconditional surrender offers the "only way by which you can make possible the salvation of Japan."

Broadcasting as "an official spokesman of the United States government" and addressing his words directly to "Japanese leaders," Captain E. C. Zacharias, U. S. N., said, in Japanese:

"The leaders of Japan have been intrusted with the salvation and not the destruction of Japan. . . . The Japanese leaders face two alternatives. One is the virtual destruction of Japan, followed by a dictated peace. The other is unconditional surrender, with its attendant benefits as laid down by the Atlantic Charter."

President Truman is reported to have taken to the Potsdam conference a whole series of recommendations dealing with possible definitions of unconditional surrender for Japan.

No Single Set of Plans

A source which normally would be informed said that up to the time the President left Washington, however, there was no single draft of a set of United States surrender terms for Japan. It was also reported positively that any new interpretation of unconditional surrender would have to be acceptable to the Allied governments, and that only within that limitation would American officials make definitions on their own.

This does not, however, rule out the possibility that the Potsdam conference may result in a statement to the Japanese demanding their surrender. In fact, such a statement is confidently expected here. It probably will emphasize that the consequences of giving up now would be less costly to the Japanese than forcing the destruction of their homeland in the smashing assaults which the Allies have planned for the months ahead.

The State Department, after recurrent reports recently of purported peace feelers from Japan, has issued several statements of denial—this amid conjectures that the United States, through President Truman, might redefine unconditional surrender for the Japanese as not entailing complete destruction of the nation, though ending its war power, so as to make it easier for the Japanese to accept such surrender.

"An Official Spokesman"

The Office of War Information, in releasing the text of Captain Zacharias's speech, described him as "an official spokesman" for the government, apparently giving his remarks the full weight of the Administration.

The broadcast, the twelfth of "a very special series," as the O. W. I. described it, was the first to be distributed to the press.

An O. W. I. official insisted, however, that this had no particular significance. "We have had many inquiries and decided to issue a general press release," he said.

But the fact that it was released generally for domestic consumption indicated to some that it was intended to explain unconditional surrender to the Americans as well as the Japanese.

"The Army and Navy Journal" said today that President Truman carried to the Big Three conference a draft of Japanese surrender terms as favored by the State, War and Navy Departments.

These terms, the unofficial service publication said, call for the total loss to Japan of what remains of its fleet and air forces, as well as for other military disarmament; the loss of territory outside the home islands; the destruction of its war industries; the complete control of its economy by the United Nations and the surrender of designated war criminals.

"The Journal" said that interest in the Potsdam conference revolves around the question of whether Emperor Hirohito will be declared a war criminal and punished accordingly. When President Truman left for the conference the question had not been decided, the publication said, and counsel here was divided.

"Liberals and New Dealers were demanding that he be executed," "The Journal" said. "Others felt that the war lords rather than he were responsible for Pearl Harbor and that, anyway, the status of the Emperor did not involve our security and that the war would only be prolonged if we should fight to destroy Japan's religious and political systems."

"The Journal" said rumors of Japanese peace feelers are prevalent but find no official support in Washington, then it added: "Yet this does not remove completely a possibility that Marshal Stalin may be intrusted with a serious peace formula by the Japanese government. It may or may not be significant that on the eve of his departure for the meeting of the Big Three the Japanese Ambassador in Moscow conferred with V. M. Molotov, Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs."

Wilfrid Fleisher, commenting over the American Broadcasting Company, also reported that Mr. Truman had taken to Potsdam a statement regarding Japan.

Mr. Fleisher, however, termed it a "new statement of policy" toward the enemy nation and said it did not constitute "a statement of peace terms, which remain unchanged—unconditional surrender."

Mr. Fleisher, listing similar terms, added that the Chinese may already have been asked to indorse the statement and that Prime Minister Churchill's signature was wanted.

Statement on Terms Predicted

Tris Coffin, Columbia Broadcasting System news commentator, said today in a broadcast he had learned from "very responsible officials in Washington" that the Big Three would issue a statement from Potsdam within the next few days outlining surrender terms for Japan. Mr. Coffin said the terms would be "far more liberal than the Japanese now enjoy under their present government."

"The Potsdam announcement on Japan will promise the Japanese freedom of religion, and the right to choose whatever form of government they want," Mr. Coffin said. "This leaves the issue of the Emperor, who is now army head as well as a Japanese diety, and the present Japanese state religion of Shinto-ism wide open."

Mr. Coffin said that President Truman took a draft of the terms to Potsdam, hoping Premier Stalin would sign it "but not necessarily as a belligerent." If Premier Stalin refuses to sign, he will be asked to make a separate statement, he said, and in any event, Britain and the United States will issue the surrender statement.

Foe Sees Modification

A Japanese radio commentator predicted today that President Truman, in response to pressure from the American people, would modify the demand for unconditional surrender.

The Japanese-language broadcast to American areas, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, identified the commentator as Kusuo Oya, of the Japanese Broadcasting Company.

JUL 22 1945

He professed to see a withdrawal from the "unconditional surrender" formula in recent changes in the Truman Cabinet and other high government positions.

"I believe that arguments recently propounded in the United States for the reconsideration of the fundamentals of the unconditional surrender terms against Japan are reflections clearly indicative of the conservative, yet considerably radical round-about-face on the part of Truman," Oya said.

Oyo repeated the Japanese propaganda theme that the death of President Roosevelt and the collapse of Nazi Germany had removed the basis for further collaboration among the United Nations. He argued that Soviet Russia was now in a position to rebuild its national strength and was "shying away from all attempts to force her to enter the conflict" against Japan.

Captain Zacharias began studying Japanese while attache to the American Embassy in Tokyo in 1920. He returned there in 1928 as acting naval attache.

In this war he has participated in many actions in the Pacific, his commands including the battleship New Mexico. He is now on special duty with the commander in chief of the United States Fleet and with the O. W. I.

Text of the Broadcast

The complete text of the broadcast by Captain Zacharias:

"In several of my previous talks I devoted myself to our unconditional surrender peace formula; today I propose to review some of the salient points which I have already presented:

"First, your present war situation is clear: you are facing inevitable defeat. Japan has already lost the war. Your progressive defeats and our progressive victories have brought the war to Japan's very doorstep.

"Second, this situation is the result of short-sighted and irresponsible leadership of Japan before and during this war.

"Third, Japanese leaders have told the Japanese people that their present alternatives are victory or extermination. But President Truman has made it perfectly clear that this is a gross misrepresentation.

"Fourth, it is an undisputed fact that our unconditional surrender peace formula is the only way by which you can make possible the salvation of Japan.

"Fifth, Japan entered into a reckless alliance with Nazi Germany against the advice of able leaders. That this was a fatal error is now entirely clear. Nazi Germany has been utterly defeated.

"Sixth, Premier Suzuki, like all Japanese leaders, now admits that Japan is facing the greatest crisis in her long history. Japan's greatest need at this crucial hour is for loyal, intelligent and inspired leadership.

American Potential Is High

"Seventh, Japan's war potential is hopelessly inadequate. On the other hand, the American war potential is more than sufficient to crush Japan's war machine.

"Eighth, Japanese history reveals a traditional pattern of realism when the Japanese were confronted with even less hopeless war situations. Japanese armies have surrendered in the past.

"Ninth, the American unconditional surrender peace formula is a humanitarian gesture of great constructive value.

"These, then, are some of the chief points which I have discussed in detail in recent talks. I am sincerely convinced that the time has arrived when Japanese leaders should face these facts realistically and eliminate the shallow emotionalism which has influenced their actions in the past.

"An objective analysis of the unconditional-surrender peace formula must begin with a study of historical precedents and legal arguments. Surrender is a time-honored formula by which hostilities are terminated. It is established in international law and in the articles of war. It is well known to all belligerents, including, of course, the Japanese high command. It is Chapter 4, Article 35, of the Hague Convention, which was signed and ratified by the highest authority of Japan.

"And in so far as the history of its application is concerned, those Japanese leaders who are sincerely interested in terminating the war with honor, would do well to study the American precedents. Historically, the honorable surrender of General Lee to General Grant in 1865 provides a most important example. If Japan should initiate the cessation of hostilities without further delay, it may be assumed that it will be the United States which will enforce the formula and insure the peace.

"As you know, the Atlantic Charter and the Cairo Declaration are the sources of our policy, and both begin with the categorical statement that we seek no territorial aggrandizement in our war against Japan. Are the leaders of Japan really so short-sighted that they cannot see the possible complications which they may have to face if they fail to act, and act promptly?

"The leaders of Japan have been intrusted with the salvation and not the destruction of Japan. As I have said before, the Japanese leaders face two alternatives. One is the virtual destruction of Japan followed by a dictated peace. The other is unconditional surrender with its attendant benefits as laid down by the Atlantic Charter.

"Of these two alternatives, unconditional surrender is the only one which can bring about peace and prosperity for Japan.

A Dual Responsibility

"The responsibility of Japanese leaders is now a dual responsibility. First, you are responsible to your own people for the future of Japan. And secondly, we will hold you responsible for criminal prolongation of a war already lost. Can you possibly believe that by prolonging the war, and thereby imposing added sacrifices on our nation, we shall become more lenient toward you in the end? Let me remind you once more that there are no Americans who feel that the task is too great or the cost too high to insure complete victory.

"At present there are still some influential people in the United States who would not like to see the destruction of Japan. But our patience too has its limits, and it is rapidly running out. Your continued refusal to heed the sound and sober advice of counselors will convince even the greatest humanitarian among us, that the destruction of everything which supports the Japanese war potential is the only way to terminate the war.

"Your opportunity to think over these facts is rapidly passing. As soon as our redeployment is completed, this opportunity will be lost to Japan—and as you know, it will be lost forever. The war will then be decided by our superior arms—in Japan. If Japanese leaders still prefer to delay and hope for miracles, they should remember that the cemetery of history is crowded with the graves of nations—nations that were doomed to extinction because they made their decision too late."

U.S. Blows From Air Grow 'Complicated', Tokyo Declares

Guam, July 21 (AP)—New multiple air attacks against the Japanese Empire from Honshu to Indo-China by hundreds of tactical planes were disclosed by American headquarters today as the Tokyo radio complained that the blows were becoming "complicated."

Settling down to day-after-day attacks, bombers and fighters concentrated on industrial and military targets on the two main enemy islands of Honshu and Kyushu, gave Formosa its daily pasting and raided the vital Shanghai shipping and aviation center in East China for the second straight day.

Two groups of P-51 Mustangs hit the central industrial area of Honshu between Osaka and Nagoya yesterday. The first, based on Iwo-Jima, roared in 80 strong, and the targets they left among the smaller towns of this crowded industrial area were soon under the guns of 94 more Mustangs in a second wave that shot up boats, airfields and factories. These attacks followed the record 600-plus Superforts that had blasted the same general area before dawn yesterday.

Five Airfields Hit

Five Japanese airfields around Shanghai were worked over Wednesday by Far East Air Forces Liberator heavies, Mitchell mediums and A-26 attack bombers escorted by fighters—a total of more than 200.

They met no aerial opposition and dropped bombs which started two big fires along the important docks lining the Whangpoo River, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported in a communiqué from Manila.

This was the second straight day the Shanghai area had come under the sights of 7th Air Force planes, and pilots began to refer to it as "the milk run from Okinawa."

Kagashima Cut Off

On Kyushu, the port of Kagoshima remained virtually cut off because of railway tunnels blocked the day before. Fifth Air Force Mustangs bombed and strafed the piled-up locomotives and boxcars as the Japanese struggled to clear the approaches to the city. Rayon mills and waterfront installations were hit in suburban Kushikino and Miyakonojo. Thirty-five Thunderbolts roved southward to the little mineral island of Iwo and attacked sulpher mines, phosphate works and roads.

Liberators hit the giant Miho airdrome on southern Honshu and swept over Tomitaka airstrips on the east central coast of Kyushu.

Twenty of the big B-24's struck Formosa, setting the Matsuyama airfield on fire and destroying two grounded planes and railway rolling stock and storage dumps on Wednesday.

B-24's Over Hainan

Seventh Fleet Liberators ranged over Hainan Island and patrolled the Indo-Chinese coastline, wrecking locomotives and rolling stock and hitting a small freighter off Nha Trang. Liberators of the 5th Air Force bombed a factory area at Canton, China, setting a number of fires.

The Tokyo radio acknowledged that the psychological effects of American bombings on the Japanese home front were "surprisingly strong" and complained that the attacks were "so complicated that they cannot be anticipated from experience or the common sense gained so far."

One B-29 Over Tokyo

The speaker said a single B-29 raided Tokyo yesterday and cited it as an example of "sneak tactics" aimed at creating confusion.

Despite a relative lull on the Borneo front, while Australian troops consolidated their positions around the newly-won Sambodja oil field, more than 25 Aussie Spitfires and Kittyhawks bombed and strafed Sandakan, on the northeastern coast, while a pair of Liberators damaged a small freighter and river craft in the Mahakam River estuary.

Australian and New Zealand neutralization missions continued over Rabaul and Kavieng far to the southeast in the Bismarck archipelago.

ed the Yank reports with the statement that Japan's stock of scrap iron, badly needed for war production, had "increased considerably in the war-damaged areas and we have been able to get all the scrap iron we want and need."

Air Strikes Stressed

Mustang fighters hit the Nagoya-Osaka area of Honshu Island Friday in two attacks by groups of 80 and 94 planes. The pilots noted especially the Superfortress destruction at the factory towns of Okazaki and Kamazaki.

United States Army and Navy reports yesterday of strikes at Japan dealt entirely with the air war, making no mention of the whereabouts of American and British warships which bombarded Nipponese coastal industrial areas last week.

However, Admiral Nimitz in a brief communiqué today gave more details of the bombardment of Nojima Cape, 55 miles south of Tokyo, Wednesday night by light units of the United States 3d Fleet.

No Trouble For Ships

"This force patrolled the eastern entrance of Sagami Gulf but found no enemy shipping," Nimitz said.

"After the bombardment, which was directed at radio, radar and other military installations, our ships retired without incident."

Far East Air Force Mustang fighter-bombers returned to the port of Kagoshima on Kyushu Island, American headquarters reported yesterday, increasing the damage done previously to rail facilities at that southern Japanese city.

The Mustangs bombed and strafed railroad cars and locomotives blockaded at the entrances to four railroad tunnels hit in the former raid. Rayon mills and harbor docks were blasted at Kushikino and Miyakonojo, near Kagoshima.

Formosa Pounded Again

More than 200 heavy, medium and attack bombers of the 7th Air Force bombed and machine-gunned five airfields around Shanghai Wednesday for the second consecutive day of heavy attacks on the main center of Japanese military activity in China.

Carrying the air war southward, bombers and fighters of the 5th and 13th air forces and of the United States 7th Fleet wrecked Japanese shipping and railroad cars along the China and Indo-China coasts. A factory was bombed at Canton.

Formosa also received its daily pounding from United States medium bombers, twenty of them setting Matsuyama airfield installations afire and hitting railroad and storage facilities.

Psychological Effect

Rapid-fire blows by American aircraft from Okinawa, the Marianas and Iwo Jima have exercised a "surprisingly strong" psychological effect on the Japanese people, Tokyo radio admitted.

"Tactics of the raiding planes have become so complicated that they cannot be anticipated from experience or the common sense gained so far," the broadcaster said.

The enemy radio also complained of single B-29 reconnaissance flights which the Japanese called "sneak tactics" keeping the people in a constant of alarm.

A single naval Privateer plane bombed and strafed Japanese troops near Swatow, China, on Thursday while Mariner planes sank three enemy sea trucks off Hong Kong, and strafed fourteen cargo-laden junks north of Hainan Island, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today.

Heavy Pounding By Americans Brings Results

JAPS EXPECT NEW BLOW

Planes Report Vital Nip Industrial Areas 'Burned Out.'

FARON

GUAM, Sunday, July 22 — (AP) American cruisers and destroyers which bombarded the entrance to Tokyo Bay Wednesday night and early Thursday morning met no enemy resistance of any sort—either air, surface, shore or submarine, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today. The force blasted radio, radar and other installations and retired "without incident," he said.

"This force patrolled the eastern entrance of Sagami Gulf (entrance to the outer Tokyo Bay) but found no enemy shipping," the communique reported.

Nojima Cape, hit by the shelling, is the tip of the gulf's eastern shore line, and lies 55 miles south of Tokyo.

The Navy report was the first word of results since last Thursday's communique announced the bombardment by ships that included the cruisers Topeka, Oklahoma City, Dayton, and Atlanta and the destroyers Ault and John W. Weeks.

Expect New Blows

Movements of the powerful battle fleet since have been hidden by radio silence, and jittery Tokyo acknowledged today that a new naval bombardment might be expected at any moment.

"Strict vigilance is required," it cautioned the Japanese people.

Tokyo added that a naval bombardment of other areas of the homeland by mighty battleships that already have wrecked Kamaishi, Muroran on Hokkaido, and the fringe of Tokyo bay is "highly possible."

That seems obvious, for certainly the mighty force isn't going permanently into retirement. But thus far there is no indication where the next shells and bombs will hurtle onto the enemy.

There have been no reports from the July 18-19 action in Tokyo Bay, and Adm. Chester W. Nimitz today omitted his customary daily communique.

Presumably only enemy destroyers—or at most a cruiser or two—were found in the waters off Yokosuka in the bay.

Japanese broadcasts, meanwhile, are concerned mainly with the American surface bombardments which seem certain to be resumed. The enemy radio explained today that there had been no air attacks against the great fleet because the Japanese plan was "to offend the enemy and confuse him." There was no explanation of how lack of opposition might "offend" America.

Crippling assaults by American land-based aircraft on the empire and its supply lines continued during the apparent lull in fleet activities.

Returning from roof-top strikes, American fighter pilots today reported earlier Superfort raids had left vital Japanese industrial areas "well burned out."

Radio Admits Losses

Tokyo radio unwittingly seconded the Yank reports with the statement that Japan's stock of scrap iron, badly needed for war production, had "increased considerably in the war-damaged areas and we have been able to get all the scrap iron we want and need."

Mustang fighters hit the Nagoya-Osaka area of Honshu Island Friday in two attacks by groups of 80 and 94 planes. The pilots noted especially the Superfort destruction at the factory towns of Okazaki and Kamazaki.

The Mustangs bombed and strafed railroad cars and locomotives blockaded at the entrances to four railroad tunnels hit in the former raid. Rayon mills and harbor docks were blasted at Kushikino and Miyakonojo, near Kagoshima.

More than 200 heavy, medium and attack bombers of the Seventh Air force(bombed and machine-gunned five airfields around Shanghai Wednesday for the second consecutive day of heavy attacks on the main center of Japanese military activity in China.

Carrying the air war southward, bombers and fighters of the Fifth and 13th Air Forces and of the U. S. Seventh Fleet wrecked Japanese shipping and railroad cars along the China and Indo-China coasts. A factory was bombed at Canton.

Formosa also received its daily pounding from U. S. medium bombers, 20 of them setting Matsuyama airfield installations afire and hitting railroad and storage facilities.

Planes Hit Borneo

Reports yesterday from Borneo said Australian troops who recently captured the Sambodja oil field on the eastern side of the big petroleum producing island were consolidating their positions, but there was little ground warfare. Australian fighter planes and U. S. bombers swept Borneo coasts, hitting Sandakan in the northeast and damaging shipping in the Mahakam river estuary.

Rapid fire blows by American aircraft from Okinawa, the Marianas and Iwo Jima have exercised a "surprisingly strong" psychological effect on the Japanese People, Tokyo radio admitted.

"Tactics of the rading planes have become so complicated that they cannot be anticipated from experience or the common sense gained so far," the broadcaster said.

Guam Celebrates Year Since Yanks Returned

Guam, July 21 (AP)—The people of Guam celebrated today the first anniversary of the American return to this big, green island which has been converted into what Admiral Chester W. Nimitz in a radio speech termed "one of the most powerful bases in the world."

The admiral's address, broadcast over a local radio station, was the only official observance of that day a year ago when soldiers and marines landed and took back what the Japanese seized from a handful of Leathernecks 32 months before.

Natives Also Celebrate

In towns and villages, natives marked liberation day with music, dancing and speeches reflecting their gratitude for being released from the shackles of the Japanese.

There were masses, too, in the fine old churches that escaped the ravages of war, or in temporary places of worship.

At Inarajen, on the southeast coast, the people decorated their house fronts with hibiscus and palm fronds. They gathered in seven groups, the same seven set up by the Japanese, because that was the easiest way to check up on their movements.

GUAM, July 21 (AP).—Grateful natives and thousands of members of America's armed forces joined today in celebrating the first anniversary of the liberation of this island base from the Japanese.

Informality was the keynote in a day marked by music, dancing and open-house hospitality offered by the Guamanians. A speech by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz provided the only official recognition of that day a year ago when soldiers and marines landed and took back what the Japanese had seized from a handful of marines thirty-two months before.

In his address, broadcast over a local radio station, Nimitz said Guam was now "one of the most powerful bases in the world."

"The story of the liberation of Guam begins with the smashing victory of American arms over the Japanese, who one year and one day ago were present on this island some 18,000 strong," he said.

"After organized resistance had been broken, another series of victories began. We won a victory over weather. We defeated swamps and jungles. We began the long-range offensive against disease.

"Seabees and Army engineers licked every construction problem that came their way. You all know the result. Today, Guam is one of the powerhouses providing the energy for the final drive against Japan."

4,306 Japs Dead In Borneo Battle

Manila, Sunday, July 22 (AP)—Enemy dead counted in all Borneo operations now total 4,306, with 441 captured, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today as Australian troops continued mopping-up operations in recently captured territory around the Sambodja oil fields.

Allied casualties — principally Australian—for the Borneo operations, which include Tarakan and the Brunei Bay sector as well as the southeast Borneo area of Balikpapan, now total 386 killed, 12 missing and 1,351 wounded, MacArthur's communiqué said. The ratio of Japanese dead to Allied dead thus was more than eleven to one.

While describing no new ground action on the island, MacArthur said United States Army 13th Air Force and Royal Australian Air Force planes were continuing to bomb and strafe enemy rear areas, communication lines and fuel dumps.

It was reported at headquarters here that Dutch Colonial troops in the mopping-up operations had thrust a mile and a half north of Sambodja and occupied the outlying village of Bambodja.

It was disclosed also that the Sepinggang airfield near Balikpapan had been extended to 7,000 feet by Australian engineers and is in use as a base for the close air support of the ground troops.

Strong Steps Held Philippine Need

Manila, July 21—War Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt said today he was aware that the Philippines needed aggressive economic and political action to solve internal political strife, inflation and "monopolistic profiteering."

"And I hope I can help," he declared. He arrived here by air yesterday.

He emphasized again, however, that he intended "to keep my fingers out of political questions." As an observer, he explained, he will gather complete information to report to President Truman, primarily on health and welfare work.

To See Both Roxas, Osmena

No time limit has been set for his stay in the islands, he said, and there are no barriers restricting persons he could interview. Specifically, he said, he expected to talk with the Senate President, Brig. Gen. Manuel A. Roxas, as well as President Sergio Osmena of the war-exiled Government. The two Philippine officials are political foes.

McNutt added that he wanted "to take my hat off to the Filipinos for their courage" and said "the American public is considerably more interested in the Philippines than before the war—and has a sympathetic understanding for the Filipino people who stayed here and took it. We can't forget that."

Army Men in Manila Want Series Nine

Manila, July 21 (A. P.).—This sports-hungry Army Headquarters hopefully welcomes Navy Secretary Forrestal's request for a world champion baseball tour, and Army officials said the series could be staged here.

Athletic officers of the base command said Rizal Stadium would be in top condition. The stadium, which Babe Ruth and other touring big leaguers inaugurated in 1935, now is used for service baseball, softball, football and soccer.

Iron Lung Saves Yank on Luzon

With the United States Fifth Air Force, Luzon, July 21 (A. P.).—Responding to urgent radio messages for help, a C-47 cargo plane of the Fifth Air Force Troop Carrier Command flew an iron lung into the rugged mountainous combat zone near Legaspi.

The patient, Pvt. Robert S. Wilcox of Upper Darby, Pa., who had been stricken suddenly by a form of poliomyelitis, was reported in good condition when he reached a Manila hospital. It was believed to be the first time an iron lung ever was flown into a battle area.

Staff Sgt. Harold Estroff of the Bronx, N. Y., helped operate the lung.

FLEET, AIR POWER LOW, JAP ADMITS

Nipponese Expect Final Battle To Be On Homeland

San Francisco, July 21 (AP)—Japan's technological leader admitted today that Nippon's once proud fleet and air power were unable "to grapple" with Allied might beyond the confines of the homeland and that the final battle must be fought there.

However, this leader, Lieut. Gen. Reikichi Tada, president of the Japanese Board of Technology, claimed in a Domei news agency dispatch recorded by the Federal Communications Commission that a new secret weapon would insure victory in the showdown invasion battle.

Mobilization Ordered

Japan's Government, exercising its recently acquired decree power, ordered the country's 400,000 communications workers mobilized into an "actual fighting corps" for the "coming mainland" battle.

Premier Kantaro Suzuki told a conference of directors of various communications bureaus that the order was part of the plans for "area by area" defense of the country.

General Tada declared that the secret weapon was "new in every sense of the word" and that, when operated by the "special attack" suicide corps, would have a "double sure hit, sure death" effectiveness.

"Provocative" Tests

"We must fight to gain victory on the homeland," Tada was quoted as saying, "by preparing to crush the enemy with a single stroke. . . . We may not be able to grapple with the fleet-footed enemy on the vast sea, but we are prepared with strategy and weapons to utilize every geographical advantage of our narrow homeland to crush him."

Tada declared the United States 3d Fleet's air and surface bombardments of the homeland during the last two weeks were "provocative" tests of Japan's defenses.

Business Profit Set

"The enemy has come to fear Japan's stored might," he asserted.

Another broadcast said Japan's Finance Ministry had set five per cent as the basic profit allowable for private business. Excess profits of one to five per cent will be allowed for reserve funds.

The allowable excess above the basic five per cent, it added, will be determined according to the particular concern's capital or "merit" in war production.

'Secret Weapon' Is Jap Boast

San Francisco, July 21 (AP)—The Japanese declared today they had invented a new secret weapon "in every sense of the word," which functioned best if run by "special attack" suicide operatives.

As reported by Domei agency in a broadcast heard here, Japanese scientists "were dubious that it would be efficient unless it was linked with the 'special attack' spirit."

The new weapon, said Domei, was unlike anything that had appeared in Europe and would be employed "in rapid succession" in event of invasion.

Lieut. Gen. Reikichi Tada, president of the Japanese Board of Technology, said that the shellings and bombings by the American and British fleets this week were only "a provocative attack" and did not necessarily mean a prelude to invasion.

A correspondent of the Tokyo newspaper Mainichi said that the fortification of Kyushu, southern Japanese home island, was complete because of its "natural geographic condition and the almost superhuman efforts of the soldiers."

B-29's Solve Another Jap War Worry

San Francisco, July 21 (AP)—It's the queerest thing, the way these Superforts are giving a boost to the Japanese war effort.

The last anyone heard, the Japanese needed more room in their larger cities, and the Superforts made some.

Now, according to their broadcasts picked up here, the Japs were on the verge of running out of scrap iron.

And at this crucial moment, said the Tokyo newspaper Asahi, along came the Superforts and did the following favor:

"At the beginning of this war, scrap iron was not importable, so it was gathered from among the common people.

"Recently, however, due to the fact that our technical skill has progressed and to the fact that the amount of scrap iron has increased considerably in the war-damaged areas, we have been able to get all the scrap iron we want and need."

Now if any Japanese junk dealer runs shy on metal, just send word to the B-29's and a cargo of scrap—fresh from the finest war plant a yen can buy—will be delivered smack on his doorstep.

Stalin Predicts Big Expansion Of Soviet Navy

Russia to Build New Ships and Bases, He Says in Red Navy Day Message

LONDON, July 21 (AP).—Generalissimo Joseph V. Stalin declared today that the Russian people want "a still stronger and mightier" navy and "will create new fighting ships and new bases" for it.

Stalin made the statement in an order of the day broadcast by the Moscow radio in connection with the Soviet observance tomorrow of Red Navy Day. He did not say to what purpose a stronger Russian navy would be put.

The order congratulated the navy for its part in the defeat of Germany and concluded: "The Soviet peoples wish to see their navy still stronger and mightier. Our people will create new fighting ships and new bases for the navy. The task of the navy is tirelessly to train and improve the cadres of seamen, to master fully the experience gained in the patriotic war, and to raise still higher the naval skill, discipline and organization."

The order said that in the war against Germany the navy had done good work, "effectively protecting our flanks which rested on the sea, striking heavy blows at the enemy's merchant fleet and assuring uninterrupted functioning of our own communications."

In another broadcast order of the day, Navy Commissar N. G. Kuznetsov spoke of "new tasks confronting the Red Navy."

"With the successful termination of the war with Hitlerite Germany," he said, "a number of new tasks confronted the personnel of the Red Navy. It was necessary by strenuous military preparation to study and consolidate the experience of naval warfare which had been accumulated. Comrade Stalin does not cease to call upon the armed forces of the Soviet Union to strengthen their organization. . . . It is the duty of the officers and men of the Red Navy to fulfill this demand."

London Pole Army Rule 'Not Recognized' By British

London, July 21 (AP)—A British Foreign Office commentator declared today that Britain "does not recognize the authority" of President Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz of the London Polish Government in Exile, and Lieut. Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski (General Bor) over the Polish Army.

The development underscored an apparent attempt by Rackiewicz and Komorowski to keep intact and on foreign soil a fighting body of Poles loyal to the London exile government, from which the United States and Great Britain have withdrawn recognition.

At the same time it raised new complications for the British on what to do with Polish fighting men who elect to remain in an army under commanders openly engaged in an argument with the Warsaw Government.

Polish forces under the London Polish regime, at least up until the time of the withdrawal of British-American recognition, totaled 250,000 men under the command of Komorowski, who led the Polish Home Army in the unsuccessful Warsaw uprising.

Polish forces on foreign soil faced the problem of whom they should regard as their commander. These troops are dependent on British and American supplies for subsistence.

Inquiries Being Conducted

The Foreign Office commentator's statement was made in connection with his announcement that the British Government was conducting "close inquiries" into the case of Gen. Gustav Paszkiewicz, formerly second in command of the Polish forces in Britain.

Paszkiewicz returned to civilian status after he professed loyalty to the new Warsaw Government. His associates said he was dismissed from the army. The Polish Forces Bureau, loyal to the Raczkiewicz administration, said that he had formally requested to return to Poland and that the change to civilian status was automatic under an order issued by Komorowski.

Germans Quitting Norway

LONDON, July 21 (AP).—More than 25,000 German prisoners of war are being returned to the Reich by sea from Norway each week under a new program announced today by the British Admiralty.

POLAND WANTS PORT OF STETTIN

LONDON, July 21—(AP) Establishment of Poland's western frontiers on the Oder and Neisse rivers in Germany, within 60 miles of Berlin and including the port of Stettin, Berlin's outlet to the Baltic, was defined as the country's number one problem today at a Warsaw meeting of the Polish National council.

The Warsaw radio said premier Edward Morawski told a plenary session of the council that the new frontiers must be established "as soon as possible," together with Polish administration of the acquired terrritories.

The premier specifically included Stettin, although that ancient Hanseatic city of more than 270,000 lies on the west bank of the Oder estuary.

Three other projects of the new "unity" regime at Warsaw were listed as:

1. The return of Polish emigres "dispersed all over the world as a result of the war, as well as those who left the country before the war in search of work and bread."
2. The holding of parliamentary and municipal elections.
3. Agrarian reform and the reconstruction of industry and the country's economic and political life.

Waiver Of Suez Tolls 'Not In Britain's Power'

London, July 21 (AP)—A British Foreign Office spokesman declared today that it "is not within our power" to waive Suez Canal tolls on American ships carrying soldiers and equipment to the Pacific war theater.

The commentator at a press conference said it was "perfectly true" that Britain does not pay a similar fee for passage of her troops through the Panama Canal.

The Panama Canal, however, he said, is entirely American-owned, while the Suez Canal is owned by a corporation organized under French law, with several nations as shareholders, including Italy and Egypt. Britain owns 44 per cent.

Request From U.S.

[Officials in Washington disclosed yesterday that for the second time since the war started the United States has asked Britain to absorb under reverse lend-lease Suez tolls on American ships redeploying fighting men and equipment. Suez tolls since the start of the war until last January 1 cost the United States $11,345,390, it was announced.]

Responding to questions the Foreign Office spokesman said that Britain also paid tolls on all its shipping passing through the Suez Canal. He was asked in view of the fact that Britain is one of the largest shareholders in the Suez Canal whether this was not a case of shifting the money from one pocket to another in a bookkeeping transaction.

Paid Out More

The commentator replied that in this war and in the last one, Britain paid out more in tolls than she received in return profits.

Answering other questions, the Foreign Office spokesman described as "quite untrue" a report heard in London after Italy's surrender that the Italian shares in the Suez Corporation were now in Russian hands. He said he did not know who was receiving the income on the Italian shares.

Short Of Rice In Soho

London, July 21 (AP)—Chinese restaurants in Soho are so short of rice that they are using barley and potatoes instead and saving rice for their old customers.

British Stop Airgraph Service.

London, July 21 (A. P.).—The British airgraph letter service, which is equivalent to American V-mail, will be discontinued on July 31 because of the sharp decrease in mail since the end of the war in Europe, the Postmaster-General announced today. Since its inception in 1941 the service sent more than 200,000,000 airgraphs to members of the armed forces at a cost of three pence—about 5 cents each.

Air Force Shifts 25,000 Flyers to German Bases

750 Planes in Bomber and Fighter Groups Sent to U. S. Zone From Britain

LONDON, July 21 (AP).—Approximately 25,000 men and more than 750 aircraft in seven American heavy bomber groups and three fighter groups have been ordered moved to the continent as part of the Allied Occupational Air Force to police Germany, United States Strategic Air Force headquarters announced today.

Throughout the war all American 8th Air Force planes were based in England.

The British Air Ministry recently announced that more than 90,000 Royal Air Force airmen and ground crew men will assist in the air policing of Germany. The number of United States 9th Air Force personnel to remain in the Occupational Air Force has not yet been announced, but their units will likely bring the total strength of the Allied Air Police to around 150,000 men.

Fighters Already There

No large-scale movement of bomber groups has yet begun, the Air Force announcement said, but three fighter units already are occupying their new bases in Germany. They are the 55th, 355th and 357th Mustang Groups.

Seven heavy bomber groups—all Flying Fortress units—designated to remain in the European theater, are the 92d, 94th, 96th, 100th, 305th, 306th and 384th.

It was officially reported that approximately 55 per cent of the V-E Day total of 200,000 8th Air Force personnel has already been redeployed to the United States.

The following twenty bomber groups have completed movement to the United States: 44th, 91st, 93d, 351st, 381st, 389th, 392d, 398th, 401st, 445th, 446th, 448th, 453d, 457th, 458th, 466th, 467th, 482d, 489th and 491st.

Awaiting Shipment

Fourteen other bomber groups which have completed movement of aircraft and air crews, but whose ground personnel are still in England awaiting shipment home, are: the 34th, 95th, 303d, 379th, 385th, 388th, 390th, 447th, 452d, 486th, 487th, 490th, 492d and 493d.

The following twelve fighter units are still in England: the 4th, 20th, 56th, 78th, 339th, 352d, 353d, 356th, 359th, 361st, 364th and 471st.

Most of the groups chosen to remain as part of the police force are veteran outfits, several of which engaged in the first daylight attacks on Germany nearly three years ago.

Briton's Give PW's Smokes For Work

London, July 21 (AP)—Yorkshire farmers are complaining that they are having to bribe German prisoners with cigars and cigarettes to get them to do the simplest farm work and townspeople are angry with the farmers for using this method to keep the Nazis from sulking.

Suggesting that "a smart dig with the butt end of a rifle would be a more appropriate remedy," a tobacconist in Great Driffield said today that a farmer customer of his recently purchased $24 worth of cigars.

150,000 PW's Being Used

"It sure took the wind out of my sails when he told me they were for German prisoners working on his farm who sulked and slowed down the work if they didn't get to smoke," the tobacconist said.

Notices have gone up in the windows of many Yorkshire shops announcing: "It is aaginst our principle to supply cigarettes and cigars for German prisoners, so please don't ask."

British farmers are using an estimated 150,000 war prisoners to help gather in this year's harvest. About two-thirds of them are Germans.

Nuernberg May Be Scene Of Nazi Trials

London, July 21 (AP)—The main trials of German arch-criminals of war may be held in the Nazi shrine city of Nuernberg.

Justice Robert H. Jackson, chief United States prosecutor, and representatives of the British and French governments flew to Nuernberg today to inspect a proposed site.

Big Rome Jail Riot Reported

London, July 21 (AP)—A Reuter dispatch from Rome said more than 1,000 criminal prisoners rioted and tried to escape from Regina Coeli prison in Rome today. The dispatch said armored cars were patroling in and around the prison after hundreds of policemen and soldiers had quelled the outbreak.

PETAIN NOTES LAVAL ARREST

Says He Held Collaborationist To Bar Colony Seizure

FRYE

Paris, July 21 (AP)—Marshal Pétain testified today that he had Pierre Laval arrested December 13, 1940, to prevent Laval from using French troops to seize African colonies which had joined Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Free French movement.

He said he did this because he was afraid such action would result in war between Britain and France. The fugitive Laval at present is under detention in Spain.

The 89-year-old marshal, facing trial Monday on a charge of having intelligence with the enemy, was a witness at a preliminary hearing of Marcel Peyrouton, former Minister of the Interior in the Vichy Government, who faces a similar charge.

Corroborates Peyrouton

Peyrouton was taken to Fort Demontrouge for the hearing, and there Judge Mitton questioned the marshal and the civil minister on the Laval affair.

Pétain corroborated Peyrouton's version of the Vichy Premier's arrest and said he ordered it when it became apparent that Laval intended to use armed force to seize the colonies, beginning with Tchad, then serving as a relay point on the Brazzaville-to-Cairo route.

The question of retaking the colonies was the immediate cause of the arrest, Pétain asserted, adding that he also wanted to stop Laval's entire course of complete collaboration.

The aged marshal said German pressure forced Laval's release after a short time. But he asserted that Laval never regained his Vichy position and never influenced Vichy decisions after his arrest.

50 Witnesses To Be Called

Laval's arrest never was adequately explained by the Vichy Government, but the accepted version at that time was that it followed a Cabinet row over Laval's agreement to move the French Government from Vichy to Paris.

Pétain's corroboration of Peyrouton's statements today came as preparations neared completion for the aged marshal's trial.

A responsible source in the Supreme Court disclosed that the state planned to base its case against Pétain on fourteen questions relative to the circumstances of France's collapse in 1940 and subsequent events under the German occupation.

Pétain will be examined himself and some 50 witnesses will be called.

Began Four Years Ago

Among the more important points are the circumstances leading up to his request for an armistice, how he acquired power to speak for France and his reasons for abolishing the republican form of government.

Also on the agenda will be the question of collaboration with the Germans and his alleged responsibility for permitting French manpower to be employed in German factories and war industries.

Writing of the indictment against Pétain was begun four years ago by Andre Mornet, trial lawyer and public prosecutor. He said he began preparing the case while the Vichy régime was technically governing unoccupied France and Pétain was chief of that Government.

The massive, lion-maned lawyer convicted Mata Hari during the first World War and has been quoted as saying that he expects to convict Pétain. He was expected to demand the death penalty, and then, in event of conviction, accede to a commutation of sentence.

Thousands Of Pages

Mornet said the actual dossier amounted to thousands of pages and contained testimony of hundreds of witnesses, including statements by four former Premiers of France and some of her foremost statesmen and military leaders.

Mornet said that French law, derived from the Code Napoleon, gave the president of the court, Paul Mongibeaux, the right of direct examination. He added that if the trial followed normal precedents the president probably would ask more questions than any of the lawyers.

He emphasized that this was the most striking difference between French legal procedure and American law, wherein the judge is little more than an umpire between the two sides.

At 9 A. M., they had been taken to the scene of this special project—a twenty-five-mile stretch of sewer to be cleared and cleaned. There they are now at work.

No shots were fired, none escaped and it was reported that none was killed and only one was injured.

Pope Appeals To Writers to Stick to Truth

World Owes Much of Its Woe to 'Flood of Error,' He Tells Ten Americans

VATICAN CITY, July 21 (AP).—Pope Pius XII told a group of ten American writers today that strict adherence to the truth is essential in their profession and suggested that a "flood of error and false moral standards" has been responsible for much of the world's troubles.

"It is an invaluable service your profession offers society in breaking down the barriers of time and space and assisting all members of the vast human family to share their joys, sorrows, triumphs, disasters, hopes and fears," he said.

"Members of the profession who do not hesitate to smear pages or pollute the ether with falsehood are rendering a great disservice to their fellow men; they . . . gravely imperil peace among nations. If competent civil authority fails, when necessity demands it, to curb such license, then the civil society will most surely pay the penalty.

"The world shudders today to contemplate the mass of misfortune that has overwhelmed it. May it not be traced back to the flood of error and false moral standards let loose by the written and spoken word of proud, irreligious men?"

The writers, on a world tour under the auspices of the War Department, reached Rome yesterday. They are Robert Considine, of Hearst Publications; Harry Grayson, of the Newspaper Enterprise Association; Hallett Abend, of the North American Newspaper Alliance; Edwin Lahey, of "The Chicago Daily News"; Pauline Frederick, of the Western Newspaper Union; Mary Day Winn, of "This Week" magazine; Elsie McCormick, of "The Reader's Digest"; Harry Flannery of the Columbia Broadcasting System; Bruce Gould, of "The Ladies Home Journal," and Evelyn Eaton, of the G. P. Putnam Co., publishers.

CARLOADS OF ART RETURNED TO ITALY

FLORENCE, Italy, July 21—(AP) Thirteen freight-car loads of art treasures estimated to be worth more than $500,000,000 rolled into Florence today. Heavily guarded by American MP's they are being returned to the galleries from which they were looted by the Germans to swell the collections of Hermann Goering and other Nazi "connoisseurs."

Among the paintings and statuary are works by Michelangelo and Raphael, and Donatello's "Saint George" and Cranach's "Adam and Eve."

Eleven paintings still are missing from the collection taken by the Germans from the Uffizi and Pitti galleries here, including the famed "Labors of Hercules" by Antonio Pollaiuolo.

Lt. Col. Ernest DeWald of the Allied commission and Giovanni Poggi, supervisor of the two Florence galleries, estimated their value.

When the Allies threatened Florence the Germans dumped the pictures and other works into trucks and fled to Bolzano, where they ran out of gasoline. The trucks were left to stand for two days in a public square during rain and Allied aerial bombardment. Finally the Germans moved some to San Leonardo, about 40 miles from Balzano, and others to a prison camp about 60 miles northwest of Balzano.

BIG THREE ACHIEVE MARKED PROGRESS TOWARD ACCORD ON PEACE IN EUROPE, U. S. DELEGATION AT POTSDAM REPORTS

JUL 23 1945

U. S. IS SATISFIED WITH PROGRESS AT BIG THREE PARLEY

Initial Week of Victory Conference Closes with Fifth 3-Hour Session.

MUM ON AGREEMENTS

Truman, Churchill and Stalin Spent 15 Hours in Discussing Problems.

By DANIEL DE LUCE

POTSDAM, July 21—(AP) The Big Three victory conference reached the end of its first week tonight and American officials expressed satisfaction with progress already made in problems ranging from the interallied rehabilitation of Europe to the destruction of Japanese resistance.

President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin held their fifth, three-hour meeting today and an announcement from the American compound said: "The work of the conference is going ahead and much serious business has been done."

How long the meetings would continue and what agreements had been reached were questions left unanswered, but the brief American statement—the first interim report given by any of the three delegations—reflected President Truman's earnest wish to keep the world informed as much as possible of progress in this surburb of conquered Berlin.

The American delegation reported that the three leaders of the United States, Britain and Russia spent approximately 15 hours this week in direct discussions at the round-table.

Met Each Day

They met formally each day, starting Tuesday, while their foreign secretaries—James F. Byrnes, Anthony Eden and Vyacheslav Molotov, began the daily spade work on Monday. Besides their full-dress meetings, the Big Three entertained among themselves with a series of luncheons and dinners where the international business of peace and war continually obtruded.

Churchill, Eden and former Deputy Minister Clement Attlee and the highest military commanders of Britain slightly delayed the previous schedules today in order to witness a parade in the Tiergarten of the British Seventh Armored ("Desert Rats") division.

It was Churchill's second visit to the ruins of central Berlin. He made his first visit Monday and inspected Hitler's underground shelter at the Reichschancellery.

Today he was cheered by shabby, awed Berliners on the Kurfuestendamm when he stopped to open a new British Service club for the Seventh Armored men, who named it the "Winston club" in his honor.

For the achievements of the "Desert Rats" since 1940, the Prime Minister's soldier heart was almost visibly overfilled with emotion. He declared their heroic march from El Alamein across Africa and Europe to Berlin was "unsurpassed in history of war so far as my reading of history leads me to believe."

"Here in Berlin," he said at the club opening, "I find you established in this great center from which, as from a volcano, fire and smoke and poison fumes have erupted all over Europe twice in our generation."

"Dear Desert Rats," he said, "may your glory ever shine, may your laurels never fade, may the memory of this glorious pilgrimage of war which you have made from El Alamein via the Baltic never die."

After Churchill took the parade salute from a half-track on the Charlottenburger Chaussee with starred and famous British commanders, Field Marshal Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, at the Prime Minister's request, ordered a holiday for the British fighting men in Berlin who had helped to save the British empire.

The German cheers at the club were an unscheduled event for Churchill. A crowd of more than 200, mostly women and children, gathered outside British military lines around the club, formerly known as the "Kabaret Der Komiker," and when he drove up there were cries of greeting. He merely stared at them.

But on leaving in a car with Montgomery, the British Prime Minister acknowledged the German cheers by raising his fingers in the V-for-victory sign.

Keep in Character

The big three kept perfectly in character during the week. Stalin—even to German dwellers near

JUL 21 1945

Soviet headquarters in Potsdam—remained unseen and silent. President Truman kept pace with Churchill with two public trips, the second being climaxed yesterday by his declaration to U. S. Second Armored Division troops that "we are not fighting for conquest and there is not one piece of territory or one thing of a monetary nature that we want out of this war."

Among the President's friends here these remarks were not interpreted as meaning he favored abandoning fortified bases in the Pacific or otherwise weakening America's future defenses. Berlin observers believed his remarks served to underline the intention of the U. S. government to keep the general welfare of all peoples an objective in its international negotiations.

Correspondents saw the variance in the press customs of Washington, London and Moscow, delineated by the way information came out of Potsdam during the week.

There has been no news release solely on the initiative of the Soviet delegation. The only British release of wide interest was given out 36 hours late concerning the dinner which Churchill and Stalin had without any other official guests. American releases averaged two daily, and today departed from a mere recording of social engagements to give the progress report on the conference itself in vague but heartening terms.

Sunday to Be Quiet

A quiet Sunday morning was in store for the American delegation, with the President planning to attend religious services. Lt. Col. Lawrence M. Nelson, of 2339 Shaulet Street, Columbus, Ga., Baptist minister and divisional chaplain of the Second Armored Division was to deliver the message. The chaplain of the 67th Armored Regiment, Capt. E. Northen, Jr., also a Baptist, was to lead the singing in the American compound.

Last night Adm. Emory S. Land, chairman of the U. S. Maritime commission, J. J. Meely, assistant secretary of war, and Lt. Gen. Lucius Clay, Gen. Eisenhower's deputy in Germany, had dinner with the President. The President's party again was entertained by pianist Sgt. Eugene List and violinist Pvt. Stuart Canin, both of New York city, who previously played for the Big Three.

Big Three Holds Its Fifth Daily Meeting

Potsdam, July 21 (AP)—The Big Three held their fifth meeting today, the American delegation announced, and "much serious business has been done."

"The work of the conference is going ahead," the delegation reported.

"Since the first meeting on Tuesday the Big Three have met every day, including today, and averaged almost three hours per meeting."

Secretaries Busy

Foreign Secretaries of the United States, Russia and Britain have been meeting every day since Monday, putting in long hours, and numerous committees and subcommittees also have been busy drafting reports for action by the Big Three.

Both President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill were understood to be anxious to speed up deliberations.

In the American compound, Mr. Truman conferred with Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the United States Maritime Commission here for discussions looking to the postwar utilization of America's big merchant fleet. Lieut. Gen. Lucius Clay, General Eisenhower's deputy in Germany, had dinner with the President.

Church Services Planned

Tomorrow, Mr. Truman presumably will attend church services as usual. The American delegation planned services in its area, with the possibility they would be conducted by Col. L. Curtis Tiernan, chief of chaplains of United States forces in the European theater.

An old friend with whom Mr. Truman served in the 129th Field Artillery in the last war, Colonel Tiernan called on the President last night and they talked for several hours.

The President's party was entertained again by Sergt. Eugene List pianist, and Private Stuart Canin violinist, both of New York city. They had played the previous night for all the Big Three.

Eager To Return To D.C.

The President is eager to return to Washington soon, and is believed seeking to keep discussions down to a minimum, with a view to quick decisions where there is a possibility of adjustment of differences.

For his part, Churchill wants to return to London by July 26, in time for the announcement of the national election returns, and his associates are reported working toward the goal of concluding the conference in advance of that date.

Meanwhile, another meeting between Churchill and Premier Stalin was arranged for today. The two met at dinner Wednesday, with only their interpreters present.

Bargaining Point

President Truman may possibly be insisting that any bargaining be predicated upon Russian participation in the war against Japan. It is regarded as obvious that he is presenting the American position as stemming irrevocably from the premise of saving American lives.

[In London, diplomatic observers said that from the Potsdam meeting may emerge a United States foreign policy free from favoritism, yet friendly toward all nations of good will. Smaller nations' representatives were said to be counting heavily on the hope that President Truman would translate such a policy into a role for the United States as impartial arbiter in Europe's problems.]

The best information emanating from the conference area is that the President is making a hit with both Stalin and Churchill because of his informality and his aversion to pretense and flattering phraseology.

Churchill Reviews 'Desert Rats' In Their Berlin Victory Parade

Says British 7th Armored's March From Alamein to Nazi Capital Is Unsurpassed in History, Gives V Salute to Cheering Germans

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, July 21.—Prime Minister Churchill, flanked by high-ranking Allied officers, solemnly saluted men of the famed British 7th Armored (Desert Rats) Division today as they paraded in the Tiergarten in a display of the military might which carried them from Alamein, North Africa, to the heart of Germany.

Cromwell tanks, motor-towed twenty-five-pounders and Bren carriers roared past the flag-draped reviewing stand, followed by ranks of infantry with bayonets fixed.

With the Prime Minister were three Americans, General George C. Marshall, Admiral Ernest J. King and General H. H. Arnold; Soviet Colonel General Alexander Gorbatov and French Major General Geoffrey de Beauchesne, the latter two members of the Kommandantur, Berlin's four-power administrative council.

Near by, providing a splash of mufti in a reviewing stand filled with military garb, were Major Clement R. Attlee, Laborite Deputy Prime Minister in Churchill's war-time coalition government, and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden. The latter, recently ill, looked sunburned and well. The Prime Minister's daughter, A. T. S. Junior Commander Mary Churchill, was also present.

Churchill wore the light khaki uniform of Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports.

A crowd of about 200 Berlin civilians, mostly women and children, cheered the British Prime Minister and shouted "Hurrah for Churchill" when he strode past them on the Kurfuerstendamm into a new British service club after the military review was over.

The civilians cheered again when he came out of the club later, and this time Churchill answered them by raising his fingers in the V-for-victory salute.

Speaking to the men of the 7th Armored, which in four years of fighting drove Nazi troops across northern Africa and finally moved into Berlin on July 3 as occupation troops, Churchill said:

"Here in Berlin I find you established in this great center, from which, as from a volcano, fire and smoke and poison fumes have erupted all over Europe twice in our generation. . . . You have kept steadily marching forward on the long road to victory. . . .

"Dear Desert Rats! May your glory ever shine! May your laurels never fade! . . .

"It is a march unsurpassed through all the story of war, so far as my reading of history leads me to believe."

TRUMAN IS INSPIRED BY TENNYSON POEM

BERLIN, July 21 (AP)—President Truman turns to the brave words an English poet penned in 1842 for inspiration as he works at the Big Three conference to make the dream of a peaceful, happy world come true.

They are written on a wrinkled sheet of paper he carries with him in his billfold wherever he goes.

From Lord Tennyson's "Locksley Hall," they convey a vision of a "Parliament of Men" and a "Federation of the World."

The President copied the words from an old book of poems back in 1910.

Lines that he believes inspired Woodrow Wilson gave Mr. Truman the idea for his recent Kansas City speech when he talked of a republic of the world and of the necessity for the United States to take the leadership among the United Nations organization to preserve future peace. They were:

For I dipped into the future, far as human eye could see,
Saw the vision of the world, and all the wonder that would be:
Saw the heavens fill with commerce, argosies of magic sails,
Pilots of purple twilight dropping down with costly bales:
Heard the heavens fill with shouting and there rained ghastly dew,
From the nations airy navies grappling in the central blue:
Far along the world wide whisper of the southwind rushing warm,
With the standards of the peoples plunging through the thunder storm:
Till the wardrum throbbed no longer and the battle flags were furled,
In the parliament of man, the federation of the world.

Mr. Truman's friends say he believes that the dream of the poet can be translated into reality by practical men working together on problems of common interest were international collaboration between peaceable nations appears justified.

Sgt. Truman Leaves Potsdam

POTSDAM, July 21 (AP).—Sergeant Harry A. Truman, of Grandview, Mo., a nephew of President Truman, who was the President's guest at the Little White House here, was on his way home by way of Paris today. His departure for Paris by plane was arranged by his Uncle Harry.

15 Hours of Direct Talks

BERLIN, July 21 (AP)—The United States delegation reported today that the Big Three had spent about fifteen hours this week in direct discussions at the round table in a former palace of Kaiser Wilhelm.

On his visit to review the parade of British troops today Mr. Churchill was cheered by shabby, awed Berliners gathered in front of the Winston Club, named for him.

Among President Truman's friends here the remarks made by him yesterday that the United States wanted no territory out of this war were not interpreted as meaning that he favored abandoning fortified bases in the Pacific or otherwise weakening America's future defenses.

SOVIET AWAITS BIG 3 NEWS

No Speculation Is Given by the Press or Radio

MOSCOW, July 21 (AP)—The Russian people today patiently awaited decisions from the Big Three conference, aware that their press and radio would not give them speculative reports, but only facts at the meeting's end.

Russians know little more than that their leaders are meeting with President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill.

Peace and security are of supreme interest to the Russian people. They want to believe that the majority of people in the United States and Britain feel the same way.

Anything that comes out of the Berlin conference that will help build a stronger and better peace—one which will not see their fathers, sons and brothers going off to another European war—will, they say, be the most interesting news.

MOSCOW, July 21 (AP).—President Truman, Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and Premier Stalin appeared in the first photographs printed here of the Berlin conference. Prime Minister Winston Churchill was missing. There was neither news nor editorial comment about the conference in today's press.

Spain Is 'Still Falangist'

Madrid, July 21 (AP)—Generalissimo Francisco Franco administered the oath of office to his new Cabinet today and the Falangist newspaper Arriba declared that the new government would continue the "Falangist ideal."

The newspaper's editorial said the long-expected Cabinet shakeup, which placed in office five men considered monarchist sympathizers, was a "new step" in the life of Franco's party, the only one in Spain.

One of the displaced Cabinet members, Foreign Minister Jose Felix Lequerica, may succeed Juan Francisco Cardenas as Ambassador to Washington, but there was no confirmation.

Lequerica and Eduardo Aunos, Minister of Justice, who was also replaced, were known to be on terms with the Falange which at the least were not friendly.

The Cabinet shakeup, revealed last night, displaced Falange Secretary General Jose Luis Arrese through the elimination of his Cabinet post, Minister without portfolio.

HIGH NAZIS GET FEW PRIVILEGES

No Coddling for Von Ribbentrop, Doenitz and Goering, Jailer Reports

By GEORGE TUCKER

MONDORF, Luxembourg, July 21—(AP) One of the great dramas of the postwar era is being played out in the rooms and corridors of the once fashionable Palace hotel where Reichmarshal Herman Goerging, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz and 49 other high-ranking Nazi officials and Wehrmacht officers are being held pending further disposition by the Allied War Crimes commission.

Stripped of their plumage, surrounded by barbed wire and machine-guns, they bear little resemblance to the "supermen" who tried to loot the world.

Col. B. C. Andrus, commanding officer, whose 391st Anti-Aircraft battalion guards the enclosure and garrisons the town said.

No Coddling

30.24-28561

"We stand for no coddling here. These men are in jail. We have certain rules and those rules are obeyed."

With Andrus as conduction officer I went through every room in the seven-story building for inspection of the conditions under which the once-mighty Nazis live.

The once impeccable Ribbentrop, who moved through salons of the elite, occupied a bare single room on the fourth floor. When he gazes out of his barred window his view is of a guard on a raised platform with mounted machinegun.

He sleeps on a folding canvas cot with straw mattress. There are no mirrors and no electrical current is provided. When he wishes to shave, one safety-razor blade is issued to him and taken away after it has been used.

All panes have been removed from the windows and replaced with unbreakable substitutes, in keeping with anti-suicide precautions.

Has Extra Suit

Ribbentrop has one extra suit. His room is furnished with a small chair, a toothbrush and an aluminum drinking cup.

Capt. Hubert M. Biddle, prison officer, of 310 Fort Street, Bremen, Ohio, said Ribbentrop keeps his own room and makes his own bed, since there are no orderlies here.

"Ribbentrop is sometimes lackadaisical in this respect," Capt. Biddle said, "and I have had him on the carpet for it several times."

Goering, now in the hotel hospital where an effort is being made to lessen his dosage of sedatives, has a larger room across the hall from Ribbentrop. It has identical furnishings except that Goering's chair is larger.

"He is so heavy he broke his other chair," Capt. Biddle said. Goering, who also is suffering from an attack of bronchitis, is being given a gradually reduced diet of paracodeine. When he arrived, said Col. Andrus, he was taking 20 times the normal dosage of the drug.

The routine at the Palace hotel is almost identical with that of penitentiaries in the United States, with the exception that the only movies are atrocity films and the only amusements are walking in the sunlight and innocent conversation. Recently Dr. Walther Funk, former president of the Reichsbank, was permitted to lecture his fellow prisoners on the importance of paper currency.

The prisoners remain in their rooms until breakfast at 7:30 a. m., and are free to attend English classes or walk in the yard until noon. Luncheon is at noon and dinner at 6:30 p. m. A typical menu is cereal, soup and coffee for breakfast; pea soup, beef hash and spinach for luncheon; powered eggs, potatoes, bread and chocolate or tea for dinner.

When Julius Streicher arrived, Admiral Doenitz and several others refused to eat with him, saying they considered him Germany's worst criminal.

"I told them the Wehrmacht and I told the mthe Wehrmacht and Navy no longer existed, that even their state no longer existed—and they would eat with anybody I chose to place at their table."

No Cleavage

There is no abrupt cleavage in ranks of the high Nazis held here, such as there is at the prison camp in Wiesbaden, but certain individuals are held in contempt by their colleagues, Capt. Biddle said. Dr. Robert Ley, Biddle said, is snubbed by most of the internees.

Dr. Hans Frank, former Nazi governor of Poland who made an unsuccessful suicide attempt before arriving here, is suspected of being emotionally unstable. Several times when he has been ill he has called for a priest, but waved him away when he regained his vigor.

Goering Shunned

Goering is reported to be shunned by almost everybody, despite his jolly fat-man bearing and his bowing and scraping.

Ribbentrop mingles equally with the Wehrmacht and the civilian internees. When I saw him the former minister wore a loose-fitting lumberman's shirt, without coat or tie. His greying hair was shaggy. He was waiting with Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring for a turn in the barber shop, where a prisoner of war from a German labor battalion was trimming Nazi looks.

He stood and bowed and waited to be given "at ease" by Col. Andrus, who waved his hand. "There is no saluting here or shaking hands," Andrus said. "They stand and bow, and we acknowledge this with a nod."

Field Marshal Gen. Wilhelm Keitel is on the prison books as being an almost perfect prisoner. His quarters are better policed than and on his floor.

These builders of a now-defunct system may be in the final phases of their careers. Many of them undoubtedly will be tried as war criminals. They face death or possible life imprisonment. The joy ride that began in a Munich beer cellar is ending in a decrepit hotel in Mondorf Les Bains.

Goering's Sedative Supply Cut, And He's Miffed

Mondorf, Luxembourg, July 21 (AP)—Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering's diet of sedatives is being gradually reduced in the infirmary of the Palace Hotel, where he is being held—and the former leader of the Luftwaffe is miffed.

Col. B. C. Andrus, commander of the inclosure, said Goering was taking twenty times the normal dosage of paracodeine when he arrived here to join Joachim von Ribbentrop, Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz and 49 other high-ranking Nazis.

Goering Scowled

Sergt. Robert Bock, of Milwaukee, described Goering's reaction to the cut in drug rations:

"Yesterday he scowled. He held the pills in his hand, counted them. He threw them into his mouth, washed them down with a glass of water, still scowling, said: "'Every day they get less and less.'"

Attendants said Goering was also being treated for bronchitis, and is being kept in the infirmary because his obesity affects his heart.

"Goering hasn't had a heart attack yet, but his great weight places a strain on it and sometimes knocks it out of rhythm," one said.

Nazi Party Treasurer

Goering's bunkmate is Dr. Franz Schwarz, 78-year-old treasurer of the Nazi party, who suffers from heart and circulatory ailments.

All the Nazis are being held for further action by the Allies. Many of them will face war criminal trials.

Occupation Job Ended Sunday

The 15th Army's occupation job ended July 15, when the French took over the 23d Corps sector. The British took over the northern half of the 15th's Rhineland sector in the middle of June.

Explaining his new assignment, General Gerow said that the appointment was made by General Eisenhower, to whom the board will report. Other members have not been chosen yet.

Not All Combat Men

"We will have a good proportion of men with combat experience," Gerow said, "but the members won't all be combat men, who might attach undue importance to their own particular experiences. We will have others with broader points of view."

He said the job would take about a year.

The board's final report will recommend changes in military doctrine, technique and organization, as indicated by the results of experience.

Vote On Leopold Sought

Brussels, July 21 (AP)—A bill to provide a nation-wide vote on whether King Leopold would be allowed to return to his throne was introduced in Parliament yesterday by ahherents of the monarch.

Anti-Leopoldists who mustered big majorities earlier in the week to enact legislation barring the King's return to Belgium without specific approval by Parliament agreed to give time later for discussion of the referendum proposal.

General Gerow Made Chief Of War Analyst Group

United States 15th Army Headquarters, Germany, July 21 (AP)—The United States 15th Army has completed its job as an occupation force, and Lieut. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, commander, has been named president general of a board of American officers to make a detailed study of the European war.

The study will determine what lessons in warfare can be recorded for posterity from the gigantic conflict. The 15th Army will form the basis of an organization for the new war study board, now being set up.

UNRRA Appeal For Slavs Stresses Fear Of Starvation

Belgrade, July 20 [AP—Delayed]—M. Sergeichic, head of the UNRRA mission in Yugoslavia, asserted today that "thousands of Yugoslavs will die during their first winter of freedom" unless allocations are raised from "their present inadequate level."

The Moscow engineer, who came to Yugoslavia after a tour of duty as deputy chief of the Persian Gulf Group handling lend-lease from America, said that the Allied Control Commission, which handles work in occupied countries of western Europe, received more food than the UNRRA, which serves liberated Allies.

More Trucks Needed

"If the citizens of producing nations could see for themselves the plight of Europe, and especially eastern Europe, they would not rest quiet until they had secured from their governments curtailment of their own consumption so fewer people should starve in Europe this winter," Sergeichic says.

"If relief is to come, UNRRA must have trucks," the statement said. "The minimum requirement is 6,000 before the end of September. But all that the UNRRA Yugoslav mission has been granted are 380 for delivery in July, 622 for August and 600 for September.

"Unless six times as many trucks arrive before snow falls, UNRRA food will rot in warehouses and thousands of Yugoslavs will die."

Requests Scaled Down

Sergeichic said that Yugoslavia had received only 120,000 tons of food out of 461,720 tons promised by UNRRA's predecessor, the military liaison group.

He said that requests based on bare minimum requirements were scaled down so drastically in Washington that the entire allocation for Poland, Czechoslovakia, Greece, Albania and Yugoslavia were not enough for Yugoslavia alone.

He declared that "children eat every other day."

The war, he said, "has been a world struggle. Solution of postwar food problems is a world responsibility."

Truman Has Terms Set For Surrender of Japs

Potsdam Conference Expected to Hear Recommendations of President

WASHINGTON, July 21—(AP)—President Truman is reported to have taken to the Potsdam conference a whole series of recommendations dealing with possible definitions of unconditional surrender for Japan.

A source which normally would be informed said that up to the time the President left Washington, however, there was no single draft of a set of United States surrender terms for Japan. It was also reported positively that any new interpretation of unconditional surrender would have to be acceptable to the allied governments, and that only within that limitation would American officials make definitions on their own.

This does not, however, rule out the possibility that the Potsdam conference may result in a statement to the Japanese demanding their surrender. In fact such a statement is confidently expected here. It probably will emphasize that the consequences of giving up now would be less costly to the Japanese than forcing the destruction of their homeland in the smashing assaults which the Allies have planned for the months ahead.

That was the tack taken by Capt. E. M. Zacharias, U.S.N., described by the office of war information as "an official spokesman of the United States government," in a broadcast direct to the Japanese today.

The Japanese-speaking Captain advised his audience that unconditional surrender offers "the only way by which you can make possible the salvation of Japan."

The various recommendation which Mr. Truman is reported to have taken with him include memoranda from the state department, Army and Navy.

Agree on Principle

These are reliably described as being in agreement on several main principles including: That Japan must be occupied by Allied armies, that Japanese militarism must be uprooted and destroyed, that the capacity of the country to start another war must be ended and that territories stolen by Japan must be completely liberated.

Whether Premier Stalin would join in any statement aimed at persuading the enemy to surrender quickly, or whether he would otherwise cooperate in bringing about a surrender were questions which officials here could not answer. Stalin has been very careful in the past about preserving Russian neutrality despite sharp Moscow criticisms of Japan.

One of the great psychological factors in the drive to force Japanese surrender—in additon to the terrific pounding of the enemy homeland—is the possibility that Russia may enter the war on the Allied side. The Japanese cannot miss the significance of the Potsdam meeting in this respect, whatever the statements issued.

Journal Cites Term

The unofficial service publication, the Army and Navy Journal, said today that Mr. Truman had carried with him to the conference a draft of surrender terms as favored by the War, Navy and State departments.

The journal said the terms call for the total loss to Japan of her fleet and air forces, plus other disarmament; loss of territory outside her home islands; destruction of her war industries; control of her economy by the United Nations, and surrender of designated war criminals.

Rumors of Japanese peace feelers are prevalent in Washington, the journal added, but said they find no official support.

"Yet," the publication commented, "this does not remove completely a possibility that Marshal Stalin may be entrusted with a serious peace formula by the Japanese government."

SAYS JAP PEACE IS UP AT BERLIN

Army Journal Hints Stalin Is Tokyo's Go-between.

Washington, July 21 (A. P.).—The Army and Navy Journal said today that President Truman carried to the Big Three conference at Potsdam a draft of Japanese surrender terms as favored by the State, Navy and War departments. These terms, it said, call for the total loss to Japan of what remains of her fleet and air force, as well as for other military disarmament, the loss of all territory outside the home islands, the destruction of her war industries, complete control of her economy by the United Nations and the surrender of designated war criminals.

The Journal said that interest in the Potsdam conference revolves around the question of whether the Emperor Hirohito will be declared a war criminal and punished accordingly. When President Truman left for the conference the question had not been decided, the publication said, and counsel here was divided.

Hints at Stalin Role.

"Liberals and New Dealers were demanding that he be executed," the Journal said. "Others felt that the war lords rather than he were responsible for Pearl Harbor and that, anyway, the status of the Emperor did not involve our security and that the war would only be prolonged if we should fight to destroy Japan's religious and political systems."

The Journal said that rumors of Japanese peace feelers are prevalent but find no official support in Washington. It added: "Yet this does not remove completely a possibility that Marshal Stalin may be intrusted with a serious peace formula by the Japanese Government. It may or may not be significant that on the eve of his departure for the meeting of the Big Three the Japanese Ambassador in Moscow conferred with V. M. Molotov, the Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs."

SOVIET IS RECONVERTING

Huge War Industry Beginning to Turn Out Peacetime Goods

MOSCOW, July 21 (AP)—The Soviet Union's huge war industry is beginning to return to peacetime work.

One of Russia's largest fighter-plane factories, which turned out 15,000 planes during the war, has reduced its plane production and now is working on an order for 100,000 bicycles.

The Stalin Ordnance Works, which made 95,000 guns, is commencing to manufacture equipment for the oil industry.

A tank factory that made 30,000 machines is producing wheels for railway cars.

Germans List Girl 'Traitors'

HERFORD, Germany, July 21 (AP).—German youths have formed "traitor patrols" in various towns in the British occupation zone, taking the names of all German girls they see with Allied troops.

Black Market Hunt In Reich

Berlin, July 21 (AP)—American, British and Soviet occupation armies here pressed a swift hunt today for big-time German operators in illicit stocks of Allied food and gasoline, in an attempt to crush fantastic speculation in Berlin's necessities of life.

Joint plans to throttle the corrupting influences at work among Allied troops in the capital were drafted yesterday after American and British security officers for two weeks carefully spotted illegal trading centers. The Berlin Kommandatur authorized Soviet military police to join the hunt for the higher-ups.

Associated Press Correspondent Ernest B. Vaccaro reported from Potsdam that he personally had witnessed an offer of 60 marks ($6) for eight cigarettes, and the sale of three sticks of chewing gum for 30 marks ($3). He said word of the rampaging black market had reached President Truman at Potsdam.

EUROPA SAILS SEPT. 1 WITH 5,000 U.S. TROOPS

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, July 21 (AP)—The giant German luxury liner Europa is booked to sail for the United States with 5,000 GI's aboard on Sept. 1—two months ahead of schedule for her first trip as an American troop transport.

Lieut. William Smith of Pittsburgh, Pa., a Navy ship repair officer, said that orders were received today to make the reconversion of the 50,000-ton Europa into a transport a No. 1 priority job.

The 891-foot liner was launched in 1929 and was a winner of the blue ribbon Atlantic crossing in little less than five days. Paint is being flown from England to give her a new battleship-gray dress. During a month's stay in drydock, tons of barnacles have been scraped off. These collected during the liner's four years' "imprisonment" in Kaiserlautern slip where she had served as a billet for German soldiers.

Truman Will Modify Demand On Surrender, Jap Contends

SAN FRANCISCO, July 21—(AP) A Japanese radio commentator predicted today that President Truman, in response to pressure from the American people, would modify the demand for unconditional surrender.

The Japanese-language broadcast to American areas, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, identified the commentator as Kusuo Oya, of the Japanese Broadcasting company.

He professed to see a withdrawal from the "unconditional surrender" formula in recent changes in the Truman cabinet and other high government positions.

"I believe that arguments recently propounded in the United States for the reconsideration of the fundamentals of the unconditional surrender terms against Japan and reflections cloth[ing] indications of the conservative, yet considerably radical round-about-face on the parf of Truman," Oya declared.

He cited in particular an editorial which he said appeared in the New York Daily News "which stated that Pearl Harbor was a theoretical blunder of the American policy of meddling in Oriental affairs for the past scores of years." Oya claimed that such a view was "shared by not only a few" Americans.

Oya repeated the Japanese propaganda theme that the death of President Roosevelt and the collapse of Nazi Germany had removed the basis for further collaboration among the United Nations. He argued that Soviet Russia was now in a position to rebuild its national strength and was "shying away from all attempts to force her to enter the conflict" against Japan.

The British empire, he went on, is war weary and is trying to "be relieved of her responsibilities with a minimum, token effort."

The commentator contended that Mr. Truman "must of necessity seriously reconsider the Rooseveltian policy of meddling" in far eastern affairs and would "liquidate gradually the individual failures of Roosevelt which had all too strongly colored American policy both in domestic administration and in foreign policy for more than 12 years.

"Thus," Oya said, "we interpret the recent American moves and in this sense we are watching with profound interest all future moves in Washington's political circles."

Chinese Pressure Kept On Kweilin

Chungking, July 21 (AP)—Chinese forces closing on Kweilin from three sides have beaten down Japanese counterattacks at the outer defenses of the former United States 14th Air Force base, the Chinese high command announced today.

All the Japanese counterblows were "totally frustrated," the Chinese announcement said.

Chinese columns in Kwangsi province continued to move in on Kweilin from the southwest, northwest and south. Kweilin is 90 miles northeast of recently recaptured Liuchow.

Jap Casualties Heavy

Considerable casualties were inflicted on Japanese in Fukien province, 6 miles south of the South China coastal highway town of Yunsiao, which is 65 miles northeast of Swatow. Chinese attacked enemy groups which since June 13 have been trying to fight their way from Amoy to Swatow, 115 miles to the southeast.

The high command said that the Japanese counterattacks around Kweilin were mounted from Paishou, 25 miles to the west; Ining, 11 miles to the northwest, and Chiehsou, on the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad 41 miles to the northeast.

Roadblock Reported Broken

The implied recapture of Chiehsou by the Japanese indicated that they had broken the roadblock which for a time cut their escape route from Kwangsi to Hunan province.

However, while the route appeared to be reopened, the proximity of Chinese forces indicated that it would be at best a precarious line of withdrawal.

CHINESE FORCES LAUNCH DRIVE TO ENCIRCLE KWEILIN

Troops Battle Eight Miles from Great Triple-Airfield Base.

NIPS COUNTERATTACK

Japs Hurled Back After Blows to Defend Escape Railroad.

CHUNGKING, July 21 — (AP) Chinese troops have fought their way within eight miles north of Kweilin in a new encircling drive against the great south China air base after breaking up powerful Japanese counter-attacks yesterday, the Chungking high command said today.

Japanese rearguards holding on to the triple-airfield base—the biggest of those abandoned last year to the Japanese by the U. S. 14th Air Force—counter-attacked yesterday morning with all the force they could muster.

The enemy blows were mounted from Paishou, 25 miles west of Kweilin, 11 miles northwest and Chaishu, 57 miles northeast, on the Kweilin garrison's escape railroad to Hengyang, a communique said.

Attacks Hurled Back

Chinese veterans, absorbing the blows, quickly recovered and "totally frustrated" the Japanese attacks. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's soldiers then went over to the attack and, pressing on Kweilin from the north, reached a point eight miles from the city, the Chinese said.

After repelling a Japanese blow from the walled town of Paishou, one of the main Japanese strongholds guarding Kweilin's western approaches, the Chinese broke into the town through the south gate and street fighting now is in progress, the communique said.

The capture of a point eight miles north of Kweilin carried the advancing Chinese troops within two miles of the enemy escape route to Hengyang. Earlier in the week, the Chinese established a road block across the line at Chaishu, but the high command indicated that Japanese counter-attacks had freed the route for a precarious enemy withdrawal.

By battering toward the railroad just north of Kweilin, the Chinese were clamping a pincer on Kweilin in an effort to encircle the base. Below the Kwangsi province capital, the southern arm of the closing trap swept again into Liangfeng, 15 miles south, with the support of American fighter planes which killed 200 enemy troops.

Seizure of the Japanese strongpoint eight miles north of Kweilin also threatened to encircle the highway center of Ining, whose fall would open the way to Kweilin and its three airfields. Chinese columns converging on Ining captured points four and a half miles from the town, the communique said.

Bitter, swaying fighting was raging north, west and south of Kweilin and the Japanese were suffering heavy casualties, the high command said. A village 14½ miles west of Kweilin was seized Wednesday, a front dispatch said.

Meanwhile, on China's southeastern "invasion" coast, Gen. Chiang's forces hurled flank attacks against Japanese units from Amoy which since June 30 have been trying to fight their way southwestward to the former treaty port of Swatow.

These assaults were launched as Chinese troops frontally opposed Japanese troops who reached a point six miles south of the highway center of Yunsiao, 60 miles northeast of Swatow and 56 miles southwest of Amoy, but lost many troops.

The high command gave no account of fighting on other fronts along the coast or in the interior and failed to explain what had happened to Chinese vanguards which it said earlier in the week had broken into Kweilin's outskirts.

The high command gave no account of fighting on other fronts along the coast or in the interior and failed to explain what had happened to Chinese vanguards which it said earlier in the week had broken into Kweilin's outskirts.

B-25 Mitchell bombers and P-51 Mustang fighters also blasted enemy railroads in North China at Anyang, southwest of Peiping, and in the Sinsiang and Kaifeng areas of northern Honan province, an American communiqué said. Japanese shipping on the Yangtze near Hankow and on the SI (west) River north of Canton, also was bombed and strafed.

CHINA TO GET MORE GOLD

U. S. Will Also Send Her Cloth, Premier Discloses

CHUNGKING, China, July 21 (AP)—Among the agreements negotiated in the United States by Premier T. V. Soong were two calling for the shipment to China of large but unspecifiable quantities of gold and cloth, it was learned today.

The gold is to be sold by the Chinese Government to absorb the vast amount of inflated notes in circulation. The cloth will be distributed at reasonable prices in an attempt to depress the ever mounting cost of consumer goods.

Recent suspension of gold sales by the Chinese Government caused the black market value of the American dollar to spurt to more than $3,000 (Chinese). It has dropped now to $2,600 (Chinese).

All of the gold Premier Soong contracted for will arrive in China by the end of this year, it is reported.

Chennault Will Leave China Despite Pleas That He Stay

Kunming, China, July 20 (AP—Delayed)—Maj. Gen. Claire Lee Chennault listened today to pleas from the National People's Political Council at Chungking that he remain in China, but said he could not withdraw his resignation as commander of the United States 14th Air Force.

"The same situation still exists that caused me to submit my resignation," the former leader of the Flying Tigers told Chinese correspondents. "I don't see how I can change my decision at this time."

Chennault announced his resignation July 14, after a disclosure that the American air effort in China was to be reorganized under the over-all command of Lieut. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer.

He'll Seek Useful Work

The Chinese correspondents obtained a press conference with Chennault today after requests arrived from the Chungking National People's Political Council and its provincial counterpart in Yunan province asking him to stay in China.

"I know you will realize that the question of staying on is not one of personal desire—it is a question of being useful in this war," Chennault asserted.

"After I've had a vacation and grown tired of loafing, I hope to look around and find some useful work to do."

Chennault, who has announced he expects to retire from the Army after returning to the United States, was asked if he contemplated "retiring from the present war."

No Chinese Post Offered

"That will depend, of course, on my superiors," Chennault said. "I expect to return to the United States, and a further course of action on my part will be in accordance with the orders I receive."

Chennault said he had not been offered a post with the Chinese Government.

One correspondent, sensing Chennault's affection for a black dachshund named Joe that has been all over China in Chennault's plane, asked if he was taking Joe back to Texas or Louisiana, where Chennault formerly lived. Chennault replied he could not say where he was going.

"But where I go, that dog will go," the General added.

Cholera Epidemic Worse In Chungking

Chungking, July 21 (AP)—The cholera epidemic which broke out in Chungking early in June has taken a turn for the worse with a fresh influx of new cases pouring into hospitals.

Foreign medical men estimated today that 8,000 cases, about 20 per cent of them fatal, have occurred since the epidemic began.

Doctors attending Alf Hassel, Norwegian Ambassador, the only foreigner to contract the disease during the current epidemic, today reported his condition was steadily improving.

JUL 21 1945

Chinese Tell Road's Record

CHUNGKING, July 21 (AP).—"Sao Tang Pao," Chinese Army newspaper, reported today that more than 10,000 American trucks had arrived in China since the Stilwell Highway was opened in January.

Japs Fighting Hard Above Pegu In Burma

Calcutta, July 21 (AP)—Japanese troops strengthening their positions northeast of Pegu are vigorously resisting British attempts to probe the positions, a southeast Asia communiqué said today.

One report from the front said the Japanese yesterday launched a large-scale attempt to break out of the Allied ring by drives toward the main road linking Rangoon with Mandalay. The Jap command was reported to have ordered the troops to get out by the end of July or prepare to be written off.

More Planes For India

New Delhi, July 21 (AP)—The pre-war strength of the Royal Indian Air Force was one squadron. The force has been steadily expanding during the war, and the Government of India now announces that it will maintain it after the war, with Japan at an initial strength of not less than ten squadrons.

U.S. Being Urged To Keep Isles

Washington, July 21 (AP)—President Truman's statement that the United States is not seeking "one piece of territory" prompted congressional demands today that this country retain complete control of strategic Pacific islands.

Senator George (D., Ga.), Foreign Relations committeeman, said he thinks there are areas taken from the Japanese at a high cost in lives where United States control should not be hampered even with the technical restraints of a proposed international trusteeship system.

JUL 21 1945

Echoed By Other Senators

George's declaration was echoed in part by other senators. All expressed the opinion that Mr. Truman was not talking about the Pacific when he said at a flag-raising in Berlin:

"There is not one piece of territory or one thing of a monetary nature that we want out of this war."

Nobody argued with the President's further contention that the United States is not fighting for conquest, although Senator Ellender (D., La.) said he thought that Mr. Truman was being "too liberal."

"I think we must retain the islands we have conquered in the Pacific, as well as some bases we have built in other parts of the world," Ellender said. "Moreover, I think that some of our allies should agree to make available to us some of the natural resources we have dissipated in the war, such as oil."

Austin Comments

Senator Austin (R., Vt.) said he didn't think that the President intended to "cut across the bow" of the army and navy policy which calls for retention of Pacific areas this country needs for future defense purposes.

Austin and George agreed that some of the nonstrategic islands the Japanese held under mandate from the last war well may go under the trusteeship system proposed as a part of the United Nations peace-keeping organization.

Under this system, the United States could specify in an agreement with the proposed trusteeship council the terms under which the islands would be administered.

Byrd's Contention

If it elected to put strategic areas under trusteeship, it would agree with the World Security Council on the terms.

But Senator Byrd (D., Va.) pointed out that American claims to such islands as Okinawa first must be established at the peace conference ending the Pacific war. There the victors will decide which of their number shall control individual areas.

Smuts Pledges Penalties

PRETORIA, South Africa, July 21 (AP)—Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts told a welcoming crowd of 50,000 at his homecoming from the San Francisco Conference today that "the principle of forgive and forget" did not apply to war criminals. He said that the United Nations charter, "which declares war against war, will justify drastic punishment of war makers and war criminals of all sorts."

HELP FOR HITLER TRACED IN PAPERS

State Department Hints U.S. Tycoons Aided Reich In '30

Washington, July 21 (AP)—The story of American financial deals which built up Germany between wars and hints that some American tycoons backed Hitler in 1930 were released by the State Department today.

The department, following its usual custom of publishing state papers after fifteen years, put out 2,000 pages of documents on American foreign relations in 1930.

The chapter on Germany gives considerable attention to Hitler, then clutching for power. It also shows that American policy worked closely with Wall Street financiers, anxious to float loans of the troubled, unstable Reich.

Sharp Difference Of Opinion

The American charge d'affaires in Berlin wrote Secretary of State Henry Stimson that he had heard "certain American financial interests" were actively backing Adolf Hitler and his Nazis as a means of combating trends toward Socialism in Germany.

George A. Gordon, the charge d'affaires, also said that "Hitler received very substantial financial support from certain large industrial interests." He judged, however, that their influence on him "has been definitely a restraining one."

There was a sharp difference of opinion between Under Secretary of State Joseph P. Cotton and the American reparations agent in Paris, S. Parker Gilbert, on the advisability of a huge loan to the Germans.

Pleas For Sympathy Seen

Gilbert was against it unless it was specified that the Germans had to use the funds to pay their debts.

Cotton, who talked it over with J. P. Morgan and representatives of Lee, Higginson Company, felt that France and Britain were trying to push the United States out of the market and saw no reason to block the deal.

It has been widely predicted that German policy following the Reich's recent defeat will be based on pleas for sympathy, combined with efforts to get around anti-aggression controls. The 1930 papers show actual operation of just such stumbling blocks in the path of those who tried once before to destroy German war potential and plans.

Senators Say Germans Plot Industrial Power

Washington, July 21 (AP)—Senators back from Europe said tonight that Germany could come back quickly to industrial power and even now is plotting the way.

Senator Kilgore (D., W.Va.) said that at least three fourths of Germany's industry could be rehabilitated in "three months to a year, at the outside."

Senator Mitchell (D., Wash.) said, "Germany is still the world's third largest industrial power. Within five years she could be stronger than she was in 1939."

War Material Purveyor

They and Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) spoke on a radio program against the idea of letting Germany ever get into a position again to wage aggressive warfare.

Kilgore said:

"For the past 50 years she (Germany) has been the leading purveyor of war materials in peacetime. And when she hasn't been doing that, she's been sewing up patents all over the world by means of cartels—patents that can be used for war production."

German "Plans Well Laid"

He added that German industrialists "already have their plans well laid. They intend to recover their property and patent rights and they are already moving to re-establish their old cartel connections, as they did after the last war."

Kilgore said the Krupp munitions people right now "are calling for American loans so that they can produce agricultural implements for German farms."

Ferguson remarked that "if we let German companies like I. G. Farben keep their foreign holdings, they will go on pretty much as before." He advocated taking away this property for reparations and breaking up internal German monopolies as well.

SENATE APPROVES WORLD FOOD PLAN

JUL 21 1945

Votes U. S. Membership in United Nations Organization.

WASHINGTON, July 21—(AP) The Senate shouted approval for United States membership in the United Nations Food organization today, thus forging another bond of international cooperation before it takes up the United Nations charter next week.

During an hour and a half of debate, Senators Revercomb (R-WVa), Willis (R-Ind), Bushfield (R-SD) and others expressed some apprehension as to how far this country was committing itself.

But when the resolution for membership was put to a vote there was no request for a roll call and no "nays" were audible after a chorus of "ayes."

The resolution commits this country to contribute $625,000 to the first year's operations of the organization which grew from the international food conferenre held at Hot Springs, Va., in 1943.

It authorizes a contribution of up to $1,250,000 annually thereafter.

Others Accept Membership

Twenty-three other nations, including the United Kingdom and China, already have accepted membership.

The organization's purpose is described as studying ways to improve world nutrition. Claude R. Wickard, then secretary of agriculture, testified before the foreign relations committee that the basic aim would be "to find ways of increasing the consumption of food and other agricultural products by methods that would benefit producers equally with customers."

The United Nations Charter is just as sure of passage, although with more debate. Thus far, only Senator Johnson (R-Cal), who helped beat United States membership in the League of Nations, has come out against it.

Several others are uncommitted.

Majority leader Barkley (Ky) told the Senate that once consideration of the charter is begun he hopes no one will ask to lay it aside even temporarily for other matters. He said that beginning Tuesday the Senate will meet at 11 a.m. (EWT)—an hour earlier than usual—to expedite consideration.

The debate on the food organization was strictly among the Republicans.

Senator Austin (R-Vt) reported the membership resolution for the committee and assumed the job of steering it to passage. Senate Democrats sat back and left the whole discussion to the Republicans.

Revercomb gave the Hot troubled by a report made by the Springs conference which he said included the suggestion that an international organization have power to recommend "migrations of peoples."

If the United States is going into the organization, he declared, it should be with the understanding that this country surrenders none of its freedoms.

Austin said the resolution accepts no obligation except contributing to the fund.

"The United States and every other member of this organization will be just as free after it signs and becomes a member as it was before," he added.

Senator Willis expressed concern over a provision in the organization's constitution for an "appropriate international court" to settle any disputes over interpretation of the constitution.

"Are we not, by that, committing ourselves further than is represented?" Willis asked.

Austin said he did not think so.

"When a country is so nationalistic that it will not agree to submit its interpretation of an issue to an international body—why, that is what leads to war," the Vermonter said.

Eisenhower in Farewell To Allied Chiefs of Staff

Thanks Combined Units for 'Staunchness of Support'

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—General Dwight D. Eisenhower bade a formal farewell to the American-British combined chiefs of staff tonight, thanking the staff for its "staunchness of support" to the supreme commander of the Allied Expeditionary Forces.

In his last message as SHAEF commander to the combined chiefs, Eisenhower said: "During the three years I have personally served under the direct control of the combined chiefs of staff, I have experienced no single instance in which I have not received the ultimate in consideration in personal and official assistance."

He asked that his appreciation also be conveyed to the political heads of the two governments, "who have displayed toward me a similar attitude of trust and confidence."

A message from the British chiefs of staff to Eisenhower extended the "grateful thanks" of those officers to the American general and said that "SHAEF has always been the embodiment of true Allied comradeship, and provides a memorable example of what can be done by wholehearted co-operation."

New Jersey In First Fleet Air Blow

Washington, July 21 (AP)—The Navy revealed today that the U.S.S. New Jersey, one of its newest and biggest battleships, participated in the first major carrier air strike against Tokyo and Yokohama last February.

The 45,000-ton dreadnaught took her big guns along to protect other elements of the fleet in the action which began February 16.

In air thrusts at Japan, the Ryukus and against enemy task forces between March 18 and April 13, the New Jersey again was in the attacking group. For a time she served as flagship of Task Force 58.

Bagged Four Planes

The New Jersey and her sister ship, the Iowa, for which their class is named, joined the Pacific fleet January 22, 1944, at Funafuti, Ellice Islands.

During attacks on Honshu in March, the New Jersey's anti-aircraft guns shot down four enemy planes. Some were suicide planes diving on carriers. One plane, a "Zeke," was blown to bits by a direct hit from one of the 5-inch guns.

Following the February 16 Tokyo blow, the New Jersey moved to Iwo Jima to cover the landings there February 19, where she remained until February 21, when she returned to join in the February 25 Tokyo attack.

Operations Listed

Since joining the fleet, the New Jersey has participated in operations against Kwajalein, Eniwetok, Truk, Mille, Palau and Woleai, Aitape and Hollandia, Ponape, the Bonins and Marianas, Yap, Ulithe and Guam.

She was part of Task Force 58 in sweeps of Japanese positions in the Philippines, supporting air blows against Cebu, Leyte, Negros, Panay, Behol, Samar and Luzon during the Peleliu landings. She helped support the Leyte invasion.

She was part of the force which invaded the China Sea to strike Camranh Bay, Saigon, Hong Kong, Swatow, Amoy and later Formosa. Then she turned her guns on Okinawa before the landing there.

Last of Wounded Returning

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP)—The rail movement of wounded soldiers will begin to drop late in July because most of the disabled men in Europe will have returned by then, the Army Transportation Corps reported today.

It was emphasized, however, that overall Army demands for rail facilities would grow increasingly heavier because of the redeployment from Europe to the Pacific.

The corps disclosed that 510,000 wounded or sick soldiers were moved by rail between November, 1942, when North Africa was invaded, and June 30, 1945.

11 MORE JAP SHIPS SUNK BY U.S. SUBS

WASHINGTON, July 21—(AP) Because targets are getting scarcer all the time, the Navy had to wait for almost three weeks to announce today the latest toll taken by U. S. submarines: 11 more Japanese ships.

Included in this bag were four small combatant craft, two of them minesweepers and two patrol escort vessels. There was one large cargo transport and the rest were small and medium transports, merchant vessels and freighters.

The new haul raised to 1,174 the total of Japanese ships of all types announced as sunk by U. S. submarines. Of these 144 were combatant ships and 1,030 were noncombatants.

The submarine fleet, which now numbers nearly 250 craft, has been a prime factor in choking Japan's water-borne supply lines. It has been officially credited by Secretary Forrestal with "the death of Japan as a maritime power."

Despite the growing size of the submersible fleet and the constantly expanding area of operations, the last major bag of enemy combat ships was announced March 30. Then a large carrier and two destroyers were reported sunk. Destruction of two more destroyers has been announced since that date.

Estimates made about the first of the year credited the submarine fleet with destroying 3,500,000 tons of enemy merchant shipping, about half of the tonnage Japan is believed to have had available at the start of the war. Sinkings announced since then, totalling 240 ships of all types, have pushed the total at least beyond 4,000,000 tons.

MINESWEEPER SUNK

Washington, July 21 (A. P.).—The motor minesweeper YMS-84 has been lost in the Borneo area from enemy action, the Navy announced today. Casualties included ten enlisted men wounded out of the vessel's normal complement of thirty-five officers and men. The loss raised to 325 the total naval vessels lost from all causes since the start of the war.

The vessel was under command of Lieut. James V. Barton, whose wife, Mrs. Alice Barton, lives in Detroit. A native of Chicago, Barton had commanded the YMS-84 since August 3, 1944. The 136-foot vessel was commissioned July 1, 1942.

PATTON IS BOOSTED FOR STIMSON'S POST

WASHINGTON, July 21—(AP) Declaring Henry L. Stimson will resign as secretary of war upon President Truman's return from Potsdam, Representative Rankin (D-Miss) suggested today that the post go to General George Patton.

Rankin described Patton to the House as "one of the most popular men in American uniform," and "a leader of men."

New Bomb Wing Chief Named

Washington, July 21 (AP)—Brig. Gen. James M. Fitzmaurice, veteran of Pacific air war and present commander of a staging unit at Hunter Field, Georgia, will be chief of the newly formed 21st Bomb Wing, it was learned today. The wing, with six fields in its jurisdiction, is being set up as the over-all agency for staging through the United States to the Pacific.

"Bill Of Rights Day" Urged

Washington, July 21 (AP)—The designation of December 15 each year as "Bill of Rights Day" has been proposed in a bill by Senator Wagner (D., N.Y.).

The observance, to be accompanied by showing the flag and appropriate ceremonies and prayers, would commemorate adoption of the first ten amendments to the Constitution.

BIG LOAN SEEN BAIT FOR REDS

Possible Five Billion Program Cited As Truman Point

Washington, July 21 (AP)—A possible $5,300,000,000 financial aid program for Russia was counted up in Congress today as one of President Truman's most potent talking points for Soviet co-operation on international problems under discussion at the Big-Three meeting.

The President is reported to have let it become known before he left here for the Potsdam meeting with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin he intends to see that the United States gets something in return for financial help it extends.

With $1,000,000,000 in lend-lease already earmarked for the Russians, Congress added another potential $4,000,000,000 to the pot this week by passage of the Bretton Woods monetary legislation and by agreeing to increase the export-import bank's lending authority by $2,800,000,000.

Billion For Russia?

Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator, reportedly told senators that $1,000,000,000 of the latter amount will be used for a direct loan to Russia. The Soviets would be expected to spend it in this country for machinery and goods to rebuild their war-damaged industries.

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) told a reporter it is the general understanding that Russia will draw $300,000,000 or more a year for three years from the $8,800,000,000 currency stabilization fund to be set up under the Bretton Woods agreements.

Taft added that while this was intended to stabilize currencies, he thought the Russians might be permitted to use the money for some other purposes.

Total Put At Two Billion

He estimated that when the $9,100,000,000 international bank is established, Russia reasonably could be expected to obtain—over the course of several years—loans for reconstruction and development totaling about $2,000,000,000.

Both the stabilization and bank loans will be made under international auspices, but the Russians know as well as anyone else that the United States will make the largest individual contribution to each fund.

The $2,000,000,000 immediately available to the Russians, plus the amounts they will get later, represents a much smaller total than the Soviets originally asked.

Reports were that they sought a $10,000,000,000 loan here originally, and trimmed that request later to $6,000,000,000. The Russian aid program, however, at least matches if it does not exceed that for Great Britain.

them a resolution giving raises of from $500 to $1,500 annually to a group of miscellaneous house employes who failed to receive increases several months ago when the House voted each of its members $2,500 expense funds.

Sirloin Steak

Presumably as a farewell gesture, the House restaurant featured on its closing menu that rare item known as sirloin steak, with plenty to go around at 85 cents per order, including the French-fries.

House members were alone in their exodus from Washington, the senators being detained probably for several more weeks by the necessity of acting on the United Nations charter.

Most House members left town more than a week ago. Some of them already are abroad and an estimated 100 more soon will head for foreign shores for investigations of one kind or another.

During the half-year of work just ended for the House, congress extended the draft law, continued the lend-lease program, boosted the national debt limit to $300,000,000,000, extended the reciprocal trade agreements act, wrote legislation implementing the Bretton Woods International Monetary agreements, continued the price control law, raised the pay of federal and postal employes, and appropriated in the neighborhood of $59,000,000,000.

House Starts Long Vacation After Listless Final Session

WASHINGTON, July 21—(AP) House members took off today for their longest vacation since 1938 after a listless final session in which they boosted the pay of a group of legislative employes and discussed the palatability of horse meat.

Barring emergencies which might recall them to work sooner, they won't return to business until October 8, the 11-weeks holiday being the most extended unbroken surcease from official work since the six-month vacation of 1938.

There was no fanfare or celebration as the adjournment bells rang the end of a six-months session with only about fifty members in their seats at the finish. Quitting time was 2:22 p. m. Eastern war time.

A few odds-and-ends of business were cleaned up hurriedly, among about $1,800,000,000 less than last year.

It declined to enact so-called "work or fight" legislation or to order the induction of women nurses for the army and the navy, and sidetracked until after the recess action on compulsory peacetime military training and broadening of the social security program.

WAVES RATED HIGH BY NAVY

Women Helping Keep The Fleet Geared To Defeat Japan

Washington, July 21 (AP)—WAVES are doing a large share of keeping the fleet geared to defeat Japan, the Navy said today.

As its women's reserve unit prepares to celebrate its third anniversary July 30, some officers of the regular Navy even express a hope—guardedly—that a small nucleus of their feminine contingent will be retained in peacetime.

For example, some say, the work done by WAVE medical specialists means that hospitalized naval personnel ashore get trained care while the Navy can send its best male medical corpsmen to sea with the ships.

On Highly Specialized Tasks

The almost 86,000 members of the WAVES have been utilized to help meet expansion requirements of the war. Hundreds of the Navy women are performing highly specialized tasks previously reserved for men.

Some naval shore establishments freely admit they could not have accomplished necessary wartime expansion without the WAVES.

Out at the naval research laboratories in nearby Virginia, in the photo science laboratory and in the bureau of ships scores of WAVES are working on scientific experiments, engineering and procurement problems, electronics and munitions—much of it very secret stuff.

One whose highly important work can be told is Lieut. (j.g.) Dorothy M. Molnar, of Dunnellon, Fla., who heads a laboratory group scientifically seeking antidotes for tropical deterioration of war materiél.

Thousands Train Navy Flyers

In naval aviation, thousands of WAVES help train Navy pilots, navigators, gunners. About 80 WAVE officers are qualified to be navigators in naval planes, which the Navy says is unique in the military service history of women.

WAVES are trained and assigned to almost every type of naval aviation shore job, from parachute rigging to radio-radar administration.

After three years the Navy seems willing to say it couldn't get along without its women's reserve, in wartime at least.

Raids On Shanghai Hit Jap Roots

By Morris J. Harris

Former chief of the Shanghai bureau of the Associated Press, who was repatriated from a prison camp there]

Washington, July 21 (AP)—General MacArthur's announcements that American air forces are beginning big-time attacks on Shanghai reveal that we are out to crack Japan's major invasion point of East Asia.

Shanghai is the outstanding port through which Tokyo has poured its war machine into China and adjacent areas and the place where Japan's outstanding property interests on continental Asia are located.

Heart Of China

In striking at Shanghai, American bombers and fighters are threatening the very roots of Japan's position in Asia, for Shanghai, to both Chinese and foreigners who have lived there, is the heart of China.

Before the Japanese invasion of China, Shanghai was the commercial and governmental center of that nation although Nanking was the capital. Most government offices were in Shanghai and commercially it was supreme throughout Asia.

American onslaughts on the great China city, now long under Japanese military control, not only will blast Japan's war machine from the area, but will deflate Japanese "face" in the eyes of the Chinese.

Morale Boost For China

This is an added weapon in the hands of the Allies against the Japanese. Its importance is difficult to exaggerate. With the Japanese position in Shanghai threatened, the common man of China will know firsthand that the day of defeat for Japan is near. His increased will to resist will further hurry that day.

At every point in the Shanghai area thus far mentioned as attacked by American raiders are located camps containing Allied civilian and service prisoners.

Flyers Told Of Camps

American pilots participating in these raids undoubtedly have been briefed on the location of the camps so they will not knowingly bomb Allied prisoners.

Woosung, Taohang, Tinghai, Kiangwan, Lunghwa, all in and about Shanghai, are the principal places of captivity for Americans still in central China. There are hundreds of them there. These areas now are being bombed daily from Okinawa and other near-by American bases, with the attacks destined to grow until the invading Jap releases his grip and slides into the sea toward his homeland.

OVER 50,000 IDLE IN NATION

Strikes In Detroit And Ohio Account For Bulk Of Total

Washington, July 21 (AP)—Workers in Detroit war plants and in two Ohio cities accounted for more than half of the nation's idle today as the number of striking employés in the country again topped 50,000.

Detroit's work stoppages, affecting 24,600 workers, involved production of tires and steel products, with a heavy total of lumberyard employés also out.

The Ohio disputes, which keep idle about 5,000 worokers, affected telephone and transportation services in Warren and aeronautical workers in Cincinnati.

4,500 Idle In Cincinnati

New stoppages included 4,500 Wright aeronautical workers at Cincinnati in protest against suspension of threte foremen; 4,000 employés of the Joseph E. Seagram and Sons distillery plants in Louisville, Ky.; Baltimore and Lawrenceburg, Ind., who announced they were "going fishing," while company and union officials negotiated a new contract, and 1,750 workers in the machining division of the International Harvester Company's Fort Wayne (Ind.) plant. No reason was given for the latter walkout.

Some 6,000 CIO-United Rubber Workers in Detroit, out since July 14, refused to return despite a plea from the War Department.

200 Lumber Yards Closed

Fourteen thousand lumber-yard workers, whose walkout forced closing of nearly 200 yards, also were urged to return because the lack of wooden crates for the armed forces was becoming critical.

Other continuing strikes in Detroit included Graham-Paige, 2,900 workers; American Metal Products, 500, and Midland Steel employé, 1,200.

In Warren, Ohio, drivers and maintenance men tied up bus lines of the city's transportation company. Some 160 telephone operators, maintenance men and office employés had been out since Monday.

The bus drivers struck in protest over overtime pay, while telephone operators struck over pay increases. Only emergency calls were being handled.

Cigar Makers Still Out

Other continuing disputes included 6,500 Tampa (Fla.) cigar-makers, protesting rollbacks in wages; 1,500 St. Louis (Mo.) packing-house workers, involving wage adjustments; miners' strikes involving 2,700 men in Kentucky, and 450 at Pittsburgh; newspaper printers in Bayonne, N.J., 18; Jersey City, N.J., 40; Birmingham, Ala., 130, and Fort Wayne, Ind., 60, and Electro-Metallurgical Company, Alloy, W.Va., 2,000.

Kansas City's milk delivery service, restored today after three days' absence, was expected to reach full stride Monday. All union demands in the dispute, which began over use of nonunion drivers, were withdrawn voluntarily pending full investigation and settlement.

Some 500 Shick Razor Company employés, at Stamford, Conn., remained away from work today in a dispute which a union leader said arose over use of certain workers for cutting lawns on estates of company officials.

U. S. Chamber Calls for Early Tax Reductions

Vote Is 2,695 to 4 for Cuts as Soon as War Allows; Labor Controls Urged

WASHINGTON, July 21 (AP).—The United States Chamber of Commerce declared firmly today for reduction of Federal taxes just as soon as the war permits.

"Continuance of our system of democracy and free enterprise," it said, "depends upon permitting taxpayers to retain sufficient income after taxes to reward incentive and risk-taking."

This was one of thirty-six policy proposals overwhelmingly approved in a mail ballot of the chamber's member organizations. The mail ballot took the place of the annual convention.

Other declarations included a demand for regulation of labor organizations. A repeated theme was that there is now too much Federal activity that should be left up to the states.

The tax reduction stand was approved on a vote of 2,695 to 4. It said:

"While it may not be feasible to make substantial reduction of taxes until the cessation of all hostilities, definite and early provision should be made for the expiration of the excess-profits tax at the end of the taxable year in which hostilities cease.

"Early in the transition period there should be reductions of the rates applicable to ordinary incomes of corporations and individuals."

Labor Stand

A vote of 2,658 to 42 indorsed the labor position, which read:

"Management and labor should work together on those things of common concern which fairly conserve their respective interests.

"Workers have the right to organize voluntarily and to bargain collectively.

"Inasmuch as employers are by law held accountable for unfair labor practices, similarily employees should be held accountable for such practices.

"Labor organizations should be subject to regulation that will prevent monopolistic practices injurious to the public.

"Closed-shop provisions in collective-bargaining union contracts . . . should not be sanctioned."

Excerpts from some of the other policy stands, with the vote on each, follow:

Agriculture (for, 2,632; against, 30): "If any governmental financial aid is given to producers in adjustment of agricultural production, it should be limited to that portion of the crop which is domestically consumed. Loans by government on crops should be made only at values substantially below the market range. There should be no further extension of arbitrary governmental authority over the freedom of action of producers, processors or distributors of basic agricultural products."

Housing Policy

Housing (for 2,639; against, 22): "There should be no further federal appropriations or participation in the financing of public subsidized or welfare housing."

Estate and inheritance taxes (for, 2,627; against, 64): "The effects of present rates are damaging socially and economically."

Federal metals stockpiling (for, 2,658; against, 15): "The policy must not be used for the purpose of stimulating or regulating industry or to control prices."

Foreign travel (for, 2,704; against, 2): "American business men should be reciprocally permitted to enter foreign countries for commercial reasons on a similar basis as is granted by the United States to the business men of other countries."

Government competition (for, 2,727; against, 20): "The government should refrain from entering any field of business which can successfully be conducted by private enterprise."

Co-operatives (for, 2,609; against, 61;): "No form of lawful enterprise should be favored by the government over any other form."

Lend-lease (for, 2,689; against, 15): "Lend-lease to the respective theaters of war should cease with the end of the respective wars."

Patents (for, 2,652; against, 22): "The patent system should be maintained without impairment."

Political contributions (for, 2,658; against, 25): "Federal statutes limiting or restricting contributions . . . should apply to primary elections as well as to general elections."

Post-war foreign trade (for, 2,557; against, 85): "The existence of excessive and unreasonable tariffs and all forms of discrimination . . . seriously obstruct wider production and distribution."

Public health (for, 2,653; against, 32): "Provision and maintenance of the public health is a local, county and/or state responsibility and should remain at this level."

Relief expenditures (for, 2,280; against, 28): "If economic conditions compel expenditures for unemployment relief in the post-war period, reliance should be primarily on state and local administration and financing."

St. Lawrence power and waterway project (for, 2,518; against, 105): "The Chamber's opposition to the creation of regional authorities applies to the St. Lawrence project."

State rights (for, 2,693; against, 19): "Numerous . . . examples of Federal invasion of state sovereignty result not only in retardation of normal state enterprise and development . . . but are a source of continually increasing and wasteful Federal expenditures."

Farm subsidies (for, 2,671; against, 17): "Payment of subsidies for the production and distribution of farm products should be ended as rapidly as possible."

Surplus war property (for, 2,656; against, 34): "Decision should be made at the earliest possible moment as to which plants and equipment, or other facilities and real estate and consumer goods, must be retained for essential military purposes. The remainder should be earmarked for orderly disposal to private industry."

Urban transportation (for, 2,660; against, 5): "Efficient public passenger transportation can best be attained through private operation under proper regulations."

Navy and ODT Accuse Army Of Swamping Rail Facilities

Senators Hear Return of Troops Was Stepped Up Without Sufficient Advance Notice —Mead Urges Co-operation.

Washington, July 21 (A. P.).—The Navy and the Office of Defense Transportation have protested that the Army stepped up the return of troops from Europe without advance notice, with consequent swamping of transportation facilities.

This was disclosed in the Senate today during a general exchange precipitated when Senator Lucas (D.-Ill.) took to task those he said had criticized the Army for bringing men back too fast. Lucas said the Senate war investigating committee had been holding closed hearings and had not given the Army a chance to make its side of the story public.

"I would rather have American boys in camps over here than in Europe," Lucas said.

Senator Mead (D.-N. Y.), chairman of the war investigating committee, interrupted to say that Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director of transportation, had advised that the Army "brought 100,000 more than they told him they would."

"The Secretary of the Navy also told us he was not informed and that he thought it was some of his business," Mead added.

Senator Kilgore (D.-W. Va.), a member of the Mead committee, put in that men could not be put into American camps if there was no rail transportation available from port cities.

"There would be the biggest howl in the world if you dumped 4,000 men on the streets of New York with no way to get home," he said.

Mead said it "would be much better if the Army, Navy and ODT got together" and added that he though they would. Lucas said troops are now arriving at the rate of 4,000 a day.

"The War Department advises me that this rate will soon be stepped up," he added.

ning their schedules well in advance, the War department is keeping them advised of its estimated monthly load as far ahead as March, 1946.

"They are noted immediately of any changes in the estimates. On individual troop movements the railroads receive at least 72 hours notice, and in most cases they are given five to 12 days notice."

The matter developed into quite a debate in the Senate.

Senator Lucas (D-Ill) said the Mead committee had not given the Army a chance to tell its side. He added, "I would rather have American boys in camps over here than in Europe."

Senator Kilgore (D-W.Va) remarked that "there would be the biggest howl in the world if you dumped 4,000 men on the streets of New York with no way to get home."

Senator Chandler (D-Ky) said all the talk about a ban on civilian rail travel just stimulates it.

Senator George (D-Ga) endorsed the idea of bringing soldiers home as quickly as possible and suggested there are seven former German ships which together could carry 35,000 men.

Lucas complained that the Army was being "put on the griddle," just because it was bringing men back faster than it had first contemplated.

ODT Says Army Brought Back G.I.s Without Advance Notice

WASHINGTON, July 21 — (AP) The Senate heard today that both the Navy and the Office of Defense Transportation are irked with the Army and complaining that the return of soldiers from Europe has been speeded up without advance notice.

Swamping of transportation facilities was alleged.

Chairman Mead (D-NY) of the Senate War Investigating committee said ODT Director J. M. Johnson had testified the Army "brought 100,000 more than they told him they would."

Mead also said Secretary of the Navy Forrestal "told us that he was not informed and that he thought it was some of his business."

Both ODT and the Navy declined to comment on the matter today.

At the War department it was recalled that the Army said yesterday:

"To assist the railroads in plan-

ORGANIZED GROUP TRAIN TRAVEL IS BANNED BY ODT

WASHINGTON, July 21 — (AP) The Office of Defense Transportation today banned organized group rail travel, such as "all expense tours" effective immediately.

It also prohibited the sale of railway tickets or space on trains to travel agencies. Agencies will not be permitted to reserve, purchase or acquire any rail tickets or space.

ODT defined organized group travel as passenger train travel by any two or more persons travelling together in a group "when such travel has been arranged by a travel agency or by any other person, who for compensation, has made arrangements in advance for obtaining by the persons in the group of meals, lodging, or recreation incident to such travel."

An ODT spokesman said the order would have no effect on travel by athletic teams, that it was only designed to curb travel by organized vacation groups.

The order, ODT said, "is designed to curtail civilian passenger train travel which is unrelated to the war effort, in order that passenger train equipment may be made available for troop movements with the least possible interference with travel on regularly scheduled passenger trains by men and women on furlough and by civilians engaged in essential travel."

serious damage to the present point or merit system of discharge and would prevent the prompt release of many men who have earned such release by long, arduous and dangerous service."

He said the War department recognized coal mining as "one of the most important industries in the country" but declared that "the coal industry is not unique."

Kennedy Buys $26,000,000 Chicago 'Merchandise Mart'

JUL 22 1945

Chicago, July 21 (AP)—Sale of the $26,000,000 Merchandise Mart, the world's second largest building, to Joseph P. Kennedy, former ambassador to Great Britain, for an undisclosed sum, was announced today by Hughston S. McBain, president of Marshall Field & Co.

Completed in 1930, the huge structure, housing 96 acres of floor space and 6½ miles of corridors, was erected by Field's to house its wholesale division. Space was also provided to house other wholesalers and manufacturers and the Mart became a great mid-Western marketing center.

More than 25,000 workers are employed in the building, which was the world's largest prior to construction of the Pentagon Building in Washington, D.C.

Reason Explained

In a statement announcing the sale, McBain explained that liquidation of Field's wholesale business between 1935 and 1937 resulted in a decrease of the company's occupancy in the Mart from over 1,000,000 square feet to less than one fifth that amount.

This change, McBain said, put the company into a real estate operation to a degree never anticipated.

"An important consideration in the sale," McBain said, "was that the purchaser would continue to operate it (the Mart) in the same pattern that served to make it a marketing center for the nation."

To Continue Policies

Kennedy, who participated in the final stages of negotiations, said he "expected to continue the principles and policies of management which have been so successful under Marshall Field & Co. ownership."

"It is my hope that in years to come our success in the Mart undertaking will be such as to make a real contribution to building a greater Chicago and Middle West," the former ambassador asserted, adding "the Mart already has become one of the world's greatest market centers."

Kennedy was represented in the negotiations by John J. Reynolds, a New York real estate broker.

Field's will continue to lease space in the building for its corporate offices and for Chicago sales offices of its manufacturing division, McBain said.

air staff and former commander of the 9th Air Force in the war against Germany, said the Hawaii Mars typified American leadership in another phase of warfare, the supplying of far-flung battlefronts.

This country's problem in this respect, he said, was greater than that of any other nation, with the necessity for massing men and material "at the far corners of the earth."

Rear Admiral Lawrence B. Richardson, assistant chief of the Navy's Bureau of Aeronautics, emphasized the big ship's post-war role and declared that "America has not lost perspective of the future even in the midst of the war."

Would Encourage Jap Revolt.

Evansville, Ind., July 21 (A. P.).—Representative Walter H. Judd (R.-Minn.) said today that he had outlined his personal views on the possible future of Japan to President Truman before the Chief Executive left for the Big Three meeting at Potsdam and had stressed the possibility of bringing about a revolution in that country.

The Congressman, who was in China ten years as a missionary and was a former student at the Imperial University in Japan, said that on the basis of his knowledge of the Japanese he believes that there are four courses open to the enemy:

Compromise or a patched up peace, a fight to the last man, a breakdown of the entire country so as to produce active insanity en masse or a revolution.

"A revolution is what we want," he said, "and to encourage it we have to define clearly and exactly what we intend to do with the Japs."

Nazi Prisoners Sent Back To Work in German Mines

WASHINGTON, July 21 — (AP) The Army said it will send 2,605 German prisoners of war back to Europe during the next six weeks to help in the coal mining there.

The prisoners, who are experienced in coal mining are being sent back in response to "urgent requests" from the European theater of operations, the Army said. The men will work in German mines and will retain their status as Allied prisoners of war, the War department added.

A department statement said that the Army "recognizes the serious political and social consequences that may result from a lack of fuel in Europe this winter and is doing everything within its power to relieve this condition."

The schedule for the German prisoners calls for the departure for 49 officer prisoners, 390 non-commissioned officers, and 2,166 privates by the end of August.

The department said that by mining the needed coal in Europe, the requirements for shipping and rail transportation to remove coal from this country would be reduced.

Patterson wrote Senator Thomas that passage of the resolution for release of miner-soldiers "would do

The New Mars Takes to Air; Flying Boat Is Biggest Plane

BALTIMORE, July 21 (AP).—The seventy-two-and-one-half-ton Hawaii Mars, world's largest flying boat or airplane in operation and first of twenty super-cargo carriers to aid in the war against Japan, took off today on her first public flight after elaborate launching ceremonies.

Mrs. Dewitt Clinton Ramsey, wife of Rear Admiral Ramsey, broke a bottle of champagne against the hull of the huge ship, which was dressed in Navy signal flags, spelling out her name in code. As the bottle struck a special steel plate inserted in the plane's gleaming surface, the "Old Lady"—the original Mars, built in 1941—dipped her wings in salute as she flew over the launching ceremonies.

The new ship has a wingspread of 200 feet and a wing area of 3,683 square feet. Her four engines of 2,000 horsepower each can fly her at speeds exceeding 225 miles an hour.

Will Have Peace-Time Role

High ranking flying officers of both the Army and Navy and Glen L. Martin, who built the Mars, hailed the completion of the sky giant, and its future role in spanning the great Pacific reaches.

Major General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, assistant chief of Army

Rear Admiral Ramsey, former chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics and now on duty in the Pacific, assisted Mr. Martin in driving the first rivet in the original Mars.

Attending the ceremonies were ninety-one officers and enlisted men, members of the first class to complete instruction in handling the huge flying boats.

After the Hawaii Mars slid into the water, Lieutenant Commander William E. Coney, skipper of the first Mars, flew her off on her

2 French Flyers Die In U.S. Crashes

Mount Clemens, Mich., July 21 (AP)—Two French flyers were killed and a third injured in mishaps involving three army fighter planes from Selfridge Field yesterday.

The body of one pilot, killed in a collision of two planes over Anchor Bay, 14 miles south of the field, was recovered shortly after the crash. The body of the second, who at first was believed to have bailed out, was removed from his sunken plane during the night.

The third plane crashed in flames near the field. The injured pilot was dragged from the plane and taken to the hospital at Selfridge Field.

The three pilots were members of the French trainee group at the field.

Kansans Launch Movement For Eisenhower Foundation

Abilene, Kan., July 21 (AP)—Proud Kansans from near and far today launched the Eisenhower Memorial Foundation movement, designed eventually to erect here one of the principal shrines of World War II, honoring General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower and American armed forces.

An integral part of the foundation's memorial will be the Eisenhower home, where General "Ike" and his five brothers grew to manhood, tilling the adjacent acre of ground for pin money in their youth.

The home still is occupied by Mrs. Ida Eisenhower, 83, the General's mother, and she will occupy it for the remainder of her life, when it goes by gift of the five living brothers to the foundation.

The state charter, for "the national foundation to honor Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and the United States armed forces," was filed today at Topeka, with its principal offices here.

Policy Of Foundation

The incorporators are Kansans widely known in public life in New York, Kansas City, Lawrence, Topeka and Abilene.

Policy of the foundation, as stated in the charter, is "to recognize suitably the military achievements of that great American, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the victorious armed forces in Europe; to confer honor on the living members and on the memory of the deceased members of the armed forces of the United States, particularly the men and women who served in World War II; to obtain a site, erect and maintain thereon in General Eisenhower's home town, Abilene, Kan., a war memorial to these ends; to aid worthy young persons in obtaining an education, with especial emphasis on the science of government as conceived and established by our fathers; to assist veterans of World War II, and to perform such acts incidental to the above as the board of trustees of the foundation shall elect."

Movement Started In New York

The movement was started at a conference of Abilene and New York citizens recently in New York, where it was proposed that a substantial fund be raised for these purposes.

Filing of the charter followed by just one month the General's victorious homecoming in June, one of the greatest spontaneous celebrations ever seen in rural Kansas.

The sponsors reported that General Eisenhower had promised to give the foundation all his war souvenirs for a museum here, and others will be accepted.

Plans are for a war memorial, museum, meeting place for veterans and a small auditorium. The Eisenhower home will be accepted as it stands, including the furniture used by the family for more than 50 years.

Complete organization of the foundation and the plan for raising funds will be announced later.

Names Of Incorporators

The incorporators include Harold V. Bozell, manager of the General Telephone Company; Earl R. Gafford, of the Chase National Bank; Earl C. Sams, president of the J. C. Penney Company; Allen J. McNeal, of Price-McNeal, investment bankers; Brook Pemberton, theatrical producer; J. E. Sawhill, of New York University; R. J. Hamilton, secretary of American Radiator and Standard Sanitary Corporation; Carl Hovgard, president of the Research Institute of America; George T. Bloom, manufacturer's agent, and Albert T. Reid, vice president of the American Artists' Professional League, all of New York.

Also, J. C. Nichols, president of J. C. Nichols Company, Kansas City; Frank A. Theis, president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce; Roy A. Roberts, managing editor of the Kansas City Star; John B. Gage, Mayor of Kansas City, and James M. Kemper, president of the Commerce Trust Company, Kansas City.

Pilot of Bumped Air Liner Says Bombers 'Made Passes' at Him

MIAMI, Fla., July 21 (AP).—Captain C. D. Davis, pilot of an Eastern Air Lines plane which collided with an Army bomber near Columbia, S. C., July 12, testified today that on several occasions Army bombers had "flown formation" with him. Once a pursuit plane "made three different passes at me dangerously close," he declared.

Lieutenant Jones declared he tried frantically to duck the nose of his plane to go in under the passenger liner, but failed. Immediately following the crash, he said, his plane went into a violent spin.

"I yelled to one of my gunners to jump, but didn't have time to inform the rear gunner."

The Army pilot said he opened the canopy over his head and was thrown clear. Two Army men were killed—Coporal Robert B. Clapt and Corporal Raleigh B. Allpaugh jr. In addition, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Williams, of Puerto Rico, who was flying with his mother on the E. A. L. plane, was killed.

FBI Arrests Ex-Soldier Convicted Of Sedition

New York, July 21 (AP)—Hugh Callan, 40-year-old former soldier and convicted seditionist, bragged in public that he was waiting at his Bronx apartment "for the FBI to come and get him—sc Federal agents obliged Callan by placing him under arrest.

E. E. Conroy, special agent in charge of the New York FBI office, announced the arrest today and said Callan would be returned to Georgia to resume serving a ten-year sentence imposed after he reportedly called President Franklin D. Roosevelt "a dirty politician" and said he would be "happy to fight against England" if Germany and the United States were allies.

NIGHT LEAD WAR CRIMES

BY ALEX SINGLETON

LONDON, JULY 21-(AP)-THE FOUR MAJOR ALLIED POWERS APPARENTLY HAVE AGREED, AT LEAST TENTATIVELY, TO HOLD A COLLECTIVE TRIAL OF MAJOR NAZI WAR CRIMINALS IN NUERNBERG, PAGEANT PLACE OF AGGRESSION IN HITLER'S YEARS OF POWER.

INTERNATIONALLY RECOGNIZED LEGAL AUTHORITIES HAVE FLOWN TO THE ANCIENT AND PICTURESQUE CATHEDRAL CITY IN BAVARIA, 124 MILES FROM BERLIN, TO EXAMINE THE COURTROOM AND OTHER FACILITIES WHICH WILL BE ESSENTIAL FOR A TRIAL UNPARALLELED IN HISTORY.

THE AMERICAN DELEGATION WAS LED BY SUPREME COURT JUSTICE ROBERT H.JACKSON, CHIEF UNITED STATES PROSECUTOR. BRITISH AND FRENCH OFFICIALS ACCOMPANIED THE INSPECTION PARTY. RUSSIA'S WAR CRIMES REPRESENTATIVES REMAINED IN LONDON ON THE GROUND THAT CIRCUMSTANCES HAD ARISEN MAKING THE TRIP IMPOSSIBLE.

THE GROUP WILL RETURN TO LONDON TO RESUME PLANS FOR THE TRIAL ITSELF, BEFORE WHICH SUCH NAZI LEADERS AS HERMANN GOERING, RUDOLF HESS AND JOACHIM RIBBENTROP WILL BE HAILED. THE PLANS, ACCORDING TO RESPONSIBLE AMERICAN SOURCES, ARE NEARING COMPLETION.

THE EXACT LOCATION OF THE COURT HAS NOT BEEN DIVULGED. NUERNBERG, HOWEVER, IS THE SITE OF EUROPE'S BIGGEST STADIUM. WITH INDICATIONS THAT THE NUMBER OF DEFENDANTS TO BE TRIED SIMULTANEOUSLY WILL RANGE FROM 35 TO 300, THE POSSIBILITY THAT IT MAY BE HELD IN THE STADIUM ITSELF CANNOT BE ELIMINATED.

THE TRIAL OBVIOUSLY WILL REQUIRE A HUGE NUMBER OF OFFICIALS, GUARDS AND WITNESSES. FACILITIES FOR PRESS CORRESPONDENTS PROMISES TO BE A MAJOR PROBLEM IN ITSELF, WITH THE PROBABILITY THAT THERE WILL BE REQUESTS FOR WELL OVER 1,000 PRESS SEATS FROM NEWSPAPERS AND AGENCIES ALL OVER THE WORLD. JUSTICE JACKSON HAS GONE ON RECORD IN FAVOR OF FULL COVERAGE TO PROVIDE A HISTORICAL DOCUMENT ON THE EVILS OF AGRESSION.

NUERNBERG WAS THE TARGET OF NUMEROUS AERIAL ATTACKS AIMED AT RAIL YARDS SURROUNDING THE STADIUM WHERE THE ANNUAL NAZI PARTY CONGRESS MET. THE STADIUM WAS HIT BUT APPARENTLY WAS NOT BADLY DAMAGED, FOR PLANS HAVE BEEN MADE TO HOLD THE AMERICAN MILITARY "OLYMPICS" THERE THE MIDDLE OF AUGUST.

LONDON, JULY 21-(AP)-TENSION APPEARED TO BE RISING TODAY BETWEEN TWO STATES, OF THE SOCALLED "SOVIET BLOC" IN EUROPE -- POLAND AND CZECHOSLOVAKIA -- OVER THE DISPUTED TESCHEN (CIESZYN OR TESIN) INDUSTRIAL AREA ALONG THEIR COMMON FRONTIER.

SPOKESMEN FOR THEIR WARSAW AND PRAGUE GOVERNMENTS -- BOTH TIED CLOSELY TO MOSCOW BY LONG-TERM TREATIES AND BOTH APPARENTLY WITH EYES ON THE POTSDAM BIG THREE MEETING -- VOICED CONFLICTING CLAIMS CONCERNING THE COAL-RICH LITTLE DISTRICT DIVIDED BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES AFTER THE FIRST WORLD WAR.

THE WARSAW RADIO QUOTED PREMIER EDWARD OSOBKA-MORAWSKI AS DECLARING AT A PLENARY SESSION OF THE NEW POLISH NATIONAL COUNCIL IN WARSAW THAT ALL 350 SQUARE MILES OF THE TESCHEN AREA SHOULD BE POLISH, ON THE "JUST" BASIS OF SELF-DETERMINATION OF POPULATION.

BUT DR. HUBERT RIPKA, CZECH MINISTER OF TRADE, WAS QUOTED IN AN INTERVIEW WITH THE LONDON SUNDAY OBSERVER AS SAYING CZECHOSLOVAKIA WOULD REFUSE TO CEDE TO POLAND ANY OF THE TESCHEN TERRITORY SHE HOLDS, "AND IF THE ALLIES DECIDE OTHERWISE THEY'LL HAVE TO SEND THEIR TROOPS TO TESCHEN PROVINCE."

IN THE ALLIED-SUPERVISED COMPROMISE SETTLEMENT AFTER THE FIRST WORLD WAR, POLAND GOT A SMALLER PART OF THE DISTRICT BUT HIGH QUALITY BITUMINOUS MINES. CZECHOSLOVAKIA GOT LARGER FIELDS OF LIGNITE OR "BROWN COAL" DEPOSITS TO FEED HER IMPORTANT INDUSTRIAL CITY OF MORAVSKA OSTRAVA. BUT AFTER THE MUNICH PARTITION OF CZECHOSLOVAKIA IN 1938, POLISH TROOPS MARCHED INTO THE CZECH PART OF THE BORDER DISTRICT.

DR. RIPKA TOLD THE SUNDAY EXPRESS THAT PRAGUE WILL INSIST ON THE PRE-MUNICH BOUNDARY AND HAS SO INFORMED BOTH LONDON AND MOSCOW. HE SAID THE CZECHS DISPUTE THE WARSAW CLAIM THAT POLES FORM A MAJORITY OF THE DISTRICT'S POPULATION. BUT EVEN IF THE POLISH CLAIM WERE TRUE, HE SAID, THE TESCHEN DISTRICT IS SO IMPORTANT ECONOMICALLY TO CZECHOSLOVAKIA THAT SHE COULD NOT AGREE TO SETTLEMENT ON AN ETHNOGRAPHICAL BASIS.

LONDON, JULY 21- (AP) -- TENSION APPEARED TO BE RISING TODAY BETWEEN TWO STATES OF THE SOCALLED "SOVIET BLOC" IN EUROPE -- POLAND AND CZECHOSLOVAKIA -- OVER THE DISPUTED TESCHEN (CIESZYN OR TESIN) INDUSTRIAL AREA ALONG THEIR COMMON FRONTIER.

SPOKESMEN FOR THE WARSAW AND PRAGUE GOVERNMENTS -- BOTH TIED CLOSELY TO MOSCOW BY LONG-TERM TREATIES AND BOTH APPARENTLY WITH EYES ON THE POTSDAM BIG THREE MEETING -- VOICED CONFLICTING CLAIMS CONCERNING THE COAL-RICH LITTLE DISTRICT THAT WAS DIVIDED BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES AFTER THE FIRST WORLD WAR.

THE WARSAW RADIO. QUOTED PREMIER OSUBKA-MORAWSKI AS DECLARING AT A PLENARY SESSION OF THE NEW POLISH NATIONAL COUNCIL IN WARSAW THAT ALL 850 SQUARE MILES OF THETESCHEN AREA SHOULD BE POLISH, ON THE "JUST" BASIS OF SELF-DETERMINATION OF POPULATION.

BUT DR. HUBERT RIPKA, CZECHOSLOVAK MINISTER OF TRADE, WAS QUOTED IN AN INTERVIEW WITH LONDON SUNDAY OBSERVER AS SAYING CZECHOSLOVAKIA WOULD REFUSE TO CEDE ANY OF THE TESCHEN TERRITORY SHE HOLDS TO POLAND. " AND IF THE ALLIES DECIDE OTHERWISE THEY'LL HAVE TO SEND THEIR TROOPS TO TESCHEN PROVINCE."

IN THE ALLIED-SUPERVISED COMPROMISE SETTLEMENT AFTER THE WAR FIRST WORLD WAR, POLAND GOT A SMALLER PART OF THE DISTRICT BUT HIGH QUALITY BITUMINOUS MINES. CZECHOSLOVAKIA GOT LARGER FIELDS OF LIGNITE OR "BROWN COAL" DEPOSITS TO FEED HER IMPORTANT INDUSTRIAL CITY OF MORAVSKA OSTRAVA. BUT AFTER THE MUNICH PARTITION OF 1938 CZECHOSLOVAKIA IN 1939, POLISH TROOPS MARCHED INTO THE CZECH PART OF THE BORDER DISTRICT.

JUL 22 1945

DR. RIPKA TOLD THE SUNDAY EXPRESS THAT PRAGUE WILL INSIST BOUNDARY AND HAS SO INFORMED BOTH LONDON AND MOSCOW ON THE PRE-MUNICH [illegible] HE SAID THAT THE CZECHS DISPUTE THE WARSAW CLAIM THAT POLES FORM A MAJORITY OF THE DISTRICT'S POPULATION. BUT EVEN IF THE POLISH CLAIM WERE TRUE, HE SAID, THE DISTRICT IS SO IMPORTANT ECONOMICALLY TO

BY CHARLES S.FOLTZ

MADRID, JULY 21-(AP)-SELDOM EVEN UNDER THE REGIME OF GENERALISSIMO FRANCISCO FRANCO HAS SPAIN SEEN A MORE DICTATED "CRISIS" THAN THE ONE FRANCO MANAGED WITH LAST NIGHT'S CHANGES IN HIS CABINET.

UNTIL YESTERDAY THE OUTGOING CABINET MINISTERS THEMSELVES WERE DEPENDENT UPON RUMORS FOR INFORMATION AS TO THEIR STATUS.

THEN EACH OF THEM RECEIVED A SIMILAR LETTER FROM FRANCO THANKING HIM FOR SERVICES RENDERED AND SAYING THAT FOR OBVIOUS REASONS HE "FOUND IT NECESSARY TO DO WITHOUT THEIR SERVICES AT PRESENT."

JUL 21 1945

TODAY WHEN THE NEW CABINET LIST WAS PUBLICLY ANNOUNCED THE GENERAL COMMENT THROUGHOUT SPAIN WAS A SHRUG OF THE SHOULDERS AND A MURMURED "SON LOS MISMOS."--"THEY ARE THE SAME."

FRANCO ADMINISTERED THE OATH OF OFFICE TO THE NEW CABINET TODAY AND THE FALANGIST NEWSPAPER ARRIBA DECLARED EDITORIALLY THAT THE GOVERNMENT WOULD CONTINUE THE "FALANGIST IDEAL."

MEANWHILE MONARCHISTS OF ALL SHADES, FROM ARDENT TRADITIONALISTS TO THE MOST LIBERAL FOLLOWERS OF THE EXILED PRINCE JUAN, WHO WANT FREE ELECTIONS WITH THE PARTICIPATION OF ALL PARTIES UNDER THE MONARCHY, EXPRESSED BELIEF THAT THE NEW CABINET REPRESENTED "COLLABORATIONIST" GROUPS.

JUAN'S REACTION TO THE LONG-EXPECTED SHAKEUP, WHICH PLACED IN OFFICE FIVE MEN CONSIDERED MONARCHIST SYMPATHIZERS, WAS NOT PUBLISHED HERE.

THE FOREIGN RADIO, HOWEVER, INFORMED SPANIARDS THAT JUAN HAD NO INTENTION OF ACCEPTING A READY-MADE REGIME WHEREIN A THINLY-CAMOUFLAGED FALANGE CONTINUED TO OPERATE. THE RESULT WAS AN INCREASE IN JUAN'S POPULAR PRESTIGE, REPORTS INDICATED.

(ADVANCE)..SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH OF ENGLAND, JULY 21-(AP)-TWENTY YEARS AGO FRED PICKFORD OF THE BRITISH ROYAL NAVY BOUGHT A CLOCK BECAUSE HE DIDN'T KNOW MUCH ABOUT CLOCKS AND THOUGHT HE SHOULD.

TODAY IN A GLOOMY COUNTRY HOUSE WITH BARE FLOORS AND BLUEPRINT-LITTERED DESKS ARE THE RESULTS OF THAT PURCHASE -- RESULTS OF THE FIVE AND A HALF YEAR BATTLE WAGED BY PICKFORD AND OTHER ROYAL NAVY "SECRET WEAPON" MEN AGAINST GERMANY.

PICKFORD NOW IS SENIOR TECHNICAL OFFICER. FROM HIS CLOCK STUDIES HE HELPED DESIGN AND TURN OUT THOUSANDS OF TIME FIRING MECHANISMS AND HUNDREDS OF OTHER WEAPONS. MOST OF THEM STILL ARE SECRET AND WILL REMAIN SO UNTIL THE END OF THE WAR WITH JAPAN.

HE AND OTHER MEN DESIGNED MINES WHICH WERE USED TO BREACH THE EMS DORTMUND CANAL IN GERMANY. THEY PRODUCED DELAYED ACTION CHARGES WHICH BLEW THE LOCK GATES AT ST. NAZAIRE TWO DAYS AFTER THE 1942 RAID.

THEY MADE A MINE OUT OF A PETROL CAN WHICH GREEK OFFICERS USED TO BLOCK THE CORINTH CANAL AFTER THE BRITISH EVACUATION. THEY DESIGNED ACOUSTIC AND MAGNETIC MINES, BOOBY TRAPS AND CHARGES FOR HUMAN TORPEDOES AND MIDGET SUBMARINES.

IN ANOTHER COUNTRY HOUSE SEVERAL MILES AWAY SCIENTISTS TESTED AND CONTINUE TO TEST THEORIES THAT WILL ADD TO THE DISCOMFORT OF BRITAIN'S ENEMIES.

HEADED BY CAPT. F.H.M.VAUGHAN, TORPEDO AND MINING EXPERT, THE STAFF HAS BUILT A NON-MAGNETIC HUT OF WOOD AND BRASS HOUSING A CONTRAPTION CALLED "THE EGG," WHICH TESTS MAGNETIC MINES. ON IT THEY CAN PRODUCE THE MAGNETIC "SIGNATURE" OF ANY GIVEN SHIP AND DETERMINE WHAT CIRCUIT THE MINE NEEDS TO EXPLODE WHEN THE SHIP PASSES OVER IT.

THERE ARE MAGNETIC MINES DESIGNED FOR THE USE OF THE AIR FORCE AND OTHERS FOR SUBMARINES. CIRCUITS ARE CONSTANTLY ALTERED TO MAKE IT HARDER FOR THE ENEMY TO SWEEP THEM.

"WHEN THE WHOLE OF OUR STORY COMES TO BE TOLD," VAUGHAN SAID, "I THINK IT WILL PROVE THAT BRITISH SCIENTISTS AND TECHNICIANS ARE SECOND TO NONE, WITH THE GERMANS A LONG WAY BEHIND.

NIMITZ REVEALS NAGATO HIT AT YOKOSUKA DOCKS

Lighter Units of Halsey's Forces Still on Rampage, Sink Convoy.

B-29S BLAST UBE

Oil Refinery Plants on Honshu Showered with Demolition Bombs.

GUAM, Monday, July 23 — (AP) U.S. Third Fleet planes knocked out one of the two standard Japanese battleships in serviceable condition on Wednesday, and the fleet itself is roving today on unchallenged offensive sweeps through at least 550 miles of enemy home waters.

The battleship was the 32,720-ton Nagato, which was caught tied at her Yokosuka dock inside Tokyo bay. Most of her superstructure was blasted away by bombs of the carrier planes which also sank 12 Japanese vessels and damaged eight others at Yokosuka, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz disclosed in a communique.

His announcement also partly answered the mystery of the American fleet's whereabouts since that day:

Light units of the fleet—probably cruisers and destroyers—smashed a four-ship Japanese convoy the morning only five miles west of Nojima Cape, in the very mouth of Tokyo's outer bay, where a similar task squadron simultaneously was shelling the town of Omura on Chichi island, in the Bonins 550 miles south and slightly east of Tokyo.

That the fleet was thus able to separate into small units for varied missions in the heart of the enemy's seas was in itself significant of the lack of opposition.

Secrecy on Fleet Movements

Whereabouts of the fleet's heavy units and their British Pacific Fleet partners that participated in Tuesday and Wednesday blows at the Tokyo region still was wrapped in a security blackout, however. The Japanese themselves predicted the Allied battleships might strike again anywhere and at any moment.

The damaged enemy battleship Nagato was 26 years old but had been modernized. She is not known to have been damaged previously. She was one of two "regular" battleships the Japanese are known to have had in commission currently. (The name of the other was not disclosed).

The Japanese also are known to have two battleships which have had small flight decks built on them, so that they are hybrid carrier-battleships which the Americans do not rate as "the real thing."

Indications were that the Nagato, with her eight 16-inch guns and numerous anti-aircraft weapons, had been put out of action for some time.

The same strike by the 1,000-odd planes of Adm. William F. Halsey's Third Fleet sank a Japanese destroyer, a cable-layer vessel, three small cargo ships and seven torpedo boats, all in the once-impregnable confines of Yokosuka.

Also the stern was blown off a destroyer converted into an anti-aircraft ship, and heavy damage was done to another destroyer, three luggers and two small craft.

Superforts Raid Ube

Nimitz' announcement came shortly after a moderate force of 75 to 100 Superfortress planes before dawn today had hurled demolition bombs on a big synthetic oil plant at Ube, on Honshu.

Nimitz supplied a wealth of detail on the American and British fleet and carrier plane blows of the past week.

American carrier planes alone in their raid on Wednesday afternoon ranged from Yokosuka to the northern edge of Honshu's Kanto plain. They destroyed six locomotives, four hangars, one ammunition dump, an oil tank, an electric transformer and 30 grounded enemy planes.

They damaged railway cars and roundhouses, the railway yards at Mito, one locomotive, four electric cars, 12 aircraft hangars and military force 12 planes and 22 pilots and aircrewmen.

The anti-aircraft fire diminished, however, as the Americans continued to rain bombs on the big naval yards and its warships which for so long had played hide and seek with them.

British carrier planes, striking the same day, damaged 24 Japanese junks near Choshi, off the coast due east of Tokyo, damaged hangars and other aircraft and railway facilities north of Tokyo, and destroyed 13 and damaged 25 grounded enemy planes.

Two British planes were lost but their personnel were rescued.

Going still further back in the series of surface and air bombardments by the combined fleets, Nimitz announced that the American and British shelling of Hitachi, on Honshu, last Tuesday nights, inflicted severe damage on the Hitachi engineering works and arms and damaged a copper refinery.

Fleet Undamaged

None of the fleet sustained any damage in ahy of the series of blows. The light units that shot up Chichi Jima and smashed the convoy off Nojima today also completed their tasks without damage.

While the fleet still roamed through the enemy's front yard, naval Privateer planes on Saturday sank a small cargo ship off Tsushima island, and on Sunday destroyed a small cargo ship and six smaller vessels and left two others afire just south of the main island of Honshu.

To these ceaseless blows was added today's most-recent Superfortress assault, in which 450 tons of demolition bombs were dumped on the Ube coal liquefaction plant, one of Japan's leading producers of synthetic oil.

The Ube works bulk large in Japan's war economy now that the American blockade has all but severed the home islands from petroleum supplies elsewhere in the empire.

The comparatively small sized B-29 task force thundered in at medium altitude to make sure of its target, which was first struck in a fire raid July 2. Ube, on the inland sea, is on the south-west tip of Honshu and has a population of 200,000.

The Tokyo radio said that smaller forces of Superfortresses, led by 200 Mustang fighters, had flown over other areas of south-central Honshu and that the Mustangs started fires in the Osaka-Koba district.

U. S. WILL PRESS WARNING TO JAPS TO GIVE UP NOW

Broadcast to Nippon Reflects Truman Policy at Big Three Session.

PARLEY CONTINUES

Session Devoted to Peace Problems; No Break in Official Silence.

POTSDAM, July 22.—(AP) The U. S. warning to Japan calling for immediate surrender, broadcast from Washington by a naval officer, was viewed tonight as part of President Truman's strategy at Potsdam to secure American aims in the Far East.

The broadcast, intimating to Japanese leaders that they would not be able to deal with the United States alone unless they surrendered promptly, was known to have been made with the President's full knowledge.

It was said to fit into the pattern of the President's diplomacy at his conference with Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill. Problems of the peace were taken up today as the Big Three held a Sunday session.

Capt. E. M. Zacharias, a Japanese-speaking U. S. Navy officer broadcasting as the "official spokesman" of the government, told Japanese leaders by short wave radio Friday night to initiate unconditional surrender promptly and said "it may be assumed that it will be the United States which will enforce the formula and insure the peace."

Warning to Japan

Observers saw in this broadcast a thinly veiled warning that Russian participation in the war against Japan may be imminent, especially in the question "are the leaders of Japan so shortsighted that they cannot see the possible complication they may have to face if they fail to act and act promptly?"

The President's primary interest is in ending the war with Japan as quickly as possible.

The United States position apparently is that if the Japanese surrender soon this country can have a freer hand in dealing with the beaten enemy.

Britain is at war with Japan but Russia has not made a declaration.

Observers here are of the opinion that unless the Japanese act quickly, important developments may be forthcoming in a Russian announcement, the price of which may complicate peace settlements when eventually they are made.

Work on Peace Problems

The Big Three's Sunday session, their sixth meeting since the conference opened, was devoted to work on peace problems, the American delegation said.

The announcement indicated Mr. Truman intended to speed up the deliberations as much as possible. It also was in line with Churchill's desire to return to London for Thursday's announcement of British election results.

Mr. Truman is a regular churchgoer and dislikes working on Sunday. He went to the meeting with the other leaders after attending both Protestant and Catholic services this morning.

The President's efforts to remove some of the secrecy surrounding the sessions appeared to have attracted little support from Churchill and Stalin.

The British disclosed today that Churchill reviewed the American Second Armored division on the invitation of Gen. George C. Marshall yesterday.

Guests of Stalin at Dinner

Truman and Churchill and members of their delegations were guests of Stalin last night at a formal state dinner and today Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the American Air Forces, inspected Air forces in the Berlin area, including members of the 473rd Service Group.

Aside from these social notes and the fact that the Big Three were continuing to meet, the conference entered its second week with details of the deliberations still confined to a select group close to the three government leaders.

With Washington and London full of speculation, the only official report was that the Big Three were meeting daily and that much serious business had been accomplished.

The statement that the work of the conference was "going ahead," came only from American delegation representatives, as did the announcement of the Sunday session.

The only joint communique issued by the three leaders so far was the one announcing the first meeting last Tuesday.

President Truman's view has been that joint communiques, at least of a general nature, should be issued whenever progress warranted such a step, in order to keep the public informed.

Silent on Reports

There has been no comment from the temporary "White House" on reports published in Washington that Mr. Truman has with him a draft of the Japanese surrender terms favored by the U. S., State, War and Navy departments. The Army and Navy Journal described these terms yesterday as including disarmament and loss of territory outside of the home islands and control of Japanese economy by the United Nations.

The only terms officially acknowledged are unconditional surrender, although Mr. Truman made clear at a press conference back home that the Japanese people had more to fear from continuation of their present leadership than from defeat by the hands of the enemy.

Another Washington report saying that the Big Three would issue a statement in the next few days outlining the Japanese surrender terms and carrying a promise of freedom of religion and the right to choose their own form of government likewise met with official silence.

The assertion by Representative Rankin (D-Miss.) in the House that Secretary of War Stimson would resign as soon as Mr. Truman returned to Washington was another report upon which no comment was obtainable.

It has been known almost from the beginning of Mr. Truman's presidency that there would be virtually a complete cabinet turnover before the end of the year. Mr. Truman's choice of a man to succeed Stimson, when and if he does step out, is likely to be a civilian in view of his firm opposition to putting military men in posts customarily held by persons out of uniform.

At present Stimson is reported to be taking an important part in conference deliberations.

Surrender Line the Same

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP).—No fundamental change in what constitutes unconditional surrender for the Japanese was embodied in the latest of a series of American broadcasts to Japan, both the State Department and O. W. I. agreed today.

But there was no disavowal of the broadcast by Captain E. M. Zacharias, U. S. N., in which unconditional surrender was linked with the fundamental principles of the Atlantic Charter.

It was the first official link-up between capitulation and the charter.

While the State Department said that the text of the broadcast, given in the Japanese language, had not been submitted to it for clearance prior to transmission, O. W. I. in its broadcasts to the enemy works under broad policy directives laid down by top government officials.

The Office of War Information, in its press release on the broadcast, identified Captain Zacharias as an "official spokesman" for the government.

Stimulating conjecture about the Zacharias broadcast also was the procedure adopted by the O. W. I. in making public the text of the message to the enemy. Although Elmer Davis, O. W. I. director, insisted that there was nothing unusual about it, and that it had been made public in response to press requests, reporters could recall no previous general press release on the other eleven broadcasts that Captain Zacharias has made to Japan.

It was brought out by the O. W. I. that some of the previous broadcasts had been made available in response to specific requests for them.

In the broadcast Captain Zacharias told the Japanese, in their own language, that their leaders faced these alternatives:

"The virtual destruction of Japan followed by a dictated peace" or "unconditional surrender with its attendant benefits as laid down by the Atlantic Charter."

Among the Atlantic Charter principles are these:

Its adherents pledge themselves not to seek territorial aggrandizement, to sponsor no territorial changes unless approved by the affected peoples, to permit peoples to choose their own form of government, to work for the abandonment of the use of force by nations, and to permit access by both victor and vanquished to trade and necessary raw materials.

President Truman gave public voice at Potsdam to a part of that program when he said that the United States seeks no territorial gains out of the war.

However, some Senate leaders in the United States expressed the hope that Mr. Truman did not contemplate relinquishing any Pacific islands which might provide post-war defense outposts for this country.

Japanese Empire Trembles Under Unrelenting Attack

SAN FRANCISCO, July 22.—(AP) Ten days that shook Japan were rounded out tonight with the empire shuddering from further earthquakes made in the U.S.A.

Since July 13, as never before, Allied arms had carried the smell of doom to the nostrils of the Japanese people.

The smoke hung heavy over Japanese corpses and survivors, from the Kuriles to fast-slipping Borneo.

It eddied up from Japanese homeland east coast steel plants which had become prime targets for the big guns of the world's mightiest fleet. It billowed over the ashes of cities newly burned out by gigantic Superfort raids. It swirled among the blasted factories and railyards of dozens of smaller towns from Hokkaido to Indo-China.

It rose from the ruined superstructure of the great battleship Nagato and from the waterlogged wreckage of 19 other vessels sunk or damaged in the inner anchorages of the great Yokosuka naval yard.

Sees Early Victory

What the all-pervading smoke told the Japanese people could not be known, because the Japanese people did not speak. But in Chungking, China's soft-spoken T. V. Soong, fresh from personal conferences with Marshal Stalin, told Asia's nearest approach to a Democratic congress that Japan would be defeated by the end of this year or early in 1946.

By their propaganda the Japanese betrayed anxiety over the future. They harped on "disunity" which they claimed would appear at the Big Three conference at Berlin. The answer from President Truman was that unconditional surrender is still the price of peace for Japan, but that it does not mean the destruction or the enslavement of the Japanese people.

But in Japan the people do not have guns, and as they endured the murderous ten-day blasting from sea and air their leaders told them only:

"Japan's hand will not be forced. We do not put up resistance to the Allied attack because we are saving our strength to crush them at the right time, beyond their power to recover."

The "ten days" really began with a premonitory carrier-based air attack on the Tokyo area on July 10. It hit 15 towns around the burned-out capital. There was no aerial opposition.

The strike was made by fast carrier units of Adm. William F. Halsey's Third Fleet. Four days lated (July 13, U.S. time) another warning air attack was made on northern Honshu and Hokkaido. No aerial opposition.

The same day came the first heavy ship bombardment of the Japanese home islands in the present war, with three fast battleships and two heavy cruisers announced as being among the force Admiral Halsey was turning loose on the northern factory town of Kamaishi, 275 miles north of Tokyo.

Demolish Mill

A steel mill was demolished and docks were burned. Shipping and railway equipment was destroyed. There was no aerial opposition.

The battleships steamed up to Hokkaido on the 15th and cut loose on the industrial town of Muroran. Three more fast battleships were named by Admiral Halsey in an unprecedented challenge to the Japanese to come and get him if they dared.

The Navy reported "no defensive response from the enemy in the air or on the surface."

After the battlewagons lobbed more than 1,000 tons of shells at the town, the Nippon steel plant "was undergoing a series of very large explosions and fires," an iron works was demolished, a coal liquefaction plant and gasoline storage tanks were on fire, and a chemical plant was heavily hit.

There was a seeming lull on the 16th. It was the one before the storm. On the 17th, Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced that a carrier task force of the British Pacific fleet had combined with Halsey's 3rd fleet, under the brush-browed American's command, to launch "air attacks in great strength against targets in the Tokyo region."

The pre-invasion attack and blockade of Japan had begun, he announced.

Nimitz said the combined force standing unchallenged off the empire's east shores, almost within gun-sound of the emperor himself, was the most powerful striking force yet assembled in one unit in the Pacific.

The British force included the great battleship King George V, the carrier Formidable, two cruisers and five destroyers.

The combined force chose Hitachi, copper and war plant town 80 miles north of Tokyo, as its first target.

This was after 1,500 carrier planes had bombed and strafed the whole area down to Tokyo.

"Who's Insane"

On the 17th, a Tokyo radio spokesman said the attack—which was continuing—was "insane" and "spasmodic" and just a trick to spur a lagging American war effort. The next day there was held in Tokyo a rally under the auspices of the "Bomb America Society of Japan." Tokyo said the "packed" audience was "enthusiastic," and in this country Americans asked: "Who's insane?"

The great fleet's guns continued to pound the east coast through bad weather into the early hours of the 19th, and a force of cruisers and destroyers shelled Nojima Cape which guards the entrance to Tokyo Bay 55 miles south of the imperial palace.

Some time after dawn on the 19th the hundreds of carrier planes still buzzing over southern Honshu located and attacked "combatant units" of the once-powerful Japanese fleet in Tokyo Bay. Weather prevented details observation of results, but it seemed probably they were only destroyers with at most a cruiser or two.

On the 20th more than 600 B-29s hits industrial targets in four cities, the biggest Superfort raid yet.

Meanwhile on the 17th a heavy bombing attack had been made on Shanghai, on the east China coast, by more than 200 planes from Okinawa. They returned the next day, again concentrating on the constellation of airbases and the long docks the Japanese have built up at this great supply port for their war machine in China.

On Kyushu other Far East Air Force planes daily criss-crossed the vital southern island of the Japanese homeland to wreck rail transport and shoot the Emperor's shipping out of the water. Formosa, virtually by-passed bastion to the south, got its daily bombing. Planes hit Canton twice during the fateful ten days and attacked rail lines in Indo-China.

In China the Chinese army pressed ever closer to the vital air base of Kweilin, and actually crossed the border of Indo-China near Moncay. They freed a 50-mile strip of coast near Hongkong and said the way was open for American invasion.

Capture Oil Field

On Borneo, Australian troops captured their third major oil field at Sambodja, gaining wells that yield crude so pure that ships can use it directly without refining.

Planes hit the Kuriles, the Amamis, the Sakishimas, the Palaus far back in the Pacific, and almost-forgotten Truk, Rabaul and Kavieng.

But doom kept pounding loudest over the Nippon homeland, and 80 Mustang fighters based on Iwo Jima raided the very heart of Honshu on the 20th. The next day 94 more were back to rake the smoking ruins between Osaka and Nagoya. The powerful, long-ranged A-26 attack bomber was unleashed for the first time.

In all ten days there no attacks on big cities as such. Suburbs and smaller cities were the targets. The B-29s, at work for a year now, had left little of the big towns worth shooting at.

In all ten days there was no effective air or sea opposition.

Throughout the empire and Japanese-controlled territory since July 10 the enemy had seen 791 of his ships sunk or damaged and 596 of his dwindling stock of planes destroyed or damaged, almost all on the ground.

Today, Sunday, cruisers and destroyers of the Third Fleet smashed a four-ship convoy near the entrance to Tokyo Bay and a similar squadron shelled Chichi island in the Bonins 550 miles from Tokyo even as the B-29s hit again at a vital synthetic oil plant on Honshu.

The great battleships of the fleet prowled somewhere in the western Pacific under a security blackout.

U.S.S. IDAHO HIT JAPS AT OKINAWA

GUAM, Monday, July 23—(AP) The USS Idaho, one of the Navy's old "battlewagons," fired her 10,000th 14-inch shell of the war at Okinawa and kept up her record of participation in all Central and North Pacific invasions.

Pacific Fleet Headquarters credited the 26-year-old, modernized battleship with firing 1,500 tons of shells at Japanese positions on Okinawa, shooting down nine Japanese planes, destroying several torpedo or "suicide" boats and sinking a cargo ship attempting to flee from Naha harbor.

Five of the planes were shot down in three minutes and 42 seconds of wild, kamikaze attack.

The Idaho was at Hvalfjord, Iceland, when the war started with the Pearl Harbor attack. She joiner the Pacific fleet in January, 1942. After a year of patrol operations, she steamed north, in April, 1943, to support the Attu invasion.

She returned to the Central Pacific for action at Makin, Kwajalein, Kavieng on New Ireland, Saipan, Guam, Peleliu, Anguar, Iwo Jima and Okinawa. She had bombarded 13 islands while participating in eight operations.

109 Mustangs Raid Japan

GUAM, July 23 (Monday) (AP)—The 7th Fighter Command sent 109 Mustangs over central Japan from Iwo Jima yesterday, wrecking airfields, railroads and factories in the Osaka area.

Two Japanese planes were destroyed, seven locomotives knocked out and an eighth probably destroyed and three others damaged. Twenty railroad cars, three power plants, factories, aircraft hangars and other ground targets were ripped by machine-gun fire.

The planes also damaged a large freighter and tore into ten smaller vessels—four of which blew up and six caught fire.

A single Mustang was lost in the long-range strike, but its pilot was rescued. Five others were damaged by enemy anti-aircraft fire ranging from medium to intense.

NEW BORNEO LANDING MADE

Australians Thrust Inland From Head Of Balikpapan Bay

Manila, Monday, July 23 (AP)—Australian troops in another leap-frog operation on Borneo have landed at the headwaters of Balikpapan Bay and knifed inland without meeting Japanese opposition, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communiqué reported today.

The new shore-to-shore movement, designed to extend swiftly Australian and Dutch control over the eastern shores of the Dutch East Indies Island, carried the Australians into the deepest reaches of Balikpapan Bay, already open to Allied shipping.

The troops were put ashore at the village of Tempadeong, at the headwaters of the bay. Patrols then moved on southeast to the village of Penadjam without reporting contact any Japanese.

Planes Hit North Borneo

Meanwhile, the Royal Australian and 13th air forces sent planes up to north Borneo, where they attacked supply installations, motor transport and coastal craft along the shore.

A score of Australian Kittyhawks and Spitfires bombed and strafed the enemy base at Jesselton, in northern Borneo, toward which the Australians were driving from positions last reported about 30 miles away. Enemy concentrations were hit and a small freighter sunk.

The only ground operations reported in that section of Borneo, however, was patrol activity.

While the new thrust was being made deep in Balikpapan Bay, two landing craft support ships nosed into the Riko River, farther to the south, and poured rockets and shells into a Japanese barge hideout.

Jap Losses Rise 3,629

Another 3,629 enemy dead have been counted and 403 captured in the Philippines in the past week, General MacArthur announced.

This brought enemy casualties in the entire Philippines campaign to 432,764, including 11,171 captured.

American casualties during the week were twelve killed, two missing and 49 wounded, MacArthur reported.

During the week the 6th Infantry Division advanced 8 miles up Highway No. 4 in the mountains of northern Luzon and captured Banaue, while Philippine Army forces, pressing over the 6,000-foot-high Polis Pass, were within 4 miles of a junction with the American outfit.

The Philippine forces, in their drive from Iolcos on the west coast of Luzon, now have cleared three mountain passes each more than a mile high.

First Yanks Reach Philippines From German Fr; Cheer WACS

MANILA, July 22—(AP) The first American troops to reach the Philippines from the German front—more than 5,000 strong—disembarked along Manila's Dewey boulevard today under dark skies that opened wide to drench them after they "hit the beach."

The first European units which arrived here last week were from Italy. Arrivals today were mostly engineering units such as petroleum distribution, forestry, construction and repair battalions.

The men appeared to be in good spirits, but the universal refrain was: "It wouldn't be so bad if we could have had a little furlough at home on the way out here."

However, they griped good-humoredly, with wisecracking. Mostly, they were curious.

"Is there any truth to the widespread ship rumor that Russia has invaded Manchuria?"

"What about the liquor supply, and women?"

"Are there any amusements around here?"

"Do you know where they're going to send us?"

The only mass display of enthusiasm came when the first WACS drove along the boulevard. The men broke into wild cheering.

"No wonder we didn't see any WACS in Europe," said one G.I. "They must all be over here."

Spectators ashore saw a wide contrast of emotions during the day. A few hours earlier several hundred Yanks had boarded landing barges to start the voyage home after more than three years in the Pacific.

"They presented a much different spectacle," said Pfc. John Gee, of Philadelphia, on shore duty. "They were loaded with souvenirs and singing and laughing, and shouting 'I hope this is our last boat ride'."

The troops who arrived today had been more than 30 days at sea. Crowded aboard a 22,000-ton ship, they had been on the longest transport haul the U. S. Navy had ever made. Most of them had been in Europe from five to 12 months.

When one group was asked how it felt about switching from one front to another, Pfc. Edward Callahan, Jr., Newton Center, Mass., replied sharply:

"Are you kidding? We're not perennial gripers, but most of us certainly wanted to hit the good old U.S.A. on the way."

"I'm ready for that little rest home down in Alabama," added Cpl. George Brown, Maplesville, Ala.

Sgt. Doran Hill, North Providence, R. I., said many of the men thought they had a good chance of getting home until they knew they had passed the United States.

T-5 Orrin Anderson, Minneapolis, Minn., who received a leg wound at Hamburg, commented: "Its kind of a rough deal but it's good to stay with the same outfit."

Anderson's outfit is an engineer petroleum distribution battalion, proud of having put the first gasoline pipeline across the Rhine.

When one wisecracking group was asked "Is there anyone who will say he is glad to get over for a chance at the Japs?" a dozen husky voices joined in a Bronx cheer.

But Sgt. Stephen Kashur, South Meriden, Conn., spoke up:

"We would like to have gone home first, but there is a big job to do here; we can see that."

Typhoons Hamper Raids

Manila, Monday, July 23 (AP)—Typhoons lashing the far Pacific have stymied the Allied aerial offensive against Japan and her conquests for the second straight day, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

Large-scale operations of the Far Eastern Air Forces were canceled, but long-range search planes of the United States 7th Fleet and the 5th Air Force maintained the pressure Friday night and Saturday over Mako, Japanese naval base in the Pescadores west of Formosa.

Small craft plying the waters along the Chinese coast also were attacked. Thirty-six barges, luggers and junks were bombed and strafed in Amoy harbor, on China's southeast coast. Seven seagoing junks were hit off Hong Kong.

A Liberator engaged in a duel with a Japanese destroyer escort in Hatien harbor, in gulf of Siam, strafing it repeatedly despite heavy anti-aircraft fire.

North of Borneo, ten Mitchell bombers hit an aircraft warning outpost on Itu Aba.

Aleutians Force Bombs Kuriles

ELEVENTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, Aleutians, July 21 (Delayed) (AP)—Liberator bombers from the Aleutians smashed at the Matsuwa Island airfield in the central Kuriles today, starting three fires and dropping clusters of fragmentation bombs on installations. [The attack was announced in the July 22 Pacific Fleet Headquarters communiqué at Guam.]

Japanese planes were observed aground and one was probably h in attempting to take off. Only o interceptor got up to oppose t American force. Anti-aircraft f was meager and all our planes turned safely.

JAPS PLANNING WOOD PLANES

Radio Says Some Shipyards Will Be Converted For Job

San Francisco, July 22 (AP)—The Japanese Government has decided to convert some Nippon shipyards into plants for the manufacture of wooden aircraft to meet the need for "still more planes," Tokyo radio said today.

Premier Kantaro Suzuki and high Government officials toured aircraft factories to "encourage the workers," the broadcaster said.

A "wooden aircraft production department" has been established in the Japanese munitions ministry to advance the use of timber and plastics in plane production, said the broadcast monitored by the Federal Communications Commission.

Tell Of Bottlenecks

Various enemy broadcasts of late have told of bottlenecks in aircraft production, the search for substitutes for metal and for synthetic fuels, the transfer of factories to underground sites to avoid bombing, and official admission of neglect of duty and resentment among some workers.

Testifying inference to the effectiveness of the Allied blockade, Tokyo radio told of the Nipponese search for domestic substitutes, other than wood, for aircraft fabrication.

These included "soy bean plastics, milk plastics and synthetic metals" with another plastic made from "animal blood powder" about to make its debut.

General Makes Inspection

Suzuki was accompanied on his factory tour by Lieut. Gen. Saburo Endo, director of the aircraft ordnance bureau of the munitions ministry, who recently urged that plane production be given "absolute priority" in materials.

Other Japanese radio talks skirted the subject of peace and reflected concern about Nipponese morale under the impact of Allied air attacks and recent bombardments by warships.

"The Japanese are reasonable people who are amendable to fair arguments, but they are also a firm people who cannot be intimidated," said Domei News Agency.

Quotes Tokyo Newspaper

This broadcast, in English, followed yesterday's propaganda talk by a Japanese radio commentator who predicted that President Truman would modify the demand for Nippon's unconditional surrender in response to pressure from the American people.

Domei quoted the Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri Hochi's editorial saying that despite Allied shellings from the sea the "people should have the intelligence and mental fortification not to be excited and disturbed by such bombardments."

Commenting on the absence of Japanese air opposition to sea bombardments and air bombings, Yomiuri Hochi said:

"At present, because of our inferior status in quantity, we are enduring the enemy's attacks, evading futile exhaustion, and doing the best to preserve our fighting power."

LST SURVIVES BOMB, SUICIDE PLANE BLOW

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP)—In spite of simultaneous hits from a Japanese bomb and a suicide plane off Iwo Island, the LST 477 landed the Third Marine Tank Battalion, with its tanks, on Iwo's volcanic ash beach.

Despite severe damage the ship escaped with eight casualties. Six enlisted men and one officer were killed and one enlisted man wounded.

The ship was a veteran of six major Pacific campaigns and had escaped with many near misses from bombs, torpedoes and gunfire at the Aleutians, Gilberts, Marshalls, New Guinea and Marianas.

Her crew also had the experience of hearing by radio an official Navy announcement that the ship had been "sunk" by the Japanese at Okinawa. The announcement resulted from an erroneous numerical designation, which the Navy corrected within a few hours.

After completing her mission at Iwo, the LST 477 went back to the West Coast for repairs.

JAPAN WILL PERMIT PRISON INSPECTION

Agrees to Let Swiss Visit All Camps Where U. S. Nationals Are Held as War Captives

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 22—Japan

JUL 23 1945

has agreed, after three and a half years of war, to comply with the international law permitting neutral observers to visit prisoner-of-war camps.

The State Department disclosed the Japanese decision today in an announcement that Switzerland will take over representation of Japanese interests in this country.

Spain represented Japan here until April 4, 1945, when it decided to stop after receiving unsatisfactory replies from Tokyo to protests about treatment of Spaniards in the Philippines.

The announcement said the Japanese then asked the Swiss to take over. Since the Swiss also represent United States interests in Japan, they said they would agree on condition that Tokyo allowed their observers to visit "all camps where American nationals are held in Japan and areas now occupied by Japanese armed forces."

The Japanese War Ministry "agreed in principle." Then Switzerland asked for American approval of the Tokyo request for representation here, and Joseph C. Grew, acting Secretary of State, assented.

The proposal to allow Swiss officials to visit American prisoners of Japan has been one of constant negotiation. The Japanese have agreed in a few cases, but often they refused.

The State Department expressed the hope that treatment of Americans in Japanese hands will be improved by the change in Japanese policy.

When the Swiss have visited the camps, it said, "this Government will be able to obtain from the Swiss Government more complete reports of the conditions under which Americans are held by the Japanese."

The department pointed out that all camps where enemy nationals are held in this country are open to inspection by protecting powers.

Swiss assumption of Japanese interests here does not affect Hawaii, where Sweden has represented Japan throughout the war.

Fate of Lost B-29's Crews Unknown

Available War Department records show no report from the Japanese Government on the status of any of the hundreds of B-29 crewmen in planes which have fallen onto enemy territory, The Associated Press said.

Since the Twentieth Air Force began operations against the Japanese home islands with the first strike at Kyushu a year ago last June perhaps as many as 1,500 airmen have been aboard planes downed in combat over or near enemy targets.

Experience gained in European air fighting would indicate that out of such a total at least some, possibly many, would have reached the ground alive, coming down by parachute or riding a disabled plane into a crash landing.

Now, more than thirteen months after the first mission over Kyushu, there appears to be no formal report from the enemy government, through the readily available neutral and Red Cross channels, of any Superfortress crewman being a prisoner of war.

Japan is notoriously slow in reporting the capture of prisoners. In some instances, notably in the case of persons captured in the Japanese invasion of the Philippines, three years elapsed before Tokyo notified this Government of their status.

The possibility that some airmen who reached enemy ground alive may have been murdered should not be discounted. There is precedent, both in Germany and Japan.

Some of the Americans who bombed Tokyo in the first attack in April, 1942, and who fell into Japanese hands after being forced down in occupied China, were executed by Japanese authorities.

London Paper Reports 3 Peace Bids By Japs

London, July 22 (AP)—The Sunday Empire News said today that the Japanese have made three indirect—and unsuccessful—peace approaches through neutral channels, trying to learn whether the United States was prepared to offer surrender terms and, if so, what terms.

JUL 22 1945

"Approaches were made to representatives in Tokyo of Switzerland and of the International Red Cross as well as to Vatican delegates in China," the newspaper said.

"Nothing whatever has come from these approaches which were not carried further, and no direct overture has yet been made to Washington."

The story, signed by the paper's diplomatic correspondent, did not indicate the source of its information.

Churchill Expected In London Wednesday

London, July 22 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill and Clement Attlee, leaders, respectively of the Conservative and Labor parties, are expected to return Wednesday night from Potsdam to be on hand when results of the July 5 general election are announced.

All day Wednesday returns will be coming in, and the complexion of the new House of Commons should be known by late afternoon. A special service has been arranged to Churchill's residence to have him speedily informed on all returns.

It is believed that if his government gets a working majority, Churchill will quickly return to Potsdam, assuming the conference there still in session. If Churchill should be defeated, then some interruption of the conference's work would seem inevitable while political changes are made at home.

Royal Navy Still Seeking 3 Live Mines in the Clyde

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, July 22—A German submarine slipped into the Firth of Clyde three weeks before V-E Day and planted fifteen large magnetic mines, three of which have not been located despite a search since April 20, when the first of them exploded and sank a 200-ton fishing trawler.

Disclosing this today, the Admiralty said an area of more than 1,000 square miles had been dragged by Royal Navy minesweepers.

Both the Queen Mary and the Queen Elizabeth, loaded with American troops returning to the United States, have made at least two departures down the Clyde since the potential danger has existed. They are equipped with every anti-mine device.

After V-E Day, the Admiralty said, the commander of the U-boat 18, one of the first German submarines to surrender, told questioners he had penetrated the Clyde April 18 and laid fifteen mines. He gave the exact position where each had been placed.

Bretton Woods Delay Is Forecast In London

London, Monday, July 23 (AP)—The Financial News said today there have been "indications lately of a sober attitude" among British governmental officials toward the Bretton Woods plan for international financial stabilization, and forecast a delay in Britain's ratification of the plan.

The financial paper predicted "it may be urged" that Britain seek negotiations on such subjects as lend-lease, tariff barriers and competition for world markets before ratifying the monetary agreement.

Recalling assurances by Prime Minister Churchill that there would be no commitment to the plan by Britain without Commons first having an opportunity for full-dress debate, the paper predicted that action would be deferred until autumn.

Admiral King Studies Nazi Installations

London, July 22 (AP)—Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King today inspected the German ports of Bremen and Bremerhaven, studying Nazi naval installations in the American occupation zone, it was announced tonight.

Flying from Berlin, King toured bombed-out Bremen and surveyed German submarine ways. King returned to Berlin later in the day.

SILT BLOCKS SHIPS

LONDON, Monday, July 22—(AP) The Daily Mail said today that the movement of United States troops home had been upset by the silting of approaches to the port of Southhampton which had prevented the entry of giant ocean liners.

JUL 23 1945

Some ships were concentrated near Southampton for their return but had to be moved by train to northern English ports where the Queen Elizabeth, the Queen Mary and the Aquitania could dock, the newspaper said. It added that efforts to dredge the Southhampton channels so far had been unsuccessful.

London Disclaims Knowledge Of It

London, July 22 (AP)—A British Foreign Office spokesman said today that "we have no knowledge of an agreement" requiring Germany to supply $20,000,000,000 in reparations.

The spokesman made the statement when asked about a New York Herald Tribune story that that sum had been fixed by the late President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin at the Yalta conference.

Brig. Rodger To Washington

London, July 22 (AP)—Brig. Elliott Rodger, 37-year-old former chief of staff of the 2d Canadian Corps, has been assigned to a new post on the Canadian military staff in Washington, it was learned tonight. He will serve under Maj. Gen. H. F. G. Letson.

Dutch Prince Honors Eisenhower

London, July 22 (AP)—Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands, has awarded the Grand Cross of the Order of the Netherlands Lion to General Eisenhower and his chief of staff, Lieut. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith, the Dutch news agency Aneta said today.

TRIAL OF PETAIN WILL START TODAY IN PARIS COURT

Vichy Chief of State and Wife Lodged in Apartment Near Courtroom.

FIGHTS FOR LIFE

Jury of 24 from Assembly to Weigh Charges; Mornet Is Prosecutor.

PARIS, July 22—(AP) Marshal Petain was taken in a bullet-proof limousine to the Palace of Justice today and lodged in a special apartment beside the courtroom where he is to go on trial for his life tomorrow.

The 89-year-old former Vichy chief of state was joined later by his wife who arrived in a separate automobile from the grim fortress of Mont Rouge in the Paris outskirts, where she had been sharing his prison quarters.

Attendants said Petain's wife, who will attend the trial sessions, would stay with her husband in his tiny apartment despite lack of arrangements for her.

Petain wore civilian clothes when he arrived at the Palace of Justice. Five automobiles brought the Vichy chieftain, his two nurses, his personal priest and doctor and his remaining attendants. Before leaving Mont Rouge, the marshal strolled for 30 minutes in the fort's gardens.

It will be France's first trial of a head of government in 152 years—since King Louis XVI was convicted and guillotined in 1793. Louis XVI was charged with treating with the enemy. Petain is accused of having intelligence with the enemy, and conviction would carry the death penalty.

May Pierce Mystery

Frenchmen think the testimony may clear up some of the mystery of the fall of France in 1940, and of the succeeding strange regime at Vichy, which Petain headed as chief of state.

The trial will be a criminal hearing, with nearly 90 witnesses including some of the greatest modern Frenchmen. They include four former premiers, Leon Blum, Edouard Daladier, Edouard Herriot and Paul Reynaud, as well as Albert Lebrun, twice president of the republic.

A 24-man jury has been drawn from among members of the National Assembly, half from ranks of the resistance group and half from the parliamentary delegates.

Mornet Prosecutes

The prosecutor is Andre Mornet, most famous of France's trial lawyers who is remembered among other legal feats for convicting the woman spy, Mati Hari, during the World war. While Mornet swore allegiance to Petain's Vichy government, acting as head of the legal commission, he has said this was a "double play" which made it possible for him secretly to work against Petain.

Petain's defense is the same—that his action in signing the armistice made it possible for him secretly to work with the United States and Britain against Adolf Hitler.

The answer to these questions lie not in France alone. Evidence relating to them exists in the archives of the American State department, and the British Foreign office. The prosecution contends that other documents which destroy Petain's claim are, or were, in the chancelleries of the German, Italian and Spanish governments.

For the French people, the trial is loaded with dynamite.

The resistance groups, who suffered at the hands of Vichy police, are demanding Petain's head.

Opposing them are many people who express the belief, as Petain himself insists, that he "saved" France by asking for an armistice when French military power was shattered.

Prosecutor Mornet's opening statement, he indicated to correspondents, will contain outright charges that Petain "fomented a conspiracy against the republic before the war and that the success of this conspiracy depended on military defeat."

YANKS WILL MOVE OUT OF MARSEILLE TO PACIFIC WAR

PARIS, July 22—(AP) Most of the ships now carrying troops to the United States will be diverted next month to taking men from Marseille direct to the Pacific, communications zone headquarters, U. S. Army, said today. Redeployment via the United States in August will be cut 40 per cent from July figures.

Traffic out of the southern France port will be tripled during August in operations which conform with original plans for the troop shift to the Japanese war, it was said. Some ships also will be used to send troops from the United States' West Coast to the Pacific war areas.

Redeployment of troops from Europe to the United States will be stepped up again in September after most of the Marseille-Pacific transfer is completed. Approximately 35,000 soldiers are expected to move through Le Havre, principal port for America-bound soldiers during August.

To aid in the speed up in September the giant 50,000-ton German liner Europa is expected to sail about Sept. 1 for the United States with 5,000 Yanks aboard—two months ahead of schedule.

Lt. William Smith of Pittsburgh, Pa., U. S. Navy ship repair officer, said he had received orders from Washington to give top priority to reconversion of the 891-foot liner which stayed for four years at Kaiserlautern serving as a billet for German soldiers.

The vessel is being reconditioned by 1,200 German seahands now, but Smith said the number would be increased to 2,500 next week. Troops are expected to load at Bremerhaven with the vessel sailing direct to the United States.

The Air Transport Command said today that 43,277 soldier patients had been flown to the United States from Europe since the Army's aerial hospital planes started regular schedules in January. The program reached its peak during May when 6,984 wounded soldiers were flown home.

HUGE NAZI PLANE MAY FLY TO U. S.

PARIS, July 22—(AP) Germany's largest land plane, a four engine Junkers transport which Yank aviators have flown with 98 passengers and 11 crewmen aboard, soon may be seen in America.

Army men believe that only two such planes are flying, the British having the other one. The ship in possession of the U. S. Army was captured 20 miles south of Nurnberg. American technicians put it in shape by a general overhauling and replacing two engines.

Officials are considering an attempt to fly the plane non-stop from the Azores to Dayton, Ohio.

The plane has a gross weight of 97,600 pounds, a wing span of 138 feet, a length of 79 feet, and one fuselage and six wing tanks with a fuel capacity of 4,955 gallons.

Powered by four twin row radial engines of 1,750 horsepower each, it cruises economically at 185 miles per hour, has a top speed of 280 miles per hour, and a range of 3,- 800 miles. Its ceiling is 20,000 feet.

It carries a single 20 millimeter cannon in its nose, tail and top turrets and has two more in an off-center emplacement under its forward belly portion.

Built in 1943, the Germans first used the plane for transport and later for long range reconnaissance.

2,500 PLANES TO RULE REICH

U.S. Occupation Air Force Includes 106,000 Officers, Men

Paris, July 23 (AP)—An air force of 2,500 planes, backed by 106,000 officers and men, will police the skies over the American occupation zone in Germany and Austria.

Heavy and medium bomber units, together with fighter groups, will comprise the Occupation Air Force, with the United States 9th Air Force as the basic organization, to which will be added units from the 8th, 12th and 15th Air Forces.

The present personnel of the 9th Air Force exceeds 200,000 men, but more than half of these will be sent home or redeployed to the Pacific.

Bases Present Problem

The biggest problem facing the Occupation Air Force is the construction of bases, but they probably will be completed late this year.

The American occupation zone lacks the best-type airdromes, since the better German airfields were nearer the Britsh Isles and are in the British occupation zones.

Maj. Gen. Otto P. Weyland, commander of the 9th Air Force, has headquarters at the health resort of Bad-Kissingen, near Schweinfurt, and headquarters of the Occupation Air Force will be located there.

The major difference in the new setup will be the addition of heavy bombers, since the 9th Air Force already has medium bombers and fighters.

What OAF Will Comprise

The OAF will comprise ten fighter and fighter-bomber groups of three squadrons each, three medium and ten heavy-bomber groups of four squadrons each, one reconnaissance group, three night-fighter squadrons, five liaision squadrons, two transport groups and two troop-carrier groups.

There will be about 50 different supporting and auxiliary groups.

These additional units will include the 21st Weather Squadron, two fighter control squadrons for tactical traffic, one tactical air communications squadron, two heavy signal construction battalions, and four signal companies.

Bands, MP's Included

Also to be included is the 9th Air Force Service Command, including eight air-depot groups, 36 service groups, six depot air squadrons, eight depot supply squadrons, 36 air engineering squadrons, 36 material squadrons, 25 truck companies and various other units. There also will be four bands and fifteen military police companies.

The airfields will be located so that no point in the occupation zone will be more than thirty minutes' flight away.

Here is a list of the tactical units assigned to the OAF:

The 79th Thunderbolt Group of the 12th Air Force; 55th, 355th and 357th Mustang Groups, 92d, 94th, 96th, 100th, 305th, 306th and 384th Flying Fortress Groups from the 8th Air Force; 36th, 86th, 366th, 368th and 406th Thunderbolt and 354th Mustang Groups; the 344th, 394th and 397th Marauder Groups from the 9th Air Force; and the 2d, 97th and 99th Fortress Groups from the 15th Air Force.

Other units listed include two photographic squadrons and two tactical squadrons from the 10th Reconnaissance Group of the 9th Air Force and two target-towing and four ferrying squadrons.

ALLIES BATTLE BLACK MARKET

In Berlin, 3 Armies' MP's Will Ignore Zones In Task

Berlin, July 22 (AP)—American, British and Russian occupation officials agreed today to allow military police of all three armies to circulate freely through all zones of Berlin to halt a runaway black market.

All agreed stern measures were needed to wipe out illegal sales, especially of army issues of food, cigarettes and gasoline.

The military police of each army will have authority to arrest their own soldiers selling on the black market in the other powers' occupation zones. In addition, police of all three armies may pick up any civilians engaged in black-market transactions.

Plans For Governing Germany

Plans were going ahead, meantime, for setting up new machinery for governing Germany. A high British staff officer noted that provincial governments thus far are the highest level of German civilian administration.

The same officer declared problems of civilian-goods shortages could be met only by the interchange of surpluses in the different Allied zones and declared much progress had been made toward setting up the necessary machinery at informal meetings of Soviet Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, United States Lieut. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, and British Lieut. Gen. Sir Ronald Weeks.

Western-Zone Interchanges

He said the British zone of Germany now is supplying the American zone with coal and getting other supplies in return. He gave no instance of such an interchange between the Soviet and Western zones.

The officer, answering a question as to whether famine conditions might force the British and Americans to bring food into Germany, replied that the intention is to feed the Germans out of German supplies. He said it was too early to say if this could be achieved.

Stirrings of new political activity were evidenced by various anti-Nazi political groups.

Soviet Assurance Reported

Otto Meier, editor of the Social Democratic newspaper Das Volk, declared that Marshal Zhukov told anti-Nazi politicians in the Russian-occupied zone two weeks ago that Russia "has no wish to impose the Soviet system on the Reich."

Meier's statement was made to Allied correspondents at an open meeting of the Christian Democratic party which has joined with the Communist, Socialist and Social Democratic parties in a Soviet-sponsored "United Front."

The Christian Democrats, meantime, issued the first edition of their party newspaper, the Neue Zeit—the new era. It is the fifth newspaper to be licensed, censored and supplied with news by the Soviets in Berlin.

BAR BRITISH TROOPS FROM CAFES IN BERLIN

BERLIN, July 22—(AP) British Maj. Gen. L. O. Lyne tonight forbade British troops to buy food in German eating places in Berlin because of the severe shortage of civilian supplies.

He said also that all cafes and restaurants were out of bounds to British troops pending medical certification that such establishments were not sources for the current spread of typhoid and dysentery.

BUND LEADER A SUICIDE

Ludwig Kuehner, Once Active in Milwaukee, Hangs Himself

WITH THE UNITED STATES SEVENTH ARMY, in Germany, July 22 (AP)—Ludwig Kuehner, described as a former leader of the German-American Bund in Milwaukee, Wis., hanged himself in jail at Mosbach, near Heidelberg, shortly after he had been arrested last Wednesday, Eighty-fourth Infantry Division authorities said today.

The announcement said Kuehner had made a noose with his necktie and handkerchief, and hanged himself from the bars of his cell window.

Kuehner, who served in the German Army in World War I and took his family to Milwaukee in 1923, sent his children back to Germany in 1930 for schooling, returned with his wife one month after the start of the second World War and became a first lieutenant in the German Army. He was discharged early in 1945.

In a statement signed just before he ended his life, Kuehner said he had begun spreading Hitler doctrine in Milwaukee in 1927. He said he had been active in founding the German War Veterans Society there and that the organization became the nucleus of the Milwaukee Bund. Officers said he had also confessed activities as a confidence man and espionage agent for the German Consulate in Chicago.

Nazi Officials Shaken When Shown Horror Film

By GEORGE TUCKER

MONDORF, Luxembourg, July 22—(AP) As guests of the United States Army, high Nazi leaders interned here have seen movies of the Buchenwald horror camp and other records of their government's brutality. Sgt. Arthur Michaels, Army interpreter, told today how some of the Nazis reacted:

Dr. Hans Frank, Nazi administrator of Poland, crammed a handkerchief in his mouth and gagged.

Field Marshal Albert Kesselring was white as a sheet when the picture ended.

Joachim von Ribbentrop, the former Nazi foreign minister, bowed his head and walked straight from the showing to the dining room.

The Jew-baiter, Julius Streicher, sat on the edge of his chair, clasping and unclasping his hands.

Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering appeared not to be noticing the picture, but later commented, "that's the type of film we used to show our Russian prisoners."

The Nazi leaders were among the 52 survivors of the late new order who saw the picture at the Palace hotel, where they are interned.

"We show them an atrocity picture now and then," said Michaels.

"Frank was sitting in the fifth chair from the door when the picture ended, and could have been the fifth man out. Instead he crammed his handkerchief in his mouth and sat there with his hands covering his face."

Hear U. S. Officer

Preliminary to the showing, Col. J. C. Andrus, commanding officer, spoke briefly, telling the internees precisely why he wanted them to see it.

Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz, who succeeded Hitler, as Fuehrer, misinterpreted the remarks and thought Andrus meant he considered them all guilty. After the showing, he said:

"If this is American justice, why don't they shoot me now?"

Occasionally internees are permitted to give addresses to their fellow prisoners on subjects considered educational and worthwhile. Recently Dr. Robert Ley, Nazi labor leader, addressed his fellow internees on the reconstruction of Germany, suggesting it could best be brought about by private capital and private enterprise.

Ley Changed Views

This line was so foreign to Ley's former views that half the internees snickered, and former Secretary of State Franz Seldte heckled the speaker by shouting: "You've certainly changed your viewpoint."

Another lecturer was Lt. Col. Ernst John Von Freyand, a former aide to Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel. He spoke on the breeding of fish.

Freyand is the only internee thus far who has given serious trouble. He was disciplined by three days solitary confinement on reduced rations, and since then his conduct has been exemplary.

Former State Secretary of Finance Schwerin Von Krosigk spoke for 45 minutes on Shakespeare, and Dr. Joachim Riecke, Secretary of Agriculture in the Nazi regime, talked about "Weeds and the Means of Fighting Them."

Everyone agreed the best lecture to date was on finance, by Dr. Walther Funk, former president of the Reichsbank. Funk said the appearance of paper money was one of the most significant inventions of all time, and said that gold as a financial reserve was diminishing in value because of its uneven distribution among nations.

He said that in "Faust," Goethe credited Mephisto with the discovery of paper currency.

"Goethe understood its significance and he also knew it could bring misery as well as satisfaction," Funk said.

PRAVDA URGES BIG 3 WORK ON IN SECRET

Insists Uninterrupted, Intimate Collaboration Is Necessity—Denounces Hoover Appeal

MOSCOW, July 22 (AP)—The newspaper Pravda, in an article by its international observer, hammered strongly today at the theme that is noticeable in all Russian pronouncements on the Big Three conference—the absolute necessity of uninterrupted, intimate collaboration by the Allies as the only means of organizing peace and security.

Pravda charged that on the Allied side some men were deliberately or accidentally discrediting the conference by their speculations on its program. It said some others were deliberately attempting to undermine the work of the Big Three by suggesting that discussions were inevitable.

The writer of the article said "reactionaries" also were impeding Allied cooperation. In this connection he mentioned "groups of reactionary American politicians" who, he said, were trying to "revive" the Polish question.

Hoover, Green Criticized

This group, Pravda alleged, included former President Herbert Hoover and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. They were criticized as taking part in a recently published "crudely provocative memorandum denouncing the Polish Government of National Unity."

Mark Sullivan, political commentator for The New York Herald Tribune, was criticized on the ground that he had written suggesting that "the United States take advantage of its superior economic power in order to impose on the Allies terms favorable to American capitalists."

Of the Polish memorandum, Pravda said:

"By their provocative demands the authors slandered both the sovereign Polish people and all small nations, at the same time exposing themselves as enemies of peace and security and provocateurs for international complications. * * * The enemies of peace did not surrender their arms. This fact strongly underscores the necessity for unity and collaboration by the great powers in order to insure peace and security and to struggle successfully against the provocateurs of new wars."

"Peace Foes Distressed"

The very fact that the Big Three were conferring caused enemies of peace "not a little distress," Pravda said. "Those elements, having lost the hope of a breakdown in the meeting, became furiously and viciously active in trying to attack Big Three collaboration from various directions."

The repeatedly expressed Russian view of the necessity for collaboration was restated as follows:

"Experience in the war demonstrated that without further development of collaboration lasting peace is impossible. The organization of such a peace demands full liquidation of the remnants of Hitlerism and all Fascist influence and establishment of conditions to prevent the rebirth of German imperialism or aggression in any form.

"The clearer and more definite the common task, the stronger and closer will be the collaboration of the three big powers."

Details of Plea Cited

Former President Hoover was one of forty-four signers of an appeal to President Truman urging him to use the diplomatic and economic power of the United States at the Potsdam Conference in support of a five-point program to carry out the Yalta promise of "free, unfettered elections" in Poland.

The appeal, made public last Wednesday, warned that "a policy of one-sided appeasement of totalitarianism can lead only to disillusionment, frustration and grave peril to the American people," and said the Polish question had not yet been settled.

It charged that the new Polish Government consisted of seventeen holdovers of the Lublin regime and only three from the London group, none of whom was "a member of the Polish Government which was our ally throughout the war."

The late President Roosevelt was quoted in the appeal as describing the Yalta agreement on Poland as "in some respects a disappointing compromise on the Polish question."

"If Russia succeeds in imposing her will to this extent, despite the Yalta agreement," the plea declared, "she will be encouraged to apply the same imperialistic methods to all Central Europe and the Far East, with ultimate disaster to us all."

Moscow Newspaper Denounces Hoover

London, July 22 (AP)—Pravda today denounced as "deeply provocative" a recent appeal to President Truman by a group of Americans, including former President Hoover, urging the President to use his influence at Potsdam in support of the Yalta promise of "free and unfettered elections in Poland."

The article, broadcast by the Moscow radio, said the memorandum, which was made public Jul-

19, was signed by the "notoriou actionary Hoover."

The memorandum, whose signers also included the former Republican presidential nominee Alf M. Landon, said the Polish question had not yet been settled and asserted the new Allied-recognized Polish Government consisted of seventeen holdovers of the Soviet-sponsored Lublin regime and only three from the London exile regime. None of the latter, it said, was "a member of the Polish Government which was our ally during the war."

REVOLT FLARES IN ROME PRISON; FIRES QUELLED

Police Surround Regina Coeli Fortress After 1,000 Stage Riot.

ESCAPE CUT OFF

Armored Cars Block Exits; Several Prisoners Are Wounded in Uprising.

ROME, Monday, July 23—(AP) An estimated 1,000 rioting prisoners in the Regina Coeli prison held out early today behind thick stone walls of the central section as police fired rifles and pistols sporadically in an effort to bring the outbreak under control.

Armored cars blocked the exits and none of the prisoners was reported to have escaped.

Fires which the rioters started earlier died out last night.

At least three prisoners have been wounded in intermittent disturbances in progress at Rome's principal prison, an ancient structure on the banks of the Tiber, for more than 24 hours.

Rioters Hold Out

One report said a few more were hurt in the latest outbreaks last night but accurate information was unobtainable, as the rioters still were holding out well after midnight.

The reason for the uprising still was not clear, but it has been known generally that the prison was overcrowded and sanitary conditions were bad. Regina Coeli has been used by the present government, as it was by the fascists, to house both criminals and political prisoners.

Many Stay in Cells

Pietro Foresta, an assistant chief of Rome police, said about 1,000 of the 4,000 inmates took part in the revolt and that others stayed in their cells while firing went on around them.

The disturbances started Saturday night, when police and guards suppressed the mutiny temporarily by cowing the recalcitrant prisoners with tanks, armored cars and machine guns.

A large group of rioters then barricaded themselves in one part of the prison and others dispersed in the thick-walled corridors and on roof tops.

The trouble was said to have been started by political prisoners who had been locked up with ordinary petty criminals.

Three prisoners were reported wounded in the outbreak Saturday night, but it was not immediately ascertained whether further casualties were suffered tonight.

2,000 Rioting Prisoners Set Fire to Jail in Rome

Flee to Rooftops as Police Block Exits With Tanks

ROME, July 22 (AP).—More than 2,000 prisoners, including some being held on political charges, attempted to break out of Regina Coeli Prison tonight as rioting raged within the walls and flames shot from the roof. Armored cars and tanks blocked exits, and none of the prisoners was reported to have escaped.

Groups of rioters fled to the rooftops of the fortress-like prison and started several fires. Flames and smoke bellowed up near St. Peter's and were visible from all the hills of Rome.

NENNI BREAKS BAN ON CRITICIZING KING

MILAN, Italy, July 22 (AP)—Socialist Vice Premier Pietro Nenni told 22,000 Milanese in the great courtyard of Sforzese Castle today that a republic was a prerequisite for "democratic rebirth" in Italy and declared that the war had not been caused by "one man alone but by fascism in its entirety from the King down."

It remained to be seen whether his declaration, which received an ovation, would be considered by the Allied Commission in Rome as a violation of the truce on the monarchy that Signor Nenni, together with other Cabinet Ministers, were pledged to observe when they assumed office.

Signor Nenni spoke in Allied Military Government territory where political gatherings have been banned. His address was billed by Socialists as dealing with a Treasury bond campaign and "granaries of the people." He said only a few words on this topic, however.

The Socialist leader appealed to the Potsdam conference to scrap the Italian armistice terms to enable Italy to convene a constituent assembly and asserted, amid shouts of approval, that "we will crush every attempt to bar the way to its legality."

Signor Nenni said the Socialist aims were: (1) a republic, (2) agrarian reform to smash the landed cast and (3) socialization of the great northern industries "to prevent former Fascists who now call themselves anti-Fascists from retaining control."

FIFTH ARMY TAKES LAURELS IN TRACK

Captures 7 of 13 Finals for Mediterranean Area Title in Meet at Florence

MORAN

FLORENCE, Italy, July 22 (AP)—The Fifth Army's well-balanced track team, studded with former collegiate and scholastic stars, won the second annual Mediterranean theatre track and field championship today by collecting 90 points. The victors took seven events, cracked six meet records and placed in the six other finals.

The Peninsular Base Section squad surprised with three winners and finished second with 49 points. The defending North African Zone team, composed largely of French service men this year, was third with 46.

The Eighth Army scored 28, Allied Force Headquarters 25, Fifteenth Air Force 18 and the First District 16.

5,000 Pack Spaghetti Bowl

More than 5,000 American, British and French soldiers packed the Spaghetti Bowl to watch the events run off in blazing heat. The guest of honor was Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, commanding general of United States forces in the Mediterranean theatre, who addressed the athletes before the meet and presented medals to the victors at the close.

The most stirring events were the 100-meter sprint and the 400, 800 and 1,500-meter tests.

The century was captured by Pvt. Richard Ford of Detroit, former schoolboy flash running for P. B. S. He flashed across the tape in 0:10.9 to tie the meet mark set in a qualifying heat yesterday by Corp. John Myles of Jessup, Ga., representing the Fifth Army. Myles finished third in the final.

Score Double Victories

Ford also won the 200 meters in 0:23 to become one of two Americans to score double victories. The other was Pfc. Richard Dillard of Cleveland. The former Baldwin Wallace star, who raced for the Fifth Army, took the 110-meter high hurdles and the 200-meter low hurdles in meet record times.

He was clocked in 0:15 for the 110, shaving five-tenths of a second off the standard he set in qualifying yesterday, and raced the double century in 0:24.1 to clip seven-tenths of a second from the qualifying record.

The 1,500-meter race was won by First Lieut. Gerald T. (Jerry) Karver of Boyertown, Pa. The former Penn State star, running for Allied Force Headquarters, scored in 4:10 after a bitter duel with the Fifth Army's Pfc. Dave Williams of Gloucester City. The lead shifted between the two runners who once were team-mates on the Philadelphia Shanahan A. C. squad but Karver in a powerful stretch drive breasted the tape first and set a new meet record.

Sets 400-Meter Record

The 400-meter contest went to the Fifth's Pfc. Hugh Short, former Georgetown athlete from Hillside, N. J., who scored a thrilling victory in 0:51.1. That also set a new meet standard.

In the 800, the Fifth's Sgt. Thelno Knowles of Santa Monica, Calif., beat the Eighth's favored Sgt. Ernest Davies of Warwickshire, England, to take the event in 1:57, shaving one-tenth of a second from the mark set by Davies yesterday.

LEHMAN IN BELGRADE

ATHENS, July 22—(AP) Herbert H. Lehman flew to Belgrade today for an inspection of United Nation relief and rehabilitation facilities in Yugoslavia.

The UNNRA director had taken off yesterday but his plane was forced to return to Athens because of engine trouble. Several members of the Yugoslav government stayed at the Belgrade airport all day yesterday, expecting to receive him. They were not advised of the delay because of poor radio signals between Athens and Belgrade.

Lehman left today at 9:45 a.m., and word was received later that he had reached Belgrade at 1 p.m.

LEHMAN IN BELGRADE FOR YUGOSLAV SURVEY

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, July 22 (AP)—Herbert H. Lehman arrived by air from Athens today for a four-day inspection of United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation facilities and needs in Yugoslavia.

A crowded schedule called for conferences between the UNRRA director and Marshal Tito and meetings with American, British and Soviet diplomatic officials and several Yugoslav Government ministers.

A field trip will take him to devastated regions of Yugoslavia to see relief work and food distribution at first hand.

Mr. Lehman was greeted at the airport by Nikola Petrovitch, Minister of Commerce and Supplies, and Sava Kosanovitch, Information Minister, and other Yugoslav dignitaries, and by UNRRA officials.

His trip was delayed one day by engine trouble that developed yesterday as his plane was flying over the mountains of Greece, forcing the plane to turn back to Athens.

Several Yugoslav officials waited all day at the airport yesterday, unaware he had been delayed. A dinner had been arranged for him last night with Marshal Tito.

FRANCO MAY DELAY RETURN OF MONARCHY

MADRID, July 22—(AP) The Flangist national weekly, El Espanol, frequently a mouthpiece for the Franco regime, said editorially today "it is certain that monarchy should come to Spain only when the political panorama is fully cleared, and not before."

It was the first clear statement from an authorized source indicating Generalissimo Franco does not plan to rush the return of a monarch for which, he said in a speech Tuesday, Spain is being prepared.

Presumably Franco alone would be the judge of the moment when the political panorama is "clear."

SPANISH AUTHORITIES NAB NAZI FUGITI

SAN SEBASTAIN, July 22—(At least a score of fugitives liberated countries and prob more who crossed mountain t in the Pyrennes and swam the dassoa river now are in the hands of Spanish authorities.

Their identities and even the fact they are prisoners has not been made public but unofficially authorities in the Spanish border region said it was believed many might be among the minor war criminals.

Summer vacationists reported a dozen fugitives are held at Fuenterrabia including a German major and nine Frenchmen believed to have been aides of Joseph Darnand, who headed the Vichy militia. Several others are reported held at Pamplona while estimates of those interned in the Catalan frontier regions run from ten to several hundred.

Spaniards were unofficially reported aiding French vigilantes in trying to smash the Nazi underground railway escape routes through France to Spain.

LEBANON, July 22—(AP) Rev. Howard C. Champe, pastor of the First Congregational church here since Dec. 1, 1931, presented his resignation at the church service this morning, announcing that he had accepted a call to the Congregational church at Shelton. The resignation will become effective Sept. 30.

The Rev. Mr. Champe has previously served as pastor of the Hebron and Gilead Congregational churches from 1919 to 1923 and was in missionary work in Mexico from 1923 to 1930.

Jews Demand Free Access To Palestine

Jerusalem, July 22 (AP)—Jewish Communist leaders of the Association for Communist Education, meeting today at Tel Aviv, demanded the right of free immigration to Palestine for all the world's Jews and equal civil rights for those remaining in other countries.

Speakers declared co-operation of Jewish and Arab workers in Palestine would lead to independence for both peoples.

Chinese High Command Admits Japs Win Hold Between Amoy, Swatow.

CHUNGKING, July 22—(AP) Japanese troops, covering 103 miles in 22 days, have made a 45-mile breakthrough along China's "invasion coast" opposite Formosa in a drive apparently designed to build up a defense wall against any possible Allied landings, the Chinese high command acknowledged tonight.

While the enemy forces battled to link their pockets in the seaports of Amoy and Swatow in southeast China, battle-tough Chinese veterans tightened their siege arc around the Japanese-held airbase city of Kweilin, a communique revealed.

Striking southwestward toward Swatow, the Japanese advanced from a point six miles south of Yunsiao, mid-way between Amoy and Swatow, crossed the border from Fukien province into Kwangtung and captured Chaoan, 20 miles north of Swatow, the communique said.

Chaoan, a port on the Han river delta and the site of an airdrome, was, however, recaptured by the Chinese in bitter fighting and at Friday noon still was in the hands of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's troops.

The 45-mile Japanese advance from the Yunsiao area to Chaoan took several days and was made by troops who were landed on the coast south of island-bound Amoy June 30 and now are threatening to break through for a link with enemy forces holding the former treaty port of Swatow.

Chungking observers expressed belief it was possible that the Japanese were seeking to carve out a corridor to Swatow for the handful of enemy troops garrisoning Amoy, which might be abandoned, leaving all Fukien province in Chinese hands.

Some Chinese military commentators here also believed that the combined Amoy and Swatow garrisons then might withdraw 175 miles southwestward to Hong Kong and Canton.

The weeks-long battle for Kweilin, 360 miles southeast of Chungking, meanwhile blazed relentlessly as six Chinese columns converged on the city with its three important airfields abandoned by the U. S. 14th Air force last year.

While one column fought eight miles north of the Kwangsi province capital, a spearhead sweeping toward the city from the west advanced to a point nine and one-half miles away, headquarters said.

This spearhead had by-passed the Japanese stronghold of Paishou, 25 miles west of Kweilin, but another Chinese column was locked in severe street fighting within the walls of the old fortress town of Paishou.

Confirming front dispatches, the high command reported that a fourth column had recaptured Liangfeng, 15 miles south of Kweilin, while a fifth spearhead pressed along a secondary highway from Liuchow to Kweilin and reached a point 12 miles south of 31 miles southwest of Kweilin, an American communiqué said.

Other American fighter-bombers starfed Japanese positions near Suichwan in Kiangsi province. The Chinese reported they had repulsed the invaders 6 miles east of Suichwan and also had hurled back Japanese attacks 4 miles north of the Chinese-held town of Wawan on the Kan River 16 miles east of Suichwan.

Jap Casualties Heavy

The Japanese north of Wawan had bypassed the town by stabbing between it and Suichwan and heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy. Simultaneously, some Japanese troops south of Wawan were given fierce battle, the Chinese command said.

The high command indicated that the Japanese had launched fresh moves to protect the Changsha-Yoyang stretch of the vital north-south corridor across China from Hankow to Canton. It reported that the Japanese, based on Lliing, 40 miles southeast of Changsha, last Wednesday struck northward toward Liuyang, 32 miles east of Changsha.

The Chinese engaged the Japanese on the eastern flank of the Japanese corridor and fighting was continuing, Chungking reported.

Storage Areas Bombed

American fighter-bombers also winged from the Chinese interior to the Changsha area and bombed Japanese storage areas. Mitchell bombers lashed six Japanese convoys in the Hengyang area.

In other air operations, United States bombers and fighters attacked enemy shipping, destroying or damaging 50 enemy craft on the Kan, Yangtze and Siang rivers and seven Japanese river steamers on the North and Si (West) rivers. In French Indo-China, Lightnings hit shipping in the Haiphong area while locomotives also were strafed.

Burma into Thailand.

Fierce Gurkha fighters were engaging the Japanese and drove the invaders from a village 28 miles east, northeast of Pegu. The enemy withdrew from another village attacked by the Gurkhas, supported by fighter planes of the East Asia command.

Two hundred Japanese troops concentrated two miles northwest of Taungyi, 117 miles east of the central Burma road and rail hub at Meiktila were heavily shelled by British artillery

Isaacs Is Refused Re-Entry Into China

New Delhi, July 22 (AP)—Harold Isaacs, correspondent for Newsweek returning from home leave, was informed today by the Army that the Chinese Government had refused him re-entry into China.

Isaacs is the second United States correspondent barred from China recently. The first was Darrell Berrigan, Far Eastern correspondent of the New York Post.

Isaacs said he was being kept out of China apparently as a result of what he said was a Chungking policy designed to eliminate any correspondent whoever wrote anything deemed unfavorable to the regime of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. He said that while in the United States he wrote several "outspoken" articles on the China situation.

The Federal Parliament now is debating the bill which would enable a girl married to an overseas serviceman since start of the war to institute divorce proceedings in Australia without the necessity of traveling to the husband's homeland

Prime Minister Joseph B Chifley explained the measure would be a temporary wartime act similar to the British law to meet abnormal circumstances which in most cases made it impossible for a deserted wife to go to her husband's permanent home

"It will earn the gratitude of many women now prevented from obtaining a divorce to which they are morally if not legally entitled," Chifley said in a interview.

AUSTRALIA AIDED BY LEND-LEASE GOODS

CANBERRA, Australia, July 22.—(AP) United States lend-lease goods valued at more than a billion dollars were received by Australia up to the end of last April, it was officially disclosed here today.

Reciprocal Australian lend-lease goods and services to America between April 1942 and last March totaled about $800,000,000.

The official report showed that U. S. forces received $10,500,000 worth of Australian radar and signal equipment—one-fifth of the output of the commonwealth industry which before 1942 [illegible] in this technical [illegible] American carbon [illegible] and synthetic [illegible] lend-lease [illegible] Australia to [illegible] American forces, [illegible] tractors, [illegible] equipment [illegible] food products.

Early Allied Offensive For Singapore Forecast

Colombo, Ceylon, July 22 (AP)—The Times of Ceylon said today that a new Allied offensive "with Singapore as the great prize" was expected soon.

"Singapore is a great prize, not necessarily to use as a great naval base again, but for securing sea passage through the Malacca Strait which would greatly shorten the haul of supplies to our forces in the Pacific," the editorial said. "It is worth noting that Singapore is only 800 miles from where Australian troops are now operating in Borneo."

Destroyer Bataan in Service

ADELAIDE, Australia, July 22 (AP)—Navy Minister Norman Makin announced today the commissioning of the Australian-built destroyer Bataan. The boat was christened last year by Mrs. Douglas MacArthur, wife of the general, and was named in tribute to United States forces fighting in the southwest Pacific.

PACIFIC AREAS TO BE SHIFTED

Command Shuffling Expected To Enlarge British Sphere

Washington, July 22 (AP)—Early reshaping of Pacific war area commands is expected here to give the British a greatly enlarged sphere of operations in the Southwest Pacific.

Speculation is that it will include all of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's original assignment, made in 1942, as far east as Guadalcanal and north to—but not including—the Philippines.

Still Largely Jap-Held

This is an area of Dutch, British, Australian and Portuguese possessions or mandates still largely enemy-held, and thus is regarded by Allied authorities here as falling within an enlarged British area politically as well as strategically.

Strategic developments have indicated the reassignment ever since the reshuffling of American commands pointed the land, sea and air forces of General MacArthur and Admiral Chester W. Nimitz north toward the heart of the Japanese Empire. There is a strong likelihood that the shift is a main topic of joint staff confer-[illegible]es.

Troops now fighting under MacArthur's command in Borneo are British Commonwealth's forces. The assumption is that they would be switched to the command of the British leader, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten. MacArthur and Mountbatten met ten days ago for the announced proposal of coordinating their operations.

Delineations Remain To Be Seen

Whether there are to be more specific delineations of the MacArthur and Nimitz commands along area lines remains to be seen. The General has charge of all United States Army forces in the Pacific and the Admiral of all Navy forces. In addition Gen. Carl Spaatz has a command assignment of equal rank for the strategic air forces assaulting Japan.

These assignments were worked out by the joint chiefs of staff. When they were first announced some undercover criticism was expressed here among military and naval men who contended that it meant abandonment of the unity of command arrangement which had enabled Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to lead Allied armies to victory over Germany.

Working Efficiently

However, after several months of operation the triple-command system is reported even by its critics to be working efficiently The few relatively minor exceptions are concerned mostly with the ordering and movement of supplies in preparation for future attacks and with the management of bases.

Some bases have been placed under control of Nimitz, some under MacArthur and some under joint command. The joint-command system goes back to prewar methods of split rather than unified controls, and there is some talk that geographical lines may be drawn between the MacArthur and Nimitz forces in order to get away from this type of base management.

The problem is expected to become simpler when one of the land masses held by the enemy, such as the China coast or Japan, has been invaded and the Army has a specific sphere of operations.

PEACE PLAN CHALLENGED

Some Senators Question Use Of Troops Under Charter

Washington, July 22 (AP)—A handful of uncommitted senators today challenged supporters of the United Nations Charter to spell out in debate exactly how the United [illegible]tes will join in the future use [illegible] force to keep the peace.

Despite this indication of searching discussion, however, Administration forces were pointing toward ratification this week, if possible.

Senator Revercomb (R., W.Va.) told a reporter he intends to ask during Senate consideration of the 50-nation agreement this week for a definition of the terms upon which the President, acting through his agent on the proposed World Security Council, could order American troops into action against an aggressor.

Revercomb May Get Wish

"I should like to put the advocates of the Charter on record on that important question," the West Virginian said. "I am not suggesting that any reservations be offered now, because I don't believe it would do any good, but the world ought to know where we stand."

Democratic Leader Barkley, of Kentucky, indicated that Revercomb may get his wish. Barkley said that when the question is raised, he may undertake to outline the conditions under which troops could be used without prior approval of Congress.

Generally, Barkley and other Charter backers have contended that the President now has recognized authority to use the armed forces to protect American interests in what is akin to police work. All have said that this does not infringe on Congress' right to declare war.

Full Explanation Wanted

But Senator Shipstead (R., Minn.)—who, like Revercomb, hasn't said how he intends to vote on the Charter—made it plain he won't be satisfied by that kind of an explanation.

"When they say the President has authority to employ troops," he said, "they are talking about usage, not the Constitution. I hadn't heard that you could amend the Constitution merely by violating it."

Revercomb made it plain that he and others of like views intend to reserve to Congress as much authority over the use of troops as they can when subsequent legislation is offered to set up the office of the American representative on the Security Council.

He said they will follow this up when this nation agrees in a treaty with the Security Council on the quota of forces to be allocated to the peace-saving organization.

Can "Blow Off Steam"

The West Virginia Senator said he thought the best hope for success of the proposed world organization lies in the fact that its general assembly will provide a meeting place where all of the nations can "blow off steam" about potential and actual disputes.

The assembly is empowered to discuss almost any matter in the field of international relations.

The force-using authority rests in the eleven-member Security Council on which the United States, Great Britain, Russia, China and France hold permanent seats. Any of these five can veto any positive action by the council since all of them, plus two smaller nation members, must vote affirmatively to take any steps beyond mere discussion of a dispute.

REPARATIONS AT 20 BILLION?

Secret Big 3 Yalta Pact On Germany Reported

New York, July 22 (AP) — The Herald Tribune said today a secret agreement was reached at the Yalta conference whereby Russia, Great Britain and the United States would split $20,000,000,000 to be supplied by Germany in reparations.

In a dispatch from Washington, the newspaper said:

". . . Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin agreed to extract $20,000,000,000 in reparations from Germany in five years.

". . . The agreement was that Russia would get the bear's share, or 50 per cent; the United States, 20 per cent; Great Britain, 20 per cent, and the minor victims of the Nazi aggressors in Europe a total of 10 per cent."

It "Still Goes" For Russia

The Herald Tribune added: ". . . Russia is now going on the theory that what was said then (the Yalta conference last February) by the President, the Prime Minister and the Premier still goes—Senate or no Senate."

The article said that at Yalta, Stalin said, in effect: "If you leave the situation to me, I'll get $30,000,000,000 out of them."

"It isn't known why Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill demurred to the higher figure, the Herald Tribune continued, "but presumably they were taking advice from their experts on the amount Germany could pay.

"These two also wanted to make the term twenty years. Mr. Stalin got his way on the term. Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill got their way on the amount."

Direct Comment Declined

Washington, July 22 (AP)—State Department officials declined to comment directly today on a New York Herald Tribune report of a Big Three agreement on German reparations, but referred inquirers to an April 3 statement on secret deals at Yalta.

Specific attention was directed to this sentence in the statement by former Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., who at-

6,000 Yanks Wed in Australia; Many Wartime Marriages Fail

CANBERRA, Australia, July 22—(AP) United States servicemen married nearly 6,000 Australian girls in three years but a large number of the marriages failed and Parliament has before it a bill to enable the brides to receive divorces more easily

Official Commonwealth figures released today show that marriages involving Americans and Australian girls to the end of 1944 totalled 5,957 Canadian born servicemen married 120 Australian girls and the Dutch 224 Forty-eight per cent of the Americans married Queenslanders, 21 per cent Victorians and 19 per cent residents of the New South Wales, the numbers reflecting the relative concentration of troops

BRITISH BATTLE JAPS IN BURMA

CALCUTTA, July 22—(AP) British infantry, supported by aircraft, artillery, tanks and armored units, is "heavily engaging" large groups of Japanese troops attempting to break out of the Pegu-Yomas areas and flee eastward across the Mandalay-Rangoon highway toward the Sittang river, the Southeast Asia command said today.

The main fighting was near the village of Pyu, 32 miles south of Toungoo, the communique said.

On the lower Sittang river Japanese troops were reported still moving into the area around the village of Myitkyo, 29 miles northeast of Pegu, in an apparent attempt to concentrate sufficient strength for a breakthrough eastward out of

AUSTRALIA PLANT PLANNED

Nuffield to Build Auto Factory in Sydney, Says His Agent

SYDNEY, Australia, July 22 (AP)—Lord Nuffield will build a $4,000,000 automobile factory in Sydney, G. A. Lloyd, managing director of Nuffield Australian Property, Ltd., said today.

Mr. Lloyd said the decision of the British firm to attempt to regain the Australian motor market was made by Lord Nuffield on a visit here some time ago.

British plans to step up car production as soon as possible, it was believed here, will spur the race with American and Canadian firms for markets even before the Japanese war ends. Already General Motors, Ford, Chrysler, Dodge

"The only other decisions reached at Yalta and not made public related to initial membership in the international organization when it meets, and to territorial trusteeships."

Issued In General Answer

The statement was issued in general answer, but not in question-by-question form, to a series of 32 queries submitted by State Department correspondents. The questions were drawn up after it became known that President Roosevelt had agreed to three seats for Russia in the United Nations organization planned at Dumbarton Oaks, through admission of White Russia and the Ukraine.

One question was whether there had been any other "secret agreements on Dumbarton Oaks," but the sentence cited did not put the Dumbarton Oaks limitation on Stettinius's statement.

However, there never was any claim that military agreements at Yalta were made public. This leaves the possibility that reparations plans, possibly affecting German resistance, might have been classed as military matters.

CHIEF OF V.F.W. SUGGESTS RUSSIA ENTER JAP WAR

WASHINGTON, July 22—(AP) Rusisa should enter the war against Japan, a Veterans of Foriegn wars officials said today, with a Washington periodicals publisher expressing the opposite view.

They argued the issue in a broadcast over the American broadcasting company network.

Jean A. Brunner, commander chief of the VFW, said;

"As one of the powers that must undertake the rehabilitation of a distressed world, Russia must realize the advantage of a speedy and successful conclusion of the war in the Pacific. Russia should enter the war against Japan to bring it to a close as rapidly as possible, otherwise rehabilitation will be delayed.

But William B. Ziff, the publisher and writer, said:

"It would be highly undesirable for the American delegation (at Potsdam) to press for active Russian participation in the Japanese war. The Russians can afford to come in only when Japan is already on the very edge of final disaster."

Ziff said the Russians faced great difficulties in shipping supplies across Siberia and that the railroad there would in part be "under the guns of powerful Japanese Kwantung army."

Ziff also argued that Russia would demand Soviet occupation of Manchuria in return for entering the war against Japan. That, he said, would put Russia in physical contact with the "120,000,000 organized Chinese communists."

"The entire balance of world power," Ziff added, "would be irreparably fractured."

Brunner said Russian bases would provide the United States and Britain "with the means to complete the encirclement of the Japanese empire."

"Proximity of Siberia to both the Japanese home islands and the vast unconquered area of Manchuria—the Jap arsenal, is the great strategical advantage to be won."

HOME FRONT FACES PINCH IN FUEL OIL

Needs For Jap War Spell Hard Winter Here, Says Petroleum Council

Washington, July 22 (AP)—Henceforth civilians will feel the pinch of the war against Japan more in their home-heating fuel tanks than in their automobile gas tanks, the Petroleum Industry War Council said today.

"From now on, this is largely a fuel-oil war," the council said in a report from its committee on petroleum economics.

"The moderate decrease in gasoline requirements is more than offset by increased requirements for Diesel and residual fuel, and hence the total demand for crude oil and its products is greater than before V-E day."

East And Mid-West Hardest Hit

The supply and distribution of home heating oil for the coming winter present real problems, particularly on the East Coast and in the mid-West, the council said in a statement.

"Earlier Navy Diesel fuel programs," it added, "have resulted in substantial losses of normal production of burning oils for this winter. The operation of catalytic cracking units for the 100-octane program has further reduced kerosene and distillate fuel oil yields.

"Unless more crude oil can be obtained and refined, it appears that a substantial increase in the yields of distillate fuel and kerosene at the expense of gasoline will be necessary to avert a serious situation next winter. Even this would not allow for prospective demands to offset possible coal shortages either here or in Europe."

Increased Mileage One Factor

The increased mileage between the United States and Pacific battle areas was cited by the petroleum council as one of the factors requiring more fuel oil.

It is 6,900 miles from San Francisco to Okinawa and 11,000 miles between the Gulf Coast refinery area and the Philippines, the council reminded, compared with the 3,000 miles between New York and the United Kingdom, when the war against Germany was being fought.

"Because of these distances," the council said, "it requires about 21,000 barrels of fuel oil to deliver 100,000 barrels of gasoline from the United States Gulf Coast to the Pacific theater, including the return trip of the tanker, as compared with 8,000 barrels in the case of the European theater. This does not take into account the fuel necessary to return dry cargo vessels."

The report, covering the period ending June 30, 1946, said the probable production of crude oil in Burma, Borneo and Tarakan had been added in considering available supplies outside the United States, but there was no indication of just when those fields might resume production under British-American direction.

EXPECT SNYDER TO CONSOLIDATE FEDERAL OFFICES

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(AP) The movement to consolidate government agencies will get a boost Monday when John W. Snyder takes the oath as director of war mobilization and reconversion.

Snyder has a record as a consolidator. In less than three months as Federal loan administrator he put through a merger of five long-separate government corporations into their parent body, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Officials in a position to know Snyder's views said today he strongly favors a simpler and more streamlined organization of the government as a whole.

As war mobilizer, or "assistant President," he will have more to say about government reorganization than any other individual except President Truman himself.

Snyder is reported to believe there are some agencies that can be chopped off now, and others that can be merged and simplified.

Snyder's elevation to the new post is another indication of President Truman's desire to simplify the governmental structure. Although decisions are yet to be made on individual agencies, the general pattern of postwar government seems increasingly clear.

The President has asked Congress for authority to consolidate agencies, transfer functions from one agency to another, and generally reorganize the executive branch of the government. He didn't ask for absolute power. Any action he took would be subject to suspension by Congress.

It is understood he wants a strong "cabinet-type" government. His purpose apparently is to group as many government agencies as possible under his cabinet officers, and then hold those officers responsible for what goes on in their departments.

This brings up the question of whether "quasi-judicial" agencies or agencies that resemble courts of law, such as the Interstate Commerce commission, Federal Power commission, and War Labor Board—can be transferred successfully to the 10 regular departments.

Some officials believe it can be done to the satisfaction of Congress, because, they say, a formula already has been found. They point to the Civil Aeronautics Board, which holds hearings and issues decisions on airline matters. A couple of years ago the CAB was moved into the Commerce department, as an experiment.

The formula is this: The CAB is administratively under the Secretary of Commerce, but he has nothing to say about its decisions.

Last week, Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach indicated he would favor taking the War Labor Board and National Labor Relations Board into his department on the same basis.

His idea was to take over their housekeeping functions, oversee their procedure, speed their work, make available to them all the other facilities of the Labor department, but not to meddle with their judicial freedom. He said:

"I am not going to take over and become an appeal agent of any board that decides controversial questions."

SENATORS PLAN RAIL-JAM QUIZ

Committee To Hear Johnson, ODT Head, Today

Washington, July 22 (AP)—The Senate War Investigating Committee will give the right of way tomorrow to an investigation of the nation's war-clogged railway system.

The first witness will be Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, the Government agency charged with co-ordinating all forms of transportation during the war.

Although the situation has been developing for some time, public and congressional interest was focused on it more sharply after complaints that some soldiers had to ride in coaches instead of Pullmans in making cross-country trips after their arrival from Europe.

Two Factors Involved

The situation stems principally from two factors, said J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads—first, a shortage of passenger cars, and, second, the speed of redeployment from Europe to the Pacific.

In a letter to Senator Lucas (D., Ill.), who had made inquiries, Pelley said:

"The forces which we were building up in Europe over a period of almost four years are to be redeployed in less than ten months."

And the pressure of that movement, he explained, is aggravated by the shortage of passenger cars and the great increase in other passenger travel.

No Extra Coaches Available

Pelley said that:

"The total passenger travel on the railroads this year will probably be close to five times that of prewar years, but it is to be carried in virtually the same number of coaches and sleeping cars which were then available.

"This year's load will probably be nearly two and one half times that of the peak year of the first World War, but is to be carried with approximately 30 per cent fewer passenger-carrying cars than were then available."

The shrinkage in the number of railroad cars, Pelley explained was due to the fact that in that period so large a part of all travel had come to be made by other means of transportation.

Navy Complaint Reported

A glimpse into the likely tenor of testimony before the War Investigating Committee was provided by a Senate interchange Saturday during which it was asserted that the Navy and the ODT were complaining that the Army was adding to the congestion by returning soldiers from Europe faster than planned.

But the Army said it is keeping the railroads advised of its estimated monthly loads as far ahead as March, 1946, and is notifying them immediately on any changes.

ARMY WOUNDED HOME FROM EUROPE

WASHINGTON, July 22—(AP) Virtually every wounded or sick American soldier in Europe who can be moved will have been brought home by the end of this week, the War department said today.

Thus the Army will better its goal of returning all transportable cases within 90 days after V-E day, said Brig. Gen. Raymond W. Bliss, assistant surgeon general.

The major portion of the task of evacuating some 102,000 disabled soldiers was completed in 60 days, General Bliss said. In May, more than 43,000 sick and wounded men were returned from the European theaters; in June slightly less than 32,000, and the July total is estimated at 27,000.

With 14,000 disabled soldiers arriving at West Coast hospitals, the May total of 57,000 evacuations was an all-time high.

General Bliss noted that at the beginnning of this month the patient census of Army general and convalescent hospitals in this country was approximately 240,000, while total bed capacity was only 215,000.

"A liberal furlough policy, which enables men who must wait for further treatment to enjoy their families and home surroundings, compensates for this difference," he said.

3,425 Heavy Bombers Return From Europe

125,370 Soldiers Flown Back to U. S. Since May 1

WASHINGTON, July 22 (AP).—A total of 3,425 heavy bombers had arrived back in the United States from the European and Mediterranean theaters up to July 12, the Army reported today.

The figures were contained in an announcement that 125,370 military personnel, the equivalent of more than eight Army divisions of 15,000 each, returned to this country by air from the two theaters from May 1 through July 11.

Of the total, 67,200 crossed the Atlantic in air transport command planes, and 58,170 returned as crew members or passengers in the redeployment movement of combat aircraft.

Five Ships Arrive With 1,388 Troops

New York, July 22 (AP) — Five troop transports brought in from the European theater of operations today a total of 1,388 service men.

The first ship to arrive was the George Davis, with 351 rotational and redeployment troops, including 45 liberated prisoners of war.

The Marion Crawford, with 634 redeployment troops, and the George A. Thomas, with 364, docked a short time later.

Men from the three ships were sent to Camp Kilmer, N.J.

The Wheaton Victory debarked eighteen men and the Cape Falcon 21, all of whom were sent to Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn.

3,000 Troops Due Today

New York, July 22 (AP)—Six vessels carrying about 3,000 American troops, including several units of the 13th Armored Division, are scheduled to arrive here tomorrow from Europe.

Aboard the Noordam, which will debark 2,471 troops, are the following units of the 13th Armored Division:

Sixty-seventh Armored Infantry Battalion, 124th Armored Engineering Battalion, 46th Tank Battalion and an ordnance detachment of the 135th Armored Ordnance Maintenance Battalion.

Other ships due to dock are the Benjamin Goodhue, carrying 535 troops; Theodore Parker, 15; James M. Porter, 15; Stephen Girard, 16, and the Hegley D. Cochran, 15.

Men aboard the Porter and the Girard will go to Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn, while all others will go to Camp Kilmer, N.J.

Women Doctors Seen In Demand

Washington, July 22 (AP)—Women physicians will play a much larger part in filling postwar medical needs, the Women's Bureau reported today.

They constitute less than five per cent of the 165,000 physicians practicing before the war.

Declaring the postwar demand for physicians of all types will be great, the bureau said:

"There seems to be general agreement that the women now studying in medicine are likely to have greater rather than less opportunity than those who preceded them."

Demand Increased

The report said the war has increased tremendously the demand for women physicians, both for work in the Army and Navy and in replacing doctors who have gone to the armed services. Also, only four out of the 77 approved medical schools in the nation now refuse admission to women.

While women have tended to specialize in pediatrics, psychiatry and public health, they will expand into other medical fields after the war, including medical research and teaching.

The report contends there has never been a time when adequate medical care was available to all the population. In 1940, it said, one physician served about 600 people in the Northeastern states, 700 in the West, 800 in the North Central region and more than 1,000 in the South.

400% Cargo Rise For Planes Seen

Washington, July 22 (AP)—A five-fold increase of the 1944 level in the cargo carrying capacity of nineteen domestic airlines is planned for the immediate postwar period, the Air Transport Association of America said today.

The estimate is predicated upon the extra space the carriers will have in 409 new passenger planes now on order or for which the lines hold options, and in 22 C-47s (Skytrains) which the Army Air Forces expect to release to the airlines for cargo use about August 1, the association said in a statement.

Had 344 Planes

The mail, express and excess baggage load carried by the airlines in 1944 was 202,879,006 pounds. The added planes, the association declared, will provide cargo space sufficient to handle about 995,922,619 pounds of cargo.

At the close of 1944 the airlines had 344 planes, 272 of them in daily operation.

Meanwhile, aircraft manufacturers are making extensive study of plans for all-cargo planes for use in the postwar period.

The Fairchild Aircraft Division, Hagerstown, Md., disclosed today that it has made cost-of-operation studies on its new C-82 packet cargo plane, currently in production for the Army.

Prices Quoted

Richard S. Boutelle, Fairchild general manager, said that the big twin-engine plane could be operated in commercial service at less than 7 cents a ton-mile for trips up to 500 miles.

A 1,000-mile flight with more than five tons of payload would cost 8¼ cents a ton-mile, Boutelle told newsmen.

Boutelle said the figures were based on direct operating costs with no attempt to arrive at overhead or indirect costs.

$25,000,000 Yearly Housing Plan Proposed

Washington, July 22 (AP)—Legislation authorizing a new $25,000,000-a-year-Federal-aid housing plan to clear out slum areas will be introduced this week by Chairman Wagner (D., N.Y.) of the Senate Banking Committee.

Wagner said today the program calls for construction of 143,000 new units of housing.

The cost of $25,000,000 a year to the Federal Government is in the nature of a subsidy which Wagner said is justified, especially in the immediate postwar period.

There are many slum areas still to be cleared, Wagner said, and besides this advantage the program "can serve to take up slack in employment."

A group of Senators which has been studying postwar housing problems for some months is expected to complete its report at a meeting tomorrow morning.

The group includes Wagner, Taft (R., Ohio), Ellender (D., La.), Radcliffe, (D., Md.), La Follette (Prog., Wis.) and Buck (R., Del.)

WAR LABOR BOARD SE NEW WARD CO. HEAR

WASHINGTON, July 22—(AP) The War Labor Board will seek an explanation form Montgomery Ward and Company on Aug. 3 of what the board calls the company's failure to comply with WLB directives in seven cities.

A similar non-compliance citation resulted last December in Army seizure of company properties in seven other cities. In addition to operating a mail order ness, the company has general andise retail stores.

The Aug. 3 show cause aring will be held in Washington.

The board announced today that 1,800 employees represented by both AFL and CIO unions are involved in the new case in Pueblo, Colo.; Baltimore, Md.; Kansas City, Mo.; Kansas City, Kans.; Trenton, N. J.; Washington, Pa.; and Barre, Vt.

Principal issue in the present disputes is maintenance of union membership, although wages and other benefits enter into some of the cases.

Russian War Relief Group Changes Name

New York, July 22 (AP)—Edward C. Carter, president of Russian War Relief, Inc., announced today that the agency had withdrawn from the National War Fund and was altering its name to American Society for Russian Relief, Inc.

Expansion of the agency's activities into the field of rehabilitation in addition to emergency war relief was the reason for the changes, Carter said.

N.Y. Communists Vote To Reconstitute Party

New York, July 22 (AP)—The New York State Communist Political Association convention today approved unanimously a resolution recommending that the Communist party be reconstructed at the national CPA's convention, which opens here Thursday.

In another resolution, also passed unanimously, the delegates repudiated the political policies of Earl Browder, president of the national CPA, who led the movement to dissolve the Communist party which finally was voted out of existence in May, 1944.

Following the convention, which was closed to the press, delegates told newsmen they felt that William Z. Foster, former Communist party presidential candidate, would be elected national CPA president to succeed Browder, adding they thought Browder would not be res at the national parley.

Fo r informed reporters he had told e convention, in a speech, that the Browder line demobilizes the party, and reduces its influence to nothing."

"There is a definite place for the Communist organization in American politics and economics," he said. "We must take an active role and a place on the ballot is important in order to give to people a chance to indicate how they stand."

"Our party is unalterably committed to procure the 60,000,000 jobs necessary for security," he added. "We will continue to work within the frame of the no-strike pledge."

NEW YORK, July 22—(AP) Jan Masaryk, foreign minister and son of the founder of the Czechoslovakian republic, said today as he left by air for his homeland that Czechoslovakia soon should solve the Sudeten problem without "very much trouble."

"Things are getting on well in our country now," he said. "People are getting back to work and industry is beginning to function. We will have a very difficult winter, but crop reports are promising and it may not be too bad."

Masaryk said he would resume his post as foreign minister which he left seven years ago to come to the United States.

From Now On It's Mister For Commando Kelly

Atlanta, July 22 (AP)—Lean, tanned Tech. Sergt. Charles E. (Commando) Kelly, Pittsburgh's famous war hero, sums up his scheduled discharge from the Army here tomorrow with a facetious "Commando, hell' from now on they can call me, Mister."

Kelly, with 70 points and a chest full of ribbons, including the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Silver Star and the Combat Infantryman's Badge, is leaving the service under a special ruling covering enlisted men holding the medal of honor.

Concerning the treatment of ex-service men, Kelly has very definite ideas. "Forget the 'wishy-washy.' 'Be kind to veterans' week' stuff," he says. "The time to treat a man decently is when he's in uniform. We're grown-up men and we can take care of ourselves when we become civilians."

PHILADELPHIA, July 22 (AP)—The heavy cruiser Los Angeles officially became a unit of the United States States Fleet at commissioning exercises today at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

THE SERVICE LASTED LITTLE MORE THAN HALF AN HOUR. AMERICAN AND BRITISH FLAGS, DECORATIONS THAT HAD BEEN USED FOR A MICKEY ROONEY STAGE SHOW, STILL HUNG IN THE LABORATORY WHEN COL.NELSON, DIVISIONAL CHAPLAIN OF THE SECOND ARMORED DIVISION SINCE ITS ACTIVATION IN JULY, 1940, APPEARED WITH HIS RELIGIOUS STAFF SHORTLY BEFORE 10 A.M.
THEY SET UP A FIELD ALTAR AND A PORTABLE ORGAN ON WHICH CORPORAL ALLAN P.RAMSAY, WILKES-BARRE, PA., WAS PLAYING AS A PRELUDE "REJOICE YE PURE IN HEART" WHEN THE PRESIDENT AND HIS PARTY OF 12 AND MORE THAN A HUNDRED AMERICAN SERVICE MEN FILED IN. CHAPLAIN NELSON WORE AN OLIVE DRAB BLOUSE AND LIGHT TROUSERS WITH A RED FOURRAGERE OR CORD, WHICH THE SECOND ARMORED HAD WON IN BATTLES ON BELGIAN SOIL, AROUND HIS SHOULDER. FOR THE 32 MONTHS HE HAS SPENT OVERSEAS HE WORE FIVE GOLD BARS ON HIS LEFT SLEEVE.
IN REDEMPTION, HE SAID, THERE WERE FOUR FACTORS: RECOGNITION OF SIN, RECOGNITION OF THE SAVIOUR, ACCEPTANCE OF THE SACRIFICE, AND PROVISION OF SALVATION.
AS HE CLOSED HIS 12-MINUTE SERMON HE SPOKE OF THE AIMLESSNESS WITH WHICH THE ENEMY HAD FIRED V1 AND V2 BOMBS IN THIS WAR AND DECLARED THAT IN RELIGION THERE WAS, BY CONTRAST, ALWAYS AN AIM "TO BRING US TO GOD, TO HAVE ETERNAL LIFE."
JUL 23 1945
THE CONGREGATION STOOD AND RECITED IN UNISON THE LORD'S PRAYER.
THE ORGAN VOICED THE INTRODUCTION FOR THE DOXOLOGY. FROM HEBREWS, 13:20-21, CHAPLAIN NELSON READ THE BENEDICTION:

AMEN."
CHAPLAIN NELSON, WHO HAS SERVED CHURCHES AT TAMPA, FLA., AND NEW RICHMOND, WIS., AND WHOSE PARENTS LIVE AT STANLEY, N.DAK., WAS INTRODUCED AFTERWARD TO PRESIDENT TRUMAN AT THE ENTRANCE OF THE IMPROVISED CHAPEL.
"THE PRESIDENT WAS VERY APPRECIATIVE OF THE SERVICE. HE EXPRESSED HIS GRATITUDE TO ALL OF US WHO HAD PARTICIPATED," CHAPLAIN NELSON SAID LATER. "IT WAS THE FIRST TIME I HAD SEEN THE PRESIDENT. IT SEEMED TO ME HIS COUNTENANCE WAS ILLUMINATED BY HIGH PURPOSES."
PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S PERFECTLY PRESSED BLUE SUIT AND HIS SPECKLESS, BROAD BRIMMED, GRAY HAT IMPRESSED THE ORGANIST, CORPORAL RAMSAY, WHEN THEY SHOOK HANDS.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN LATER WENT TO A CATHOLIC MASS CONDUCTED BY COL.L.CURTIS TIERNAN OF KANSAS CITY, CHIEF CHAPLAIN OF UNITED STATES FORCES IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER.

GUAM, MONDAY, JULY 23-(AP)-BETWEEN 75 AND 100 SUPERFORTS TOOK ANOTHER CUT AT JAPAN'S SHRINKING FUEL SUPPLY TODAY WITH A PRE-DAWN DEMOLITION RAID ON A BIG SYNTHETIC OIL PLANT AT UBE ON THE MAIN HOME ISLAND OF HONSHU.
THE B29 TASK FORCE STRUCK AS THE JAPANESE--KEEPING AN EYE TO SEAWARD FOR THE RETURN OF THE MARAUDING U.S. AND BRITISH FLEETS--REPORTED THAT LAND-BASED MUSTANG FIGHTER PLANES HAD OPENED UP WITH MACHINEGUN ATTACKS ON WAR FACTORIES IN THE CONGESTED INDUSTRIAL REGION WEST OF TOKYO.
THE SUPERFORTS UNLOADED 450 TONS OF DEMOLITION BOMBS ON THE UBE COAL LIQUEFACTION COMPANY PLANT, ONE OF JAPAN'S LEADING PRODUCERS OF SYNTHETIC OIL.
THE UBE WORKS BULK LARGE IN JAPAN'S WAR ECONOMY NOW THAT THE AMERICAN AIR AND SEA BLOCKADE HAS ALL BUT SEVERED THE HOME ISLANDS FROM CRUDE OIL SUPPLIES ELSEWHERE IN THE EMPIRE.
THE TASK FORCE THUNDERED IN AT MEDIUM ALTITUDE TO MAKE SURE OF ITS TARGET, WHICH FIRST WAS STRUCK IN A FIRE RAID JULY 2. UBE, ON THE INLAND SEA, IS ON THE SOUTHWEST TIP OF HONSHU AND HAS A NORMAL POPULATION OF 200,000.
TOKYO RADIO SAID THAT SMALLER FORCES OF SUPERFORTRESSES LED BY 200 MUSTANGS CAME IN OVER OTHER TARGETS ON SOUTH CENTRAL HONSHU, AND THAT THE SWIFT FIGHTERS STARTED FIRES IN THE [illegible] DISTRICT WITH MACHINEGUN ATTACKS.
THE BRITISH AND AMERICAN FLEETS REMAINED AN EVER-PRESENT MENACE AS THEY STEAMED SOMEWHERE IN THE WESTERN PACIFIC UNDER RADIO SILENCE, AND TOKYO SAID THEIR GUNS MIGHT OPEN UP ON THE HOMELAND AGAIN AT ANY HOUR.
NOTHING HAD BEEN HEARD FROM THE FLEET SINCE THURSDAY'S ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE TOKYO AREA STRIKE, BUT ADM.CHESTER W.NIMITZ TOLD YESTERDAY HOW COMPLETELY THE RAIDERS DOMINATED THE ENTRANCE TO TOKYO BAY WHILE THEY WERE THERE.
HIS COMMUNIQUE SAID THAT THE JAPANESE OFFERED NO RESISTANCE WHILE THE TASK FORCE OF CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS MOVED BACK AND FORTH ACROSS THE VITAL ENEMY SEAWAY, SHELLING EVERYTHING IN SIGHT.
NOT A JAPANESE SHIP WAS SEEN ON THOSE WATERS, WHICH ONCE WERE FREIGHTED WITH VESSELS LOADED WITH THE RICHES FROM THE NOW-LARGELY DEFLATED CO-PROSPERITY SPHERE.
THE U.S. WARSHIPS SHELLED RADIO AND RADAR INSTALLATIONS ON NOJIMA CAPE, 55 MILES SOUTH OF TOKYO, WHERE JAPANESE WATCHERS HAVE RADIOED WARNINGS TO THE HOMELAND OF THE APPROACH OF HOSTILE PLANES.
THEY ALSO SWUNG 25 MILES SOUTHWEST OF THE CAPE AND BOMBARDED OSHIMA, STANDING IN THE CENTER OF THE SEAWARD APPROACHES TO TOKYO BAY.
OSHIMA IS ANOTHER OUTPOST OF JAPAN'S AIR RAID WARNING SYSTEM AND IS BELIEVED TO BE HEAVILY FORTIFIED.

ABOARD ADMIRAL MCCAIN'S FLAGSHIP IN THE WESTERN PACIFIC, JULY 20 (DELAYED)-(AP)-HOPES THAT JAPAN'S CONTINUED PASSIVE POLICY AS THE BIG ALLIED NAVAL FORCE STRIKES REPEATEDLY FROM DEEP IN ENEMY WATERS MEANS NIPPON'S ABILITY TO RESIST IS NEARLY ENDED WERE DISCOUNTED BY ADM. JOHN S.MCCAIN TODAY.
MCCAIN, AN EXPERT IN CARRIER WARFARE WHO KNOWS THE JAPANESE THOROUGHLY EXPLAINED IN AN INTERVIEW THAT THE JAPANESE PROBABLY "ARE CONSERVING AND WAITING FOR A MORE PROPITIOUS TIME" BEFORE THEY STRIKE BACK.
DIRTY WEATHER, THROUGH WHICH U.S.PILOTS HAVE BEEN FLYING, HAS BEEN ANOTHER FACTOR FAVORING STRIKES BY THIS GREAT NAVAL FORCE, NOW SWELLED BY BRITISH MEN-OF WAR.

SAN FRANCISCO, JULY 23-(AP)-SEVEN "ENEMY WARCRAFT OF UNIDENTIFIED CATEGORY" ATTACKED MOUNT SURIBACHI ON PARAMUSHIRO ISLAND IN THE KURILES SUNDAY (JAPANESE TIME), THE TOKYO RADIO SAID TODAY IN A REPORT UNCONFIRMED BY AMERICAN MILITARY SOURCES.

THE KURILES LIE NORTHEAST OF THE MAIN JAPANESE ISLANDS.

ON THE SAME DAY, TOKYO SAID, JAPANESE DESTROYERS "ATTACKED AND REPULSED" THREE SUBMARINES THAT APPEARED OFF CHICHI ISLAND IN THE BONIN GROUP SOUTH OF TOKYO TWO AND A HALF HOURS BEFORE THE ISLAND WAS SHELLED BY AMERICAN SURFACE SHIPS.

EARLIER, TOKYO SAID SUBMARINES WERE ATTACKED BY SUB-CHASERS IN THE "SOUTH PACIFIC." THE BROADCAST DID NOT MAKE CLEAR WHETHER THE ACTIONS WERE THE SAME.

ALL OF THE BROADCASTS WERE RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION.

ACKNOWLEDGING THE LATEST B-29 ATTACK ON THE NIPPONESE MAINLAND, TOKYO REPORTED THAT ABOUT 30 SUPERFORTRESSES HIT KUDAMATSU AND THE "VICINITY" OF UBE, BOTH IN YAMAGUCHI PREFECTURE ON THE HOME ISLAND OF HONSHU.

AMERICAN REPORTS FROM GUAM SAID THE FORCE NUMBERED FROM 75 TO 100 B-29S AND THAT UBE WAS THE TARGET. NO MENTION WAS MADE OF AN ATTACK ON KUDAMATSU, WHICH IS SOME 30 MILES EAST OF UBE ON THE SOUTHERN COAST OF HONSHU.

JUL 29 1945

TOKYO SAID THE UBE-KUDAMATSU BOMBING WAS CARRIED OUT IN TWO WAVES, AND THAT PART OF THE FORCE HAD SOWN MINES IN THE KANMON STRAIT, BETWEEN HONSHU AND KYUSHU ISLANDS AT THE ENTRANCE TO THE INLAND SEA.

ANOTHER REPORT, UNCONFIRMED, SAID ABOUT EIGHT DESTROYERS FIRED ON A JAPANESE CONVOY, DAMAGING ONE TRANSPORT SHIP, "OFF THE SOUTHERN TIP OF THE BOSO PENINSULA" SUNDAY.

AFTER PUTTING MARINES ASHORE AT GUAM A YEAR AGO, THE LST 477 REITRED UNDER A HAIL OF JAPANESE SHELLS FROM OROTE PENINSULA. HER GROUP COMMANDER ORDERED HER TO FOLLOW A LARGER SHIP TO SEA. IT HAPPENED THAT THE GUIDE SHIP WAS BOUND FOR PEARL HARBOR, AND THE 477, LITERALLY INTERPRETING HER ORDERS, FOLLOWED FOR 4,000 MILES TO PEARL HARBOR. FROM THERE SHE WAS SENT TO THE WEST COAST FOR OVERHAUL.

JUL 23 1945

SHE HAD JUST RETURNED TO THE PACIFIC FROM THE OVERHAUL IN TIME TO PARTICIPATE IN THE IWO INVASION FEBRUARY 19. UHE RAN INTO STEERING TROUBLE AS SHE APPROACHED THE ISLAND, AND WAS ORDERED TO DROP ASTERN UNTIL CONTROL COULD BE REGAINED. THEN IN A SURPRISE

ATTACK THE ENEMY WENT GUNNING FOR THE 477.

LT.JOSEPH C.COWDEN, 414 SMITH ST., NILES, O., TOLD OF THE ENEMY AIR ATTACK:

"THE LEADER CAME IN DEAD ASTERN, PASSED OUR BRIDGE SO CLOSELY HE WOULD HAVE BEEN AN EASY TARGET WITH A BASEBALL, THEN WINGED OVER AND CRASHED INTO OUR STARBOARD SIDE FORWARD. AT ALMOST THE SAME INSTANT A BOMB HIT ON THE MAIN DECK, ALSO STARBOARD SIDE FORWARD. THERE WAS A TERRIFIC EXPLOSION AND FLAME AND DEBRIS LEAPED 100 FEET INTO THE AIR.

THROUGHOUT THE ATTACK AND THE FIRE WHICH FOLLOWED, MEN OF THE MARINE TANK BATTALION FOUGHT SIDE BY SIDE WITH THE SHIP'S COMPANY.

DESPITE THE HEAVY DAMAGE, THE 477'S SKIPPER, LT.CHARLES T.HAZELRIGG, 114 HOWARD AVE., LT.STEGING, KY., WAS DETERMINED TO BEACH AND UNLOAD HIS CARGO.

WASHINGTON,JULY 22-(AP)-NO FUNDAMENTAL CHANGE IN WHAT CONSTITUTES UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER FOR THE JAPANESE WAS EMBODIED IN THE LATEST OF A SERIES OF AMERICAN BROADCASTS TO NIPPON, BOTH THE STATE DEPARTMENT AND OWI AGREED TODAY.

BUT THERE WAS NO DISAVOWAL OF THE BROADCAST BY CAPT.E.M. ZACHARIAS, U.S.N., IN WHICH UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER WAS LINKED WITH THE FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES OF THE ATLANTIC CHARTER.

IT WAS THE FIRST OFFICIAL LINK-UP BETWEEN CAPITULATION AND THE CHARTER.

WHILE THE STATE DEPARTMENT SAID THAT THE TEXT OF THE BROADCAST, GIVEN IN THE JAPANESE LANGUAGE, HAD NOT BEEN SUBMITTED TO IT FOR CLEARANCE PRIOR TO TRANSMISSION, OWI IN ITS BROADCASTS TO THE ENEMY WORKS UNDER BROAD POLICY DIRECTIVES LAID DOWN BY TOP GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS.

THE OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION IN ITS PRESS RELEASE ON THE BROADCAST, IDENTIFIED ZACHARIAS' AS AN "OFFICIAL SPOKESMAN" FOR THE GOVERNMENT.

STIMULATING CONJECTURE ABOUT THE ZACHARIAS BROADCAST ALSO WAS THE PROCEDURE ADOPTED BY THE OWI IN MAKING PUBLIC THE TEXT OF THE MESSAGE TO THE ENEMY. ALTHOUGH ELMER DAVIS, OWI DIRECTOR, INSISTED THAT THERE WAS NOTHING UNUSUAL ABOUT IT, AND THAT IT HAD BEEN MADE PUBLIC IN RESPONSE TO PRESS REQUESTS, REPORTERS COULD RECALL NO PREVIOUS GENERAL PRESS RELEASE ON THE OTHER ELEVEN BROADCASTS THAT ZACHARIAS HAS MADE TO NIPPON.

IT WAS BROUGHT OUT BY THE OWI THAT SOME OF THE PREVIOUS BROADCASTS HAD BEEN MADE AVAILABLE IN RESPONSE TO SPECIFIC REQUESTS FOR THEM.

IN THE BROADCAST, ZACHARIAS TOLD THE JAPANESE, IN THEIR OWN LANGUAGE; THAT THEIR LEADERS FACED THESE ALTERNATIVES:

"THE VIRTUAL DESTRUCTION OF JAPAN FOLLOWED BY A DICTATED PEACE" OR "UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER WITH ITS ATTENDANT BENEFITS AS LAID DOWN BY THE ATLANTIC CHARTER."

AMONG THE ATLANTIC CHARTER PRINCIPLES ARE THESE:

ITS ADHERENTS PLEDGE THEMSELVES NOT TO SEEK TERRITORIAL AGGRANDIZEMENT, TO SPONSOR NO TERRITORIAL CHANGES UNLESS APPROVED BY THE AFFECTED PEOPLES, TO PERMIT PEOPLES TO CHOOSE THEIR OWN FORM OF GOVERNMENT, TO WORK FOR THE ABANDONMENT OF THE USE OF FORCE BY NATIONS, AND TO PERMIT ACCESS BY BOTH VICTOR AND VANQUISHED TO TRADE AND NECESSARY RAW MATERIALS.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN AT POTSDAM GAVE PUBLIC VOICE TO A PART OF THAT PROGRAM WHEN HE SAID THAT THE UNITED STATES SEEKS NO TERRITORIAL GAINS OUT OF THE WAR.

HOWEVER SOME SENATE LEADERS IN THE UNITED STATES EXPRESSED THE HOPE THAT MR.TRUMAN DID NOT CONTEMPLATE RELINQUISHING ANY PACIFIC ISLANDS WHICH MIGHT PROVE POSTWAR DEFENSE OUTPOSTS FOR THIS COUNTRY.

(ADVANCE)...WASHINGTON, JULY 22-(AP)-A SENATE MILITARY SUBCOMMITTEE DECLARED TODAY THE GOVERNMENT IS ACCEPTING A PRE-WAR PATTERN WHEREIN INDUSTRIAL RESEARCH RESOURCES WERE INCREASINGLY CONCENTRATED "IN A FEW LARGE INDUSTRIAL CORPORATIONS."

THIS COMES ABOUT BY THE ALLOCATION OF FEDERAL FUNDS TO COMMERCIAL LABORATORIES FOR MILITARY RESEARCH, SAID THE SUBCOMMITTEE ON WAR MOBILIZATION.

ASSERTING THAT IN THE PRE-WAR PATTERN, THE "OVERWHELMING MAJORITY OF AMERICAN BUSINESSES" LACKED "ADEQUATE ACCESS TO THE BENEFITS OF SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH AND ADVANCEMENT," THE GROUP SAID IN A REPORT ON WARTIME RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT:

"THE GOVERNMENT HAS A RESPONSIBILITY TO THE AMERICAN TAXPAYER AND TO AMERICAN BUSINESS TO MAKE SURE THAT THE RESULTS OF RESEARCH FINANCED BY IT ARE MADE FREELY AVAILABLE TO THE MAXIMUM EXTENT POSSIBLE AS A WORKING BASIS FOR THE DEVELOPMENT OF NEW PRODUCTS, NEW INDUSTRIES AND NEW JOBS."

THE SUBCOMMITTEE, HEADED BY SENATOR KILGORE (D-WVA), MADE THE STATEMENTS IN CALLING FOR GOVERNMENTAL CREATION OF A "CENTRAL SCIENTIFIC AGENCY." THIS AGENCY WOULD, AMONG OTHER THINGS, PROVIDE "FOR AN INCREASE, ABOVE THE PREWAR LEVEL, IN THE GOVERNMENT'S SUPPORT OF RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT ACTIVITIES."

ISSUANCE OF THE REPORT FOLLOWED BY SEVERAL DAYS A RECOMMENDATION BY

DR. VANNEVAR BUSH, DIRECTOR OF THE OFFICE OF SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT (OSRD), THAT CONGRESS ESTABLISH A "NATIONAL RESEARCH FOUNDATION" TO SPEED THE WAR AGAINST DISEASE, HELP CREATE NEW INDUSTRIES AND FOSTER PEACETIME MILITARY RESEARCH.

SENATOR MAGNUSON (D-WASH) ALREADY HAS INTRODUCED LEGISLATION DESIGNED TO CARRY OUT BUSH'S RECOMMENDATIONS.

DECLARING THAT ONE OF THE FUNCTIONS OF THE PROPOSED NEW AGENCY WOULD BE TO PROMOTE A WIDE FLOW OF SCIENTIFIC AND TECHNICAL INFORMATION TO INDUSTRY AND AGRICULTURE AND BUSINESS," PARTICULARLY SMALL ENTERPRISES," THE KILGORE REPORT SAID:

"THE HUGE ACCUMULATION OF TECHNOLOGY DURING THE WAR POSES VERY SHARPLY THE NEED FOR INFORMING SMALL AND MEDIUM-SIZED BUSINESSES OF THE SCIENTIFIC ADVANCES.

"SUCH A FUNCTION SHOULD PROPERLY FALL WITHIN THE SPHERE OF ACTIVITY OF THE (U.S.) DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE WHICH IS CONCERNED WITH BUSINESS PROBLEMS. IN COOPERATION WITH THE PROPOSED CENTRAL SCIENTIFIC AGENCY IT SHOULD TRANSLATE SCIENTIFIC DATA AND FINDINGS INTO PRACTICAL BUSINESS INFORMATION."

BIG 3 ACCORD ON JAPAN REPORTED; STALIN SAID TO YIELD TO TRUMAN; U. S. PLANES HIT KURE, NAVY BASE

PARLEY NEARS END

JUL 24 1945

President Described as Elated Over Reported Soviet Concessions

NEW STEPS IN WAR SHAPED

Yalta Understanding on Orient Implemented—Agreement on Reich Economic Unity Seen

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, July 23 — President Truman was reported tonight to have won important United States points at the Big Three conference and to have produced unexpected Soviet concessions.

A spokesman for the United States delegation said that the three [illegible] met again today, their [illegible]th day of conferences in Potsdam, and "are driving ahead."

Sources close to Mr. Truman said that he and Generalissimo Stalin had established a most cordial relationship and reached a stage of understanding considered impossible before the meeting had opened. The belief prevailed that the President, in his debut as an international negotiator, had achieved a substantial accord with the Russians on impending developments in the Japanese war.

Men close to the Chief Executive reported that he was happy over concessions won so far.

Details Are Shrouded

As prospects for an early conclusion of the parley seemed greater, a tight-lipped silence was maintained in the Allied compounds about concrete matters already agreed on.

The last of their scheduled state dinners took place tonight, with Churchill and his daughter, Mary, entertaining Truman and Stalin at the "Little No. 10 Downing Street" here.

A string orchestra of Royal Airforce members played several selections, including requests by both Truman and Stalin.

Army Chiefs Attend

Guests included the chiefs of staff of the three armies—Gen. George C. Marshall, Gen. Alexei Antonov and Field Marshal Sir Alan F. Brooke; Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden; Clement L. Attlee, former deputy prime minister of Britain; Soviet Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov; British Field Marshals Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, Sir Harold Alexander and Sir Henry Maitland Wilson; Sir Edward Bridges, Secretary of the British war cabinet, and Lord Moran, personal physician to Churchill.

The President was believed to have had two strings to his bow in frank talks with Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill on the way to bring Asia out of the chaos of war.

First, he seemed to believe it not impossible that Japan's saner militarists and wealthiest industrialists might join hands in seeking peace to avoid heavy occupation of the home islands.

Second, if Japan's leaders persisted in their suicidal course, he wanted to assure the employment of Allied forces, including those of the Soviet Union, in such a coordinated manner that the greatest blows would be struck at the most vulnerable points of the enemy's imperial defenses.

JUL 24 1945

Yalta Formula Kept Secret

One of the best-kept secrets of the Yalta Conference concerns whatever tentative agreement the Soviet Premier may have assented to with President Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill regarding Far Eastern hostilities. To Allied observers in Moscow, for example, it has seemed obvious that the continuing of large lend-lease shipments to Vladivostok depended on some still-secret terms.

In carrying on Mr. Roosevelt's policies Mr. Truman has had to implement such a Yalta understanding with actual operational plans.

The impression given by the smooth advance of the Potsdam meeting was that serious hitches concerning the Far East had not arisen.

If Japan's rulers are less blind than were the Nazis last year, there is a chance that they will read the handwriting on the wall of Potsdam. Their choice is a peace saving the national existence of the Japanese people or a prolonged war whose results would be even more terrible than those into which Germany plunged.

Reporter Roy Porter of the National Broadcasting company said in a broadcast from Berlin tonight that part of the American delegation to the Big Three conference already has left Germany and other members are preparing to leave for "a new and surprising destination."

"It is possible to say tonight," Porter declared, "that a part of the American delegation already has left Potsdam. Who they are and what they will do is another one of those prohibited subjects, prohibited this time by security rather than political significance.

"Another section of the American group is getting ready to leave on another leg of the trip which will take the group from Washington into an entirely new territory which will be as much of a surprise to you as it was to me when I first heard about it."

Among Allied sources who have long enjoyed cordial contacts with the Soviet government, it has not been doubted that the Russians, after their own fashion, would play a role in defeating Japan.

These sources have sharply rejected the possibility of the Soviet Union indefinitely sitting back while America and Japan fought on to exhaustion. They point to the United States' good faith in contributing heavily to the destruction of Naziism in Europe after some minority voices were heard suggesting the Anglo-American policy was to remain aloof and let the Nazis and Russians knock themselves out. They assert the Soviet Union will likewise keep faith with the United States in the Far East.

If surface appearances are not misleading, the "Big Three" may leave Potsdam before the end of this week, after having delegated authority to their respective foreign official to continue seeking harmonious cooperation in European affairs. Always before "Big Three" dealt [illegible] with problems of one priority. The scope and cost of the Japanese war give it stature above all other questions today.

Truman Reported to Have Won Unexpected Russian Concessions

President and Stalin Said to Have Forged Most Cordial Relationship.

FORMER IS IN HAPPY MOOD

Is Reported Eager to Disclose to Congress the Important U. S. Aims Won at Potsdam.

Potsdam, July 23 (A. P.).—In quarters close to President Truman it was said tonight that he and Premier Stalin had established a most cordial relationship productive of unexpected Russian concessions.

Mr. Truman was said to have won important United States aims at the Big Three conference, which held its seventh session today. The President was described as in a happy frame of mind over concessions won to date, all of which he wants to disclose to Congress as soon as he returns to the United States.

Men close to the President said he and Stalin had become closely attached to each other and had reached a stage of understanding considered impossible before the meetings opened last Tuesday.

A spokesman for the American delegation said the Big Three were "driving ahead" in their secret deliberations.

Warning to Japan Seen.

Many competent observers expressed the conviction that a broadcast United States surrender ultimatum to Japan held a thinly veiled warning that Soviet participation in the Pacific war, at least to some extent, was imminent.

It was known here that the Saturday night short-wave broadcast from Washington was authorized by President Truman and was cleared in Potsdam at the Little White House. Significance was attached to the warning to Japanese leaders that they would not be able to deal with the United States alone unless they surrendered promptly.

President Truman's position now was squarely before the Pacific enemy as the Big Three conference entered its second week. Victory over Japan is the President's prime objective in this conference. Japan has been told that she must suffer the responsibility for any further hostilities when the time comes for post-war settlements.

Meanwhile, as the President met daily with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin, unofficial reports emanating from the conference area indicated that satisfactory progress was being made toward settlement of many issues, such as the feeding of Germany, reparations, boundaries and other problems.

Sunday Session Held

The Big Three held a Sunday session yesterday, their sixth meeting since the opening of the conference. It was devoted to work on problems of peace, the American delegation announced.

The Big Three met again today and "are driving ahead," a spokesman for the American delegation said tonight.

May Wind Up This Week.

Whether the conference could be concluded this week was anybody's guess. The President is anxious to return to the United States and Churchill is anxious to be in London by Thursday for a report on the national British elections.

[In London it was expected that Churchill, leader of the Conservative party, and Clement Atlee, Labor party leader, would return Wednesday night from Potsdam. It was believed that, should the Churchill Government get a working majority, the Prime Minister, now head of Britain's caretaker Government, would return to Potsdam quickly. Should his party be defeated, an interruption in the work of the conference would seem inevitable.]

There was every reason to believe that the conference was proceeding smoothly and harmoniously. Saturday's American announcement that much serious business had been transacted, and the fact that there was a Sunday meeting, seemed to indicate that statesmen were reaching final decisions as fast as the foreign secretaries could clear problems for top level consideration.

There has been no joint communique from the conference since the original announcement of the first meeting last Tuesday. What news has been available on the conference has come to the press from the American delegation. All the copy is cleared through Army censors, who say they read it for security reasons.

President Truman attended both general Protestant and Catholic church services yesterday.

Mr. Truman, Churchill and members of their delegations were guests of Premier Stalin Saturday night at a formal State dinner.

Big 3 Is Expected To Warn Japan

Washington, July 23 (AP)—Efforts to force the unconditional surrender of Japan through psychological as well as military pressure are heading for a climax this week.

Officials here confidently expect some sort of statement from the Big Three at Potsdam to provide the maximum pressure, and the prospect is for a windup at Potsdam by Saturday.

Specter Of Russ Entry

Deeply involved in this situation is the possibility of Russian entrance into the war. Although that is a development Tokyo has long sought to prevent by all sorts of diplomatic maneuvers, it is one that much of the Allied world seems fairly certain of—unless the Japanese surrender before it can occur.

Evidently to take advantage of this situation, some United States agencies have been pressing a psychological campaign on the point of what unconditional surrender would mean to the Japanese people. At the same time, military leaders are forging ahead with plans for a war lasting at least until late next year.

Latest Developments

Here are top week-end developments in the psychological warfare:

1. In a Japanese language broadcast for the Office of War Information, Navy Capt. Ellis M. Zacharias told the Japanese they must surrender unconditionally to avoid the destruction of their country. He linked unconditional surrender with the Atlantic Charter, thereby appearing to hold out to the enemy the protection of that document. And he warned that a "dictated peace" must be expected by the Japanese if they refuse to surrender soon.

2. The OWI made a general press release of Zacharias's speech despite the fact that eleven previous speeches in his Japanese-language series had not been released for publication in this country.

A Liberalization?

The OWI described Zacharias as an "official spokesman of the United States Government." These circumstances raised speculation that the Government was taking this means of revealing a "liberalization" of the meaning of unconditional surrender.

3. Many hours after publication of the speech Saturday night, OWI Director Elmer Davis announced that it had merely been made public in response to press requests. The State Department said in response to questions that it had not specifically approved the pronouncement.

4. The State Department's view is that unconditional surrender still means primarily the destruction of enemy militarism and the removal of its stolen territory. President Truman stated several weeks ago that it would not mean the destruction of the Japanese people.

The View In Potsdam

5. Dispatches from Potsdam said the Zacharias broadcast was made with Mr. Truman's knowledge. Observers in Potsdam saw it as a thinly veiled warning to Japan that Russian participation in the war may be imminent.

6. Mr. Truman was reported to have taken with him to Berlin recommendations of various Government agencies on what should be done about the Japanese once they are defeated. These agreed on the old basic requirements for rendering the enemy harmless.

It is the general understanding in Washington that American policy is still so flexible as to allow the retention of Emperor Hirohito if that would help to pacify and control Japan.

Three Possibilities

The sort of psychological action that may be taken at Berlin presumably lies in one of three forms:

1. Stalin might join Mr. Truman and Churchill in a declaration warning the enemy to surrender or face the final destruction of his country.

2. A joint statement by Mr. Truman and Churchill with Stalin making an independent appeal to the enemy.

3. Stalin to serve as an intermediary between the Allied Pacific powers and those elements in Japan that are believed desirous of surrendering.

PEACE TERM BID TO TRUMAN SEEN

Wherry Asserts President Is Urged To Outline Them

Washington, July 23 (AP)—Senator Wherry (R., Neb.) said tonight he had been informed by a "high military source"—whom he declined to name—that a communication had been sent to President Truman urging him to stop the Pacific "slaughter" by outlining specific surrender terms.

Under suggestions in the purported communication, Japan would be stripped of her conquests and steps would be taken to destroy her capacity for aggression, but the emperor would retain his throne and Japan proper would avoid occupation.

Wherry, Republican whip of the Senate, told a reporter he was given to understand that the "high military source" compiled a list of Japanese "peace feelers" indicating the terms on which Japan might stop fighting. Partly on the basis of this compilation, a letter to Mr. Truman was drafted, Wherry quoted his informant as saying. Wherry said he was not informed who actually wrote the letter but he understood that the "high military man"—there was no indication just how high he was—agreed with the tenor of the letter.

Purported Communication

The purported communication to the President, an unsigned copy of which Wherry handed to a reporter, follows:

"President Harry S. Truman, Potsdam Conference, Potsdam, Germany:

"Won't you stop slaughter of American boys and Japanese civilians immediately by message from Potsdam promising Japan that immediately after her unconditional surrender the Emperor will be reinstated in accordance with Secretary Byrnes's promise that Japan shall retain her social and religious freedom and that the Emperor shall be empowered to set up a new Cabinet, acceptable to the Allies and one that will protect our vital interests; further, that we do not regard military occupation of Japan proper as necessary, but that a control commission be authorized to see to it that while Japan's social and economic problems are left in her own hands, her capacity for military aggression shall be completely destroyed. Other terms would be as already proclaimed in Cairo declaration with the added provision for the ordered withdrawal of Japanese troops from the continent after the Allies have moved in."

Action In Senate Planned

Wherry said he thought that if terms such as these were not acceptable to the President and the State Department, Mr. Truman ought to lay down the conditions which were.

"If those terms aren't harsh enough," the Nebraska Senator said, "then let's fix terms that are and let the Japanese know what they are. If we can end this war on our own terms by just stating the conditions now, we might save a great many lives."

Wherry said he intends to ask in the Senate tomorrow if any terms paralleling those suggested in the purported communication have come from Japan. He emphasized that he was not contending that any official document had been received from the Japanese, but he said he felt the State Department had been advised of "feelers."

Korea Freedom Also Pledged

Acceptance by Japan of the Cairo conditions, it was pointed out, would strip her of all of the islands in the Pacific which she has seized or occupied since the beginning of World War I in 1914.

She also would be forced to give up to the Chinese Manchuria, Formosa and the Pescadores, and would, in the language of the Cairo declaration, be "expelled from all other territories which she has taken by violence and greed."

The Cairo declaration, signed by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, also pledged freedom and independence for Korea "in due course."

Tokyo Is Wary Of Decisions At Potsdam

San Francisco, July 23 (AP)—The Tokyo radio today aired a demand on the Japanese Government for a "fresh, vigorous" diplomatic policy with Russia and, commenting on the Big Three meeting, said ominously:

"The Japanese people . . . must be prepared even at this time for the eventuality that the communiqué issued upon its conclusion will include provisions considerably unfavorable for Japan."

30.24-28591

The broadcast, by the Domei news agency, quoted the newspaper Sangyo Keizai, regarded as the largest commercial daily in Tokyo. Beamed in English to the United States, it was recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

"Closely Watching"

Declaring that the entire Japanese nation was "closely watching" developments at Potsdam, Domei quoted Keizai as urging the Foreign Office to "check to a minimum Japan's unfavorable position, while at the same time carrying out a fresh, vigorous policy, especially vis-à-vis the Soviet Union."

"Never was such a necessity so greatly desired of the Japanese foreign service," the dispatch said.

In another English-language overseas dispatch, Domei quoted without comment Generalissimo Joseph Stalin's order of the day on the Red Navy.

The Domei dispatch noted that Stalin had declared the Russian people wanted a "more powerful and mighty" navy and that Russia planned to "create new fighting craft and new bases."

Statement On Nazis Quoted

Also quoted was Stalin's statement on the part the Red Navy had played in the defeat of Germany.

Later today, Japanese Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo reported to Emperor Hirohito for the third time in ten days on Japan's foreign relations, the Tokyo radio disclosed.

Togo previously was reported to have discussed "matters under his jurisdiction" with Hirohito on July 13 and 18.

TASK FORCE HITS JAPAN AT DAWN IN 'GREAT STRENGTH'

JUL 24 1945

Assault on Base in Nip's Inland Sea Still in Progress, Nimitz Says.

GIVES NO DETAILS

Paramushiro Hammered by Cruisers, Destroyers on Sunday.

Spencer

GUAM, Tuesday, July 24.—(AP) Carrier planes of the U. S. Third Fleet are attacking the Japanese naval base at Kure, on Japan's inland sea, in "great strength" in an assault which began at dawn and is still in progress.

It was the second onslaught against a major enemy naval base in seven days, planes of the same force having heavily damaged the Japanese battleship Nagato and sunk 12 other ships at Yokosuka last Wednesday.

'Military Targets' Hit

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, who announced the present strike, gave no details. His terse communique said merely that the attack was on "military targets in the vicinity of Kure, in western Honshu." His use of the term "great strength," however, indicated that it was among the heaviest carrier-plane strikes of the war.

Previous use of the term has meant at least 1,000 planes were involved.

Nimitz also announced that on Sunday light units—probably cruisers and destroyers—of the Pacific fleet shelled Paramushiro in the northern Japanese Kurile islands but that fog obscured results. Since he specified the Pacific fleet, this force undoubtedly was from Aleutian waters, part of the Ninth fleet of Vice Admiral Frank Jack Fletcher.

On the same day, Sunday, American destroyers attacked enemy shipping directly off the coast of Chekiang province, China, south of Shanghai.

Several small craft were sunk and others damaged.

This was the first surface blow off the China coast, although planes have raided the area.

Planes Continue Blockade

As the swift American cruisers and destroyers thus roamed far afield, in and out of Japanese home waters, Nimitz reported that Fleet Air Wing One search planes continued their blockade of Korea and Japan. On Sunday they sank two cargo ships, set three on fire and left two others sinking in Tsushima straits near Korea and in the Yellow sea.

The fleet and naval planes were seeking to maintain their record of knocking enemy shipping out of action at the rate of 56 ships a day for the past fortnight.

The Kure attack by the carriers' torpedo planes, dive bombers and fighters was in the same area where the seaborne fliers on March 18 caught and sank the Japanese super-battleship Yamato, two cruisers and several destroyers.

Today's attack began at dawn, and several hours later still was in progress.

Location of battleships of the American and British fleets still was hidden by a security blackout, but customarily capital ships operate with the carriers.

Fails to Mention British

Nimitz announced, however, that the present blow was by the U. S. Third fleet, not mentioning the British.

If Yokosuka, which was attacked Wednesday, might be likened to the Brooklyn Navy yard, Kure is Japan's "Mare Island." What the carrier planes found there has not yet been disclosed.

Ships damaged in March may well have been still under repair there. In any event, it is probable that the yards were filled with war and merchant vessels. There also are many worth-while shore targets in the immediate vicinity.

The naval base is one of Japan's four biggest, the others being Yokosuka, Sasebo and Maidzuru (also called Maiduru.)

The bruised and crippled Japanese sea and air arms appeared power-less to ward off the rain of blows b Vice Admiral John S. McCain warned that the enemy might be saving up resources "and waiting for a more propitious time."

"We have had the advantage of being able to penetrate weather through which the Japs either would not or could not fly," he told Richard O'Malley, Associated Press correspondent with the fleet.

There was no indication that the typhoons which have been pinning down American air forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur were interfering with operations of the fleet in Japan's home waters.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced that one task force of light units moving into the outer waters of Tokyo bay wrecked a four-ship convoy yesterday.

A delayed dispatch from O'Malley told how carrier planes dived repeatedly through some of the heaviest antiaircraft fire ever seen over Japan and heavily damaged the Nagato's superstructure.

The Nagato was camouflaged and looked like a part of the pier as the first dive bombers snarled down, but by the time the bombs had marched across her deck the forward section was wrapped in smoke.

The 20-year-old battlewagon had been modernized and so far as is known never was damaged before. The other standard battleship still undamaged has not been identified.

Crewmen returning from yesterday's Superfort raid on a synthetic oil plant at Ube, on Japan's inland sea, reported "excellent results." A force of nearly 100 B29s dumped 450 tons of demolition bombs on the refinery and all bombers returned to base.

Privateer search planes winging even farther westward sank two small freighters and damaged two others off Korea's coast. The Japanese have been forced to use these small craft in their attempts to run the American aerial blockade of the home islands.

791 Jap Vessels, 596 Warplanes Hit In Two Weeks

JUL 24 1945

Spencer

Guam, July 23 (AP)—America's mighty Pacific Fleet thrust boldly inside the mouth of Tokyo's outer bay today to wreck a four-ship convoy, and Admiral Nimitz said carrier planes sweeping over the same waters Wednesday blew the top off one of Japan's last two seaworthy battleships. In all the carrier flyers sank or damaged 21 Japanese vessels. It was the fourteenth consecutive day that the fleet prowled unopposed off Japan—fourteen days in which the fleet and the far-ranging land-based planes of Admiral Nimitz and General MacArthur had sunk or damaged 791 vessels and small craft and destroyed or damaged 596 airplanes.

DAY

Fleet Splits Up

Significant of the total lack of opposition, the fleet today was operating in at least two widely separated units. While one light force ventured farther into Tokyo's outer bay than ever before, another shelled Chichi Jima, 550 miles southeast.

JUL 24 1945

Seventy-five to 100 Superforts added to the destruction today with a 450-ton demolition raid on the Ube synthetic-oil refinery on southwestern Honshu. The flyers reported "excellent results," and all planes returned.

Movements of the combined fleet's heavy units remained hidden by radio silence. There was no indication that typhoons, which staled MacArthur's aerial thrusts from Okinawa for the second consecutive day, had moved into the fleet's zone of action.

Eyes On China Coast

The Tokyo radio today placed the China coast high on America's invasion plans—while in Washington Maj. Gen. Allen Turnage, director of Marine Corps personnel, acknowledged that "the greatest of all amphibious operations are now in the making."

Marines, he said, "are ready to go ashore wherever and when ever strategy directs."

The Japanese Domei broadcast said landings in both China and Japan are being planned. "There are increasing indications," it said, "that the enemy is rushing preparations on the China coast side by side with his recently stepped-up moves in the direction of a direct invasion attack on the Japanese mainland."

More Troops Reach Manila

In Manila, more than 5,000 more American troops from the German front disembarked yesterday.

There were these new reports today of devastation in Japan:

United States carrier planes over Tokyo Bay July 18: Sank one destroyer, one cable layer, three small cargo vessels, seven motor torpedo boats; heavily damaged the superstructure of Japan's 32,700-ton battleship Nagato, moored at Yokosuka; blew the stern off an antiaircraft destroyer; damaged an old destroyer, four luggers and two small craft; destroyed six locomotives, four hangars, an ammunition dump, an oil tank, a power-plant transformer; hit many other railway, military and industrial targets; destroyed or damaged 72 Jap planes. Twelve American planes and 22 men were lost.

British Flyers Score

British carrier planes in the same action: Damaged 24 junks; damaged hangars and other airfield installations north of Tokyo; damaged railroad facilities and rolling stock at Katori; destroyed or damaged 38 Jap planes. Two British planes were lost, but the flyers were rescued.

In all, British and American flyers ravaged a 90-mile stretch of the Tokyo plains area.

United States battleships off Hitachi July 17: Damaged a copper refinery; inflicted "sever- damage" on the Hitachi engineering works and Hitachi arms factory.

Other Warship Blows

Third Fleet destroyer force west of Nojima (entrance to Tokyo's outer bay) today: Sank a medium and a small cargo ship, probably sank another medium cargo vessel, damaged an escort vessel.

Other light 3d Fleet units today bombarded Omura town, on Chichi Jima, 550 miles south of Tokyo.

The 7th Fighter Command made a 109-plane raid on the Osaka area's airfields, railroads and factories yesterday. They destroyed two Japanese planes and seven locomotives, damaged three power plants, hangars and factories and one large and ten small ships. One Mustang was lost.

Two hundred Mustangs, Tokyo said, struck a wide range of targets and started fires in the Osaka-Kobe district while escorting "smaller forces" of Superforts.

In Washington, the Navy reported today that pilots of Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's Task Force Fifty-eight shot dow 1,640 Japanese planes between March 14 and May 28, while opening and supporting Okinawa operations.

In addition, 619 enemy planes were destroyed on the ground, and another 1,000 were listed as probably destroyed or damaged, for a total of 3,259 destroyed or damaged during the seventy-six days.

Task Force Fifty-eight aircraft also sank 220 vessels, probably sank 150 and damaged 759 during the same period. In surface engagements ships of the task force sank two submarines, damaged another and sank a coastal vessel. Ships destroyed by aircraft included the Battleship Yamato and an Agano class heavy cr...ser.

On one day, April 6, Japanese planes shot down totaled 249, with an American loss of only two.

Although typhoons stalled MacArthur's aerial offensive against Japan for the second straight day, he reported thirty-six small craft bombed and strafed in Amoy harbor, on China's southeast coast; seven others hit off Hongkong, and a destroyer escort damaged in the Gulf of Siam. Japan's Domei agency also reported 100 American fighters and bombers struck Shanghai airfields yesterday.

WAR INDUSTRIES ARE BLASTED IN DAYLIGHT ATTACK

4,000 Tons of Explosives Showered on Major Nip Factories.

Dopking

HIT AT LUNCH TIME

B-29s Stage Largest Assault of Pacific War with Fighter Escort.

GUAM, Tuesday, July 24—(AP) A record-breaking strike by more than 600 B-29s attacked industrial targets in the Osaka-Nagoya region with nearly 4,000 tons of explosives at noon today.

NIGHT

It was the first Superfort strike in daylight in nearly a month.

The Superforts, splitting into several task forces, swooped brazenly wthout fighter escort at altitudes ranging from medium to high and dropped their loads of demolition bombs, weighing from 500 to 4,000 pounds each.

The giant B-29s spread out for miles overhead like great silvery sharks as they caught two of Japan's most highly industrialized areas just at lunch time.

First Day Raid in Weeks

It was the first daylight strike on the Japanese home islands since June 26, when 10 aircraft and airplane parts factories in four Honshu industrial areas were hit by nearly 500 B-29s.

Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, commander of the 20th Air force, did not immediately announce the number of targets on today's schedule, but it was likely the B-29s had several objectives as they struck with the largest force yet sent over Japan.

This was the third raid by more than 600 planes, but headquarters said that while exact figures would not be released, today's was the largest attack yet.

Osaka, population 3,250,000, is Japan's second largest city. It has iron, steel, electrical, aluminum, oil, airplane, and shipbuilding industries.

It has been attacked five times previously, the first in March and four in June.

17th Raid on Nagoya

For Nagoya, one of Japan's four largest industrial centers and an important aircraft manufacturing city, this was the 17th attack by Superforts.

Since June 26, the Superforts have been concentrating on incendiary blows against smaller enemy cities as profitable targets were becoming harder and harder to find in debris of the oft-bombed larger cities.

Since Feb. 25, the B-29s' incendiaries burned out more than 140 square miles of Japanese cities.

In their June 26 daylight raid, the B-29s hit both Nagoya and Osaka and also attacked Gifu and Akashi from medium altitude. They had fighter escort then.

JUL 24 1945

They lost only five planes in the then record strike at military and industrial installations.

By flying unescorted today, the B-29s displayed utter contempt for what is left of the Japanese air defense, which refused to scrap with the Seventh fighter command's Iwo-based Mustangs in their Tokyo sweeps or with Admiral Halsey's Third fleet carrier planes.

DOOLITTLE FLIERS TO BOMB JAPAN WITHIN 10 DAYS

GUAM, July 23—(AP) Jimmy Doolittle disclosed his return to the Pacific war today and announced that planes under his command—this time and henceforth mighty Superforts and escorting Thunderbolt fighters of the redeployed Eighth air force—would be raiding Japan by Aug. 1.

The colorful Army air commander said at an interview that he had already inspected his new headquarters and striking base at Okinawa. He declared the newly-conquered island, only 325 miles from the Japan mainland and about 900 miles from Tokyo, was an excellent base.

Doolittle, now a lieutenant general, was a lieutenant colonel when he led the first American raid on Japan April 18, 1942.

His little force of 16 medium B-25 Billy Mitchell bombers flew 800 miles from the flight deck of the Navy carrier Hornet to reach Tokyo and other target cities in that first attack.

Doolittle himself took the first plane off the carrier and subsequently reached safety in China. He said he did not expect to fly again personally over Japan, pointing out that he had been denied permission to make European missions.

Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, who refused the permission, will again be Doolittle's superior in the Pacific, as commander of the strategic air forces.

Doolittle's Okinawa-based B-29s and fighters will add their destructive power to the 20th air force's Superforts based in the Marianas. He said that the first targets would be in Japan but that it was possible his Superforts would also range over China, Manchuria and Mongolia.

The China coast is only 400 miles from Okinawa and the Japanese occupied areas of Asia are all within striking distance of the Eighth air force's B-29s.

In reply to a question whether air power alone could knock Japan out of the war, Doolittle said: "There is always the possibility of Japan's folding, but we make no claims that we will do so."

He disclosed that about half of his Eighth air force had been redeployed from Europe to the Pacific. Some remained in Europe and some are still training in the United States for action against Japan.

Doolittle's staff will include a number of officers from the old B-29 20th Bomber command, which operated in the China-Burma-India theater until the recent transfer to the Marianas.

8th AAF Will Hit Japs In 8 Days, Doolittle Says

Spencer

Guam, July 23 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle, who led the first bombing raid on Tokyo, promised today that his 8th Army Air Force would be attacking Japan within eight days.

Newly arrived in the Pacific, Doolittle said his airmen who helped flatten Germany would be taking off from Okinawa by August 1 in Superforts to join Marianas-based B-29's and other air forces in softening up Nippon.

B-29's And P-47's

Dolittle, veteran of the first bombing of Tokyo—with B-25's from the carrier Hornet on April 18, 1942—said the 8th Air Force would be supplied of Superforts and whatever P-47's are necessary to protect them against Japanese resistance. He said the first targets would be on Japan proper.

It is possible, however, he added, that targets in China, Manchuria and even Mongolia may be attacked by his Superforts if necessary.

Doolittle disclosed that about half of his 8th Air Force veterans of the European theater had been deployed. Some remained in Europe and others went to the United States for training preparatory to coming to the Pacific.

Okinawa Excellent Base

Asked when the 8th would reach its maximum strength in the Pacific he said that was contingent upon acquisition of airfields, establishment of logistical support and establishment of communications.

He termed Okinawa an excellent site for a powerful airbase with its abundant coral and good soil for airfields. He has already visited the area and supervised the establishment of his headquarters.

In a conference with the press after meeting Lieut. Gen. Barney Giles, deputy commander of United States Strategic Air Forces, Doolittle said the 8th Air Force would act as a complement to the 20th Air Force in its operations against Japan.

Flyers Work With Others

"In this operation the air force makes no claims to having won the war or that it is going to win the war," Doolittle said. "Our job is co-ordinating with all other forces to make sure that fewer boys will be lost."

Asked if he was planning to return with his bombers over Japan he said he had pleaded with Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, commander of the Strategic Air Forces, to permit him to fly over Germany but because of his knowledge of future plans his request was flatly rejected.

"I imagine the same condition will maintain here," he said. Doolittle was highly enthusiastic over his command. He said the B-29 is "the greatest airplane in the world—there is nothing comparable to it."

Doolittle's staff will have numerous officers from the old 20th Bomber Command which operated in the China-Burma-India theater. In addition, officers from the United States will be brought in to give them an opportunity at combat.

RUGGED LUZON AREA FALLING

Yanks Advance On "Skeleton Road" In North Mountains

Manila, Tuesday, July 24 (AP)—One of the toughest actions of the mopping-up campaign in the Philippines was being pushed today in the wild and rugged mountain area of northern Luzon island.

In that forbidding sector troops of America's 6th Infantry Division drove 8 miles along "Skeleton Road" and captured Banaue, Japanese mountain retreat. The Yanks were within 2½ miles of Philippine army forces punching through the region from the northwest.

Road Sections Blasted

The going was slow because the Japanese had blasted out sections of the road along which the Americans advanced. Japanese skeletons lined the road, attesting to the sharpshooting abilities of United States flyers who had bombed and strafed roads and trails repeatedly.

When the Yanks make juncture with the Filipino forces the hungry, hopeless and poorly armed Japanese remnants still in the mountains will be split into three segments.

Many natives report that among the remnants is Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, Nippon commander-in-chief in the Philippines and the officer who led the successful blitz of Singapore. While some reports insist that Yamashita flew to safety weeks ago, native reports and Radio Tokyo say he is among those trapped in the mountains.

Some Japs Surrendering

Some of the Japanese are quitting voluntarily. Seventy-five Nippon soldiers and nine civilians surrendered last Friday.

A communiqué Monday, covering action during the previous week, listed 3,619 additional Japanese dead and 403 prisoners.

American losses were 12 killed, 2 missing, 48 wounded.

The new figures boosted to a grand total of 423,764 over-all Japanese casualties in their Philippines campaign. Of the total all but 11,171 listed as prisoners represented fatalities.

Luzon Yanks Near Filipino Forces

DAVIS

Manila, July 23 (AP)—American 6th Infantry Division troops, driving 8 miles along a highway lined with enemy dead, have captured the Japanese mountain retreat of Banaue in northern Luzon and are within 2½ miles of a junction with Philippine Army forces pushing down from the northwest.

When the two join, Japanese remnants on the island will be divided into three segments, in one of which, according to persistent native reports, is Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, once commander of all the Philippines.

A headquarters spokesman disclosed these new gains in the grinding cleanup campaign as a communiqué announced that during the past week 3,629 Japanese dead had been counted and 403 of the enemy had surrendered, raising their casualties for the entire Philippines to 432,764, including 11,171 captured.

Twelve Yanks Killed

American casualties for the week were twelve killed, two missing and 48 wounded.

Although the Philippine liberation is officially three weeks old, the 6th Division advance northward along Highway 4 has been one of the most difficult of the entire campaign.

The highway, which the troops call "Skeleton Row," has been dynamited by the Japanese in three places where it clung to a rock ledge above gorges.

One American jeep was caught between the firt two blocks and has remained there, performing a shuttle service along the 2½ miles from one gap to another. Across the gaps themselves it is necessary to carry everything by hand. At another point the American engineers bridged the Ibulao River by using wrecked enemy trucks as piers.

AUSSIE PATROLS ADVANCE 3 MILES

MANILA, Tuesday, July 24—(AP) Australian patrols have thrust out three miles along the inland road leading north from Balikpapan to the big oil center of Samarinda on eastern Borneo, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

Behind the patrols, other Australian troops overran Japanese positions around Mount Batochampar, six miles north of Balikpapan, striking by night and heading off an enemy attempt to withdraw. Several truck loads of enemy troops were killed.

The Japanese had made a strong stand around Batochampar, taking advantage of its natural defense positions blocking the road to Samarinda, which is about 65 miles north of Balikpapan.

Bivouac areas on the Mahakam river delta east of Samarinda were attacked under cover of night by light naval units.

Fighter units of the Royal Australian air force bombed and strafed ground positions on the Balikpapan front and swept up into northern Borneo, where fires were started in storage areas around Sandakan.

Aussies Advance After New Landing

Manila, July 23 (AP)—Australian 7th Division troops, in a 6-mile amphibious operation, landed in the mangrove swamps at the head of Balikpapan Bay in southeastern Borneo and pushed inland against no resistance, General MacArthur's headquarters reported today.

The Australians seized the village of Tempadeong and then advanced southeast to the village of Berangos as they and Dutch colonial troops extended the campaign to secure fullest control of that oil-rich country. Japanese barges hidden in the broad Riko River arm of Balikpapan Bay south of the landing sector were shot up by rocket-firing Allied landing craft.

Small Freighter Sunk

In north Borneo, where the Australian 9th Division is pressing slowly toward the enemy base of Jesselton, United States 13th Air Force and Royal Australian Air Force planes sank a small Japanese freighter off shore and bombed and strafed Jesselton itself.

Ground operations in the north, some 30 miles southwest of Jesselton, were confined to patrolling.

Carrier Expert Thinks Japs Conserve Power

O'MALLEY

JUL 24 1945

Aboard Admiral McCain's Flagship in the Western Pacific, July 20 [AP—Delayed]—Hopes that Japan's continued passive policy as the big Allied naval force strikes repeatedly from deep in enemy waters means that Nippon's ability to resist is nearly ended were discounted by Admiral John S. McCain today.

McCain, an expert in carrier warfare who knows the Japanese thoroughly, explained that the Japanese probably "are conserving and waiting for a more propitious time" before they strike back.

Favored By Bad Weather

Dirty weather, through which United States pilots have been flying, has been another factor favoring strikes by this great naval force, now swelled by British men-of-war.

"We have had the advantage of being able to penetrate weather through which the Japs either would not or could not fly," McCain said. "Our people are extraordinarily well trained."

He commented on the July 18 raid, when no aerial opposition was offered to American forces in Tokyo Bay.

Saw Only One Plane

"Not a single plane," he said, "rose to meet our people. They saw only one twin-engined plane airborne, and could not catch it.

"The British can always fight. You can rely on them every time. They fitted in as part of the force with no appreciable adjustments whatsoever. They always have been a tremendously effective partner in a scrap. I do hope that they consider us as worthy allies as we do them."

Flyers Tell Of Ship Raid

O'Malley

Aboard Admiral McCain's Flagship off Tokyo, July 18 [AP—Delayed] — American carrier planes attacking in great force virtually blanketed the big Yokosuka naval base in Tokyo Bay today and smashed at the battleship Nagato. Damage was believed to be heavy.

Meanwhile, British carrier planes lashed out at airfields north of Tokyo.

The Japanese offered no aerial opposition as bombs plummeted down on one of their two remaining battleships. Only one plane, a twin-engine type, was seen in the air. It appeared over Yokosuka Bay, making no effort to fight. It scurried across the flak-filled harbor seeking safety.

Anti-Aircraft Strong

Enemy anti-aircraft fire was unusually strong, but many enemy batteries were silenced by bombing and strafing airmen.

Pilots said that about 500 planes swooped down on Yokosuka and caught many ships in the harbor. The Nagato was tied up at a pier.

Fighters sought out airfields, damaging and destroying 27 planes on the ground. They destroyed one hangar and one transformer building and damaged four hangars. Rockets derailed four electric cars.

An estimated 1,500 planes, counting the British, took part in the over-all attack, which was carefully co-ordinated.

Attack Described

Lieut. Bayard Webster, New York, pilot of a fighter-bomber, told of the attack on the Nagato, which Japan used in the second battle of the Philippines.

"We came in at 18,000 feet and they started shooting then. It was the highest I ever saw them shoot at a small plane," he said. "Flak did not have to be accurate, for there were about 500 planes over the naval base.

"We were the second group to hit and Commander Weddell (Lieut. Com. Edward V. Weddell, Coronado, Cal.) did a helluva good job leading us in."

Webster, flying his second tour of duty, said the anti-aircraft fire was the heaviest he ever saw.

Fairly Well Camouflaged

"The Nagato was fairly well camouflaged and looked like part of the pier as we went down through flak bursts to get her. I saw three hits on her top. Two were on the forward part of the ship midway between the No. 1 and No. 2 turrets."

Lieut. (jg) Donald Loeffler, of Detroit, reported that smoke rolled from the forward part of the big ship. "I could see gray and black smoke coming forward of the stack, but I saw no fire. I also saw black smoke—lots of it. In another part of the bay flak was heavy. A cruiser was firing and I saw red tracers going by me, but I never saw so many airplanes in my life. The sky seemed jammed with them," he said.

3 'Dead' U. S. Flyers Return

Reach Philippines After 6 Months in Borneo Wilds; Japs Killed 5 of Their Buddies.

DAVIS

Manila, July 23 (A. P.).—Three flyers of the United States Seventh Fleet, reported missing and presumed to be dead, have returned to a Navy advanced air base in the Philippines after surviving six months in enemy-held Borneo.

They are Lieut. (j.g.) Robert J. Graham of Rosemont, Pa., Reuben L. Robbins, aviation machinists mate of Onak, Wash., and James R. Shepherd, aviation machinists mate second class of San Diego, Cal.

Five of the six other members of their Liberator patrol bomber were captured and killed by Japanese. The sitxh escaped earlier.

While on a routine mission on January 13, their big plane was attacked by four enemy fighters and forced to land in a rice paddy near Brunei Bay. One man had been fatally wounded in the aerial attack but nine survivors, unharmed in the crash landing, jumped from the bomber as it sank in the mud.

oFr thirteen days they walked into the hinterland. They were weak and hungary and all of them suffered from malaria.

"It looked for a time as if the mosquitoes would claim all of us," Graham said. "Robbins and Shepherd were flat on their backs for three weeks."

Japanese patrols drew close to the little band. For security, the party split itno three groups and hid in the jungle.

Graham heard that two Army airmen were hiding out in another village and after a four day walk in which he was trained by Nipponese patrols he succeeded in reaching them. The Army flyers convinced Graham they stood a better chance of escape if the groups got together, so the party of three turned back to the village where Graham's friends had set up camp.

To their horror, they found that Japanese had caught five of the original party and had executed them.

They left the area as quickly as possible and walked deeper into the jungle toward a village where natives had indicated there were five more white men. There hey found a friendly, Dutch official who fed them soluid meats and cooked foods.

With the help of natives they built a crude airstrip by embedding bamboo slabs in the mud. An Australian plane spotted the stranded Americans and carried the mout of the wilderness to safety.

MEXICAN FLYER IN FORMOSA RAID

Clark Field, Luzon, July 23 (A. P.).—Capt. Jesus Blanco, one of Mexico's veteran pilots, now holds the distinction of being the first member of the Mexican Expeditionary Air Force to hit Japanese territory. Blanco flew in a Liberator strike at Formosa.

Blanco has other "famous firsts" to his record. He was the first member to join Mexico's first Expeditionary Air Force and activateed the 201st Fighter Squadron at Mexico City last year. He also was the first bombadier to win wings with the Mexican Air Force. In addition, Blanco was the first air intelligence officer to function as such with the Mexican Army.

One of Mexico's well-known writers and poets has put down his pen and is helping the Mexican force take part in the air blows against Japan. He is Corp Hugo Seaman, and he's assigned as a unit mail clerk in the headquarters of the 201st Fighter Squadron of the Mexican Expetionary Air Force. Seaman has contributed to many of the foremost Latin American literary reviews and magazines of verse. Since his arrival overseas Seaman has begun an epic poem, "Cartes de Overseas," relating his impressions of a soldier's life in the war against Japan.

JAPS' SCREAMS TURN TO YELPS

Soldier From Flushing Is a Hero on Okinawa.

J. A. KAHL

With the Ninety-sixth Division on Okinawa, July 14 (By Mail) (A. P.).—Company L, 303d Infantry, won the Distinguished Unit citation for its valor that day on Kakazu Ridge, but actually companies do not fight. The story of Company L is the story of individual brave men.

Outstanding among them was Pfc. Joseph I. Solch of 15918 46th avenue, Flushing, N. Y., an automatic rifleman. His company attacked Kakazu Ridge before dawn. The men got up on top all right, but when the light broke their protecting cover of darkness, the Japanese let loose. Many were hit; the others split into two small pockets.

First Sgt. Milton Shepsky of Chicago, then platoon sergeant over Solch's group, saw an enemy "buzz bomb" (320-mm mortar) launching site off to the right flank. He sent six men—including Solch—over to try to knock it out.

"They crawled out about 100 yards," said Shepsky, "when the Japs opened up on them with a smaller, protecting mortar. A shell landed right in the midst of our men; every one was hit except Solch; all were pinned flat to the ground. The Japs knew that we couldn't reach them to help, so the Nips sent out several groups in an attempt to wipe out those six men. Every time they attacked, Solch would raise up on his elbows, and throw them back with automatic rifle fire.

His Job—He Did It.

"He stayed out ther for several hours, protecting those wounded men. It was his job and, as he always did, he performed his job coolly and intelligently, without thought of heroics or glory.

"Finally, one by one, those wounded men were able to crawl back to our lines. The medic who was with them was too badly hurt to move; Solch put him on his back, and crawled with him 100 yards through constant machine-gun fire to bring that boy out.

"But still his job wasn't over. Just after he got back to the rest of the platoon, 40 or 50 Japs sneaked up to within a few feet of us and suddenly jumped into the air screaming and yelling and rushing toward us. Every one was paralyzed except Solch; he got up, and shot three clips (60 rounds) into that frenzied mob in a few seconds. The other men saw him, and were galvanized into action. The Japs were thrown back—not one got through."

That night, the company ran out of ammunition and had to withdraw. Solch, Shepsky, and one other man stayed until the rest were safe, delivering protecting fire.

Solch was later put in charge of a platoon, and led it outstandingly for a couple of weeks. On April 27th he was wounded while he was out in front of his men. He is now in a hospital.

Cook Cooks Jap's Goose

Manila, July 23—The Jap on Luzon has just had a fatal introduction to the secret weapon of Pfc. Joe Siragusa, of New York city.

Siragusa was hauling cooks and breakfast to the 43d Division troops when the party spotted a Nip ahead, brandishing a grenade.

As the Nip struck the percussion cap on a rock, Siragusa jumped from the truck and hurled four oversize kitchen spoons at him.

The Jap ducked, but when he regained his balance the grenade had cooked too long. It blew up in his hand. Siragusa's weapons are all still in use, but only for nonmilitary purposes.

Vigorous Diplomatic Policy Urged on Japs Toward Reds

JUL 24 1945

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23—(AP) A Japanese broadcast prepared the enemy homefront today for bad news from the Big Three conference and proposed "a fresh, vigorous" diplomatic policy toward Russia.

The Domei agency quoted Sangyo Keizai, Tokyo commercial newspaper, as urging the foreign office to "check to a minimum Japan's unfavorable position while at the same time carrying out a fresh, vigorous policy, especially vis-a-vis the Soviet Union."

While this might be interpreted as either a policy of conciliation or of belligerence, the tone of the dispatch as heard by the Federal Communications commission was clear in regard to the Potsdam conference and President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.

"The Japanese people," said the newspaper, "must be prepared. . . for the eventuality that the communique to be issued upon its conclusion will include provisions considerably unfavorable for Japan."

Domei quoted without comment Stalin's order of the day to the Red Navy saying that Russia planned to "create new fighting craft and new bases."

Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo reported to Emperor Hirohito on foreign affairs for the third time in ten days.

The Tokyo newspaper Asahi declared that fleet shellings of Japan were designed as "demonstrations of strength" to impress the Potsdam conferees.

Allied Attack On Kuriles Island Reported By Japs

San Francisco, July 23 (AP)—Seven "enemy warcraft of unidentified category" attacked Mount Suribachi on Paramushiro Island in the Kuriles on Sunday (Japanese time), the Tokyo radio said today in a report unconfirmed by American military sources.

The Kuriles are northeast of the main Japanese islands.

On the same day, Tokyo said, Japanese destroyers "attacked and repulsed" three submarines that appeared off Chichi Island in the Bonin group, south of Tokyo, two and a half hours before the island was shelled by American surface ships.

Reports Attack On Subs

Earlier, Tokyo said submarines were attacked by subchasers in the "South Pacific." The broadcast did not make clear whether the actions were the same.

Acknowledging the latest B-29 attack on the Nipponese mainland Tokyo reported that about 30 Superfortresses hit Kudamatsu and the "vicinity" of Ube, both in Yamaguchi prefecture, on the home island of Honshu.

Ube Declared Target

American reports from Guam said the force numbered from 75 to 100 B-29's and that Ube was the target. No mention was made of an attack on Kudamatsu, about 30 miles east of Ube, on the southern coast of Honshu.

Tokya said the Ube-Kudamatsu bombing was carried out in two waves and that part of the force had sown mines in the Kanmon Strait, between Honshu and Kyushu Islands, at the entrance to the inland sea.

Another report, unconfirmed, said about eight destroyers fired on a Japanese convoy, damaging one transport ship, "off the southern tip of the Boso Peninsula" on Sunday.

The enemy radio declared Japanese warships opened fire and "the violence of shellfire continued for 20 minutes," but made no claim that any American ships were hit.

Thirteen B-29's dropped mines in the waters off the southern and eastern coasts of Korea early today, Tokyo reported.

Commenting on the reported convoy attack, Tokyo observed that this indicated Allied warships were still prowling in Japanese waters in movements aimed "not only at strategical objectives, the destruction of our air strength, war production and communications systems but also at propaganda directed toward impairing the morale of the Japanese home front."

Shellings Called Unimportant

Recent naval bombardment of Japan, Tokyo's Asahi newspaper argued, was designed to "impress the Big Three conference" in Potsdam. Claiming the shellings were unimportant, Asahi said Americans "merely succeeded in increasing their worries about the whereabouts of the Japanese air force."

The surface attacks, said Asahi, offered "a beautiful opportunity for us to come to a true evaluation of the real effectiveness of the enemy's big naval guns. As a result, we know now that it is not true that one American battleship, with its big guns, can do as much damage as 1,000 bombing planes."

MANILA INTERNMENT FATAL

Wife of Editor Succumbs on the Coast—Starved by Japanese

SAN FRANCISCO, July 23 (AP)—Mrs. Peggy Boguslav, aged 28, wife of the former editor of The Manila Tribune and for over three years a prisoner in the Japanese concentration camp at Santo Tomas, died today at United States Marine Hospital of a heart disease brought on by starvation diet during internment.

Mrs. Boguslav, who was Peggy Buell of Mount Clemens, Mich., was brought here May 6 on a hospital ship. She developeed pneumonia soon after arrival and also suffered from heart disease and malnutrition.

Soon after graduation from college in 1937, Mrs. Boguslav went to the Philippines, where she worked in the advertising department of a newspaper until her marriage to Mr. Boguslav.

Her husband, who became a radio broadcaster and war correspondent in the Philippines after liberation, was flown from Manila by the Army when his wife's condition became serious. He was with her when she died.

CHARGES NAZIS LIVE IN LUXURY

Moscow Radio Declares Prisoners Get Fatter.

London, July 23 (A. P.).—The Moscow radio said today that Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering, Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz and Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop were "resting in luxury in a Luxembourg place," where they were "growing fatter and more insolent."

The broadcast referred to the hotel at Mondorf, Luxembourg, where fifty-two leading Nazis are held by the United States Army.

"This animal preserve for Hitler's breed," said the commentator, is situated "in picturesque environs far from inquisitive eyes.

"There the notorious war criminals, Goering, Doenitz, Ribbentrop and others of their ilk, are resting in luxury in a palace after their bout of sanguinary carnage. Nothing but the finest vintages and the finest foods will do for them. After so much hard work these poor fellows must be allowed to rest and the latest model automobiles are theirs to drive around the grounds. The only thing that they are denied are newspapers—so as not to spoil their mood or appetite with some slighting remark about their august presence."

[An Associated Press dispatch on Saturday from Mondorf quoted Col. B. C. Andrus, whose 391st Anti-aircraft Battalion guards the Nazis, as saying: "We stand for no coddling here. These men are in jail. We have certain rules and those rules are obeyed." Another A. P. dispatch said that films of the Buchenwald concentration camp and other Nazi horror spots have been shown the internees, several of whom reflected their nervousness. It was reported that one prisoner who misconducted himself was placed in solitary confinement for three days.]

Reds' Reparation Issue May Be Under Discussion

London, July 23 (AP)—A Foreign Office commentator said today that the question of Russia collecting reparations from Germany before the final peace agreement "no doubt" was under discussion at the Potsdam conference.

Russia has been reported moving machinery from Germany.

The commentator declined comment on the report that the Big Three at Yalta fixed a $20,000,000,000 reparation payment for Germany. The reports have been consistent in one respect—that Russia is to receive at least half the amount. The difference was over how the other $10,000,000,000 was to be divided. (The New York Herald Tribune said the United States and Britain were to get twenty per cent each and smaller countries the remaining ten per cent.)

Reliable Source Cited

One usually reliable informant said Russia would get 52 per cent and that the United States and Britain would receive 24 per cent each, or just under $5,000,000,000. Under this plan the claims of small nations which Germany overran would be considered later and be paid on a basis of 2-1-1 distribution from the Big Three shares.

Some smaller countries have been reported protesting privately about the reparation formulas, contending that while their contribution to victory has been small their suffering and losses have been greater.

Question Of Collection

One of the unsettled questions apparently has been the manner in which the United States would collect its share. There have been indications that the United States would demand at least the use of what remains of the German merchant marine and navy as long as the war with Japan lasts.

Russia also has expressed interest in German shipping as part of a long-range plan to build up her navy to something approaching the standard of the Red Army. This interest has been underscored by reported demands on Turkey for revision of the Montreaux convention governing the Dardanelles, guardian straits to the Black Sea.

British Take Over Empty Houses

London, July 23 (A. P.).—City officials have started to take over hundreds of empty houses in the last few days in quick use of new powers to requisition idle dwellings in an attempt to ease Britain's critical housing shortage.

After groups of "vigilantes" forced the issue by moving homeless families of service men into unoccupied homes by night, the Government last week broadened the power of local authorities to take over houses after fourteen days' notice if they are not being used. The vigilantes charged that many were being held idle by owners seeking to sell at boom prices.

6 NIP SHIPS SUNK

LONDON, July 23—(AP) RAF Sunderland bombers in attacks over a nine-day period sank six Japanese ships and damaged 15 off the Tenasserim coast of southeast Burma in waters west of Thailand, the Air Ministry announced tonight. The ships were carrying petroleum and other supplies from the Dutch East Indies and Singapore to Japanese forces in southern Burma and Indo-China, the ministry said.

SCHOOLS SET UP IN BRITISH PRISONS

London, July 23 (A. P.).—A program of rehabilitation and vocational training is being developed in British prisons to replace the old rule of "hard labor, hard fare and a hard bed," a booklet issued by the Home Office disclosed today. In addition to making many war implements in prison factories, the convicts have also received special training in trade schools for jobs they can fill after their release.

Other prisoners have been sent to help short-handed farmers raise and harvest crops. Few have tried to escape.

Other changes in prison methods included: Shortening the maximum period for a bread and water diet to three days; permitting conversation at work and in the exercise yards; privileges formerly earned by good conduct now are granted to all and are removed only for misconduct; radios and periodicals are permitted in prison, though newspapers are still barred.

U. S. Asks Denmark's Aid in Greenland

London, July 23 (A. P.).—The Danish legation announced today that the United States has asked Denmark to take over five of the sixteen American-operated weather reporting stations in Greenland and to supply personnel for them by the end of this month.

Fire Threatens U. S. Bombs

PETAIN, ON TRIAL FOR LIFE, DENIES BETRAYING FRANCE

Sacrificed Prestige to Spare Nation, Marshal Tells Court.

DISORDERS FLARE

Gendarmes with Tommy-guns Clear Courtroom as Bedlam Holds Sway.

PARIS, July 23—(AP) Aged Marshal Henri Philippe Petain went on trial for his life today amid angry catcalls and disorderly courtroom uproars, and asserted that, far from betraying France, he had "prepared the road to liberation."

Proudly displaying the medals France had given him, the 89-year-old former Vichy chief of state answered charges of intelligence with France's hereditary enemy, Germany, and plotting against the security of France by saying:

"I sacrificed my prestige for the French people. If I've treated with the enemy, it was to spare you."

Unrolls Bitter Facts

In a jammed and noisy courtroom, once cleared by gendarmes carrying tommyguns, the fallen giants of France unrolled the bitter facts of France's 1940 defeat as Petain sat calmly before the high court of justice and a 24-man jury.

The old marshal's own assertion from the prisoner's dock that as Vichy chief he was "shield and buckler" protecting the French people was followed by testimony from Paul Reynaud—the premier who brought Petain into the French government—that the marshal was responsible for the armistice despite a solemn pact with Britain not to make a separate peace.

Reynaud's voice quivered with emotion when he described as his "monumental error" his belief that the patriotism of Petain and Gen. Maxime Weygand "was greater than their political aims and their personal ambitions."

"I despise him," Reynaud said. In a clipped almost breathless voice, Reynaud declared that as premier in June 1940 he was determined to remove the French government to North Africa and continue the war. Petain, he charged, opposed the plan and he was afraid of Petain's prestige and of the effect on France if Petain resigned as vice-premier.

Petain, his face expressionless through most of the session, stirred uneasily only when his enemy stepped briskly into the witness box within arm's reach. Their eyes never met. The old soldier cupped his ear to hear Reynaud more clearly.

Three times in the five-hour session between 1 p. m. and 6 p. m. the three scarlet-and ermine-robed judges headed by grizzled Paul Mongibeaux adjourned to consider defense charges levelled against themselves and to await a clearing of the disordered courtroom.

Reynaud On Stand

When the tumultuous first day of the trial ended after threats to arrest the spectators, Reynaud, a prosecution witness, still was on the stand and his statement was only one-third completed. The trial will resume at 1 p. m. (7 a. m. E.W.T.) tomorrow.

High point of the trial's first session was a six-page declaration Petain asked to read after the names of the prosecution witnesses were called. Nearly 90 witnesses have been summoned for the trial, the list including former Premiers Leon Blum, Edouard Daladier, Edourd Herriot and former French President Albert Lebrun.

Petain said his statement would be his only words during the trial, the first of the head of a French government since King Louis XVI was convicted and guillotined in 1793 for "treating with the enemy."

"While Gen. de Gaulle continued the struggle abroad, I prepared the road to liberation," he argued.

Petain asserted that the "French people gave me power to direct the nation" through the national assembly at Vichy. "I've come to answer to them alone," he said.

The "Hero of Verdun," who rose from an obscure army colonel at the start of the First World war, added: "Let the French people remember I led their armies to victory in 1918."

"In the most tragic days of France's history, she called on me again," he said, asserting he was "heir to an unprecedented catastrophe," and that he only carried out the advice of military leaders when he asked the Germans for an armistice.

"Faced with the enemy's demands I surrendered nothing essential although we had daggers at our throats." Petain then called on those condemning him to ask themselves whether they "did as much."

He said millions of Frenchmen had faith in him and "by condemning me you will condemn them." "Let my condemnation be the last," he said. "Do not punish those who only obeyed the orders of their leaders."

Catcalls Greet Statement

Petain's statement was greeted with sneers and catcalls. Then Prosecutor Andre Mornet, one of France's most famous criminal lawyers who convicted Mata Hari, the woman spy of World War 1, shouted the assertion:

"There are too many Germans in this room."

Protests and cries of "justice" rang out from all sides. Jacques Isorny, a defense counsel, demanded a formal apology and Mornet retorted: "I said there are too many people here serving the German cause. I didn't say they were Germans but I consider them the same thing."

Again the courtroom erupted. Spectators rose from their seats and there followed 25 minutes of bedlam as black-robed lawyers and indignant spectators plunged into the screaming melee.

Petain was hustled from the dock under guard and his chair and table were knocked over as newspapermen, witnesses and court attendants climbed on desks and chairs to watch the scuffling. Judge Mongibeaux ordered the courtroom cleared.

With tommyguns, the police threatened arrests. Spectator-lawyers ordered ejected, battled with the police to reenter the courtroom. After quiet was restored the trial resumed at 4:30 p. m. with some spectators and lawyers barred. No actual arrests were made.

Once previously and again later, Mongibeaux and his Assistant Judge Donat-Gigue and Picard recessed the court.

At the trial opening, Petain's lawyer Fernand Payen contended that the Marshal never had denounced the French republic and that under the constitution of 1875, only the chamber of deputies was competent to judge him.

Defense Move Fails

The defense move failed, however, after the judges deliberated and ruled that they were competent. Payen read the text of Petain's letter to Hitler asking permission to return to France last April.

The prosecution then read the indictment which asserted that Petain had been in contact with the Germans, including Otto Abetz, Germany's representative in occupied Paris, and that Petain's assumption of rule as chief of state was the "final realization of a long-prepared plot against the Republican regime of France." The indictment was based mainly on the public acts of the Vichy government which Petain headed.

Petain's face was crossed by a faint smile. He sniffed audibly. Several times his shoulders shrugged and he pursed his lips.

After the 25-minute uproar, one of the defense attorneys caused the judges to retire again. He accused both Judge Mongibeaux and Prosecutor Mornet of having made inflammatory statements against Petain months before the trial.

Both Mongibeaux and Mornet denied the accusations but the court was forced to huddle to deliberate whether it should admit as evidence statements which had been attributed to Mongibeaux and Mornet in French newspapers.

Reynaud was the first witness for the prosecution. The prime minister, who turned over the premiership to Petain the day France asked for an armistice, was dressed in a plain blue business suit.

Reynaud said events following the armistice indicated in his opinion "a plot against the state." Petain, who had been watching Reynaud closely, looked up at the ceiling and smiled.

As the Germans approached Paris, Reynaud said, he put forward a plan to repel them. "I see before me now two men who blocked it—Petain and Weygand," he said. Petain, he asserted, declared France must ask for an armistice.

NIGHT

Disorder Breaks Out At First Session Of Petain's Trial

Paris, July 23 (AP) — Disorder broke out today in a courtroom where Marshal Pétain was making a plea before a special court trying him for his life. French police cleared the court and made arrests among the spectators.

The old Marshal, proudly wearing the medals France had given him, made what he said would be his lone statement of defense to capital charges of intelligence with the enemy and plotting against the security of France, both before and after he became Chief of State of the Vichy regime.

"While General de Gaulle continued the struggle abroad, I prepared the road to liberation," he argued.

Attorneys In Altercation

The courtroom disturbance resulted from an altercation between Prosecutor Andre Mornet and defense attorneys.

"There are too many Germans in this room," Mornet shouted.

Catcalls, protests and cries of "justice" rang from all sides of the crowded room, especially from the benches where lawyers were seated.

Jacques Isorny, defense counsel, demanded a formal apology and Mornet retorted:

"I said there are too many people here serving the German cause. I didn't say they were Germans, but I consider them as the same thing."

Shouts Filled Courtroom

Again the courtroom erupted with shouts and spectators rose.

The Court then ordered the hearing suspended and police started making arrests.

The public which had attended the opening of the trial on invitations of the Ministry of Justice was ordered to clear the gallery. The spectators protested furiously, waving invitation cards under noses of the gendarmes while newspapermen, witnesses and court attendants climbed on chairs and tables to watch the scuffling.

Lawyers ordered ejected battled with police to re-enter the courtroom, contending they were immune to arrest under French law.

Petain Hustled From Room

When the disturbances star Pétain himself was hustled from the courtroom by guards. His chair and table were overturned.

Just before the ipcident started he had called upon those condemning him to ask themselves whether "they did as much" for France.

"In the most tragic days of the history of France, she called on me," the Marshal said, "I was heir to an unprecedented catastrophe."

He contended he had only carried out the advice of his military leaders when he asked Germany for an armistice.

He said that after he became Chief of State he used his powers "which were recognized throughout the world, from the Holy See to Russia, as a shield and buckler to protect the French people."

"I have sacrificed my prestige for them," he pleaded. "If I have treated with the enemy, it was to spare you. Faced with the enemy's demands, I surrendered nothing essential although we had daggers at our throats. I assured our prisoners of war of aid."

The three judges clad in ermine robes waited in their chambers for exactly 25 minutes before the courtroom turmoil was brought under control. When they filed back to the bench, most of the lawyers who attended the trial as spectators were allowed to return to their places.

The court was declared again in session at 4.30 P.M.

Petain appeared calm at the opening of his trial.

Tells Of Reforms

Continuing his statement, Petain said that he brought about many new reforms and had prepared a new constitution which the Germans would not allow him to promulgate.

"The new France can only carry out her reconstruction on the foundation I laid," Petain said. "I thought only of reconciliation and union of the French people. Millions of Frenchmen have faith in me.

"By condemning me, you will condemn them. You condemn France to discord and disorder. My life means nothing. I made a gift of my person to France. Let my condemnation be the last. Do not punish those who only obeyed orders from their leader."

Judge Accused

After Pétain had concluded reading his six-page statement, one of his defense attorneys accused both the chief judge, Paul Mongibeaux, and Prosecutor Mornet of having made inflammatory statements against Pétain months before the trial. The lawyer said the statements could have been considered "provocation to murder." The judge denied making any such statement.

Paul Reynaud, who resigned as Premier and yielded the office to Pétain while France was falling in 1940, testified as the first witness. Dressed in a plain blue business suit, he identified himself as a lawyer.

"Blocked Defense Plans"

Reynaud said Pétain and Gen. Maxime Weygand had blocked plans to repel the Germans. He asserted that events following France's armistice with Germany had indicated, in his opinion, "a plot against the interest of the state."

Recalling that he brought Pétain into the Government after the May (1940) breakthrough, Reynaud said:

"He was then considered a great man."

Reynaud testified he telephoned President Roosevelt June 5, 1940, imploring him for assistance in armaments. He said Roosevelt promised him help.

Court adjourned for the day with Reynaud about one third through his declaration.

In a statement to the court, which Pétain had unsuccessfully challenged as incompetent to try him, the 89-year-old "Hero of Verdun" said:

"Through the National Assembly at Vichy, the French people gave me power to direct the nation. I have come to answer to them alone. This is the only declaration I will make. The present accusations are only meant to soil me."

"Life Of Service"

He said he had devoted his life to the service of France, adding:

"Let the French people remember I led their armies to victory in 1918."

Mornet, the prosecutor, has announced that he will ask the death penalty for the 89-year-old marshal.

The historic hearing got under way when three judges, headed by the grizzled Mongibeaux, in scarlet and ermine robes, filed into the packed courtroom of the Paris Palace of Justice.

As the magistrates took their places the court clerk called out: "The accused Pétain rise."

Faced The Judges

Pétain rose and faced the judges.

Then Mornet, who said he had been preparing for the trial since shortly after Pétain assumed power a little more than five years ago, began reading a seven-page indictment.

The start of Pétain's personal, authoritarian rule over France on July 10, 1940, Mornet charged, was "the final realization of a long prepared plot against the republican regime in France." Pétain's role in this plot in the prewar period, he said, appears to have "been that of a figurehead."

The indictment was based mainly on public acts of the Vichy Government. One of the most important documents presented by the prosecution was an interrogation of Vichy's ex-Minister of Justice, Raphael Alibert, now believed in hiding.

Former Envoy To Spain

Mornet said Alibert noted that Pétain was French Ambassador to Madrid until he was appointed Vice Premier by former Premier Paul Reynaud on May 18, 1940.

The prosecution quoted Alibert as saying that armistice terms signed by the French were drawn up by Pétain and Hitler early in the war, with Generalissimo Francisco Franco of Spain as an "intermediary." After the French defeat, however, Alibert said, Hitler did not keep his "promises."

Mornet attacked what was believed would be Pétain's line of defense—that he was not responsible for the acts of his government, that he signed the armistice to spare further bloodshed, and he was in reality playing a double game with the Germans, paying them lip service while he was really in sympathy with the Allies.

Don't "Stand Up"

None of these suppositions, said Mornet, "stand up under the slightest scrutiny."

Pétain, erect and wearing the gold-braided hat of a Marshal of France, saluted photographers and entered the courtroom with his wife at 1.13 P.M. In the corridor just outside he encountered Albert Lebrun, President of the French Republic which Pétain abolished in 1940 and now a state witness. Their eyes met and each halted momentarily. Neither man gave a sign of recognition, although they were associated in the French Government for 30 years.

Special police patrolled the packed hallway outside the courtroom. Wooden barricades had been erected to help control the crowd.

Representatives of every legation in Paris attended.

Pétain's attorney opened with an attack on the competence of the high court. He contended that Pétain had never denounced the French Republic and that, under the Constitution of 1875, only the Chamber of Deputies was competent to judge him.

Defense Direction Surprise

The direction of the first defense move was a complete surprise because the marshal had been expected to begin with the contention that his authoritarian "French state," which superseded the third republic, was acting in cooperation with the United States and Great Britain against Germany.

The judges, after a brief deliberation, overruled the challenge and ordered the trial to proceed. Payen then began reading the text of Pétain's letter to Hitler asking permission to return to France last April.

Pétain is the first head of a French Government to go on trial for his life since King Louis XVI was convicted and guillotined in 1793 for "treating with the enemy."

Nearly 90 witnesses have been summoned for the trial, the list including Lebrun and former Premiers Leon Blum, Edouard Daladier, Edouard Herriot and Reynaud.

REDEPLOYMENT VIA U. S. TO DROP

Paris, July 23 (A. P.).—Many ships which have been busy this month carrying thousands of soldiers back to the United States will be diverted in August to the task of taking troops direct to the Pacific.

Redeployment via the United States will be cut 40 per cent, the Communications Zone Headquarters, United States Army, said yesterday. It will be stepped up again in September, however, with the 50,000-ton German liner Europa, now being reconditioned by German seahands, scheduled to sail about September 1 with 5,000 Yanks.

Surgeon Gets 2 Years For Aid To SS Troops

Paris, July 23 (AP)—The News of Germany, published by the information-control division of United States forces in the European theater, reported today from Linz that a German surgeon had been sentenced to two years imprisonment for removing tattooed identification marks from German SS (Elite Corps) men.

SS members all have tattoo marks under the armpit showing their blood types. The surgeon, Dr. Alfred Waldman, was accused of removing the marks to enable the Nazis to escape detection.

Bootleg Liquor Kills 188 Yanks Abroad

Paris, July 23 (A. P.).—Methyl alcohol poisoning in bootleg liquor killed 188 American soldiers in France and Germany from February 1 to July 10, the Army Chief Surgeon's office said today. Troops were warned to be careful of their liquor sources.

The number of deaths, the statement said, was higher for that period than the number of deaths from communicable diseases for all American troops on the Continent.

French Expect U.S. Coal

New York, July 23 (AP)—The Paris radio, reported by FCC, quoted "authoritative circles" today as expressing hope that France would receive 300,000 tons of coal monthly from the United States "in compensation for coal loaned by France to the United States for the redeployment of United States troops."

80,000 ARRESTED IN AMERICAN ZONE

Troops Search Every German House for Weapons, Loot in Huge Raid.

FRANKFURT ON THE MAIN July 23—(AP) In perhaps the greatest mass raid in history, half a million American soldiers searched every house in the U. S. occupation zone of Germany over the week-end for weapons, ammunition and loot and arrested 80,000 persons, many of them S.S. men who had been hunted as war criminals.

Fifteen million Germans in the American zone, taken by surprise, were bewildered and scared, but offered no resistance. Only two tried to escape the search. One was shot to death.

No Underground Found

Brig. Gen. Edwin L. Sibert, of Vinyard Haven, Mass., head of the G-2 (intelligence) division of U. S. forces in the European theater, said guns, ammunition and loot, such as American uniforms, K-rations, gasoline and vehicles, were seized but there was no sign of an organized German underground.

"The raid marks the passing from a negative to a positive line of action," Sibert said. "We wanted to act before there was even a chance of anything coming up and hitting us in the face."

He added, "It upset the civilian population quite a big, which is good."

Sibert explained the Germans had been given a week of grace, ending July 20, in which to turn over all weapons, ammunition, radio transmitters and other forbidden articles without fear of punishment. Those caught with such properties face trials in which the death sentence can be applied.

Using "Tallyho" as a code word the American troops struck at dawn light Saturday. They stopped every vehicle, including U. S. Army jeeps, checked the papers of civilians and soldiers, and swept through every German house from cellar to attic.

Sibert said the raid was ordered three weeks ago but perfect security was maintained. Censorship on the arrests was lifted today.

Checks Security Measures

He declared that in addition to rounding up Germans hiding arms, the Army wished to check its own security and control measures so as to plug any possible gaps.

Sibert said many S.S. men passing as discharged Wehrmacht prisoners of war were arrested. Details as to the exact number and identification of any leaders among them were not disclosed immediately.

The general asserted some of the persons arrested were in American uniforms, but that these declared they had no other clothing. Most of those seized, however, were booked for irregularities in identification papers, he said.

Col. Thomas Sands, of Cornwall, N. Y., who led the raid, said the search showed less crime than perhaps would be uncovered in a similar action over a comparable area in the United States.

He described those arrested as more of the "criminal element" than anything else and objected vigorously to any reference to them as "werewolves." He said those seized would get "rough treatment."

Reich Gl's Seize 80,000; Every House Raided

Frankfurt on the Main, July 23 (AP)—Half a million American troops arrested upwards of 80,000 persons and searched every single house in the American occupation zone of Germany over the week end, it was disclosed today.

It was perhaps the greatest mass raid in history.

The Americans were seeking weapons, ammunition and loot. Many of those taken into custody were members of the SS, hunted as war criminals.

Ordered Three Weeks Ago

The 15,000,000 Germans in the American zone were taken completely by surprise and were bewildered and scared, but offered no opposition whatever.

Brig. Gen. Edgar L. Sibert, of Vineyard Haven, Mass., head of the G-2 division of United States forces in the European theater, lifted censorship on the raid today. He said that, although orders for the raid were issued three weeks ago, perfect secrecy was maintained.

Two Try To Escape; One Slain

Only two Germans tried to escape the search, he said, and at least one was shot to death.

Sibert said a considerable quantity of guns, ammunition and loot such as American uniforms, K-rations, gasoline and vehicles was uncovered, but that there was no sign of an organized German underground.

Many SS Men Caught

A lot of SS men—many posing as discharged Wehrmacht prisoners of war—were rounded up, he said. The exact number and the identity of any leaders among them were not immediately revealed.

The General said some of the persons arrested were in American uniforms. These declared that they had no other clothing. Most of those taken in custody, however, were booked for irregularities in identification papers, he said.

Every Vehicle Stopped

With "Tallyho" as a code word, the American soldiers struck at daylight Saturday. They stopped every vehicle, including United States army jeeps, checked the papers of civilians and soldiers and went through every German house from cellar to attic.

"It upset the civilian population quite a bit, which is good," Sibert said, explaining that the Germans had been given a week of grace, ending July 20, in which to turn over all weapons, ammunition, radio transmitters and other forbidden articles without fear of punishment.

Those caught with forbidden articles face trials in which the death sentence can be applied.

Heading Off Any Trouble

"The raid marks the passing from a negative to a positive line of action," Sibert said. "We wanted to act before there was even a chance of anything coming up and hitting us in the face."

In addition, he said the Army wished to check its own security and control measures so as to plug any possible gaps.

Col. Thomas Sands, of Cornwall, N.Y., who led the raid, said that the search showed less crime than perhaps would be uncovered in a similar raid over a comparable area in the United States.

He described those arrested as more of "the criminal element" than anything else. He objected vigorously at any reference to them as "werewolves," maintaining that this was poor propaganda. He said the offenders caught would get "rough treatment."

Arraignment Date Set In German Rail Crash

Munich, July 23 (AP)—A military government court today set July 28 as the date for arraignment of four German railroad workers who will be tried for criminal negligence in a rail collision which killed 103 persons, one of them an American soldier, and seriously injured 68 others.

The accident, one of the worst in German history, occurred near Munich July 16. A thirteen-car train of tanks en route to the United States for redeployment plowed into the rear of a 51-car train of German prisoners of war.

Trainmen Arrested

Of two carloads of American soldiers assigned to guard the prisoners, one man was killed and another injured. All other victims were Germans.

Max Bittner, assistant station master at the scene of the wreck, told United States Army investigators he had signaled the tank train into the block where the prisoner train had stalled. He said he absentmindedly thought the "clear" signal from another block was that for the section of track still occupied by the prisoner train.

The conductor and brakeman of the prisoner train were arrested for failure to protect properly its rear and the station master at Rosenheim was held for failure to repair its lights after a brakeman had reported them out of order.

A "Horrible Mess"

Lieut. S. H. Brink, Kansas City, Mo., a member of the 761st Railway Operating Battalion, said the scene was a "horrible mess."

Two American soldiers, Tech. 5/g George R. Wagner, Jr., of Minnesota, and Tech. 4/g Milford R. Jones, of Texas, helped to clean up the wreckage by repairing two tanks damaged in the collision and using them to pull debris from the line and clear it for traffic.

To Try Germans For Railroad Wreck

Munich, July 23 (A. P.).—Authorities said today that four German railway employees will be tried by a military government court for criminal negligence in a railroad collision which killed 103 persons and seriously injured sixty-eight others on the night of July 16.

The accident, one of the worst in German railroad history, occurred forty miles southeast of Munich.

A thirteen - car train moving tanks of the United States Twentieth Armored Division plowed into the rear of a fifty-one-car trainload of German prisoners of war. The Germans were en route to Hannover to be discharged. The tanks were in the first lap of a trip to the United States for redeployment.

War Criminal Trials to Begin After Sept. 15

Indictments at Nuernberg Will Include War Guilt, Persecution, Atrocities

MONDORF, Luxemburg, July 23 (AP).—The majority of war criminal trials will be held at Nuernberg, former hotbed of Nazism, and the principal cases will start after Sept. 15, Dr. Bohuslav Ecer, Czechoslovak representative on the War Crimes Commission, said today.

Ecer said Karl Hermann Frank, the "Butcher of Lidice" and one-time Nazi Protector for Bohemia and Moravia, would go on trial at Prague about Sept. 1 but that, regardless of the outcome, Frank would be turned back to the United Nations War Crimes Commission for re-trial on other charges at Nuernberg.

He said the selection of Nuernberg for war crimes trials was due to a suggestion by a Russian delegate "who thought the place symbolic of crime."

Ecer asserted indictments will cite: The crime of preparing for and launching the war, which automatically includes all members of the German government; crimes committed because of religious, racial or political issues and atrocities.

Ecer said he hoped "press representatives from all nations" would be present at Prague and Nuernberg "so that the precise legal findings and all facts of the trial will be made known to every citizen of the world, and especially to every German."

He said the War Crimes Commission had decided on the Continental system of judicial procedure for the Prague and Nuernberg trial because "the Anglo-Saxon procedure sometimes calls for lengthy trials, and I think we all want to conclude this business as quickly as possible."

[At London, legal experts of the major Allied powers, just back from Nuernberg, resumed conferences on plans for the trials, with the probability of final agreement on methods and procedure by the end of the week.]

War-Crime Trials

300 Nazis Sentenced

Moscow, July 23 (AP)—The Polish courts have sentenced a total of 300 German war criminals and traitors and about 6,000 cases are still under investigation, the Polish press reported today from Warsaw.

ELAS Backers Doomed

Athens, July 23 (AP)—Six ELAS suporters were sentenced to death and four others to life imprisonment by a Criminal Court jury today for the murder of two police officers during the uprising last December. The jury deliberated ten hours.

JUL 24 1945

Nuernberg Site Favored

London, July 23 (AP)—Legal experts of the major Allied powers returned from Nuernberg today inclined to favor that former citadel of Nazism as a site for the forthcoming war crimes trials.

Conferences on plans for the trials themselves were resumed, meanwhile, with the probability of final agreement on methods and procedures by the end of the week.

The American group which has just returned from Germany was headed by Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson.

Camp Chief Guarded

Celle, Germany, July 23 (AP)—Joseph Kramer, ex-boss of the Nazis' Belsen concentration camp, was placed under an around-the-clock guard today to make sure he does not kill himself before his war-crimes trial about August 15.

Kramer, a fanatical Nazi, is one of 78 former officials and guards of the Belsen concentration camp and murder factory held here for trial. About twenty of them are women.

"Butcher's" Hearing Set

Mondorf, Luxembourg, July 23 (AP)—Karl Hermann Frank, the butcher of Lidice, will go on trial about September 1 in Prague and whether convicted or not by the Czechoslovaks will be turned over to the United Nations War Crimes Commission for retrial at Nuernberg with other war criminals, Dr. Bohuslav Ecer, Czechoslovak representative on the commission, said today.

Ecer said Frank had admitted signing death warrants for at least 2,000 men, women and children. He estimated that Frank's trial would last about two weeks.

Fascist Leader Gets Death

Moscow, July 23 (AP)—Gen. Beldi Alaiosh, head of the Hungarian Fascist youth organization, Levente, was sentenced to death as a war criminal, Tass reported today in a dispatch from Budapest.

400,000 German Soldier Now Harvesting Crop

But British Zone Still Need 1,500,000 Extra Tons of Grai

WITH THE 21st ARMY GROUP July 23 (AP).—Operation of th "barley corn discharge" of Ger man soldiers for farm work ha been so successful that enoug labor now is in the fields to get i all the harvest in the British zon of occupied Germany, the head of the food and agricultural branch of the military government said today. He disclosed that 400,000 soldiers had been demobilized for the harvest—100,000 more than the original quota.

He said the British zone produced only 50 per cent of its food in normal times, so that even though there was a good harvest the average calorie count would be about 1,240 per person daily, as compared with 1,850 a day last year.

The military government official estimated that 1,500,000 tons of grain would have to be imported by winter to supplement German rations, especially in the Ruhr, where the present critical shortage limits the calorie count to 1,200 per person daily.

SOVIET HELD READY TO BUTTRESS CHINA

Basis for an Unprecedented Accord Set by Stalin, Soong, Moscow Source Says

By The Associated Press.

MOSCOW, July 23—The recent conversations between Generalissimo Stalin and Chinese Premier T. V. Soong have paved the way for an understanding heretofore never achieved by the two nations, an informed source said today.

This source added that if all went well when the Russian and Chinese leaders resumed discussions after the Big Three meeting they could reach an accord on a broad program of cooperation. This would be a realistic and practical program in which China might find herself in the closest relationship with her powerful neighbor, with whom she shares one of the longest common frontiers in the world.

The informant pointed out that China's role in the post-war world had been recognized by the other United Nations and that she could now look to Russia for assistance in becoming one of the world's great powers in fact.

Such a program of cooperation, this source said, did not mean that the Moscow conversations were paving the way for a communist China. "That is not at all what I mean," he said, "and I'm sure this has not even been discussed as a possibility." He added that a China friendly to the Soviet Union and a strong China were important to Russia.

The Moscow conversations, starting as a formal review of common problems, developed into something far bigger, he said, adding that virtually every question between the two nations had come up or would be brought up for discussion and settlement.

Reds' Criticism of U. S. Grows

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP)—The Chinese Communists, once friendly toward the United States, have been making increasingly bitter attacks on Washington. That was the line of a North China broadcast today.

Diplomatic officials here said that it followed the current trend. They could only speculate on the causes, but it seemed as if one reason was the closer relations between Washington and the Chinese Government in Chungking.

Another cause, it was suggested, may be the alarm of the Communists over the reportedly successful talk Premier Soong held in Moscow.

Many authorities have believed that the Chinese Communists have looked to Moscow, despite their oft-asserted lack of connection with the Soviet Government, for eventual support if Russia came into the war against Japan. In view of this possibility, another reason for the broadcasts may be found in their timing with the Big Three meeting.

The latest broadcast spoke of the United States as an imperialist nation and concentrated criticism on Ambassador Patrick J. Hurley.

Red Cross Packages Go to Japan via Russia

MOSCOW, July 23 (AP).—The first fifteen tons of supplies for International Red Cross representatives who will handle prisoner-of-war packages for Allied soldiers in Japanese-occupied territory are en route from Vladivostok to the Manchurian-Russian frontier, it was learned to day.

Marcel Junod, a Swiss who heads the organization which is to deliver the packages, is now at the frontier arranging with the Japanese for delivery into occupied territory. He left Moscow on July 14.

Part Of Jail Inmates Evacuated To End Riot

Rome, July 23 (AP)—Authorities evacuated 100 prisoners from ancient Regina Coeli Prison tonight and planned to move out still more in a move to prevent further violence after four days of rioting by 1,000 of the 1,600 inmates.

Palmiro Togliatti, Minister of Justice, had said the only way to insure order was to cut the prison population. Regina Coeli was built to accommodate only 700.

Togliatti described the prison as "not a jail but a bad concentration camp," and said police forces equipped with light and heavy tanks and machine guns were on hand to quell any new uprising.

ROMAN JAIL RIOT

Rome, July 23 (A. P.).—The Minister of Justice, Palmiro Togliatti, said today that violence may be loosed again at any time at the Regina Coeli Prison, although the situation was reported under control for the time being after a night of rioting.

The Minister blamed the prison itself for the confusion and rioting of the last four days, which culminated earlier today in a battle between the police and about 1,000 prisoners holding out behin the ancient walls of the prison's central section. One person was killed during the night when debris tumbled from a burning cupola.

The police fired sporadically at the inmates during the early morning hours, when armored cars blocked all exits. It was reported that no prisoners escaped, but that at least three were wounded.

GREEK MINISTER QUITS

Sophianopoulos Says Time Has Come to Form New Government

ATHENS, July 23 (AP)—Foreign Minister John Sophianopoulos submitted his resignation today, saying the time had come for the formation of a new government representing all political parties.

Just back from the San Francisco Conference, Mr. Sophianopoulos said "from my conversations and contacts abroad, I am satisfied Greek interests can best be served by the formation of a government in which all political parties are represented."

Such a government, he said, would restore order, inspire a feeling of national security, and conduct a "genuine plebiscite and election."

THREE KWEILIN OUTPOSTS FALL

Chinese Take Towns In Drive On Former Air Center

Chungking, July 23 (AP)—Chinese soldiers have recaptured three rubbled towns guarding Kweilin, tightening their stranglehold on the big airbase city while a Chinese column approached another former United States airfield at nearby Yangso, the Chinese high command said today.

Along China's "invasion coast" west of Formosa, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's ill-armed warriors fought into the rear of Japanese troops battling toward Swatow and apparently broke up an enemy attempt to establish a coastal corridor between Swatow and Amoy.

Discuss Co-Ordination

These Chinese successes came as recent visits to Chungking of American and British army officers indicated discussions were underway regarding plans to co-ordinate China's role in the war with the coming Allied blows against Japan.

Closing on Kweilin the Chinese seized the walled town of Paishou, 25 miles west of Kweilin; the highway junction of Ining, 11 miles northwest, and the rail town of Chaihsu, 57 miles northeast, a communiqué said.

Other Chinese columns, exerting pressure from the southwest, reached a point 8 miles from the city, headquarters reported.

The high command said that the Chinese, who previously had broken into the streets of Paishou through the town's south gate, gained complete possession of its ruins at 4 P.M. yesterday. Japanese remnants fled toward Liangkiangyu, 12 miles west of Kweilin, it added.

Withdrawal Route Cut

The reoccupation of Chaihsu, northeast of Kweilin, and a subsequent surge to the Kweilin-Hengyang railroad, cut the enemy's main withdrawal route from the Kwangsi province capital to Hunan province. Chaihsu was retaken after China's veterans hurled back the second Japanese counterattack in four days.

Another Chinese column, threatening Kweilin from the south, reportedly battered northward along a secondary highway from Liuchow an dwas approaching Yangso airfield, forty-four miles south of Kweilin. The Chinese were reported Sunday within twelve miles of Yangso.

While one spearhead fought within eight miles southwest of Kweilin, the railway city of Yungfu, thirty-one miles southwest of Kweilin, was still under Chinese siege. The Japanese were giving "fierce battle," the Chinese communiqué added.

Northeast of Kweilin the swaying weeks-long battle for the former American air base at Paoking went on without any reported progress. American P-51 Mustangs strafed and killed enemy troops west of the Hunan Province town.

Chinese Advance on Coast

On the invasion-volunerable coast of southwestern China, the fighting front was somewhat obscure. The Chinese reported their troops were "pursuing" the Japanese toward Swatow atfer apparently fighting into the rear of enemy troops who were thrown out of Chaoan, thirty-nine miles northeast of Swatow.

The High Command said the Chinese had reached the border of Fukien and Kwangtung Provinces and were pushing after Japanese troops heading for another Chaoan on the Han River, twenty miles from Swatow.

American bombers and fighters ranged from north China to French Indo-China. In one blow, Mustang fighter-bombers attacked an ammunition dump near Sichwan in Shensi Province, leaving flames rising 1,000 feet.

Mitchell medium bombers also hit a Japanese headquarters at Wuchang, setting fires visible for thirty miles, and attacked seven Japanese troop convoys near Changsha, south of the Yangtze River.

Chungking observers attached particular significance to a British Ministry of Information announcement that Maj. Gen. Horace H. Fuller, American deputy chief of staff to Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, and British Maj. Gen. Penney, southeast Asia command director of intelligence, recently conferred here with Chinese, American and British military authorities.

Accompanied by three staff officers, the two generals came here after the recent conference between Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Admiral Mountbatten in Manila.

While there was no announcement as to the nature of the conservations, it was assumed that Chungking authorities had learned the decision of the Manila conference, especially in relation to the China theatre's role in future operations.

Paishou And Ining Taken

Paishou, once an important Japanese stronghold 25 miles west of Kweilin, and the highway town of Ining, 11 miles west-northwest of the city, were among the places reported captured.

The high command said Chinese moving northward along a subsidiary highway from Liuchow to Kweilin were approaching Yangsa, described as another former base of the United States 14th Air Force. It lies 45 miles south of Kweilin. The Chinese advances already have overrun six American bases.

On the China coast, the communiqué said, Chinese troops following Japanese units heading from Amoy to Swatow have reached the border of Fukien and Kwantung provinces.

Fukien Province Cleared

This meant that Fukien was cleared except for a handful of Japanese at Amoy, whom the Chinese expected to leave by sea. Chaoan, 40 miles northeast of Swatow, was taken from the Japanese after changing hands. Another town of the same name 22 miles north of Swatow was approached by the Japanese.

One column of Chinese, pushing northward along the subsidiary road from Liuchow, also threatened the Japanese supply base of Pingla from points 10 miles southwest of that city.

Jap Lines Severed Near Kweilin

Chungking, July 23 (AP)—Chinese troops tightening the pressure on the former American air base city of Kweilin have severed the main Japanese communication route between Kwangsi and Hunan provinces by reoccupying the rail town of Chiehshou, the high command announced today.

Chinese troops closed within 8 miles of Kweilin from the southwest.

Chiehshou is 45 miles northeast of Kweilin and on three former American airfields. The Chinese also overran the road town of Liangfeng, 15 miles south of Kweilin in a drive that threatened to cut off Japanese forces deployed to the south. American Mustang fighters supported the attacks.

YENAN RADIO CALLS U. S. IMPERIALIST

Chungking, July 23 (A. P.).—The Chinese Communist radio at Yenan said today that American policy toward China had become "definitely imperialistic" and would reduce this country to the status of a "colony or semi-colony of the United States."

The Yenan broadcast said Major-Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, United States Ambassador, had made misrepresentations during a visit to Washington in April and subsequent articles in American newspapers showed that America's policy toward China had become "definitely imperialistic." China, the broadcast said, must choose between this "false democracy supported by the United States and real democracy sponsored by the Chinese communist party."

The radio spokesman then appealed to the United States Government and Army "to repudiate the new foreign policy sponsored by Hurley." He charged that the national Government at Chungking "represents feudalism and Fascism," and said future peace in China depended on American support of the Chinese communists' "Democratic policy."

U. S. Health Experts On Way to China

Chungking, July 23 (A. P.).—A party of American experts, including Dr. James Watt of the United States public health service, is speeding to Chungking to help fight the cholera epidemic, it was announced today.

The group is being sent by the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration after a plea from the Chinese.

United States Army headquarters said there have been no cases among American military personnel or American civilians.

The epidemic thus far has involved about 6,000 Chinese and 150 have died since early June.

Included in the group, UNRRA said, are:

Drs. W. W. Frye of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn.; H. A. Reimann of Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia; Herbert K. Abrams, formerly with the United States Public Health Service in Atlanta; W. J. Wood, former assistant director of medical services in the Canadian Army, and Carleton V. Chauman of Boston.

The two sanitary engineers are Conrad Straub of Irvington, N. J., and F. J. Maier of Royersford, Pa.

BURMA FOE STILL IN TRAP

500 Japanese Killed in Attempt to Reach Sittang River

CALCUTTA, India, July 23 (AP)—Five thousand Japanese troops, pocketed by Allied forces in the Pegu area of southern Burma, have lost more than 500 killed in attempts to break out and reach the Sittang River, the Southeast Asia Command reported today.

A communiqué said the Japanese were continuing attacks against the Allied cordon, but that only a small number had succeeded in escaping eastward across the Mandalay-Rangoon Road toward the Sittang. It added that the Japanese casualties did not include those killed by artillery and air forces.

Command headquarters said British troops had captured a footbridge twenty-two miles east of Pegu in the lower Sittang River sector and routed Japanese forces from four villages in an area six miles south and southeast of Myitkyo, twenty-nine miles northeast of Pegu.

500 Trapped Japs In Burma Killed

Calcutta, July 23 (AP)—More than 500 Japanese troops attempting to break out of a British ring in the Pegu area in Burma have been killed, a Southeast Asia Command communiqué said today.

The communiqué said the enemy was continuing attacks against "our cordon at many places," but that only a small portion had succeeded in escaping eastward toward the Sittang River.

5,000 Trapped, Belief

The 500 Japanese troops slain do not include "those killed by our artillery and air strikes" against the heavy concentration trapped west of the Mandalay-Rangoon road, it was announced.

Southeast Asia headquarters estimated the total number of Japanese in the pocket at 5,000.

In the lower Sittang River sector, the communiqué said, British troops captured a foot bridge 22 miles east of Pegu and routed Japanese forces from four villages in an area 6 miles south-southeast of Myitkyo, 29 miles north-northeast of Pegu.

CHINA BARS REPORTER

New Delhi, July 23 (A. P.).—For the second time in recent weeks China has refused permission for an American correspondent to re-enter China. Harold Isaacs, correspondent for the magazine Newsweek, who was on his way to China from home leave, was informed yesterday by the Army that the Chinese Government had refused his re-entry.

Previously Darrell Berrigan, Far Eastern correspondent of the New York Post, was denied permission by the Chinese Government to return.

Isaacs said Chungking policy was designed to bar any correspondent who ever wrote anything deemed unfavorable to the regime of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. The correspondent said that while in the United States he wrote several "outspoken" articles on the China situation.

Handley Takes Over New India-Burma Post

Calcutta, July 23 (AP)—Maj. Gen. T. J. Handley, Jr., has assumed command of the United States Army Air Force in the India-Burma theater, succeeding Lieut. Gen. George S. Stratemeyer, it was announced today. Stratemeyer has become over-all commander of the United States air forces in China.

Handley, a graduate of West Point in the Class of 1915, formerly commanded the India-Burma Air Service Command. His home is in Coshocton, Ohio.

AUSTRALIA TO CUT MILITARY FORCES

MELBOURNE, Australia, July 24—(AP) The military correspondent of the Mebourne Herald, quoting authoritative sources, said today that another major reduction of Australia's military forces might be undertaken soon, cutting the present six active divisions to three with some auxiliary troops.

The reasons, he said, were that the remnants of Japanese island garrisons now appeared to be sealed off and it was not necessary for Australia to continue such relatively strong forces, while production of food for American and British forces would be helped by the army reduction.

At present Australia's six divisions are strung out on a 3,000 mile arc from Bougainville to Borneo.

Evatt Arrives in Australia

SYDNEY, Austria, July 23 (AP)—The Minister of External Affairs, Herbert V. Evatt, said today on his arrival here that the greatest contribution of the San Francisco Security Conference was the beginning of a democratic progressive spirit "among very many nations. The work of San Francisco was only abeginning. Australia has a vital stake in the world of peace and in progressively increasing the standards of living."

New Zealand Flyers to Fight

WELLINGTON, N. Z., July 23 (AP).—A New Zealand heavy bomber squadron, at present operating in Europe, will join in the war against Japan under Royal Air Force command, Defense Minister F. Jones disclosed tonight.

Social Security Group Opens Second Meeting

Mexico City, July 23 (AP)—The second assembly of the Intra-American Committee on Social Security opened today with sixteen nations, the International Labor Office of Montreal and the Pan-American Union represented.

Arthur J. Altmeyer, United States Social Security Board chairman and president of the assembly, conferred with other delegates in a preliminary session.

The assembly will lay the groundwork for a convention at a later date where extension and unification of social security in the Americas will be discussed.

Represented are Dominican Republic, El Salvador, United States, Uruguay, Venezuela, Bolivia, Brazil, Costa Rica, Ecuador, Guatemala, Mexico, Paraguay, Peru, Canada, Colombia and Nicaragua.

Federal Economic Head Is Decorated By Chile

Santiago, Chile, July 23 (AP)—Sam Low, of Houston, Texas, was decorated by the Chilean Government today with the Chilean Medal of Merit and voted an honorary life membership by the United States Chamber of Commerce here for his work as head of the Foreign Economic Administration in Chile.

His duties here were to purchase strategic materials and other products for the United States war effort.

Kuznetsov On Russian Labor

Washington, July 23 (AP)—Vassili Kuznetsov, Soviet trade union leader, said tonight that Russia has begun transforming its war machine to peacetime production and has wiped out certain laws restricting workers' activities.

Speaking for a delegation of ten Russian labor chiefs beginning a tour of American industrial centers at the invitation of the CIO, Kuznetsov told a news conference that Soviet plans for reconversion included a return to the eight-hour day without loss in earnings, and vacations with pay. Most war plants have been working eleven hours daily, he said.

Among the laws being set aside is one prohibiting a worker from leaving the job in which he was 'frozen" during the war. Some older fighting men already have been returned to factories, he said.

Soviet Version Of WLB

The Soviets have a War Labor Board—under another name. This board or one appointed for a particular case, determines finally the solution of labor disputes.

Russia has no closed shop or union-dues checkoff, Kuznetsov said. Some plants are organized only 85 per cent.

Kuznetsov said at one point that the Soviet labor-union system was "the most democratic in the world," but qualified the comment later with the remark that he was not familiar enough with American labor to say quite that.

He suggested he would be glad to have the AFL—which thus far has spurned any association with the Soviet groups because it doesn't think the Russian trade groups are "free"—visit Russia.

CIO Invited To Return Visit

The CIO is considering a Russian invitation to tour Soviet industry. A delegation may make the trip after the September Paris meeting of the World Trade Union Congress in which both the CIO and the Soviets are represented, but in which the AFL has refused to join.

The CIO invitation to the Soviets, extended June 4 by Philip Murray, CIO President, also went to French and British trade union leaders, who will visit the United States. Later, said Allan Haywood, CIO organization chief who presided at the news conference.

Kuznetsov said the present Russian work force is 28 to 30 million, including white-collar workers and wage earners on state farms but not on the collectivist agricultural enterprises. Of this work force, 25 million are in the trade unions which he heads.

Schedule Of Tour

The ten Russian labor leaders will leave Wednesday for Chicago, where they will tour automobile plants, packing houses and farm-equipment factories. Some of the group will go to Duluth on Saturday to inspect ore deposits.

The entire party will arrive in Detroit Sunday for a visit to automobile plants. They will leave Wednesday for Philadelphia to visit hosiery plants and other industries.

On Thursday they will join Murray and the executive board of the CIO Steel Workers at Atlantic City, returning to Philadelphia Friday and Saturday, August 3 and 4.

On August 5, they will go to New York to visit shipyards, clothing plants and precision-instrument plants, spending three days there.

The delegation then will visit Pittsburgh steel mills and other munition plants, but the exact date has not yet been fixed.

Puts British In on Jap Defeat

JUL 24 1945

Lord Beaverbrook Says End of War in East Will Not Be Left to Americans.

Detroit, July 23 (A. P.).—The British "have no intention of reserving the defeat of Japan to the Americans," Lord Beaverbrook declared today in a personal letter published in the Detroit Free Press.

Replying to an open letter by Publisher John S. Knight, printed in the Free Press on July 15, the Lord Privy Seal in the Churchill cabinet and publisher of the London Daily Express said: "It would be a complete error to suppose that there will be any easing off in the British war against Japan if this conservative government is succeeded by a socialist government."

Knight had asserted that two factors were leading to increased anti-British feeling in the United States. He listed them as the knowledge that Britain's forces in France and Germany were smaller than the American forces and the belief that Britain is not making an all-out effort against Japan.

Of the first factor Lord Beaverbrook said that casualty figures in northwest Europe from D-day to V-E day "show that the United Kingdom did not bear less than her just and proper share of the labor and suffering of the invasion. There were 188,152 British and Canadian casualties; and 514,534 American."

Some Bombing Figures.

In the air war, which he described as the "critical and even decisive factor in the attack on the Reich," he said the bomber command of the R. A. F. dropped 988,000 tons in northwest Europe while the Eight and Ninth U. S. A. A. F. dropped 812,000 tons.

Regarding the second factor, Lord Beaverbrook said he does not think criticism of the Burma campaign is justified. Of the 750,000 soldiers used in Burma, three-fourths were British, Colonial or Indian, he said, adding that the campaign was conducted "through the wettest, the most difficult and the most unhealthy country in the world, and over lines of communications of incredible length."

Asserting that he was speaking "without any authority from Mr. Churchill," he said: "You may be sure that we shall take an ever-increasing part, bringing every available resource to bear upon the outstanding purpose of the war."

He added, however, that one handicap would be the fact that "to maintain a British soldier in the Far East takes two and a half to three times the shipping tonnage required to maintain an American soldier in Europe." The British fleet is operating 14,000 miles from her home base, he said, and the American fleet only 3,000 miles.

CONNALLY ASKS ECHOING 'AYE' ON THE CHARTER

Vandenberg Tells Senate Instrument Offers the Best Hope for Safe World.

GALLERIES APPLAUD PLEAS

Rule Requiring Consideration Article by Article Waived to Speed Up Action.

Washington, July 23 (A. P.).—Senator Connally (D.-Tex.) called on the Senate today to ratify the United Nations charter "by a vote that will be heard around the world."

Opening debate on the fifty nations agreement signed June 26 at San Francisco, the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee won applause from spectators banked in the galleries when he urged the Senate to show "the same courage toward the obligations of peace as we have in war."

Despite what he termed ample evidence that the Senate will ratify the charter overwhelmingly, Connally said many representatives of other nations still are doubtful of the outcome.

"They know that the league of nations was slaughtered here in this chamber," he shouted, pulling off his glasses and waving them in the air. "Can't you see the blood—there it is on the wall," Connally continued. Pointing at the rear wall of the chamber.

Declaring that Senate ratification would give other nations a "tremendous impulse," Connally said the Senate also ought to have the courage to offer its full co-operation in the proposed new league.

"There are some who say we can't send soldiers to back up the peace—that we mustn't have a vote on anything until it is checked back to Congress," he declared. "Can't we show the same sort of courage toward the obligations of peace as we have those of war?"

Man's Best Hope—Vandenberg.

Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.), who served with Connally as a delegate in the drafting of the charter, told the Senate "this is man's best hope for a safer and happier world. "It is my profound belief," he said, "that here is an adventure that can serve the hearts and hopes of mankind. This charter won the unanimous devotion of fifty nations at San Francisco despite repeated crises—rocks on which the conference was supposed to have been wrecked.

"But at the end, fifty United Nations were unanimous. How did that happen? It was the result of facing each other morning, noon and night until the controversies disappeared.

"If that could happen at San Francisco, who shall say it cannot happen when we face the problems of tomorrow? If that could happen in the writing of the charter who shall say it cannot happen in the operation?"

Vandenberg declared that he was putting his "faith" in the council table of the United Nations organization, rather than in the potential use of force.

"I think it will succeed," he said.

JUL 24 1945

For a Vote This Week.

With leaders pointing toward a ratification vote late this week, Connally took the floor after the Senate had agreed to sweep aside such technicalities as the rule requiring consideration of the charter article by article. The Texan said party politics had played no part in establishing the united front he declared now is presented to the world.

Before he began speaking he reiterated to reporters a theme that he has emphasized in the past: The fifty-nation agreement signed in San Francisco June 26 is no "self-winding, eight-day clock."

Not a Peace Guaranty.

The organization to be formed under the charter does not of itself guarantee peace. The new league will require "constant care, assistance and support. Anybody who is looking for a peace organization that doesn't cost us anything won't find it in this charter." The United States must furnish troops to help enforce the peace.

It must co-operate fully with other nations which have solemnly pledged themselves to settle disputes by peaceful means.

Fifty Senators were on the floor when Connally, attired in a blue suit with spectacles hanging from a black ribbon around his neck, began a debate that promises to consist in the main of indorsements of the charter.

The galleries were so crowded that standees lined the walls. Edward R. Stetttinius Jr., former Secretary of State and picked by President Truman as this country's delegate on the proposed world security council, was an interested spectator.

IDEAS OFFERED ON FLEET SIZE

Experts Suggest 860 Ships As Minimum During Peace

Washington, July 23 (AP)—A minimum United States flag postwar merchant fleet of 860 ships totaling 6,155,000 gross tons was recommended today in a report prepared by experts of the Harvard School of Business Administration.

The report, made public jointly by the Navy and the Maritime Commission, set as a recommended maximum 1,325 ships of 9,185,000 gross tons.

The joint announcement emphasized that while the study was made at the request of the two Government agencies, the recommendations do not necessarily reflect ultimate Government policy.

Legislation dealing with postwar disposition of surplus United States merchant vessels is now awaiting consideration in Congress.

Recommended Figures

The recommended minimum fleet would include 350 dry cargo ships in foreign trade, 250 dry cargo ships in coastwise and intercoastal trade, and 65 dry cargo ships in noncontiguous trade; 10 passenger vessels in foreign trade and 10 in domestic; 25 tankars in foreign trade and 150 domestic.

The recommended maximum would include 450 cargo ships in foreign trade; 475 dry cargo ships in coastwise and intercoastal trade, 80 dry cargo ships in noncontiguous trade, 15 passenger ships in foreign trade and 15 in domestic service, 60 tankers in foreign service and 230 in domestic.

"The maximum can not be exceeded to any great extent without endangering relations with other countries or the adequacy of other means of transportation within the United States," it said.

Five-Point Disposal Program

The report recommended that the Government adopt a five-point program for disposal of maritime shipbuilding facilities:

1. Offer for sale to the yard owners at low prices facilities owned by the Government in private yards.

2. Enter into contracts with the private yard owners for the maintenance, idle, of any Government-owned facilities not sold to the private owner.

3. Military authorities should select from among Government-owned emergency yards those additional facilities necessary as standby capacity for strategic reasons.

4. Offer for sale all new yards not thus preserved.

5. Transfer to the Surplus Property Board for sale for other than shipbuilding purposes, all facilities not thus preserved or sold.

The report recommended quick sale of surplus ships, on a firm one-price basis, maintenance of a "sterilized" reserve of ships and avoidance of commercial shipping service by the Government.

The discussion was confined to seagoing vessels of 2,000 gross tons or over. It estimated that by the end of this year the United States will possess 5,500 of these ships, contrasted to 1,400 in 1938. The percentage of the world fleet controlled by the United States as measured in gross tons will have risen from 16 per cent in 1938 to 62 per cent after the war.

The report estimated that the total demand from foreign-flag operators for United States ships, both dry cargo and tankers, would approximate 700 to 1,050 standard ships.

War Construction $324,098,000

JUL 24 1945

Washington, July 23 (AP)—A War Production Board survey showed today that Maryland war-plant construction totaled $324,098,000 during the four years that the nation was rearming.

That share—1.6 per cent of the nation's $20,300,000,000 — placed Maryland nineteenth among the states in war-plant expenditures from July, 1940, to May, 1944.

Maryland ranked second to West Virginia in the nine South Atlantic states, which together accounted for 6.7 per cent of the total United States spending. West Virginia spent $345,876,000. Virginia was third with $291,986,000.

The Types Of Plants

The Maryland total, by types of plants:

Aircraft, $67,199,000; ships, $56,645,000; ordnance, $37,776,000; explosives and loading plants, $37,462,000; iron and steel and related products, $57,074,000; non-ferrous metals and their products, $18,708,000; machinery, $11,602,000; chemicals and petroleum products, $25,354,000; food and other manufacturing, $12,278,000.

Baltimore city and Baltimore county, with $118,640,000 and $108,692,000, respectively, drew by far the major portion of the Maryland total. Harford county was next with $37,201,000 and Allegany county was fourth with $21,936,000.

Other counties and expenditures:

Cecil, $8,182,000; Charles, $5,929,000; Frederick, $7,236,000; Prince Georges, $1,560,000; Washington, $11,142,000; Wicomico, $1,190,000, and all others, $2,390,000.

Senators Propose U.S. War Research Agency

JUL 24 1945

Washington, July 23 (AP)—Establishment of a research board to insure the postwar study of military science was recommended by the Senate Naval Affairs Committee today.

Under a bill by Senator Byrd (D., Va.) the research board would include 10 members, half of them civilians appointed by the President. The chairman and vice chairman would be selected from the civilian members.

Byrd Explains

Byrd told the committee that while two other bills provide for a continuation of scientific research such as has been carried on by the Office of Scientific Research and Development during the war, "it would be a colossal mistake to mix military research with other types of study."

He predicted that in an all-inclusive research plan military science would be neglected as time goes on.

The board would not relieve any governmental agencies of their present responsibilities for research and would not operate its own laboratories. It would, however, have authority to transfer funds to other governmental agencies for work included in its programs.

Another Proposal

A national science foundation to promote research on war weapons, was proposed by three other Senators.

Joining in drafting legislation to create the foundation as a branch of the Government were Senators Kilgore (D., W.Va.), Johnson (D., Col.) and Pepper (D., Fla.).

They proposed, too, that the Government grant scholarships to persons showing special aptitude for science.

"Can't Afford To Ease Up"

The legislation was offered as a program to carry out recommendations of a Senate military subcommittee that studied problems of research and science during the war.

"During this war we have striven for full use of our technology, as well as of our manpower and facilities, for the objective of military victory," the subcommittee headed by Kilgore reported.

"We cannot afford to slacken our efforts in the fight for peacetime prosperity and permanent security. These two objectives — prosperity and security—are tied closely together."

Cabinet Men On Board

Under the proposed legislation the foundation would be headed by a director, paid $15,000 a year, who would consult with a national science board consisting of heads of the War, Navy, Justice, Interior, Agriculture, Commerce and Labor Departments, the Federal Security Agency and eight public members appointed by the President.

The bill carries no specific sum. However, the Kilgore subcommittee reported that from 1938 to 1944 Federal expenditures on research increased from about $68,000,000 to $706,000,000.

Senator Magnuson (D., Wash.) introduced somewhat similar legislation last week, based on a recommendation of Dr. Vannevar Bush, director of the Office of Scientific Research and Development. Bush proposed a nine-member foundation and estimated the initial cost at $33,500,000 a year and about $122,500,000 annually after five years.

BILL TO HELP SCIENCE IS UP

Board Sought To Supervise Government Research

Washington, July 23 (AP)—One plan for postwar scientific research on military weapons was approved by the Senate Naval Committee today as three senators offered a new proposal for a national research organization to promote all branches of science.

The committee indorsed a bill by Senator Byrd (D., Va.) to establish a 40-member research board for military security—20 to be civilians appointed by the President and 20 to be designated by the armed services.

This board would supervise the research carried on by existing Government agencies. In general, the legislation's aim is to stimulate the research the Army and Navy have carried on for many years on military weapons and bring to that research the advice and thoughts of the best brains among civilian scientists.

Scholarships Possible

Byrd told the committee that military research must be kept separate. "It would be a colossal mistake to mix military research with other types of study."

From Senators Kilgore (D., W.Va.), Pepper (D., Fla.) and Johnson (D., Col.), meantime, came legislation to create a national science foundation to be charged with conducting research into:

1. National defense.
2. Health and medicine.
3. The basic sciences.
4. Conservation, development and use of national resources.
5. Development of methods and processes beneficial to small business enterprises.
6. The adaption to peacetime use of wartime research and facilities.

The foundation also would be empowered to grant scholarships to persons showing special aptitude for science.

No Specific Spending

No specific amount to be spent by the foundation is proposed. That would be determined by the appropriations committee after the foundation was created.

The measure was offered to implement a recommendation from a military subcommittee, headed by Kilgore, for postwar scientific research for "prosperity and security." That group reported the Government spent $706,000,000 in 1944 on research.

The Kilgore - Pepper - Johnson measure is similar to, but broader, than a bill introduced last week by Senator Magnuson (D., Wash.) to establish a national research foundation.

Magnuson's measure was based on recommendations by Dr. Vannevar Bush, head of the wartime Office of Scientific Research and Development.

Army Shift To Curb Freight Traffic, ODT Head Says

Washington, July 23 (AP)—Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director of defense transportation, said today the Army's redeployment program cannot be met by the American railroads if vital war freight is to move.

He told the Senate War Investigating Committee that the Army drafted a ten-month program without consulting him and since has stepped up the return of troops from Europe without notifying ODT.

Peak Yet To Come

Saying the effect of redeployment has not yet fully hit the Western railroads, Johnson added:

"With the railroads now congested and with additional war production to move transcontinentally, it will be impossible for the Western railroads to redeploy the troops and move the freight loads."

[Dispatches from abroad this week end indicated the Army is recasting its program and will send more men directly from Europe to the Pacific than originally contemplated.]

Johnson said he is endeavoring to bring busses and airplanes into troop transport in this country to ease the strain on the railroads.

Told Little About Shifts

The ODT director said he was given "little more knowledge" than the general public on redeployment but was now "obtaining, through my own methods, the information which is made available to the railroads about the arrival of troops."

Johnson said he was first given information May 2 on prospective return of troops from Europe and was told at that time that the number would not exceed 200,000 a month.

"Actual arrivals in June exceeded the estimate by 50,000 and in July by 97,000," he said, adding that he was told 154,000 would return in June but that more than 200,000 were returned.

"Mistake Not Yet Corrected"

"It was a mistake which has not yet been corrected," Johnson continued, "for the Army to bring the number of men which have arrived irregularly and subject to violent fluctuations in numbers into the country and to thus increase its demands for transportation, already overburdened, without advising and consulting with the office responsible for the co-ordination and direction of traffic."

Chairman Mead (D., N.Y.) interjected that since the Senate committee began its inquiry the Office of War Mobilization had issued a directive to the War Department and other agencies that there must be co-ordination of the transportation.

Johnson said that if the Army had given him better information as to its plans, he would have issued much earlier his recent order halting use of Pullman sleepers on trips under 450 miles.

35,000 Without Notice

He said 35,000 men were landed in one port on one day without advance notice to him that they were coming.

Senator Burton (R., Ohio) questioned whether the Army was cooperating by restricting unnecessary travel. He said he had in mind "miscellaneous week-end travel" by officers and men on leave from posts of duty.

Johnson said such travelers were in the same category as civilians and that appeals to avoid unnecessary travel applied to them.

Johnson testified he had been trying for three or four weeks to get more motive power for Western railroads. Mead said he was informed that 50 locomotives belonging to the Pennsylvania Railroad were laid up at Pittsburgh in storage. He suggested they might be used in the West.

Laid To Labor Shortage

"We have never for one moment overlooked an instance like that," Johnson replied. "If they are laid up it is probably because of a lack of manpower."

The ODT head testified the railroads were "co-operating as never before" and were freely making equipment available to each other without the necessity of the ODT issuing any orders.

Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) asked about reports that German prisoners have been given Pullman transportation.

JUL 24 1945

"I know of no case where a prisoner has had a Pullman, except men who were ill and were given them on medical orders," Johnson replied.

Off Regular Runs

Cars of which soldiers complained, Johnson said, came off regular runs of the railroads.

On Saturday ODT announced the latest in a series of curbs on civilian travel by rail and forbade sale of tickets or train space to travel agencies.

Effective at once the agency banned organized group vacation travel by rail and forbade sale of tickets or train space to travel agencies.

ODT said, however, that action would have no effect on athletic teams.

TRUMAN SETS AIR FORCE DAY

Proclaims Aug. 1 to Mark Accomplishments.

Washington, July 23 (A. P.).—President Truman today proclaimed August 1 as Air Force Day in recognition of the accomplishments of United States air power throughout the world.

The day, the White House announced, will be observed by Army Air Force units all over the world as the anniversary of an order issued by the Army Signal Corps on August 1, 1907, ordering a study of "the flying machine and the possibility of adapting it to military purposes."

In his proclamation, Mr. Truman cited "the ability of air power to spearhead the attacks of our armed forces against our enemies," its contribution to victory in Europe, the fact that AAF men "have fought and died gallantly" for victory throughout the world, and the contributions made by both military and civilian supporting services.

Text of Proclamation.

The text of the proclamation follows:

Whereas the United States Army Air Forces have demonstrated throughout the world the ability of air power to spearhead the attacks of our armed forces against our enemies, and have materially contributed to the successful completion of the war in Europe; and

Whereas the men of the Army Air Forces have fought and died gallantly to win for us success in every corner of the world; and

Whereas millions of our countrymen, military and civilian, have recognized the potentialities of air power and have, in the armed services and on the home front, faithfully served and worked to achieve the air power essential to the winning of the wars in which we have been and are engaged:

Now, therefore, I, Harry S. Truman, President of the United States of America, in order that we may do honor to the men and women of the Army Air Forces and pay tribute to those who have supported the development of our country's air power, do hereby proclaim Wednesday, August 1, 1945, as Air Force Day, and do invite the Governors of the various States to issue proclamations calling for the observance of that day.

I also strongly urge the civilian workers of this country to maintain steadfastly their brilliant record of supplying our Army Air Forces with the weapons they must have to speed our final victory in this war.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done this 20th day of July in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Forty-five, and of the Independence of the United States of America the One Hundred and Seventieth.

HARRY S. TRUMAN.

By the President:

JOSEPH C. GREW.

Acting Secretary of State.

15th Air Force Sending Its Equipment to Pacific

Existence as Entity Is Ending After Far-Flung Action

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP).—The 15th Air Force, which bombed and shot up Germans from Africa to the Reich, is ending its official existence without seeing action in the Pacific war.

The Army Air Force said today, however, that the 15th "is redeploying its men and materiel to the United States and to the Pacific for use in the war against Japan." At its peak of operations (it was activated in November, 1943) the 15th had 90,176 officers and men and aircraft ranging from B-24s and B-17s through fighter planes such as P-38s and P-51s.

The heavy bombers of the force dropped a total of 309,278 tons of bombs in the European war, 90,914 on enemy installations in Italy, 74,211 on Austria and 35,927 tons on Germany. Its planes, of all types, used 450,000,000 gallons of gasoline and expended more than 25,154,400 rounds of ammunition.

The 15th lost more than 2,700 men in action, with another 2,553 wounded and 3,410 of its aircraft destroyed in combat. It destroyed 3,946 enemy aircraft in the air and on the ground.

New Cabinet Post Proposal Menaces McNutt's Position

WASHINGTON, July 23.—(AP) A proposal to create an 11th cabinet post—secretary of the department of welfare and security—rendered uncertain today the political future of Paul V. McNutt.

McNutt is War Manpower commissioner and director of the Federal Security agency. The suggested new department would take over the half-dozen or more agencies now loosely attached to FSA.

McNutt is absent from Washington on a rehabilitation mission to the Philippines, and hence there was no immediate comment from him on the proposal, which is under study by other government officials.

Plans Reorganization

At the Commerce department, meanwhile, it was learned that Secretary Henry A. Wallace is planning a thorough reorganization which might also require congressional action. He wishes to reshape commerce for better promotion of business activity after the war.

The proposal for a full-fledged new security department is highly tentative but is being studied at the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion. The new secretary presumably would administer the expanded postwar social program for which the administration is plugging.

OWMR's pending recommendations for the government's own reconversion are in line with President Truman's request for consolidation and simplification of the sprawling Federal structure which he inherited from the late President Roosevelt.

One phase of OWMR's work — the consolidation of manpower agencies asked by Congress — already has jeopardized McNutt's Manpower commission. Some of the functions now exercised by WMC might be transferred to the Labor department.

Alive to the possibility that WMC might be liquidated as the labor shortage lessens, McNutt has told friends he would not remain in government if he had charge of FSA alone. Neither, he has stated, would he relish a return to the post of high commissioner of the Philippines.

Mr. Truman's obvious preference for cabinet members of his own choosing makes it unlikely that he would select McNutt for the welfare and security post if the new department were created. McNutt has lost prestige as the War Production board took an increasing share of responsibility for manpower management; in addition he has no such political claims upon Mr. Truman's loyalty as he had upon Mr. Roosevelt.

Among the McNutt agencies which would go to the proposed new department under the tentative plan are these units of FSA: Social Security board, Office of Vocational Rehabilitation, Public Health Service, Food and Drug Administration, Office of Education and some smaller agencies.

The U. S. Employment Service, which is the bulk of McNutt's WMC in terms of budget and personnel, also might be assigned to the proposed department. Some high officials believe U.S.E.S. should be kept apart from labor union influence and pressure which might develop if it became part of the Labor department.

WPB Hardest Hit

WPB appears to be the hardiest of the big war agencies since no one knows how long its industrial controls will remain necessary. Yet Commerce department already is reported eyeing WPB with the idea of taking over some of its functions when WPB finally folds up.

Wallace, who has sawed wood silently since taking over the Commerce portfolio, may step into the limelight in the next six or eight weeks with a program for promoting postwar business activity and employment.

In preparation, he has named a committee to determine his department's role in the postwar economy. He plans to reshape the agency in line with the committee's findings, which are not yet complete. Part of the reorganization probably will require action by Congress.

Under Secretariat Of Labor Is Urged

Washington, July 23 (AP)—Creation of the office of Under Secretary of Labor was proposed today by Senator Murray (D., Mont.).

Murray, chairman of the Senate's Labor-Education Committee, proposed further in a bill to provide three assistant secretaries. The present law provides for a first assistant and a second assistant who are not subject to Senate confirmation.

Secretary Schwellenbach, Murray said in a statement, believes that policy-making officials should be subject to Senate approval.

Each of the new officials would be paid $10,000 a year.

Senator Downey (D., Cal.) introduced a bill to incorporate the "national committee for all war mothers." Its honorary life chairman is Lillian Richards, of California.

Among the organization's purposes would be: (1) To help needy war widows; (2) to direct them to employment; (3) to aid in support of their minor children; (4) to devise insurance plans, and (5) to provide medical and legal aid.

VINSON ASSUMES TREASURY DUTIES

JUL 24 1945

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP) Fred M. Vinson took the oath as secretary of the treasury today amid increasing speculation that two other new faces may be added to the Truman cabinet soon.

It is generally expected that Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson will retire soon after his return from Potsdam where he accompanied Mr. Truman to the Big Three conference.

How long Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes will stay in the administration is an open question. He plans to see the President soon after Mr. Truman returns to the United States and ask for clarification of his status, in view of wide public discussion of the possibility that he may go out.

It is understood that the interior secretary wants definite word one way or the other about where he stands, and plans to step out if the answer is not satisfactory to him. Mr. Truman has not given public voice to his plans, but persons close to the executive offices expect him to say he would like to have Ickes stay on "for a time."

Few expect the President to give Ickes any definite assurance that he is a cabinet fixture.

Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) is among those whose names have been mentioned most often for the interior post if Ickes should leave. Others are Democratic Governors Robert Kerr of Oklahoma and Herbert B. Maw of Utah.

For the War department job, most speculation has centered around Undersecretary Robert P. Patterson and Assistant Secretary John J. McCloy. Both are lawyers, both Republicans like Stimson, both World War I officers, and both brought into the War department in 1940 when the European war was building up in fury. McCloy is reported to have strong backing within the administration.

MORGENTHAU PLAN IN A BOOK SOON

Washington, July 23 (A. P.).—The "Morgenthau Plan" for postwar Germany, which stirred up a storm of argument but was never announced by its author, will be given to the public in book form. Henry Morgenthau Jr., in his last news conference as Secretary of the Treasury, told reporters he has promised the manuscript to Harper & Bros. by August 6.

He said all royalties will go into a trust fund to be distributed in the interests of peace. The gist of his proposals for Germany was published last September along with the information that Cabinet members were sharply divided on the plan. He was reported to be advocating removal of most of Germany's industry, leaving that country chiefly an agricultural state.

More Meat Is Indicated For Civilian Consumption

Washington, July 23 (AP)—A little more meat for American dinner tables was in prospect tonight as OPA prepared to lower beef, veal and lamb ration points for the August ration period.

The disclosure followed reports from several areas of improved civilian meat supplies and signs of slight further increases in the early Autumn.

Reductions of one or two points a pound on steaks, roasts and other cuts of beef probably will be announced Wednesday and made effective July 29. Lamb and veal points will go down as much and perhaps slightly more.

Mutton Has Zero Point Value

Pork will be omitted from what officials described as the "fairly general" point reduction, because the marketing of live hogs has continued slow. Mutton has a zero point value because there is so little of it that rationing is not considered worthwhile.

Although OPA did not confirm officially the forthcoming changes, the agency's spokesmen acknowledged that such action "would appear logical" if reports of improved supply and distribution of meat prove out as expected. Other sources familiar with the supply-and-ration situation said the reduction was coming.

Few Red Points

In some areas, consumers reportedly have been complaining that they have too few red points to absorb the available meat supply. Measures taken by OPA and War Food Administration to improve meat distribution have had some effect in increasing the flow of meat to areas where production does not match demand.

The improvement was attributed in part to two factors: Slightly better live stock marketings and slaughtering than were foreseen by rationing officials, and second, a drop in military purchases because of the redeployment program and the gradual release of prisoners of war.

Further improvement is expected in September and October, when grass-fattened cattle will move to market from the ranges and pastures of the West, Southwest, mid-West, Virginia and Pennsylvania. Part of this expected increase must go to the armed forces and to lend-lease countries, however, and will not be available for civilians.

New Program Showing Results

The new slaughter-control program begun several weeks ago is showing results in the channeling of a larger portion of meat animals to Federally inspected slaughterers. Since only Federally inspected meat is moved in interstate commerce, deficit meat-producing areas like the East and Far West must depend largely on such slaughters for their supplies.

This has tended to cut the volume of slaughter by small local plants, some of which have been accused by food officials of supplying black markets.

By reducing the diversion into black-market channels, officials have hoped to increase the amount available for legitimate buyers.

Cannon Predicts End Of Record U.S. Spending

Washington, July 23 (AP)—Congressional leaders today saw the end of huge Government spending, but failed to sight any quick relief in taxes.

Reviewing the appropriation record of the first session of the Seventy-ninth Congress, which ended its spending activities last Saturday with House adjournment until October 8, Chairman Cannon (D., Mo.) of the House Appropriations Committee made this observation:

"While the prosecution of the Japanese war will continue to impose heavy demands, it is reasonable to expect a falling off of appropriations for the armed services and we may expect to see lessening budgets for war purposes by civilian agencies which have had a part in the war program."

Plans Mid-Year Review

Regardless of the progress of the Pacific war, Cannon added in a statement his committee "plans to review appropriations for war purposes in midfiscal year with the view of recapturing any amounts which then may appear to be unnecessary."

The $59,000,000,000 appropriated this year, Cannon said, boosted to $416,628,032,989 the amount provided for the war activities program since July 1, 1940.

Sees 25 Billion Budget

Cannon estimated that the postwar budget, exclusive of interest on the national debt, will be not less than $25,000,000,000 annually, or more than twice the average annual appropriations for the few years preceding the start of the war program. He added:

"To meet the bill means taxes far beyond any levies made prior to the war, magnified to the extent occasioned by a fixed debt-retirement program."

Representative Halleck (R., Ind.), an Appropriations Committee member, said he could not "imagine" that postwar taxes would be anything but "extremely heavy because fixed charges will be terrifically high."

Meanwhile, the United States Chamber of Commerce announced that its membership had approved by a 2,695 to 4 vote a policy declaration calling for reduction of Federal taxes as soon as the war permits.

U. S. Mints Turned Out 4 Billion Coins in Year

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 23—The United States Mint set new records in the fiscal year ending June 30, turning out forty-six tons of metal money a day, a total of more than 4,000,000,000 coins in twelve months.

Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the mint, said that the three plants at Philadelphia, Denver and San Francisco produced 2,646,134101 pieces of domestic issue (value $124,754,925) and 1,388,971,000 pieces for eleven friendly foreign Governments.

In the fiscal year 1944, domestic coinage totaled 2,578,640,270 pieces with face value of $109,464,837; and total coinage, domestic and foreign, was 3,066,487,270 pieces.

Coinage orders in the last fiscal year were executed for Australia, Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Ethiopia, Greenland, Guatemala, Netherlands, Peru, Philippine Islands, Saudi Arabia and Venezuela.

Excessive Surplus Prices Are Target

Washington, July 23 (AP)—The OPA issued regulations today it said were designed to prevent excessive charges to consumers for surplus war goods.

The orders, effective August 22 and applicable to all resellers, also are intended to provide merchants with a simpler method of figuring their ceiling prices.

Two steps are being taken to prevent excessive resale prices:

1. Resellers no longer will be permitted to use the ceiling for a "similar item." Specific ceilings or formulas to calculate them will be available.

2. The pyramiding of prices by so-called "cross-stream" sales is being sharply curtailed. Cross-stream sales are those by one manufacturer to another or by one wholesaler to another, with a markup for each transaction.

In general, only resellers who customarily have sold cross-stream may continue under the new regulation. OPA said that in exceptional cases it may permit other such sales where it is necessary to get the goods distributed.

Sending Remittances To Italy Now Possible

Washington, July 23 (AP)—The Treasury announced today that remittances now may be sent through banking channels to any part of Italy for the support of an individual or his family.

Parts of northern Italy now are opened for such remittances for the first time, and for all of Italy, the maximum monthly amount was raised from $500 to $1,000.

At the same time, the maximum was raised to $1,000 a month for support remittances to France, Belgium, Poland, Greece and other European countries where support remittances are permitted to be sent.

'47 Cuba Sugar Deal Poses Legal Problem

Washington, July 23 (AP)—The Department of Agriculture is hesitating to buy Cuba's sugar for two years ahead for fear it is not legal.

The Commodity Credit Corporation has only until July 1, 1947, to run under present law, and the 1947 crop could not be delivered until after that date.

Negotiations are in progress for the 1946 crop. Clinton P. Anderson, Secretary of Agriculture, has said he would like to buy the 1947 crop as well for insurance against future shortages.

But Congress refused last week to authorize this, striking from a bill it passed all reference to sugar.

The House is in recess and congressional authority could not be obtained until after it returns, October 8. Meanwhile, there is a difference of opinion whether Anderson has the power to go ahead.

Last U. S. Navy Vessel Quits Britain's Waters

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP) —The Navy announced today withdrawal of the last United States Navy ships from United Kingdom waters.

The last to leave, several days ago, were a convoy of LSTs, which took with them the rest of the Navy men who landed American and British soldiers on Normandy beaches a year ago. A total of 124,000 United States naval officers and men had a part in the Normandy invasion.

After D-Day, most American Navy ships remained to build up supplies on the Continent.

$2,500 Rise Tax Free For House Members

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 23 — Members of the House will not pay income taxes on their expense allowance of $2,500 a year if their returns state that the money was "fully expended in the performance of official duties."

A Treasury ruling to this effect was disclosed today in a letter from the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Joseph D. Nunan Jr., to Representative O'Neal of Kentucky, printed in the Congressional Record.

Members of the House will not have to itemize in their tax returns the ways in which they spend the $2,500. (Ordinarily a taxpayer claiming deductions for business expenses must itemize these expenses.)

However, if requested by the Internal Revenue agent examining his return, a Representative "will, like any other taxpayer who receives an expense allowance from his employer, be required to substantiate the claimed deduction by showing that the entire $2,500 was used for expenses which are properly deductible" under the Internal Revenue Code.

Ray J. O'Brien Approved

Washington, July 23 (AP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee today approved the nomination of Ray J. O'Brien as United States Attorney for Hawaii.

W. H. Wills Takes FCC Oath

Washington, July 23 (AP)—Former Governor William H. Wills of Vermont took his oath today as a member of the Federal Communications Commission to succeed Norman S. Case. A Republican, Wills was appointed by President Truman on June 13 and was confirmed by the Senate a month later.

HOPE IS APPOINTED TO VETS' COMMISSION

HARTFORD, July 23. — (AP) Gov. Baldwin today announced the appointment of J. William Hope, of Bridgeport, to membership on the Connecticut Veterans Reemployment and Advisory commission, to hold office until July 1, 1947.

The governor also announced the appointment of Representative Eleanor H. Little, Republican, Guilford, to the board of trustees of the Connecticut State Farm for Women, at Niantic. Miss Little was named to serve until July 1, 1948, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of John H. Goss, of Waterbury.

Firm Hires War Veterans Only

Quincy, Mass., July 23 (AP)—An honorable discharge from the Army or Navy is the first requisite for a job at Yule Industries, Inc.

For the organization, founded recently to repair and rebuild automobile and truck engines, is owned by two men who were disabled in World War II. They conceived the idea of forming their own company while patients in the Army's Percy Jones Hospital.

The owners are Major Douglas Yule, who was injured seriously at Camp McCoy, Wis., and Lieutenant Burl Harrison, holder of the Silver Star, who lost a leg at Tunisia.

"We hire war veterans only," Yule said today, "and if they are disabled, that doesn't matter."

How They Reached Decision

He said he and Harrison decided on their "veterans only" program after watching sad-faced patients at the hospital contemplate the future minus arms or legs, or with other physical handicaps.

"We decided that if a man couldn't stand, we'd find him a bench job," Yule went on, "and if a man needed outside work, we'd find that for him. We decided to adjust our business to train them."

There are 35 veterans working for Yule, Inc., and the major hopes to have "200 former cripples" at his place before long.

Camouflaged City Hid Flying Fortress Plant

By The Associated Press.

SEATTLE, July 23—Boeing Aircraft officials disclosed today the existence of a 26-acre "wonderland" of chicken - feather trees, canvas buildings, canvas roads and burlap dirt which have been an unseen (except from a birdseye view) part of Seatle's skyline for nearly three years.

It comprises a village of camouflage atop Plant No. 2, a main assembly area, and was erected by United States engineers to protect the Flying Fortress and Superfortress factory from the threat of Japanese air raids.

The camouflaged village, if real, would shelter 200 people in its fifty-three houses, transporting them and their goods in three trucks and a trailer and in numerous passenger cars on its three main streets. It has twenty-four garages and a service station, hedges and fences, gardens, three greenhouses and a neighborhood store.

UNFINISHED PORTRAIT OF FDR IS UNVEILED

NEW YORK, July 23—(AP) The unfinished portrait for which the late President Roosevelt was sitting when he collapsed and died at Warm Springs, Ga., April 12 was unveiled today at Gimbel Brothers, New York department store, in the presence of the artist, Elizabeth Shoumatoff.

Mrs. Shoumatoff said Mrs. Roosevelt had requested the painting and that it might possibly be given to the Roosevelt Memorial at Hyde Park, N. Y.

R. Frank Kingdon, principal speaker at the ceremonies, said: "The portrait is unfinished and unfinished it must remain."

The portrait, in colors, has an uncompleted background, although the facial characteristics are virtually finished. In it the President wore a navy cape over a gray suit, a white collar and a maroon tie.

7,500 GI's Land At Hampton Roads

Newsport News, Va., July 23 (AP). More than 7,500 service men returning from Europe debarked today from five ships that docked at the Hampton Roads port of embarkation, and port officials said that about 1,200 more are expected Tuesday and 5,000 on Wednesday.

Among today's arrivals, who were transported on the Gen. J. M. Morae, the Gen. W. N. Black, the William B. Giles and the U.S.S. Atlantic City and one LST, included Maj. Gen. John Millikin, commander of the 13th Armored Division; Maj. Gen. Orlando Ward, commander of the 20th Armored Division; Brig. Gen. Wayland B. Augur, of the 13th Armored Division, and Brig. Gen. Edmund B. Sebree, assistant divisional commander of the 28th Infantry Division.

Ships scheduled to arrive tomorrow are the S.S. James Moore, carrying 582 troops from miscellaneous units, and the LST Convoy 9 with 1,129 passengers.

The transport Henry Gibbons, with 2,771 veterans of the Italian campaign, and the J. William McAndrew, carrying 2,416 troops, are due to arrive Wednesday.

Soldiers Lose Round In Adoption Fight

New York, July 23 (AP)—The men of Battery C of the 38th Field Artillery, Second Infantry Division, today lost the first round of their move to keep Joseph Eugene Paremba, 12, their duffle-bag stowaway from Poland, in the United States.

W. Frank Watkins, District Director of Immigration and Naturalization, said a board of special inquiry had excluded the lad from the country but that an appeal had been taken to the tAtorney General of the United States who he said could admit Paremba.

Battery C brought Paremba to America last Friday, declaring he had joined the outfit and had fought beside them in Europe for months. The battery collected more than $1,000 for him, so he wouldn't be classified as a pauper, and then one of them, Corporal Leroy Ritchey of Tulsa, Okla., a former school teacher, agreed to adopt him.

Officers of the battery aided the men in carrying their case to the immigration authorities.

Meanwhile Mrs. Ritchey was reported to be on her way east to aid in the proposed adoption of Paremba.

'BLACK CATS' LAND IN N.Y.

California's 13th Armored Division Comes Home

New York, July 23 (AP) — Elements of another group of great American fighting men—the 13th (Black Cat) Armored Division, known as "California's Own," although its personnel came from many states — debarked today at this port.

The 2,471 men from the 13th who arrived on the Holland-American Line H.M.S. Noordam comprised the bulk of the 3,000 service men who were aboard seven ships entering the harbor during the day.

Others ships docking were the Benjamin Goodhue, with 535 troops; Theodore Parker, James M. Porter and Negley D. Cochran, 15 each; Empire MacDermott, 53, and Stephen Girard, 16.

On Way To New Jersey

The "Black Cats," for which California assumed sponsorship through a legislative act and gubernatorial proclamation in 1943, were en route to Camp Kilmer, N.J. Upon completion of their furloughs, the 13th's troops are scheduled to reassemble at Camp Crooks, Cal., for service in the Pacific area.

Hardest fighting by the 13th was in the Ruhr pocket in April, Major Francis Palmer, of Scotts Bluff, Neb., executive officer of the 67th, said.

Units of the 13th arriving were 67th Armored Infantry Battalion, 124th Armored Engineering Battalion, 46th Tank Battalion and an ordnance detachment of the 135th Armored Ordnance Maintenance Battalion.

Convoy Due Today

A five-ship LST (landing ship, tank) convoy and six transports, carrying 2,238 American troops, 323 navy personnel and 274 Dutch Marines, are scheduled to arrive tomorrow from Europe.

The LST's—the first flotilla to enter New York harbor from Europe since V-E day—will carry 28 soldiers, all liberated war prisoners, the Navy personnel and the Dutch Marines.

The transports are James W. Riley, with 573 troops due for discharge or reassignment; Ward Hunt, carrying 571 reassignment troops; Mormaclark, with 51 troops returning for discharge; Mormacmoon, with 580 reassignment troops; Thomas Hart Benton, carrying 463 troops, including 113 colored troops; Frederick Ives, with eight United States troops.

The Aiken Victory, first Victory ship converted for troop passenger use, also will arrive at Boston tomorrow evening with 1,958 troops.

POLITICAL CENSORSHIP OF DISPATCHES IS ANOTHER PROBLEM, BUT OFFICIALS HERE SAY THE FIRST POINT ON THE LIST IS TO GET THE NEWSMEN ON THE SPOT.

OFFICIALS SAID THE STATE DEPARTMENT HAS BEEN PUSHING THE GENERAL QUESTION OF FREE ACCESS TO NEWS IN EASTERN EUROPE FOR AT LEAST SIX MONTHS.

THE PROBLEM FALLS PRIMARILY IN THE LAP OF W.AVERELL HARRIMAN, AMBASSADOR TO MOSCOW, AND IT WAS LEARNED THAT HE HAS DISCUSSED IT WITH THE RUSSIAN FOREIGN OFFICE.

RESULTS HAVE BEEN EXTREMELY MEAGER THUS FAR.

THE DEPARTMENT'S EFFORTS ARE ALONG TWO LINES. ONE IS TO SEND SPECIFIC REQUESTS WITH THE NAMES OF CORRESPONDENTS WISHING TO VISIT A GIVEN CAPITAL. THE OTHER IS TO ASK FOR A GENERAL POLICY AGREEMENT.

PRAGUE AND BELGRADE HAVE BEEN OPENED CONSIDERABLY ALREADY, BUT MANY CORRESPONDENTS FIND THEMSELVES FORCED TO RETURN TO ROME OR

JUL 24 1945

ATHENS IN ORDER TO GET OUT THEIR NEWS WITHOUT STRONG POLITICAL CENSORSHIP.

AMERICAN CORRESPONDENTS IN MOSCOW HAVE BEEN TAKEN ON TOURS OF SOME EASTERN EUROPEAN COUNTRIES, BUT THESE WERE CLOSELY CONDUCTED AND DISPATCHES WERE SENT THROUGH RUSSIAN CHANNELS.

NONE HAS BEEN ADMITTED YET TO POLAND, ALTHOUGH IT WAS NOTED THAT THE NEW GOVERNMENT HAS JUST BEEN SET UP IN WARSAW. U.S. AMBASSADOR ARTHUR BLISS LANE, ON HIS WAY TO WARSAW, HAS INSTRUCTIONS TO TAKE UP THE MATTER SOON AFTER HIS ARRIVAL, AND THERE IS CONSIDERABLE OPTIMISM THAT CORRESPONDENTS IN LONDON WILL GET THERE QUICKLY.

VIENNA REMAINS CLOSED TO WESTERN NEWSMEN. THE INTENTION OF THE STATE DEPARTMENT, AUTHORITIES SAID, IS TO TRY TO OPEN THE AUSTRIAN CAPITAL AS SOON AS THE ALLIED CONTROL COMMISSION IS SET UP THERE.

ACWX

JUL 24 1945

THE PROBLEM IN ROMANIA, HUNGARY AND BULGARIA VARIES SOMEWHAT AS THESE ARE ENEMY STATES. HENCE REQUESTS FOR ADMISSION OF NEWSMEN ARE UNDER JURISDICTION OF THE ALLIED ARMISTICE COMMISSIONS WITH RUSSIAN, BRITISH AND AMERICAN REPRESENTATIVES.

AN IMPORTANT POINT IN THIS CONNECTION ARE CLAUSES IN THE ARMISTICES SIGNED BY THE UNITED STATES, BRITAIN AND RUSSIA, GIVING SOVIET AUTHORITIES CONTROL OVER COMMUNICATIONS.

AT THE TIME, THE STATE DEPARTMENT SAID THESE WERE WRITTEN IN BECAUSE THE COUNTRIES STRADDLED THE RED ARMY'S SUPPLY LINES. IT WAS IMPLIED THEN THAT PEACE TREATIES WERE EXPECTED TO BE WRITTEN SHORTLY AFTER THE END OF THE WAR, AND THESE MILITARY-INSPIRED CLAUSES WOULD BE OMITTED.

NOW, HOWEVER, IT APPEARS THAT TREATIES MAY NOT BE WRITTEN FOR AT LEAST ONE OR SEVERAL YEARS. MEANWHILE THESE WAR-TIME CLAUSES PRESUMABLY REMAIN IN OPERATION.

LONDON, JULY 22-(AP)-THE SUNDAY EMPIRE NEWS SAID TODAY THAT THE JAPANESE HAVE MADE THREE INDIRECT--AND UNSUCCESSFUL--PEACE APPROACHES THROUGH NEUTRAL CHANNELS, TRYING TO LEARN WHETHER THE UNITED STATES WAS PREPARED TO OFFER SURRENDER TERMS AND IF SO, WHAT TERMS.

"APPROACHES WERE MADE TO REPRESENTATIVES IN TOKYO OF SWITZERLAND AND OF THE INTERNATIONAL RED CROSS AS WELL AS TO VATICAN DELEGATES IN CHINA," THE NEWSPAPER SAID. "NOTHING WHATEVER HAS COME FROM THESE APPROACHES WHICH WERE NOT CARRIED FURTHER, AND NO DIRECT OVERTURE HAS YET BEEN MADE TO WASHINGTON."

"THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT DISMISSES THESE INDIRECT APPROACHES AS ATTEMPTS TO UNSETTLE AMERICAN OPINION AND START A QUARREL IN CONGRESS OR THE AMERICAN PRESS OVER THE WISDOM OF GIVING JAPAN TERMS BETTER THAN UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER," THE PAPER WENT ON.

THE STORY, SIGNED BY THE PAPER'S DIPLOMATIC CORRESPONDENT, DID NOT INDICATE THE SOURCE OF ITS INFORMATION.

WITH PETAIN

PARIS, JULY 23-(AP)-THE TABLES WERE TURNED AS THE TRIAL OF MARSHAL HENRI PHILIPPE PETAIN GOT UNDERWAY TODAY--THE ACCUSED WAS THE ACCUSER AT THE VICHY GOVERNMENT'S RIOM TRIALS FIVE YEARS AGO, WHILE THE ACCUSED THEN WERE THE ACCUSERS TODAY.

AT RIOM, A FEW MILES OUTSIDE VICHY, FORMER PREMIERS PAUL REYNAUD, LEON BLUM AND EDOUARD DALADIER, GEN.MAURICE GAMELIN AND OTHER THIRD REPUBLIC LEADERS WERE BROUGHT INTO THE PRISONERS DOCK IN THE FALL OF 1940. TODAY THEY WERE AMONG THE WITNESSES FOR THE PROSECUTION OF PETAIN.

THE RIOM TRIAL WAS ORDERED BY PETAIN, THEN VICHY CHIEF OF STATE, TO PROVE THE DEFENDANTS GUILTY OF STARTING THE WAR AGAINST GERMANY AND OF THE RESULTANT "DEFEAT OF FRANCE."

TODAY PETAIN WAS ESCORTED TO THE PRISONER'S DOCK AND REYNAUD ACCUSED HIM OF BRINGING ABOUT THE FRENCH TRAGEDY OF 1940.

AMERICAN NEWSMEN TODAY HAD A FIELD DAY COMPARED WITH RIOM, WHERE THE ATTITUDE TOWARD THEM WAS DISTINCTLY CHILLY.

HERE THEY HAD SPECIAL TELEPHONES AT THEIR DISPOSAL AND THE BEST SEATS IN THE CROWDED COURTROOM. AT RIOM THEY HAD TO STRAIN TO HEAR THE VOICES OF THE JUDGES AND LAWYERS AND THEN HAD TO MAKE THEIR WAY BACK TO VICHY TO FILE THEIR STORIES, FOR THERE WERE NO FACILITIES AT RIOM.

WITH PETAIN
BY RELMAN MORIN

PARIS, JULY 23-(AP)-PAUL REYNAUD, THE LAWYER FORMER PREMER OF FRANCE FROM WHOM OLD MARSHAL PETAIN TOOK OVER IN JUNE, 1940, TOLD AT PETAIN'S TRIAL TODAY THE STORY OF HIS OWN FRUSTRATED EFFORTS TO KEEP HIS COUNTRY FIGHTING.

REYNAUD PROMISED TO DRIVE HOME TOMORROW HIS CHARGE THAT PETAIN WAS RESPONSIBLE FOR FRANCE'S DECISION TO SEEK AN ARMISTICE.

AT TODAY'S FIRST SESSION, THE FORMER PREMIER SET THE STAGE FOR THAT "LONG STORY," AS HE CALLED IT, BY RECOUNTING THE EVENTS THAT LED UP TO THE COLLAPSE OF THE THIRD REPUBLIC.

REYNAUD TESTIFIED, AMONG OTHER THINGS:

THAT HE TELEPHONED THE LATE PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ON JUNE 5, 1940, AND GOT A PROMISE OF FIELD GUNS AND AMMUNITION FROM THE UNITED STATES, IF FRANCE WOULD KEEP ON FIGHTING.

THAT THE LATE ADMIRAL DARLAN HAD WANTED TO ATTACK THE GERMANS BEFORE THEY COULD ATTACK FRANCE, RATHER THAN FIGHT A DEFENSIVE WAR.

THAT GEN.MAXIME WEYGAND ONCE PROPOSED TAKING THE GOVERNMENT BACK TO PARIS, AFTER IT HAD FLED, AND WAITING THERE FOR THE GERMANS TO COME IN AS THE ROMAN SENATE WAITED FOR THE BARBARIANS.

APPARENTLY STRUGGLING WITH PAINFUL MEMORIES, REYNAUD, A SMALL, DAPPER MAN WITH BIRDLIKE GESTURES, SPOKE SMOOTHLY FOR THE MOST PART BUT THERE WERE TIMES WHEN HIS VOICE BROKE AND HIS FACE WORKED WITH EMOTION.

HE STARTED BY RECOUNTING THE THEORY THAT BEFORE THE WAR THE FRENCH PEOPLE WERE LULLED BY THE ILLUSION THAT THE MAGINOT LINE PROTECTED FRANCE FROM THE GERMAN ARMY.

"BUT WHAT WAS THE MAGINOT LINE?" HE ASKED. "IT WAS TWO SECTIONS OF FORTIFICATIONS ON A FRONT OF 500 MILES. DID IT SHIELD THE TRADITIONAL INVASION ROUTE? IT CERTAINLY DID NOT."

IT WAS DURING THE PERIOD OF THE SO-CALLED "PHONEY WAR" OF 1939 AND EARLY 1940, HE SAID, THAT ADMIRAL DARLAN PROPOSED AN ATTACK ON GERMANY THROUGH BELGIUM.

A89

REYNAUD SAID HE SUPPORTED THE PROPOSAL, FEELING "IT WAS CERTAINLY BETTER FOR US TO ATTACK IN OUR HOL() THAN IN THE ENEMY'S HOUR," AND THAT HE DISCUSSED THE SITUATION WITH GEN.MAURICE GAMELIN.

GAMELIN TOLD HIM, HE SAID, THAT "I WILL TAKE THE RESPONSIBILITY."

BUT OTHER ARMY COMMANDERS AND REYNAUD HIMSELF DOUBTED THAT FRANCE HAD THE STR

BUT OTHER ARMY COMMANDERS AND REYNAUD HIMSELF DOUBTED THAT FRANCE HAD THE STRENGTH, HE CONTINUED, AND THE PLAN WAS DISCARDED. REYNAUD DECLARED: "I AM BOUND TO SAY THAT GEN.GAMELIN IS A MAN OF COMPLETE HONOR AND LOYALTY, A MAN WHO NEVER DREAMED OF PROFITING PERSONALLY FROM THE POWERS CONFERRED ON HIM BY THE GOVERNMENT."

THEN REYNAUD RAPIDLY SUMMARIZED THE STORY OF THE GERMAN BREAK-THROUGH AT SEDAN, NULLIFYING THE MAGINOT LINE WITH TANKS AND STUKAS.

"THE HIGH COMMAND WAS STUPIFIED," HE SAID. "GEN.DE GAULLE ALONE HAD PREDICTED IT. IT WAS THEN THAT I MADE THREE DECISIONS."

THESE WERE TO PUT GEN.MAXIME WEYGAND IN GAMELIN'S PLACE, TO MAKE GEORGES MANDEL MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR--AND TO RECALL MARSHAL PETAOM

THESE WERE TO PUT GEN.MAXIME WEYGAND IN GAMELIN'S PLACE, TO MAKE GEORGES MANDEL MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR--AND TO RECALL MARSHAL PETAIN INTO THE GOVERNMENT AS VICE-PREMIER AND THE GOVERNMENT'S MILITARY ADVISOR--WHICH HE DID ON MAY 18, 1940.

HE MADE THE POINT IN HIS TESTIMONY AGAINST PETAIN THAT THE MARSHAL CAME INTO THE GOVERNMENT WHEN THE MILITARY SITUATION WAS AT ITS WORST. HE INFERRED THAT NONE OF THE SUBSEQUENT EVENTS MADE THE SITUATION ANY WORSE THAN IT WAS WHEN PETAIN ASSUMED HIS ROLE.

A LATER FRENCH PLAN FOR A GENERAL COUNTER-ATTACK, REYNAUD SAID, COULD NOT BE PUT INTO EFFECT BECAUSE OF WITHDRAWALS.

"FOR FOUR YEARS THE VICHY NEWSPAPERS SAID THIS WAS THE CAUSE OF FRANCE'S DEFEAT," HE ADDED. "THAT IS TOTALLY FALSE."

REYNAUD SAID THAT WHEN HE BEGAN THINKING OF MOVING THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT TO NORTH AFRICA, HE BEGAN ENCOUNTERING DIFFICULTIES AND OBJECTIONS.

JUL 24 1945

A90

GENERAL STAFF OFFICERS, HE SAID, REPLIED TO HIS PLAN FOR RAISING A NEW CONSCRIPTION CLASS BY SAYING: "THERE ARE NOT ENOUGH RIFLES." HE SAID HE WOULD RAISE HALF THE CLASS AND THEY CLAIMED "THERE STILL AREN'T ENOUGH RIFLES."

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH OFFICERS, HE WENT ON, TOLD HIM "YOU CAN'T STATION AN ARMY IN NORTH AFRICA. IT WILL BE DECIMATED BY EPIDEMICS."

BUT MOST IMPORTANT, HE SAID, WAS PETAIN'S REACTION. THAT WAS "YOU CAN'T ABANDON FRANCE." REYNAUD SAID HE RETORTED: "DO YOU THINK WE CAN GOVERN FRANCE WITH HITLER HERE?"

REYNAUD SAID HE CAME AWAY FROM CABINET AND MILITARY MEETINGS OBSESSED BY A SINGLE FEAR--THE EFFECT ON THE FRENCH PEOPLE. HE SAID "WHAT WOULD THEY THINK IF THE TWO MEN (PETAIN AND WEYGAND) WHO INCARNATED MILITARY HONOR WERE TO DENOUNCE US AS COWARDS?"

HE SAID HE WAS SURE PETAIN WOULD BE THE FIRST TO RESIGN, SO HE DETERMINED NOT TO BREAK WITH PETAIN. THIS, HE SAID, WAS HIS "MONUMENTAL ERROR."

MEANWHILE, HE WENT ON, HE WAS IN CLOSE TOUCH WITH BOTH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL.

"I TELEPHONED PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ON JUNE 5 IMPLORING HIM FOR GUNS. HE REPLIED WITH THAT LOFTINESS OF VIEW AND THAT GRANDEUR OF SOUL THAT WERE CHARACTERISTICS OF THIS GREAT MAN THAT I WOULD HAVE 75-MILLIMETER ARTILLERY AND AMMUNITION."

HE SAID HE STILL WAS PLANNING, THINKING SCHEMING AND SEARCHING FOR MEANS TO CARRY OUT HIS PLAN TO TRANSFER THE SEAT OF FRENCH AUTHORITY

TO NORTH AFRICA AND GO ON FIGHTING.
THERE WAS, HE ADDED, A STORMY SCENE WITH WEYGAND WHEN THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF TOLD HIM THE FRENCH ARMIES WERE "FALLING APART" AND THAT AN ARMISTICE MUST BE ASKED. REYNAUD SAID HE REPLIED THAT THE DECISION FOR AN ARMISTICE LAY WITH HIM, REYNAUD, ALONE.

A91
HE SAID HE THEN DETERMINED TO RID HIMSELF OF WEYGAND. THERE WAS STILL THE QUESTION OF THE EFFECT ON FRANCE OF PETAIN'S RESIGNATION.
HE SAID HE WAS DETERMINED TO VOICE HIS PROJECT FOR AN INTACT FLEET, AN INTACT EMPIRE AND 400,000 MEN IN NORTH AFRICA AT THE NEXT MEETING OF THE COUNCIL OF MINISTERS REGARDLESS OF THE CONSEQUENCES.
"I NOW COME TO THE STORY OF THAT MEETING. IT IS A LONG STORY," HE SAID.
IT WAS THEN--AT 6 P.M.--THAT THE PRESIDING JUDGE ORDERED AN ADJOURNMENT. REYNAUD WILL CONTINUE HIS STORY TOMORROW.

RESISTANCE LEADERS, WHO MAINTAIN THEY SUFFERED AT THE HANDS OF VICHY AUTHORITIES, HAVE BEEN ASKING FOR PETAIN'S HEAD. THERE ARE, HOWEVER, MANY FRENCHMEN WHO BELIEVE THAT PETAIN, A WORLD WAR ONE HERO, DID THE BEST HE COULD UNDER HOPELESS DIFFICULTIES.
PETAIN'S PROSECUTOR IS ANDRE MORNET, ONE OF FRANCE'S MOST FAMOUS CRIMINAL LAWYERS, WHO CONVICTED MATA HARI, WORLD WAR ONE WOMAN SPY. MORNET WAS HEAD OF THE LEGAL COMMISSION IN PETAIN'S VICHY GOVERNMENT, BUT SAID HE ACCEPTED THIS POST IN ORDER TO WORK SECRETLY FROM THE INSIDE AGAINST PETAIN.
PETAIN HAS ASSERTED THAT RECORDS OF THE AMERICAN STATE DEPARTMENT AND OF THE BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE WOULD SUPPORT HIS CLAIM THAT HE COOPERATED WITH THOSE GOVERNMENTS, BUT THE PROSECUTION CONTENDS THAT DOCUMENTS FROM GERMAN, ITALIAN AND SPANISH ARCHIVES WILL PROVE THE CONTRARY.
THE AGED PETAIN SPENT LAST NIGHT IN A SPECIAL APARTMENT IN THE PALACE OF JUSTICE BESIDE THE COURTROOM. WITH HIM IN THE TINY QUARTERS WAS HIS WIFE, WHO WILL ATTEND THE TRIAL SESSIONS.

THE CONVOY WAS INTERCEPTED WEST OF THE CAPE OF NOJIMA, WHICH IS THE EASTERN LAND ARM PROTECTING THE BAY, AND WHEN THE FLAMING ACTION WAS OVER A MEDIUM AND A SMALL CARGO SHIP WERE ON THE BOTTOM, A MEDIUM CARGO VESSEL WAS PROBABLY SUNK AND AN ESCORT CRAFT WAS DAMAGED.

THUS THE TOLL OF JAPANESE SHIPPING--ALREADY HARD-HIT--ROSE TO 791 VESSELS AND SMALL CRAFT SUNK OR DAMAGED IN 14 DAYS OF RAIDING BY THE FLEET AND LAND-BASED WAR PLANES OF THE NIMITZ AND MACARTHUR COMMANDS.

WHILE THIS TASK FORCE WAS ON THE RAMPAGE ON TOKYO'S DOORSTEP, ANOTHER FORCE OF LIGHT UNITS SHOWED UP 550 MILES TO THE SOUTH AND BOMBARDED THE PORT OF OMURA ON CHICHI JIMA IN THE BONIN ISLANDS.

THE FACT THAT LIGHTER UNITS OF THE U.S. THIRD FLEET COULD SPLIT THEIR FORCES AND MOVE OUT SEPARATELY IN SEAS THAT ONCE WERE THE VERY CORE OF JAPANESE NAVAL AND AIR POWER TESTIFIED TO THE PARALYSIS NOW GRIPPING THE ENEMY.

NIMITZ' SUMMARY OF THE CARRIER PLANE RAID LAST WEDNESDAY ON THE BIG YOKUSUKA NAVAL BASE IN TOKYO BAY BELATEDLY DISCLOSED THAT ONE OF JAPAN'S LAST TWO SEAWORTHY BATTLESHIPS, THE 32,720-TON NAGATO, HAD BEEN PUT OUT OF ACTION AND 20 OTHER ENEMY VESSELS SUNK OR DAMAGED.

OKINAWA, JULY 22-(AP)-TWO PRIVATEERS OF FLEET AIR WING ONE HAD GOOD HUNTING OFF THE WEST COAST OF KOREA AND IN THE TSUSHIMA STRAIGHTS TODAY.

PILOTED BY LT. CMDR. JOHN M. MILLER, HAZELHURST, MASS., AND LT. (JG) GEORGE P. ARNOL, (74 KOESTER) BUFFALO, N.Y., THEY SANK A SMALL FREIGHTER AND DAMAGED THREE OTHERS WITH REPEATED STRAFING ATTACKS WHICH FIRED ALL FOUR SHIPS.

A PRIVATEER STRAFING A JAPANESE GUNBOAT OFF THE COAST OF CHINA TOOK A HIT FORWARD AND CRASHED INTO THE SEA. OTHER PRIVATEERS SAW SEVEN SURVIVORS GET INTO A LIFERAFT IN THE DANGEROUS WATERS AND RADIOED FOR AID, MEANWHILE HOVERING PROTECTIVELY OVERHEAD.

WITHIN HALF AN HOUR, A CORONADO SEAPLANE PICKED UP ALL SURVIVORS. THEIR NAMES WERE NOT AVAILABLE.

THE ENEMY SAID THE NEW SHANGHAI ATTACK STRUCK AIR FIELDS IN SHANGHAI'S SUBURBS AND INSTALLATIONS ON THE BUND ALONG THE WHANGPOO RIVER SUNDAY.

LONG-RANGE BOMBERS OF THE SEVENTH FLEET AND THE 13TH AIR FORCE ATTACKED 95 ENEMY WATERCRAFT RANGING FROM JUNKS AND LUGGERS TO SMALL FREIGHTERS AND GUNBOATS IN PATROLS AROUND CHINA COAST, FORMOSA, INDO-CHINA AND BORNEO.

A CONCENTRATION OF ENEMY SHIPPING IN THE GULF OF SIAM WAS POUNDED FOR THE SECOND DAY SATURDAY, NAVY LIBERATORS LEAVING A MEDIUM FREIGHTER SINKING AND ANOTHER DAMAGED OUTSIDE HATIEN HARBOR AND A SMAL FREIGHTER AND A BARGE SUNK INSIDE THE HARBOR.

LATER 13TH AIR FORCE LIBERATORS APPEARED AND BOMBED TWO SMALL JAPANESE GUNBOATS, A MEDIUM FREIGHTER AND THREE SMALL CARGO SHIPS.

LIBERATORS SANK EIGHT CARGO CRAFT OFF THE COAST OF FORMOSA. MARINES STRAFED 20 JUNKS NEAR HONG KONG, ATTACKED 20 SCHOONERS NEAR AMOY AND RAN DOWN A BARGE LADEN WITH 20 JAPANESE SOLDIERS IN SWATOW HARBOR.

A SCHOONER WAS SUNK OFF THE COAST OF INDO-CHINA AND TWO BARGES WERE SUNK IN RAIDS ON THE LESSER SUNDA ISLANDS SOUTH OF BORNEO.

STILL AMONG THE LIVING, HOWEVER, ACCORDING TO RECURRING NATIVE REPORTS, IS YAMASHITA. REPORTS BROUGHT TO THE SIXTH DIVISION SAY HE IS HIDING OUT, HUNGRY, IN THE MOUNTAINS WITH A PICKED BODYGUARD OF 300 TROOPS, AND THAT HE WAS IN KIANGAN SHORTLY BEFORE THAT STRONGHOLD FELL TO THE AMERICANS RECENTLY.

IT HAD BEEN SUSPECTED THAT HE HAD FLED BY AIR WEEKS AGO, BUT JAPANESE BROADCASTS RECENTLY ASSERTED HE STILL WAS LEADING HIS TROOPS IN THE FIELD.

REGARDLESS OF YAMASHITA'S WHEREABOUTS, HUNGER AND HOPELESSNESS ARE INCREASING THE JAPANESE SURRENDERS. ON FRIDAY ALONE 75 SOLDIERS AND NINE CIVILIANS VOLUNTARILY GAVE UP TO THE SIXTH DIVISION.

SURVIVORS STILL IN THE DENSE FORESTS BOUNDED BY THE AMERICAN-HELD HIGHWAYS 4, 5 AND 11 ARE IN MISERABLE CONDITION. RELIABLE REPORTS DESCRIBE MANY OF THEM AS STARVING AND SO POORLY ARMED THAT THERE OFTEN IS ONLY ONE RIFLE FOR EVERY TEN MEN.

IT URGED AN IMPROVED RATION SYSTEM FOR WAR WORKERS AND THE DISPERSING AT GOVERNMENT EXPENSE OF "BOTH YOUNG AND OLD IN THEIR FAMILIES TO SAFE LOCALITIES SO THAT THEY MAY WORK WITHOUT PRIVATE WORRIES."

TOKYO REPORTED THAT RATIONS MIGHT BE HARDER TO GET THAN EVER, HOWEVER, BECAUSE THE WHEAT AND BARLEY HARVEST WAS 20 PER CENT BELOW NORMAL DUE TO "EXTRAORDINARILY BAD WEATHER CONDITIONS."

A POOR WHEAT CROP ALSO WAS FORECAST FOR JAPANESE-OCCUPIED NORTH CHINA, BUT DOMEI CLAIMED THIS WOULD BE OFFSET BY A 10 PERCENT INCREASE IN THE PRODUCTION OF OTHER GRAINS AND SWEET POTATOES.

American and British Carrier Planes Renew Attacks on Jap Shipping.

RECORD BOMBING

Enemy Puts Up Some Aerial Resistance as Pounding from Sea Continues.

GUAM, Wednesday, July 25—(AP) American and British carrier planes heavily damaged two Japanese battleships, two aircraft carriers, and three cruisers in coordinated attacks on Japan's great Kure naval base and a a Shikoku Island port yesterday.

Admiral Nimitz, in today's communique, disclosed that the bombing and bombardment of the Japanese homeland was carried into its eighth day of the past 15 when cruisers and destroyers moved close to shore early this morning and shelled a seaplane base and an airfield on southwestern Honshu.

Just one hour later, he issued a second communique reporting that American and British carrier planes renewed their heavy attacks on Japanese warships and merchant vessels at dawn today.

Ready for Final Plunge

Admiral Halsey, broadcasting from his flagship standing off Japan, said that the Pacific fleet had opened a new phase of naval warfare—"the final plunge into the heart of Japan."

"If the Nips do not know they're a doomed nation they're even stupider than I think they are," he said.

The new carrier attacks centered in the Kure naval region and at Kobe. Other military targets were objectives.

Nimitz did not report the strength of today's carrier assaults, but it was presumed they were nearly as heavy as yesterday's when well over 1,000 Yank and British pilots struck along a 325-mile length of Japanese territory.

Japan had possibly its worst bombing of the war yesterday, for more than 600 B-29s (Tokyo said more than 700) joined in the strikes to attack oft-bombed Osaka and Nagoya war industries. Other army air strikes at Japan ran the total spreading ruin over the Nipponese homeland to 2,000 or more.

Big Ships Damaged

With reports from Admiral Halsey covering less than half of yesterday's action by well over 1,000 American and British aircraft in a 325-mile sweep from northern Kyushu through the inland sea to Nagoya, Fleet Admiral Nimitz announced these results:

Two battleships, the Ise and Hyuga, heavily damaged.

Heavy cruiser Aoba damaged.

One large aircraft carrier damaged.

These warships were caught at Kure naval base and damaged by American carrier pilots.

The British, attacking to the north, damaged a Kobe type escort aircraft carrier in waters north of Takamatsu on Shikoku island.

The British also damaged two freighters near Suta, on the Shikoku coast, and sank a small coastal cargo vessel, three luggers and four junks, all caught also in the inland sea.

For the first time in the 15 days Halsey's fleet had prowled Japanese home waters, the enemy put up some aerial resistance.

Light Planes Shot Down

Flagship reports said 18 Japanese took to the air. Nimitz reported eight were shot down by American pilots. There was no indication that any Japanese aircraft got even near the fleet, however.

A total of 64 enemy aircraft were destroyed or damaged by the coordinated raids, in which some American planes were sent against Kure and Kyushu airfields from which the Japanese had staged their Kamikaze attacks against the United States' Ryukyus forces during the Okinawa campaign.

U. S. carrier pilots destroyed 11 and damaged 20 grounded planes. The British destroyed 12 and damaged 13 on the ground.

Between the two days' concentrated aerial assaults, Rear Adm. J. C. Jones, Jr., took a small force of cruisers and destroyers to the southwestern tip of Honshu to bombard Kushimoto seaplane base and Shionomisaki airfield, a radio station and other military installations in the vicinity of Kushimoto.

Steaming in to make their early morning attack, they encountered and sank a small ship, probably a picket boat.

Most of the Japanese warships damaged were caught in or near Kure naval yard, where five months ago 14 major units of the Japanese Navy were heavily damaged. It was apparent that Halsey was making certain the Japanese are not given a chance to repair them and put them in commission again.

The Japanese, abandoning their recent policy of negative resistance, put up extremely heavy antiaircraft fire as well as some fighter plane opposition. Nimitz made no mention of U. S. plane losses.

Although official announcements were not exact, the number of Allied planes over Japan yesterday included more than 1,000 British and American carrier aircraft; at least 625 Superforts; 93 P-51 Mustangs, and 40 to 45 Corsairs.

The Ise and Hyruga, 23-knot, 32,000 ton vessels, are not considered standard battleships since they have 200-foot staging decks on the stern from which aircraft could be catapulted. Constructed in 1917, they have seen little action in this war, although both were believed to have participated in the second battle of the Philippines, last October.

No information is available here on the large carrier which was damaged, but it was believed to be one of the newer and most important of the enemy's flattops.

On Monday, search privateers of fleet Airwing One sank two small freighters, left two more small freighters burning and damaged two other small freighter, in sweeps over the Tsushima straits and waters south of Korea.

Search planes of Fleet Airwing 18 on the same day sank a small coastal cargo vessel and heavily damaged another off the east coast of Honshu, near Sendai. Other planes of the same Wing sank a small coastal cargo vessel, strafed another, and sank two sea trucks south of Honshu.

The record force of more than 600 B-29s from the Marianas (Tokyo said there were 700) attacked the already burned and battered cities of Osaka and Nagoya with 4,000 tons of demolition bombs.

Vice Adm. John S. McCain's carrier force of Admiral Halsey's Third Fleet, prowling the coast of Japan into the third straight week, steamed in by night for the attack.

The first planes, starting the great field day for American air might, were launched in clear dawn. The carriers, in order to strike at Kure, probably were not more than 100 miles off the mainland island of Shikoku.

All throughout the morning and the afternoon the carriers continued to launch attacks, Associated Press Correspondent James Lindsley reported from a fleet ship.

The B-29s hit their Nagoya and Osaka targets, the latter 165 miles east of Kure, around noon. They encountered no fighter opposition and only moderate anti-aircraft fire.

The attack on Kure was the second by carrier planes—it was previously raided March 19—and the 20th Air Force announced simultaneously with the new strike that reconnaissance photographs showed 50 per cent of the Kure arsenal was destroyed by B-29s June 22.

Use Okinawa Two Bases

Mustang and Thunderbolt fighters and Liberator bombers from Okinawa and Iwo Jima also took part in the day-long assault on the homeland, Tokyo reported.

Japanese broadcasts admitted ships and installations were hit at Kure but claimed the damage to ships was "very light."

The attack on Kure followed by five days a raid by American and British carrier aircraft of Halsey's fleet on the Rising Sun Empire's second largest naval base—at Yokosuka, on the shores of Tokyo bay.

Reappearance of the Third Fleet, which had vanished behind a security blackout after bombing and bombarding the Tokyo bay area, marked a shift in Halsey's blows to southwestern Japan.

The fleet, after an opening carrier raid on the Tokyo area July 10, steamed north 600 miles to Hokkaido and then back to Tokyo, bombarding the homeland repeatedly with bombs and shells.

No Japanese ship or plane had attempted to strike back at the fleet until the 12 Japanese fighters challenged the carrier aircraft over Kure yesterday.

Lindsley and AP Correspondent Richard O'Malley, also with the carrier force, said one American and one Japanese plane were shot down in the air battle.

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' Tuesday communique issued while the raid was still going on, announced other fleet blows from the far north Pacific to the China Sea.

Three Warships Reported Hit by Yanks at Kure

Japan Raided by 2,000 Planes, Including Record B-29 Force

(Spencer)

By the Associated Press.

GUAM, July 24.—Two thousand American planes from carriers and half a dozen land bases hammered Japan with concentrated fury today, pounding warships in the great Kure naval base and blasting the industrial centers of Osaka and Nagoya with 4,000 tons of explosives.

The prowling United States 3d Fleet moved back to the shores of Japan in force, sending between 1,000 and 1,500 carrier planes racing over Kure and inland cities of Honshu Island.

Associated Press war correspondents with the fleet reported pilots located hiding enemy warships at Kure and dived to the attack through intense antiaircraft fire and the first aggressive fighter interception the enemy has mounted in two weeks of naval air and sea bombardment.

Correspondent James Lindley reported at least one direct hit with a 1,000-pound bomb on a warship. Correspondent Richard O'Malley told of two others.

More Than 600 B-29s in Raid.

The greatest force of Super Fortresses ever to take the air flew from their Marianas bases to attack Osaka and Nagoya. Headquarters here said there were more than 600. Tokyo placed their number above 700.

The 4,000 tons of bombs—some of them 2 tonners—were dropped on five war plants in the Nagoya-Osaka area in the attack, first daylight strike of the B-29s since June 26. The Super Forts encountered no fighter opposition and only moderate antiaircraft fire.

Simultaneously with the carrier attack on Kure, the 20th Air Force disclosed that the huge naval arsenal was 56 per cent destroyed or damaged in a Super Fort daylight raid a month ago—June 22. Reconnaissance photos showed 2,400,000 square feet of roof space and more than 70 buildings damaged.

Other Areas Attacked.

Japanese broadcasts today reported Mustang fighters, Liberator bombers and other light aircraft from Iwo Jima and Okinawa hammered widespread areas of Southern Honshu in co-ordinated sorties. (Normally about 300 of these land-based planes hit Japan daily.)

The Tokyo radio admitted that "some 2,000" American planes were on the loose over Honshu. It quoted a Kure naval station communique, which confirmed that "vessels at anchor" as well as airfields were the target.

The enemy communique said about 30 B-29s escorted by Mustangs and 150 carrier planes started the raids at 6 a.m. Other waves followed.

Called "Heaviest" Assault.

The Domei News Agency termed the 2,000-plane assault the "heaviest ever carried out on the homeland." It claimed damage to ships was light, but admitted that important establishments at Osaka were hit and fires started.

Correspondent Lindsley's dispatch said that the enemy, apparently goaded into action by the 3d Fleet's recent taunts, finally sent up planes to harass the attackers.

Returning carrier pilots reported that 12 Japanese fighter planes swept out of the clouds and made passes at them. One Hellcat was lost in the swirling fight that followed. At least one Jap pilot was downed.

The attack on Kure, where carrier airmen left 14 major Japanese ships crippled March 19, was the third consecutive day of widely separated fleet attacks.

Paramushiro Shelled.

Paramushiro in the Kuriles, north of Japan, was shelled Sunday, while destroyers for the first time attacked enemy shipping off the China coast, south of Shanghai.

Yesterday two other light forces wrecked a four-ship convoy in outer Tokyo Bay and shelled Chichi Jima, 550 miles south. The Tokyo radio reported this area was struck again today.

The assault on Nagoya—an important aircraft manufacturing center—was the 17th by Super Forts. It was the sixth on Osaka, which has a population of 3,250,000 and is Japan's second largest city.

The carrier attack on Kure was primarily for the purpose of hunting out Japanese battleships, carriers and cruisers believed heavily damaged in the big strike of March 19.

American planes at that time damaged one or two battleships, two or three aircraft carriers, two light aircraft carriers, two escort carriers, one heavy cruiser, one light cruiser, four destroyers and a submarine. Putting the ships back into commission would require at least three to five months under ideal conditions, American naval officers estimated. Presumably they had remained at their Kure moorings.

Important Targets in Area.

Japan's greatest battleship, th Yamato, was added to the to shortly afterward. She went down blazing, along with two cruiser and several destroyers, south o Kyushu April 6.

Kure, hemmed in on three sides by green hills bristling with anti-aircraft guns, contains important targets in addition to Japan's largest naval yards. There are an ordnance plant and a naval air station, as well as numerous operational airfields.

It was from these fields four months ago that a great force of enemy planes struck back at Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's carriers and set the stage for one of America's great epics of the sea—the fight for life by the carrier Franklin.

Admiral Mitscher's force shot down 1,640 Japanese planes between March 14 and May 28—one possible reason the enemy has evaded aerial scraps with the present powerful fleet.

Cannery Center a Target.

There were indications that Sunday's shelling of Paramushiro was designed to tighten the economic stranglehold on Japan. Targets included a cannery center at the coastal town of Suribachi — from which much tinned fish is sent to the main home islands.

Helping to draw the noose on food and weapons supply lines were widespread blows by Gen. MacArthur's land-based aircraft, which sank 14 Japanese ships and small craft over the week end and pounded anew at Shanghai's water front.

Navy searchplanes Sunday and Monday sank or damaged seven more enemy vessels in the Yellow Sea and off Korea.

In Wellington, Defense Minister F. Jones said a New Zealand heavy bomber squadron from Europe soon will join in the aerial battering of Japan under RAF command.

ONE B-29 IS MISSING AFTER RECORD RAID

Heavy Damage Reported in Osaka, Nagoya Industrial Area.

GUAM, Wednesday, July 25—(AP) "Heavy damage" to seven industrial targets of Japan's Osaka-Nagoya industrial area was reported today by the 20th Air force after yesterday's record-breaking assault by 625 Superfortresses.

"I could see our bombs go down and when I looked again, the buildings weren't there," said Cpl. Angelo Vassalla, Rochester, N. Y., reporting on damage to the important Kawanishi Aircraft company plant at Takarazuka, 8 miles northwest of Osaka.

Only a single Superfortress was lost, the 20th Air force announced, but 180 of the big planes landed at Iwo Jima enroute home because of battle damage or dangerously low fuel. Pilots said anti-aircraft fire was the heaviest they ever had seen over Osaka, although Japanese air opposition was almost negligible.

The 20th meanwhile claimed 89.5 per cent destruction of the Japanese city of Numazu in previous raids—the most complete ruin of any enemy city. Gifu, which was 74 per cent destroyed, previously was labelled the most completely destroyed.

Reconnaissance photographs show 1.2 square miles of a total of 1.4 square miles of the builtup area of Namazu burned out by the July 17 raid.

A more detailed study of photographs showing damage to sprawling Kure naval arsenal disclosed 2,949,690 square feet destroyed or damaged, totaling 70 percent of the total roof area.

Yesterday's announcement said it was 56 percent damaged.

Unescorted by fighter planes, the 625 B-29s yesterday dumped almost 4,00 tons of demolition bombs on Nagoya and Osaka.

Osaka Hit By 400 B-29's

GUAM, July 25 (Wednesday) (AP).—The Tokyo radio, quoting a Japanese military communique, said the attack on Osaka lasted for two hours and was made by 400 B-29's raiding in forces of from twenty to forty planes. Admitting that fires had broken out, Tokyo said an "investigation is now in progress as to other damage sustained."

The communique reported another 300 planes struck the Tokai army district." No further information was contained on this phase, but Domei news agency in another dispatch said Nagoya had been the principal target.

Domei also reported that the B-29s struck the cities of Kobe, Okayama, Tokushima, Himeji, Wakayama and Kuwana. Kobe, Himeji and Wakayama are in the Osaka area.

The Japanese communique claimed without confirmation that anti-aircraft batteries shot down seven "enemy planes" and crippled twenty-nine others over the Osaka, Kobe and Kyoto areas. Presumably the claims referred to B-29s Kyoto, approximately midway bu west of Nagoya and Osaka, wa not otherwise mentioned in th list of Japanese target cities a outlined by Tokyo.

Iwo Jima's Mustangs Join In Nagoya Attack

Guam, Wednesday, July 25 (AP).—Nearly 100 Iwo Jima-based Mustang of the 7th Fighter Command strafed and rocketed airfields, shipping and transportation in the Nagoya area of Honshu yesterday.

The attack was made in adverse weather but aginst light enemy opposition.

No Japanese fighters came up t meet the P-15's and only a few were sighted on airdromes, where six were damaged. Pilots reported light flak.

A locomotive hit by a rocket was destroyed and a dozen railway cars were damaged. A railway bridge and a radar station were damaged and three out of eight small vessels in Suruga Bay were strafed and left flaming.

Fleeing Japs Killed North of Balikpapan

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, July 24.—Australian troops have slaughtered several truckloads of Japanese 6 miles north of Balikpapan in Southeast Borneo and advanced 3 miles northward along the inland road leading to the oil fields of Samarinda, in Eastern Borneo, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

The Japanese were caught as they tried to withdraw secretly from around Mount Batochampar, where they had made a strong stand for more than two weeks in an attempt to block the route to Samarinda, 60 miles north of Balikpapan.

The water approaches to Samarinda were shelled during the night by Allied light naval units which hit Japanese bivouac areas in the Mahakam River delta east of the oil town.

Royal Australian Air Forces continued to give close support to ground operations.

The Melbourn radio, in a broadcast recorded by the American Broadcasting Co., said the Japanese retreating from the Balikpapan area "are leaving a trail of dead through native villages. Groups of natives are being slaughtered every day. In one village the whole population was destroyed."

Bilbo to Offer Apology Only if He's Given One

Stands on 'Dear Dago' Letter Until Brooklyn Woman Recants Hers; She Won't

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP).—Senator Theodore G. Bilbo, Democrat, of Mississippi, said today he would apologize for addressing a Brooklyn woman in a letter as "My dear Dago" if she apologizes to him first, but she said in Brooklyn tonight that she would do nothing of the kind.

Representative Vito Marcantonio, American-Laborite, of New York, disclosed Senator Bilbo's use of the term yesterday when he made public a letter from the Senator to Miss Josephine Piccolo, of 93 Garfield Place, Brooklyn. He wrote Senator Bilbo a letter urging him to apologize. Senator Bilbo replied to Representative Marcantonio today, declaring:

"Yes, I addressed Josephine Piccolo as 'My dear Dago,' but I asked her if I was mistaken to let me know. This letter was written several weeks ago and to this good day she has not attempted to correct the salutation that I used.

"Yes, I will apologize to Josepine Piccolo if she will withdraw over her signature her nasty, insulting, pusillanimous letter to me and apologize for writing it.

"Otherwise, my letter stands as written, and I will leave it to any fair and impartial tribunal whether or not I was justified in all I said to her and I would have been excusable if I had made my letter a little stronger. I only answered her in kind."

At her home tonight Miss Piccolo, who wrote to the Senator protesting his opposition to the Fair Employment Practices Committee, said:

"Whatever I wrote, I have no intention of taking back. I hope my letter is printed.

"I would expect an apology for not only myself but also for the other 6,000,000 Italian people. I think his reaction was not to me personally, but to an Italian name.

"If I find the time, I will certainly answer Bilbo's letter. To me the F. E. P. C. is not a dead cause."

Told that Senator Bilbo said he particularly objected to a section of her letter in which he quoted her as writing she found it hard "to believe that you are allowed to enter the doors of the United States Senate," Miss Piccolo declared: "I definitely believe that he has not the right to use the type of speech he has used in slandering whole sections of our populations."

In his letter to Representative Marcantonio today, Senator Bilbo wrote of the term "Dago:"

"It is an old Southern custom to use the word in referring to members of the darked skinned races from southern Europe and it is generally used without any suggestion of contempt."

Senator Bilbo also commented that "I would be the last person in the world to say or do anything to adversely reflect upon the honor, loyalty and patriotism of the hundreds of thousands of fine and splendid citizens of Italian descent of this Republic, but of course there are some exceptions."

Senator Bilbo sharply criticized Representative Marcantonio for what he termed an "audacious, arrogant, and presumptuous letter."

Following is the text of the letter Bilbo said he received from Miss Piccolo:

"Dear Sir:

"I have just read of your action on the F. E. P. C. I find it very hard to believe that you are an American citizen and much, much harder to believe that you are allowed to enter the doors of the United States Senate. Every man and woman who cast a vote for you should hang his head in shame.

"As a citizen of our country I urge you that you stop your filibustering against the F. E. P. C. The American people will not allow men of your kind to stand in the way of their freedom and happiness. Certainly men who go out to fight, men who go out to earn bread, women who bear children—will not let these things continue too long—there are those who will not let them forget.

"I suggest that you read the Declaration of Independence. I suggest that you go out into the streets and learn to see men—and what they want—and most of all what they need.

"You will note that I am neither 'Jew nor Negro,' but that does not make you less my enemy.

"We want the F. E. P. C. and you must help us get it—or you will answer to the millions of Americans who want it."

The text of the letter Senator Bilbo said he wrote to Miss Piccolo:

"My dear Dago:

"(If I am mistaken in this please correct me).

"Your letter of June 28 has been received and I have read it with interest and surprise. What in the h—— are you griping about? You live in New York and today the most vicious F. E. P. C. bill ever passed by a lawmaking body goes into effect, so you have the F. E. P. C. for the State of New York.

"If you like it and want it, then you have my permission to have it and to keep it, but the question of passing a Federal law and imposing this damnable, un-American, unconstitutional, Communistic legislative monstrosity upon the other forty-seven states by an act of Congress is an entirely different proposition.

"So will you, please, keep your dirty proboscis out of the other forty-seven states, especially the dear old State of Mississippi? It is to this state that I am directing my efforts and I have no one to account to except the people of Mississippi. And while passing, let me assure you that from 99 to 100 per cent of the people of my state are bitterly and uncompromisingly against this fool, Communistic concept of government. It would destroy the freedom of the people and it certainly is a violation of the American way of life, for which we are fighting a world today.

"Watch the result of the enforcement of Governor Dewey's F. E P. C. and weep."

Aussies Advance 2 Miles In Borneo

Manila, Wednesday, July 25 (AP). Australian ground forces on Dutch East Borneo moved 2 miles farther along the interior highway toward Samarinda, and were within 50 miles of their objective Monday.

The advance was aided by close ground support by Australian Spitfires, which caught a Japanese road convoy 9 miles north of Mount Batochampar, and probably destroyed 18 trucks filled with Nipponese troops. An enemy withdrawal in the Batochampar area has been under way several days.

Seven RAAF Liberators attacked three Celebes airfields and eight Australian Kittyhawks, cooperating with American P-T boats of the 7th Fleet, shot up water craft and damaged Japanese buildings in the Mandar Gulf in the Celebes.

SHANGHAI AREA POUNDED, 13 JAP VESSELS DAMAGED

Three Major Airdromes Are Bombed by 350 Yank Aircraft.

NO INTERCEPTION

Japanese Claim 7 American Planes Downed by Anti-Aircraft Fire.

MANILA, Wednesday, July 25—(AP) More than 350 Far East Air Force bombers and fighters of all categories returned to Shanghai after a four-day lull to sink or damage 13 warships and freighters and crater three major airdromes.

General MacArthur's communique today, announcing the strike 36 hours after Tokyo had acknowledged the raid, listed a destroyer, a 3,000-ton freighter transport and a smaller freighter definitely sunk; a destroyer escort, two submarine chasers, a 10,000-ton freighter-transport and six freighter-transports aggregating 27,000 tons probably sunk, and much small shipping damaged.

First line combat planes of both the Fifth and Seventh air forces based on Okinawa, took advantage of the first break in weather since July 18, to drop bombs ranging from 20-pound fragmentation dusters to 1,000-pounders on shipping and airdromes.

Three large fires and several smaller ones licked over parked Japanese aircraft caught on Kiangwan air center, by flights of Liberators. Invader attack bombers hit Taohang and Tinghai airstrips at buzzing level, spewing countless fragmentation bombs over dispersal areas and buildings.

There was no interception.

Tokyo claimed seven U. S. aircraft were downed by anti-aircraft fire.

Mitchells attacking from medium altitude, and Thunderbolts and Mustangs, racing at virtual water level over the muddy Whangpoo river with wing bombs, went after shipping off Shanghai bund with deadly effect to make the largest haul of recent weeks.

An eight-ship enemy convoy proceeding toward Shanghai was bombed and dispersed by Seventh Air Force Liberators before dawn, several hours before the heavy daylight attack.

An estimated 45 planes were caught on the ground and destroyed or seriously damaged at Kingwan, Tachang and Tinghai airfields, where the attackers caused large fires and explosions.

Search planes ranging over coastal sectors bombed Fusan airdrome in Korea, scored hits on a munitions dump at Amy, causing large explosions, and destroyed a river boat near Saigon, French Indo-China.

Returning to Japanese skies after a typhoon enforced absence of a few days, patrol bombers of the Far East Air Forces attacked Miho and Yonago airfields on southern Honshu at night.

They caused large fires and explosions which lighted the entire area.

Other FEAF bombers and fighter planes attacked air facilities and military installations on Tanega and Amami islands in the Northern Ryukyus.

A Seventh Fleet reconnaissance bomber downed a Japanese plane and destroyed another aground near Kota Baharu in Malaya.

To the south, a Navy patrol bomber destroyed a freighter and a lugger off the west coast of Borneo.

In the East Indies, heavy bombers and fighters of the Australia Air Force struck enemy shipyards and air bases in Java and the Celebes. Coordinating their attack with light naval units of the Seventh Fleet, they harassed coastal areas, heavily damaged two schooners and sank two ammunition laden barges in the Halmaheras.

PHILIPPINES GROW AS INVASION BASE

Manila, July 23 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The Philippine Islands are rapidly being converted from a battleground into a mighty jumping-off point for the invasion of Japan, Lieut. Gen. Wilhelm S. D. Styer, commanding Army Forces in the Western Pacific, said today in an interview.

He said that during July, August and September, almost a million more tons of supplies will pour into the Philippines than were unloaded during the entire eight months' Philippine operation to date. The number of service troops will be more than double the number already engaged in such work. Millions of square feet of storage space will be required to handle incoming goods, and rear bases in the South Pacific, Australia and New Guinea will be "rolled up" as rapidly as possible with troops and supplies moving forward to the Philippines.

About 600,000 tons of supplies will be left behind in Australia and New Guinea on a "caretaker status with Dutch and Australian Army forces taking over some of them on lend-lease.

'Cheating' of Fellow Captives By Filipinos in Camp Charged

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, July 24.—The [illegible] year-old tragedy of Camp O'Donnell Prison was revived today in a new, melancholy light. Maj. Gen. Basilio J. Valdes, chief of staff of the Philippine Army, ordered an immediate investigation of reports that some Filipino prisoners of the Japanese hoarded and profiteered at the expense of their fellow captives.

Gen. Valdes told the Associated Press he believed that no Americans were involved, either as victims or culprits.

At the end of the "march of death" across Bataan in 1942, a total of 52,000 Filipino prisoners were confined in O'Donnell and strictly separated from American prisoners, Gen. Valdes said.

When the imprisonment ended more than a year later, 34,000 Filipinos had died of starvation and disease.

Reports prompting the investigation asserted the mortality rate was accelerated because a small group of officers assertedly deprived the men of food and medicine.

Gen. Valdes received a letter charging that staff officers hoarded for their own use foodstuffs supplied by the Japanese and sent into the camp by civilians for the general welfare. It said that some doctors obtained medicine sent in by civilians and resold it to sick prisoners who applied to them for treatment.

One quinine pill costs 50 cents. Treatment assertedly was denied when prisoners were unable to purchase medicines.

Charges contained in letters reaching Gen. Valdes also said Filipino officers placed in authority by the Japanese beat and kicked other prisoners.

Heirs and beneficiaries of captives who died in internment complained that they failed to receive money and personal effects belonging to the deceased.

Gen. Valdes said he had ordered commanders of all Philipine Army camps to obtain testimony from officers and men who survived imprisonment and now are serving in the Army. He said it was not known whether the principal offenders also survived.

However, if the charges are proved, Gen. Valdes said, they would be sufficient for immediate court-martial of all involved.

Americans originally confined in O'Donnell Camp subsequently were transferred to other camps and O'Donnell became a camp solely for Filipinos.

Gen. Valdes said one of the letters of complaint was from an unidentified American charging irregularities during the early days of the camp. Malpractices assertedly continued throughout the entire Filipino imprisonment period.

Civilians living near O'Donnell and in Manila sent large quantities of food, medicine and money to O'Donnell prisoners. At first, the Japanese authorities refused entry of these packages, but subsequently permitted them into the camp.

IN FAVOR OF BASES

Manila, July 24 (A. P.).—American public opinion favors maintenance of post-war defensive bases in the Pacific, members of a congressional committee investigating potential naval bases said today.

The eight-man party conferred with Gen. MacArthur and Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid, met Philippine President Sergio Osmena and toured naval bases in the Philippines on their two-day visit to the islands which ended today. Their itinerary also included Okinawa, Iwo, the Marianas and the Marshall Islands.

Tinian Base One Year Old.

Tinian, July 24 (A. P.).—This Marianas Island has been built into the largest of all B-29 bases since American Marines and soldiers swarmed ashore a year ago today to take it from the Japs in nine days of stiff fighting.

The thirty-two-square-mile island has two fields from which the Superforts strike at Japan, both developed from former Nipponese fighter strips; a harbor capable of accommodating large ships; thirty-eight miles of asphalt highway; hospitals with a total of about 1,200 beds and countless shops, warehouses and other buildings.

So many Superforts are based on the island that they give it the appearance of a vast aircraft carrier, on whose coral "decks" are laid out miles of runways, taxiways and buildings.

Tinian, like Saipan and Guam, still has a Japanese problem but the number of enemy soldiers continuing to hide in caves is rapidly dwindling.

Sailor Sends Halsey Spurs To Ride Hirohito's Horse

By the Associated Press.

ADAK, Aleutians, July 24.—A pair of handmade spurs was offered to Admiral Halsey today for his proposed ride on Emperor Hirohito's white horse.

The maker, Vernon L. Fertic, motor machinist's mate third class, of Orlando, Fla., wrote to the admiral, offering the spurs and adding, "I'd like to be there to saddle the horse for you."

Fertic's commanding officer, Comdr. J. J. Underhill, said he was sending Admiral Halsey a formal letter attesting to the expert workmanship in the spurs, on which Fertic has labored more than four months.

Jap Envoy to Berlin Reported Planning to Urge Surrender

By the Associated Press.

SALZBURG, Austria, July 24.—American infantrymen guarding 100 Japanese diplomatic personnel today quoted their prisoners as saying they understood that Lt. Gen. Hiroshi Oshima, Japanese Ambassador to Berlin, would urge his government to comply immediately with the Allied demand for unconditional surrender.

The American soldiers were able to have frequent talks with the Japanese, who were taken into custody early in May by the 3d Infantry division.

The Japanese were scheduled to leave Austria by plane today for Le Havre, where they will board a vessel for the United States Thursday. An advance contingent of 33 top-ranking members of the Japanese diplomatic staff in Berlin sailed earlier this month and now is in the United States.

Third Army headquarters said the second party included the remainder of the staff and wives and children. The Japanese have been quartered in the luxurious Astoria Hotel in Badgastein.

Although no more American diplomatic personnel remain in Japanese hands, it was believed that the State Department might be attempting to exchange Gen. Oshima and others for Lt. Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright and other high-ranking Americans.

JAP NEWSCASTERS SAY U. S. SEEKING QUICK KNOCKOUT

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—(AP) Japanese broadcasters worked overtime today announcing the latest American raids on the homeland and stepping into diplomatic matters to argue that the United States was trying for a quick knockout of Japan to avoid playing a secondary role to Soviet Russia in the postwar world.

On the military side, Radio Tokyo acknowledged the huge scale air attacks by Yankee Superforts, carrier and land based planes, and said the stepped-up air blows in the Shanghai area were a prelude to landings on the China coast to protect the Allied flank once they invade Japan proper.

In another of the FCC recorded broadcasts, Tokyo announced that the Japanese political association, the totalitarian party, would meet tomorrow and the first item on the agenda would be a report "on the state" of the health of Emperor Hirohito.

Discuss Hirohito's Health

Various cabinet members, headed by Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo, will discuss Japan's current problems. Hirohito's health will be discussed by Dr. Hiroshi Shimomura, board of information president.

"Finally," reported Tokyo, "led by President Minami, all members will join in shouting 'banzai' three times, and the meeting will be brought to a close."

Domei news agency, in an English-language broadcast intended for American listeners, declared the United States was "desperate to bring about a quick end of the war against Japan" because of a "fear" it would "play second fiddle to the Soviet Union" if American national power were reduced by a long war.

"The United States, too, is aware that a powerful country arising in the postwar period on a level with itself x x x will be the Soviet Union," said Domei, following a theme made familiar by Nazi propagandists.

The agency added that American operations had already reached the "all out" stage in the bid for speedy victory, a pace necessitated because of "fears" that the Russians, "already freed from the war against Germany and already carrying out peacetime reconstruction efforts," might gain the ascendency.

JAPS ADMIT CITY IS 'PITIFUL RUINS'

JUL 26 1945

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24—(AP) The northern Japanese city of Muroran was reduced to "pitiful ruins" by the United States Third Fleet bombardment July 14, Tokyo radio said today in reporting rebuilding progress.

The broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, added that the people of the port and iron mill city on Hokkaido Island have dug tunnels into mountain sides "immune against bombs and shells."

Tokyo claimed "the great majority of factories and factory workers are back at work."

Japs to Discuss Mikado's Health.

San Francisco, July 24 (A. P.).—Radio Tokyo said today that subjects ranging from the state of the Emperor's health to the war situation and foreign policy will be discussed at tomorrow's meeting of Japan's totalitarian party, which will be closed with three banzai shouts of members.

The leading item on the agenda, said the broadcast recorded by the FCC, will be a talk "on the latest state of his Majesty's health" by Dr. Hiroshi Shimomura, president of the Board of Information.

The international situation and the Government's foreign policy will be explained in detail by Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo and Katsuo Okazaki, spokesman of the Information Division of the Foreign Ministry. The "actual war situation and future perspectives" will be the subject discussed by Capt. Etsuzo Jurihara, vice-chief of the Imperial Headquarters press section.

A "vigorous exchange of opinion will take place among the various division heads" during deliberations on reports presented, said the enemy broadcast, after which Gen. Jiro Minami, president of the party, will lead the members in shouting "Banzai"— defiant victory cry.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20 (AP)— America is waging an "extremely fierce political offensive" to "bring about Japan's capitulation" because it fears it will "play second fiddle to the Soviet Union in the postwar period," the Tokyo radio argued today.

A long war, Tokyo said, will reduce America's "national power."

The broadcast, intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission, apparently was a reply to recent American statements saying that Japan should accept unconditional surrender before the country is laid waste.

America fears that the Soviet Union, "already freed from the war against Germany and already carrying out peacetime reconstruction efforts," may gain ascendency "if the war against Japan is protracted," the broadcast said.

3 U. S. Submarines Shell Chichi Jima, Japs Say

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—Three American submarines bombarded Chichi Jima in the Bonin Islands, 550 miles southeast of Tokyo, for 30 minutes early today, Japanese broadcasts reported.

The submarines shelled Chichi after a Japanese submarine chaser had attacked them earlier, the English-language broadcast said.

Chichi was shelled by American surface craft Monday, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported from Guam.

The Tokyo Radio, in a previous report also intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission, said four surface ships shelled Chichi from "morning until sundown" Monday, following a predawn bombardment of the island by submarines.

Japs Claim B-29s Drop Toy Explosive Planes

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 24.—BBC today reported recording a Tokyo broadcast which said three B-29 bombers dropped explosive toy airplanes over Hirochima prefecture Sunday.

BLACK MAC'S' ACES BACK FROM PACIFIC

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24—(AP) Black Mac's Killers," top ranking ght fighter squadron in the Pa fic, returned home today after 1 onths overseas.

The crack Marine outfit is com anded by black-haired, 33-year-old . Col. Marion M. "Black Mac" agruder, 121 South Ashland ave e, Lexington, Ky., who has ught in both the European and acific treaters.

In six weeks fighting over the Ryukyus the squadron shot down 30 enemy planes to set a Pacific night fighting record. Each man in the squadron had put in more than 400 hours of night flying, and more than 100 of these hours were over Okinawa.

Three Japanese "Bettys" were shot down in 45 minutes over Okinawa by 1st Lt. Albert F. Dellamano, 23, of 3 Netherlands road, Brookline, Mass.

The squadron did not have a single operational loss during the six-week Okinawa campaign.

Col. Magruder fought with the RAF night fighters in England in 1942 and then came back to teach night fighting technique to other Marine pilots. The colonel's wife, two sons and parents, all reside in Lexington. He is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and entered the Marine corps in 1936. He got one plane over Okinawa.

British Heavy Carriers Held Adapted To Pacific

NIPS ARE DOOMED, DECLARES HALSEY

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24—(AP) Admiral William F. Halsey, boss of the current fleet-aerial attack on Japan, said tonight that "the Pacific fleet has opened a new phase of naval warfare. . . the final plunge into the heart of Japan."

Halsey's broadcast, made from his flagship off Japan, was heard here by the American Broadcasting Co. shortly after it was announced that his carrier planes had returned to attack the Kobe-Kure naval base area for the second consecutive day.

The Pacific fleet's new attack, he said, cannot be interpreted by our own people, or the Japanese, as anything but the Opening of "the final plunge into the heart of Japan."

"I said after the far-flung battle for Leyte gulf that the Japanese fleet was beaten, routed and broken, and nothing has happened since then to change my opinion" Halsey declared.

"What is left of the Japanese navy is helpless but just for good luck we will hunt them out of their holes."

Big naval guns inflicted tremendous damage on the northern steel plants, Halsey said, which had been safe before even from B-29s.

"In the northern part of the empire carriers have already wrought almost unbelievable destruction of enemy shipping, industry and transportation."

"If the Nips do not know they're a doomed nation they're even stupider than I think they are," said Halsey.

"My only regret is that the ships do not have wheels so we could chase them inland after we drive them from the coast," he concluded.

GATCH SAYS JAPA TO RISE IN REVOLT

LOS ANGELES, July 24 — (AP) Rear Adm. Thomas Leigh Gatch told a war chest rally today that Emperor Hirohito would meet the same fate as Mussolini and that the Japanese people would rise in one of the bloodiest revolutions in history to destroy their military leaders.

Admiral Gatch, judge advocate general of the Navy, said the theory that the emperor is a God to Japs was "pure bunk."

"We'll see soon just how venerated he is; I am certain he will die like Mussolini," declared the admiral. "But it is the Sumarai, the 300,000 Japanese military leaders, who must be destroyed. I don't think we'll have to do the job. We are going to see one of the bloodiest revolutions in the history of Japan."

FINDS AMERICA LIKES GLAMOUR

British Film Producer Says He'll Supply It.

London, July 24 (A. P.).—J. Arthur Rank, Britain's foremost film producer, said today that he had returned on Sunday from his first visit to the United States "completely sold on that vast country and its great people," and convinced that British films could gain greater distribution there.

Addressing a crowded press conference in his Mayfair offices, he emphasized that British production would not attempt a slugging match with Hollywood for world markets. "Everywhere in America, in our discussions with industrialists and bankers in New York, Hollywood and elsewhere," he said, "we found a feeling that the United States and Britain must work together to give our best for the world."

The failure of British films so far to gain a really wide showing in America was not the result of discrimination, he said, but was due partly to lack of technical advantages and partly to lack of knowledge as to what sells well in the American market. "If we make films that will entertain the American public, we will get playing time," he told reporters.

"Their emotional extremes are greater than ours," he observed. "They like more glamour—especially glamorizing of their women stars. We will have to meet that. It doesn't mean we will have to Americanize our pictures so they will no longer be recognizable as British. But we will have to choose more international subjects."

Rank said that the British hope in the next year to send to America at least eight pictures, and added: "We hope to work up to fifteen or twenty in two or three years."

The plan for working together with Hollywood was based on an interchange of artists, he said. This started with a recently announced deal with R.-K.-O., providing for jointly turning out two pictures in Britain next year, with an American producer, director and stars.

Britain Probes Pressure On Polish Exile Troops

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 24.—The British government intensified its inquiry into activities of the Polish exiled army's high command today after the London Times reported that the high command was attempting to extract pledges of allegiance to the Lodon Polish regime from the soldiers.

A British Foreign Office commentator told newsmen that any such move would be "contrary to the intent" of the British government, which is seeking a tranquil settlement of Polish affairs following the recognition of the new Warsaw government by Britain and the United States.

The commentator said he had no knowledge of a report that Polish soldiers who signed a declaration that they wished to return to Poland under the Warsaw government were held in a special camp.

The Times said the soldiers in at least one unit were required to sign a statement saying they were "fully aware that my return is harmful to the state and nation" and that they had been told that dangers awaited them in Poland in the event of their return.

6,000,000 Europeans Repatriated to Date

He said the shortage of transportation was the biggest difficulty.

BRITISH GET $100 AS FARE FOR G. I.'S

London, July 24 (A. P.).—A responsible but unattributable source said today that the British Ministry of War Transport charged approximately $100 for each American soldier traveling on the British liners Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth, now being used for troop redeployment to the United States.

The charge is identical with the one that the Government must pay the shipping companies operating the liners, he said.

He said the whole question was one of reverse lend-lease, and has not yet been settled entirely.

CUSTODY LAW INVOKED

Internment Without Trial Provided in Irish Statute

DUBLIN, July 24 (AP)—The Government announced today that it had invoked a law under which Irish citizens might be interned without trial—a move foreshadowed in the Dail Eirenan on July 5, when Prime Minister Eamon de Valera said that plots by the Irish Republican Army against the lives of ministers and police officials had been uncovered.

The authority is from Section 4 —"Offenses Against the State, Act of 1940." An official statement explaining the invocation of the act, which is permanent legislation, said that the powers were necessary to insure the preservation of peace and order.

An Emergency Powers Act that empowered the Government to intern citizens without trial during the war has been allowed to lapse.

PETAIN UNMOVED AS REYNAUD CALLS HIM A 'TRAITOR'

Former French Premier Reveals Plan in 1940 to Offer Italy Territory.

DALADIER WITNESS

Bitter Clashes Between Lawyers and Witness Mark Marshal's Trial.

PARIS, July 24 — (AP) Under scorching cross-examination at the treason trial of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, former French premier, Paul Reynaud revealed the secret fact today that in May, 1940 France and Britain considered buying off Mussolini's entry into the war by giving Italy territorial rights in Africa.

Reynaud said he made the suggestion to Britain himself, although he opposed the plan. The plans were scuttled, he said, by the opposition of Prime Minister Churchill of Britain.

World figures by the dozen, and the hidden history of France's collapse and her armistice negotiations with Germany, were dragged into the limelight as former Premier Edouard Daladier joined Reynaud in testifying against Petain on the second day of the aged Marshal's historic trial.

Called a Traitor

In the steaming, crowded courtroom, the 89-year-old former chief of the Vichy state, charged with intelligence with Germany and with plotting against the security of France, listened unperturbed, his face expressionless, as he heard Reynaud call him atraitor .

Petain heard Reynaud, the last premier of the French third republic:

1. Accuse King Leopold of the Belgians with treason;

2. Assert Petain had obstructed the rearmament of France as far back as 1934;

3. Declare that the late President Roosevelt sent an "extremely strong-worded" telegram to Petain, saying France would lose America's friendship if she dealt with the Nazis;

4. Say that a French-British union, proposed by Churchill in France's last days, was "an ideal which some day must be realized," and

5. Describe his (Reynaud's) opposition to the armistice with Germany and give the reasons why the British attacked the French fleet in North Africa in 1940.

In sharp contrast to the opening day of Petain's trial, the overheated courtroom was slightly less crowded and was calmer than yesterday, when a near-riot broke out. It had settled down to the serious business of trying a man for his life.

At times Reynaud and the three lawyers charged with defending Petain became so wound up in bitter charges and counter-charges of diplomatic moves that one juror plaintively demanded that the trial should return to the question of Petain.

Reynaud's disclosure of the proposed "blood money" deal with Italy was brought out as Petain's lawyers attacked his testimony. Their aim appeared to be to discredit Reynaud personally.

The point was brought out by defense attorney Jacques Isorny without warning. Isorny is tall and quietly effective. His voice occasionally drips with sarcasm, all the sharper for the elegant courtesy he affects.

Almost in a casual conversational voice, he said:

"And now M. Reynaud, would you like to tell the high court under what conditions on May 24, 1940 you offered Mussolini, without England's knowledge, condominium (co-dominion) in Tunisia and equatorial Africa?"

Reynaud turned abruptly and faced him. The witnesses customarily stand facing the judges, with their backs to Petain and his lawyers.

"That's a fairy tale that needs and deserves explanation," Reynaud said.

Tells of Letter to Il Duce

Reynaud began telling about a letter he had written Mussolini suggesting they confer over "issues dividing our countries." He said he intended to make the letter public if Italy attacked France. It was useless when the attack did come," he said.

When Reynaud finished, Isorny read a deposition written by Charles Roux, a French diplomat in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs at the time. Roux asserted that a cable addressed to Rome envisaged offering Italy condominium over Tunisia and ceeding French Equatorial Africa. It was brought out in testimony who sent the telegram.

Reynaud's words came out like the crack of a whip:

"I never dreamed of offering Mussolini Tunisia or any part of French Equatorial Africa."

He said the idea was originally conceived by the French ambassador to Rome, who sent a special emissary to Paris with it. Reynaud said he put no faith in keeping Italy neutral that way.

Reynaud said he went to London and, vehemently denying the assertion in Roux' deposition that the British government was kept in ignorance, said he discussed it with Churchill and other British ministers.

"I knew that the battle of France was going to be extremely dangerous. (Gen. Maxime) Weygand said we could win but it would be very close. Italian aggression, if it came at just that moment, might be the drop of water that shattered the vase," Reynaud said.

"Moreover, I recalled what Sumner Welles told me when he had visited me shortly before. He said he had been deeply impressed by Mussolini's complaint that Italy was bottled up in an ocean closed

Union of France With Britain Seen by Reynaud as Inevitable

(NEVINS)

Ex-Premier Declares at Trial That Petain and King Leopold Both Are Traitors—Tells of Roosevelt Warning in 1940.

Paris, July 24 (A. P.).—Former Premier Paul Reynaud today accused both Marshal Petain and the Belgian King Leopold of treachery in surrendering to Germany, and incidentally declared at Petain's trial that a union of France and Great Britain is "an ideal that some day must be realized."

The dapper little politician, who said yesterday that he despised the old Marshal, described the union of the two countries proposed by Prime Minister Churchill when France was collapsing in 1940.

Petain, on trial for his life on accusations of intelligence with the enemy and plotting against the security of France, strode into the Palace of Justice courtroom 20 minutes late on this second day of the hearing. He was clad in his marshal's uniform; his face appeared fresh and expressionless.

Reynaud said that on the day his cabinet fell, June 16, 1940, he did not oppose a "cease-fire" order, but was firmly against demands for an armistice. He repeated that he wished to transfer the government to French Africa and continue the war from there and was opposed by Petain and Gen. Maxime Weygand, commander in chief of the reeling French forces.

Reynaud testified that at a cabinet meeting on the day he formed his government, Petain read a letter threatening to resign as vice premier if an armistice were not accepted.

"The next day I received the great British project for union between our two people," Reynaud said.

He added that Camille Chautemps, former premier and a member of the Reynaud cabinet, opposed the plan, saying he did not want to see France become a British dominion. He testified further that Chautemps declared it was possible for the government to leave France without first getting terms of the armistice.

"I was then left with no choice but to resign, for I was in the minority," he said. "That night I explained the situation to the cabinet and President Albert Lebrun asked me to enforce the policy of the majority. I replied 'I will never apply it' for if the majority opinion of the cabinet prevailed, France was lost."

Roosevelt Protest Cited.

Reynaud said President Roosevelt sent Petain an "extremely strong" message warning the marshal that he risked losing the friendship of the United States Government and people because of the terms of the armistice Petain accepted from Germany.

He testified that while the armistice was being discussed he argued with Petain and Admiral Jean Darlan over the French fleet. Asked if the warships would be given to the Germans, Reynaud said Darlan replied:

"I would sooner put it out to sea."

Later, at Bordeaux, Reynaud quoted Darlan as saying: "I will see to it that the fleet does not fall into German hands."

He testified that Darlan—since assassinated in Algiers, where he was collaborating with the American invasion—sent orders to the fleet command to sink the ships rather than let them fall into German hands.

No Faith in Darlan's Word.

"I immediately informed Churchill of this message, but he had no faith in Darlan's word, and the result was Mers El Khebir" (Oran—where the British attacked the French fleet in North Africa), Reynaud said.

The former Premier said that after Petain nominated him for Ambassador to Washington and he refused the post.

"After that I became public enemy No. 1 in France," he said.

He told of the arrest of Georges Mandel, minister of interior in the Reynaud cabinet, and of his trial in Algeria. He said Petain intervened, obtaining Mandel's release from a military tribunal in Algeria so that he could be tried before the court at Riom. Later Mandel became a German prisoner and eventually was slain by two Vichy militiamen.

Referring to his own arrest and questioning at Riom, Reynaud exclaimed:

"Can you imagine, gentlemen, I was arrested for embezzlement!"

Verdun Episode Recalled.

He said experts examined his estate and discovered he had instructed his banker to buy foreign securities, adding:

"That is nothing, gentlemen, compared with actions of a certain high personality who ordered our precious gold taken from the Bank of France and converted into foreign currency."

The "high personality" was not named.

Reynaud recalled the opinion of Marshal Joffre regarding Petain, saying that after the battle of Verdun Petain lacked faith in the possibility of defending the fortress.

"Joffre declared he found Petain so defeated that he wanted to surrender the fortress," Reynaud said.

Reynaud charged that Petain opposed fortifying the northern frontiers of France and also a two-year period of military service. He produced a 1935 Fascist brochure written by Henry Herve entitled "We Need Petain."

Capitulation of Fleet.

The witness testified that while Petain still was Ambassador to Spain before the battle of France began, the marshal told former cabinet minister Anatole Demonzie:

"France will need me the latter part of May."

He said Chautemps still favored continuing the war early in May, 1940, but suddenly changed his views and advocated an armistice. Reynaud asked:

"Who corrupted him? Only Petain could have corrupted him."

He said also that Petain "corrupted" Darlan and thereby brought about capitulation of the French fleet, asserting:

"The armistice could not have been signed without capitulation of the fleet."

Reynaud closed his testimony with the words: "Never has a people been more mistaken than the French concerning Petain—never has a leader done so much harm to a people as Petain."

Counsel Clashes With Court.

Fernand Payen for the defense and Judge Paul Mongibeaux clashed when the attorney declared that "infamous calumnies" were habitual with Reynaud. He cited Reynaud's assertion in 1940 that King Leopold of the Belgians was a traitor, and at this point Reynaud broke into the discussion, declaring: "Certainly I accuse him of treason."

"It is a matter of historical fact," the former Premier said, "that Leopold surrendered during the battle without warning any one; that a French General had protested, and that I said in a radio speech at the time that Leopold acted as a traitor."

Jacques Isorni, for the defense, disputed Reynaud's statement that he had refused a nomination as Ambassador to Washington.

"The truth," said Isorni, "is that Roosevelt didn't want you."

Reynaud Cross-examined.

Under cross-examination, Reynaud reiterated the opinion that Petain committed "traitorous acts" in signing the armistice.

Defense counsel read a letter from Reynaud to Petain in which Reynaud said: "I retain the memory of our collaboration and I don't want to see it darkened by suspicion."

Reynaud replied: "But naturally. I learned in my prison to know Petain. But at the time I wrote that letter, I did not know him."

Returning to his refusal of the post of Ambassador to the United States, Reynaud declared that Secretary of State Hull said "that from the standpoint of my personality I was acceptable, but that he did not believe Roosevelt would accept a member of the French Government dominated by Germany."

Reynaud denied a suggestion that he discussed in Bordeaux with the Spanish Ambassador the question of Spain's intervening with Hitler. "That is false," he said.

He disclosed that on May 29, 1940, some fifteen days before Italy entered the war, he proposed to Great Britain the possibility of making certain concessions to Mussolini in Central Africa to keep Italy at peace. He objected to a defense assertion that he had written Mussolini concerning a condominium over French Equatorial Africa and Tunis, saying: "That is a fairy story that needs and deserves clarifying."

Stresses Accord With Britain.

The fact was, he said, that he wanted to prevent Italy from entering the war and that he proposed concessions. "Churchill was opposed and no decision was ever taken," Reynaud continued. "The basis of my policy always was agreement with Britain."

A juror arose at this point and said, amid applause, that the trial should return to the charges against Petain.

The defense read a letter from Admiral William D. Leany, then the American Ambassador to Italy and now President Truman's personal chief of staff. The letter said that the United States should furnish all possible assistance to France and preserve Franco-American friendship. The attorney asked whether Reynaud, in refusing to go to Washington as ambassador, had "done as much in the way of diplomacy as Petain did."

Reynaud replied: "But he was an admirable man—a noted admiral, accredited to the French Government. What do you expect him to say?"

Daladier Is Heard.

Reynaud left the stand at 5:15 P. M. and former Premier Daladier was called as the second witness. Daladier declared that he testified sorrowfully, but without resentment. He had no criticism of Petain between 1934 and 1939, he said, because, "Petain during that period was held in the highest respect by both the Army and nation."

Daladier, however, declared that Petain lowered the army's fund for manufacturing war materials by 20 per cent while Petain was a Minister in 1934, "just when we should have been arming." He said he had no idea whether Petain was ever in contact with the Cagoulards, a hooded organization of subversive right-wing elements.

His testimony followed almost exactly the line of his statement during the abortive Riom trials of 1942 when the Vichy regime suspended its trial of him, Reynaud, Leon Blum and the former Commander in Chief, Maurice Gamelin.

Court was adjourned at 6:30 P. M. with Daladier still on the stand.

Active Aid to Nazis Charged.

Reynaud, who handed Petain control of the staggering French government in June, 1940, said he would attempt to establish that Petain not only frustrated his own efforts to keep France fighting, but that the marshal also actively aided the Germans.

Reynaud, first of the principal prosecution witnesses, had completed about one-third of his testimony when the opening session of the historic trial before the French high court of justice and a 24-man jury recessed late yesterday.

A high spot in Reynaud's testimony yesterday was his account of his efforts to have the French government transferred to North Africa after the fall of Paris. He said he at both ends.

"I asked them (the British) if it was possible to devise some kind of formula giving satisfaction to the Italians, on the condition Italy remained neutral, and after the war was won by the Allies," he said.

British officials tabled the suggestion, Reynaud went on. He returned to Paris the next day and nothing more was done about it. He denied that he ever wrote the telegram mentioned in Roux' deposition.

At this point, a juror interposed: "Are we conducting here the trial of Reynaud or the trial of Petain?"

Presiding Judge Paul Mongibeaux said: "I was just going to ask that myself." The juror added: "If we are going on like this, it's going to last two months."

Opposed Fortifications

Reynaud, in his bitter narrative, asserted that Petain had opposed the fortification of the northern frontiers of France long before the war. Petain, he said, also opposed a two-year period of military service.

Dapper and bird-like, the former premier charged that Petain had influenced Adm. Jean Darlan and former Premier Camille Chautemps, a member of the Reynaud cabinet, into signing the armistice with Germany. For himself, Reynaud said that on the day his cabinet fell, June 16, 1940, he did not oppose the order to cease fire but was firmly against demands for an armistice. He said he argued lengthily with other cabinet members.

"I was left with no choice but to resign," he said. "I was in the minority."

"That night," he went on, "I explained the situation of the cabinet to (President Albert) Lebrun who asked me to enforce the policy of the majority. I replied 'I will never apply it,' for if the majority opinion of the cabinet prevailed France was lost."

All through the armistice discussions, Reynaud said, he argued with Petain and Adm. Darlan over the future of the French fleet. He testified that Darlan—since assassinated in Algiers where he was collaborating with the Allied invasion — sent orders to the fleet command to sink the ships rather than let them fall into German hands.

No Faith in Darlan

"I immediately informed Churchill of this, but he had no faith in Darlan's word and the result was Mers El Khebir (Oran—where the British attacked the French fleet in North Africa," Reynaud said.

For more than two hours Reynaud was cross-examined, and impatience mounted over the apparent irrelevancy of points raised.

The defense lawyers accused him of being a "professional defamer," citing his statements about the King of Belgium, and pointing fact that he was a member of Daladier's government which signed the Munich agreement with Hitler.

"I am only stating the historical facts about the King of Belgium," Reynaud said. "x x x he surrendered in the middle of battle without warning either to French or British commanders."

Isorny tried to cut the ground from under Reynaud's claim he had refused to serve as Vichy minister in Washington after his government fell because he would serve under Petain, suggesting that President Roosevelt did not want him.

"Totally untrue," Reynaud said. Cordell Hull, he added, told him that Mr. Roosevelt had no objections on personal grounds, but "quite to the contrary, Hull thought the President would decline to receive any ambassador whatever from Marshal Petain's government."

Reynaud concluded with the assertion that only while in prison with time to think had he "realized" how Petain had plotted to come to power, and said:

"Never has a people been more mistaken than the French concerning Petain—never has a leader done so much harm as Petain did."

After a 45-minute recess, Daladier, who was forced from office as premier just before Germany invaded Norway and was succeeded by Reynaud, took the witness stand. He said he was testifying "sorrowfully, but without resentment."

Daladier said he had no criticism of Petain between 1934 and 1939, because "during that period Petain was held in the highest respect by both the army and nation."

Daladier charged, however, that Petain lowered the army's fund for manufacturing war materials by 20 per cent when the marshal was a minister in 1934—"just when he should have been arming."

He said he did not know whether Petain was in contact with the cagoulards, a hooded organization of subversive right-wing elements, although he had heard reports to that effect. The session was adjourned at 6:30 p. m. with Daladier still on the stand.

Throughout the long day, Petain, who arrived 20 minutes late, sat unmoving and apparently uninterested.

JUL 25 1945

JUL 25 1945

met opposition from the French general staff, but most important, he testified, was Petain's reaction. Reynaud told the court that Petain said, "You can't abandon France," and declared he, himself, had countered with the query, "Do you think we can govern France with Hitler here?"

Tells of Roosevelt Promise.

Apparently burning with anger, Reynaud began his direct attack on Petain by stating, "I despise him and when I was in prison I told him so." Petain sat imperturbed in the prisoners' dock less than a yard from Reynaud.

The former premier, recounting the events which led up to the collapse of the third French Republic, testified, among other things:

That he received a telephoned promise from the late President Roosevelt on June 5, 1940, of field guns and ammunition from the United States if the French would keep on fighting.

That the late Admiral Darlan advocated attacking Germany through Belgium before the Germans could launch an offensive.

That Gen. Weygand once suggested that the government return to Paris and wait there as the Roman Senate waited for the barbarians.

That the French people and the general staff had been lulled by the illusion that the Maginot Line would protect France and that the high command was "stupified" at the German break-through at Sedan.

Riom Situation Reversed.

The tables were turned in the trial of Marshal Petain—the accused was the accuser at the Vichy government's Riom trials three and one-half years ago, while the accused then were the accusers today.

At Riom, a few miles outside Vichy, former Premiers Reynaud, Leon Blum and Edouard Daladier, Gen. Maurice Gamelin and other Third Republic leaders were brought into the prisoner's dock in February, 1942. Today they were among the witnesses for the prosecution of Petain.

The Riom trial was ordered by Petain, then Vichy chief of state, to prove the defendants guilty of starting the war against Germany and of the resultant "defeat of France."

American newsmen today had a field day compared with Riom, where attitude toward them was distinctly chilly.

Hhere they had special telephones and the best seats in the crowded courtroom. At Riom they had to strain to hear, then had to go back to Vichy to file their stories, for there were no facilities at Riom.

U. S. OIL COMPANIES BUILDING IN SYRIA

PARIS, July 21. — (AP) The French Foreign Office professed to be satisfied today with the plans of American oil companies to build refineries in Syria and Lebanon, although somewhat disturbed by other developments in the Levant states.

(The Lebanese government announced last week that it had signed an agreement with Socony-Vacuum Oil Company Inc., and the Standard Oil Company (N.J.) permitting them to build two refineries at Tripoli, using Lebanese labor).

Reports that France had asked the United States officially for information about the American companies' plans were denied by a spokesman at the Quai D'Orsay. He said France had been kept informed of the plans from the start.

'BIG 3' SESSION RECESS PLANNED

Churchill and Attlee to Return to London for Election Returns.

POTSDAM, July 24—(AP) The Big Three conference will pause temporarily late tomorrow while British leaders go home to learn election results and discover who shall speak finally for Britain in the history-charting negotiations.

Prime Minister Churchill, Foreign Secretary Eden, and Clement Attlee, Labor party leader, will fly to London for Thursday's announcement of the July 5 balloting.

On Friday at the earliest the victor is expected back — either Churchill, the conservative party head, with Eden still his foreign expert, or Attlee with a new foreign secretary of his choosing.

A formal British announcement said, "there is no question of the Berlin conference being over by Wednesday when the prime minister, the foreign secretary, and Mr. Attlee are returning to England for the election results."

President Truman, Premier Stalin, and the British leaders held their eighth formal conference session today, but no details were disclosed. Another formal session may be held tomorrow before the Britons depart, marking the close of the "election interim" phase of the conference.

What special plans Truman and Stalin have for Thursday were not disclosed, but it was said they would not discuss matters of the agenda between themselves until the British governmental chiefs return. They might, however, confer on matters of purely Russian-American interest, such as continuing lend-lease, or postwar loans.

Await Election Results

Attlee's presence at Potsdam has permitted the tripartite negotiations to progress with less uncertainty than otherwise would have been the case. It has been obvious that no final responsibilities could be undertaken until Truman and Stalin knew for certain which Briton would head the new government.

Whether this situation has tended to curb British influence in the negotiations thus far is a topic of pure speculation. It is believed, however, that both the Soviet and American delegations have made understanding allowances for the unusual political position of the British spokesmen. The long-range objectives of interallied cooperation were regarded as too great to be jeopardized by any other attitude.

Further, in the British election campaign no sharp differences were raised between Churchill and Attlee over foreign policy.

The chief American aim is understood to be the earliest and most economical defeat of Japan. Agreement on European issues became chiefly a task of harmonizing Soviet and British views, with American opinion apparently somewhere in between.

The determination of all three powers to maintain their valuable wartime confidence and coordination through the difficult period ahead has been emphasized by sources close to each delegation.

The Americans particularly laid stress on this feature in belittling the possibly harmful rumor that there was any lineup of two against one in the big three meetings.

PARLEY DELAYS AS CHURCHILL RETURNS HOME

Prime Minister to Go Back With Attlee to Learn Election Fate.

TRUMAN MAY SEE STALIN

President Is Reported in Mood to Stay Until He Has Gained Objectives.

Potsdam, July 24 (A. P.).—The Big Three have scheduled a recess on Thursday so that Prime Minister Churchill can be in London when the results of the British election are announced. The leaders of the new British Government are expected here on Friday, it was learned authoritatively today.

The British delegation emphasized earlier that Churchill's trip to London did not mean the end of the Potsdam conference.

The Big Three met this afternoon for the eighth successive day. The length of the session and the topics discussed were not announced.

Churchill, Foreign Secretary Eden and Clement R. Attlee, Labor party leader, who has been sitting in on the conferences at Churchill's invitation, arranged to leave Potsdam by plane late tomorrow after the ninth successive Big Three business session.

President Truman and Premier Stalin will take Thursday off from their deliberations while staffs of the three powers catch up on the paper work.

Will Return Immediately.

While there is no elaboration in the British disclosure of the trip to London, it was understood that Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden would return to Potsdam immediately in event of a Conservative party victory. Should the Labor party be victorious, Mr. Attlee presumably would return in the role of Prime Minister, accompanied by his party's choice for Foreign Secretary.

The formal British announcement said merely:

"There is no question of the Berlin Conference being over by Wednesday, when the Prime Minister, the Foreign Secretary and Mr. Attlee are returning to England for the election results."

The statement came amid speculation of an early conclusion of the Big Three conferences, based largely on a steadily growing atmosphere of international understanding and on reports that President Truman had won unexpected Russian concessions.

Truman Would Stay Longer.

It was reported that President Truman was prepared to stay here three weeks longer if necessary to help settle boundary and economic questions confronting the Big Three which possibly could furnish the seeds for another world war.

Despite the general optimism, it was pointed out that Premier Stalin is a No. 1 realist and a shrewd bargainer and that nothing can be taken for granted until the conference is completed. Some members of the American delegation accordingly warned against taking too rosy a view of the outlook.

Meanwhile, personnel of the delegation is coming and going on various assignments in connection with the conference, but most all of the top-rankers, including Secretary of State Byrnes, are working here daily. Observers advised against attaching any great significance to these departures and arrivals.

(NBC Correspondent Roy Porter said in a broadcast from Berlin last night that part of the American delegation already had left Germany and that other members were preparing to leave for "a new and surprising destination."

(In London, diplomatic sources said they were "mystified" by the report and had no comment.

(In Washington the White House declined comment.)

President "Entirely Pleased."

Close associates said today the President was "entirely pleased" with progress made by the American delegation at Potsdam, and it was reported that his own plain-spoken and genial attitude has won the admiration and affection of Premier Stalin.

The belief prevailed that Mr. Truman, in his first venture into international diplomacy, had reached a real understanding with Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill.

The President's aims, from the point of view of the United States, were simple and clear-cut—the defeat of Japan as quickly as possible with a minimum loss of life and adjustment of European differences on a practical common-sense basis. The United States, the President insists, is more interested in getting Russia and Great Britain together on a program than in the details of such an accomplishment.

Speculation Over Russia's Role.

Talk of unexpected Russian concessions focused the spotlight today on this question: What has Russia agreed to do—if that is part of the concessions—to help speed victory in the war against Japan?

Some Russians insist that their government will play a role in defeating Japan, but that it is unwilling to reveal its intentions until the most impressive opportunity develops.

On the social side, the last of the Big Three state dinners was held last night, with Mr. Churchill and his daughter, Mary, entertaining President Truman and Premier Stalin, their foreign secretaries and other members of their delegations. An RAF band entertained the guests.

Truman Prepared to Stay On.

Whether President Truman and Premier Stalin might continue discussions of matters of primary concern to their two countries during the absence of the British leaders remained a matter of speculation in diplomatic circles.

T-5 M. ROONEY MISSES BIG 3

Film Star in Berlin Writes of His Work There.

Berlin, July 24 (A. P.).—Straw-haired T/5Mickey Rooney rolled sleepily off his Army cot this morning and wrote a V-mail letter to "B. J. and Junior," reporting regretfully that he had spent three days inside Potsdam but had not seen the Big Three.

The addressees were Mrs. Betty Jane Rooney and 21-day-old Mickey Rooney Jr. of Hollywood and Birmingham, Ala.

"Our jeep jamboree really gave out and we had a swell crowd of G. I.'s daily but the President of the United States had a lot more important things to do, so we just had to be philosophical and hope we would meet him sometime, somewhere else," the 25-year-old film star said.

"Gen. Marshall came the first night with Mary Churchill and sent us a note of appreciation backstage. And we also had Gen. Arnold, Admiral King and Admiral Leahy in our audiences. But I do not know whether any Russians or British besides Mary saw us. I know I did not see them."

Rooney and Crooner Bobby Breen, who at 19 describes himself as an "indefinite tenor," have cots side by side in a Berlin barracks.

Asks for Pacific Duty.

"We are glad to be a part of this man's Army," Rooney added. "We've volunteered for the Pacific, but nobody ever tells a T/5 anything so we don't know if we will be accepted. Anyhow we have been overseas nearly ten months and entertained 1,500,000 American soldiers from a single man in a hospital ward to a gang of 25,000 at Marseilles. Our fifteen jeep units have covered a total of 110,000 miles in Europe."

Although not formally a part of the jeep shows, Pianist Sgt. Eugene List of New York city is working the Berlin area with Rooney and Bobby Breen and is cordially envied by all hands for playing for President Truman's State dinner for Stalin and Churchill and for winning special praise from all three.

Rooney said he had been "dismayed" by press dispatches that his young heir in Birmingham had been named "Joe Yule, third."

"My father's name is Joe Yule, of course, but mine is Mickey Rooney and it's a mistake to think my son is going to be anything else than Mickey Rooney Jr." He said his jamboree copartners were "right on the ball."

Instead of banging the champagne against the ship, the Prime Minister's daughter poured on a sip from an uncorked bottle, then passed the rest around among the thirsty Tommies taking an inaugural cruise down the Havel River.

For the occasion Miss Churchill wore a comfortable khaki uniform of Britain's Auxiliary Territorial Service, of which she is a junior commander.

The steamer she christened was renamed Southern Belle, after an invasion ship that went to the bottom during the evacuation of Dunkerque five years ago.

Two More Nazi Generals Captured by 3d Army

By the Associated Press.

WITH THE UNITED STATES 3 ARMY IN GERMANY, July 24.—Capture of two more German generals—two and one-half months after fighting ended—has been announced by the 3d Army.

They were Lt. Gen. Otto Hoffman of the Waffen SS and Col. Gen. Hans von Salmuth, formerly commander of the 15th German Army in Northern France and Holland.

Hoffman surrendered in Munich and complained that he resented "thoughts that the people throughout the world regard the SS as a criminal organization."

Von Salmuth was captured at Neustadt, near Regensburg, on a tip from a German civilian.

ACCUSE LEOPOLD OF PRO-GERMAN BELIEFS IN 1940

BRUSSELS, July 24—(AP) Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak told Parliament today that King Leopold had pro-Germans in his entourage in 1940 and accused the exiled monarch of having declared at that time that the Allied cause was lost.

Answering a two-hour defense of Leopold by Henri de Vleeschouwer for the Catholic (pro-Leopold) party, Spaak reviewed the 1940 cabinet's discussions with the sovereign during the period the Germans were overrunning Belgium.

Spaak asserted the cabinet then believed that Leopold had surrender in mind early in the campaign. He said the cabinet's last "and most painful" interview with Leopold took place near Bruges the night of May 24-25, 1940. He said the cabinet remonstrated against the King's decision not to leave Belgium and carry on as a constitutional monarch from abroad.

Spaak said Leopold replied at one point: "The Allied cause is lost. France is beaten. England will only continue the struggle in her dominions and colonies. Belgium's part in this war has come to an end. We can only hope for an independence of a reduced character."

The foreign minister said the cabinet two days later sent the King a message urging him to throw pro-Germans out of his entourage and discard the thesis that the war was over for Belgium. He added similar messages were sent in 1942 and in 1943.

Spaak asserted all three messages reached the sovereign, who ignored the first two and did not answer the last until after Belgium's liberation, when he demanded a "solemn and complete apology" for the cabinet's attitude toward the King.

De Vleeschouwer, opening today's debate, denied that Leopold schemed with Hitler to extend German influence in Belgium. He said the King, in a Berchtesgaden interview with Hitler in 1941, discussed only improvement of the food supply for Belgium and the return of prisoners of war.

This was in reply to Premier Achille Van Acker's allegations last week that Leopold schemed with Hitler to give Germany domination over the Belgian army and foreign policy in return for keeping the Belgian throne.

The debate amounts almost to a Parliamentary trial of Leopold, now in exile in Bavaria.

Leopold Spokesman Denies Hitler Ties

Brussels, July 24 (A. P.).—A Leopoldist spokesman denied in parliament today that the absent monarch ever schemed with Hitler to extend German influence to Belgium.

Henri de Vleeschouwer, in a two-hour speech for the Catholic (pro-Leopold) party, said that the sovereign, in a Berchtesgaden interview with Hitler in 1941, discussed only the improvement of the food supply for Belgium and the return of prisoners of war.

De Vleeschouwer was answering Premier Achille van Acker's allegations of last week in what amounts almost to a parliamentary trial of the monarch, who is still in exile at Salzburg.

Luxembourg Army 'Invented' By U.S.

Luxembourg, July 24 (AP)—The little Duchy of Luxembourg has founded an army, the first in its history, and an American West Pointer is its chief of staff.

The West Pointer is Lieut. Col. Arnold Sommer, of Albion, N.Y., commander of the 114th Anti-Aircraft Gun Battalion.

The idea grew out of Allied plans for utilizing available manpower in the liberated countries, and received prompt approval from the Grand Duchess Charlotte and Prince Felix.

Prince Was General

The Prince fought the war as a brigadier in the British Army and witnessed the liberation of Luxembourg from the top of one of Gen. George S. Patton's tanks.

Colonel Sommer said that Brig. Gen. C. O. Thrasher, commander of the Oise base section, told him to "come up here and do the job."

"That was June 1," said Sommer, "and it has been a hectic seven weeks. When we got here there was no staff, no army, no laws making an army legal.

"We blueprinted enough laws to take care of compulsory training, disciplinary actions and financial requirements. The Government passed them and the Grand Duchess signed them July 4. We have inducted 1,825 men and formed two battalions of light infantry."

Invented An Oath

Sommer said the army was equipped by the British and fed by the Americans.

With the exception of two American captains who are Sommer's battalion commanders, all officers are Luxembourgers. Capt. Robert L. Richters, of Massachusetts, commands one battalion, and Capt. Winston A. Schmidt, of Lyons, Kan., the other.

"When it came time for the officers to be sworn in we discovered we did not have an oath," Sommer recalled. "So we invented one. Then we got a law passed making it legal."

GOERING QUIZZED BY REDS, LUXURY QUARTERS DENIED

By GEORGE TUCKER

MONDORF LES BAINS, LUXEMBOURG, July 24 — (AP) A group of Russian interrogators arrived here recently to question some of the 52 high-ranking Nazis interned in the former palace hotel — and scared the daylights out of Hermann Goering.

Goering was looking out the window of his fourth floor room when the Soviet representatives arrived.

He leaped up and cried: "The Russians! They are here. I won't see them. I won't talk to them."

But he did — they questioned him for two days.

No other Russians have visited Mondorf recently. And no one here is able to explain the Moscow radio report a few days ago that Ribbentrop, Goering, Streicher, Kesselring and other former Nazi bigwigs were living a life of luxury behind barred doors.

The Moscow radio deplored what it called "the Mondorf luxury," saying the finest wines and foods and late model automobiles were available to the prisoners and only newspapers were denied them "so as not to spoil their appetites."

"None of them has had a drop of wine since they've been here," said Col. B. C. Andrus, the American commanding officer of the enclosure. "None of them has set foot outside the stockade and won't until higher levels ask for their transfer.

"The only food they get is that prescribed for prisoners of war by military regulations."

The statement was made in comment upon a Moscow radio assertion that the Vatican wanted influence in the creation of the postwar world.

"The Vatican has all to lose and nothing to gain from taking an active part in the peace conference," the source said. "The Vatican cannot assume political responsibility for the postwar world since the Vatican is merely a religious body."

Further Cut Expected In Australia's Army

By the Associated Press.

MELBOURNE, Australia, July 24.—The military correspondent of the Melbourne Herald, quoting authoritative sources, said today that another major reduction of Australia's military forces might be undertaken soon, cutting the present six active divisions to three with some auxiliary troops.

The reasons, he said, were that the remnants of Japanese island garrisons now appeared to be sealed off and it was not necessary for Australia to continue such relatively strong forces, while production of food for American and British forces would be helped by the army reduction.

At present Australia's six divisions are strung out on a 3,000-mile arc from Bougainville to Borneo.

CHINESE TROOPS BATTLE WAY NEAR KWEILIN AIRBASE

CHUNGKING, July 24 (AP) Chinese troops, sweeping toward almost-isolated Kweilin from the south, have battled into the outskirts of the former U. S. 14th Air Force base of Yangso and are laying siege to the Japanese-held stronghold, the Chinese high command said tonight.

Yangso lies 44 miles south of the prize city of Kweilin. Soldiers of Free China fought into the suburbs of the south-central China base Monday, while to the north other veterans intensified their drive to take Kweilin, a communique said.

Chinese artillery 13 miles northeast of Kweilin opened an artillery bombardment of Lingchan on the enemy garrison's escape route to central China in an effort to prevent a Japanese withdrawal, headquarters reported.

Elsewhere in China, a communique said the Japanese had launched a sweep south of the Yangtze river to protect Tokyo's vital trans-continental corridor from Korea to Hong Kong, and bitter fighting reportedly continued along China's invasion-vulnerable coast west of Formosa.

(While the Chinese battled to break up a Japanese coastal drive between the enemy-garrisoned former treaty ports of Amoy and Swatow, the Pacific war moved closer to the Asiatic mainland.

(Destroyer forces of the U. S. Pacific fleet struck against Japanese shipping off the Chekiang province coast, which has been virtually cleared of the enemy, sinking or damaging several craft, an American communique said. It was the first American naval gunfire of the war off the China coast.

(Tokyo reported that a flight of 100 Liberator and Mitchell bombers supported by 100 Fighters, yesterday raided the Chu Shan islands 80 miles south of Shanghai. The attack followed a new enemy-reported American bombing of airfields in the Shanghai area by more than 200 bombers and fighters from Okinawa.)

While Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's army battled for Kweilin—with its three airstrips—the Japanese 270 miles to the northeast took steps to lessen the vulnerability of their Hankow-Canton corridor across southern China.

The Chinese command said that a body of 600 Japanese troops struck out from a point 19 miles west of Changsha rail junction in China's "rice bowl" to the western outskirts of Liuyang, 35 miles east of Changsha.

Another struggle raged 140 miles southwest of Nanchang where an isolated "floating pocket" of Japanese attempted to fight through Chinese territory from Kanhsien to Nanchang.

The Japanese last Wednesday reached Wawan, site of a small auxiliary airfield on the Kan River 42 miles north of Kanhsien, today's communiqué belatedly reported. The Japanese continued battling northward and at latest Chungking reports had reached a point 15½ miles southwest of Taiho.

Behind Enemy Lines

Chinese operating behind enemy lines were said to have reoccupied three Japanese-held points 8 to 10 miles northeast of Suichwan, a former American airfield 16 miles west of Wawan.

United States 14th Air Force fighter-bombers, carrying out wide-spread operations against enemy water routes in China yesterday, destroyed or damaged more than 120 river craft in the Siang, North and Si (West) rivers and in Tungting Lake, an American air communiqué said.

Mitchell bombers over the Changsha area fired thirteen Japanese convoys. Fighter-bombers over north China knocked out two bridges on the Peiping-Hankow railroad.

Striking to the South China Sea, Mustang fighters blasted an airdrome at Samah on Hainan Island, while Lightnings bombed an ammunition dump near Hanoi, capital of French Indo-China.

Jap Communications In Kwangsi, Hunan Facing New Threat

By the Associated Press.

CHUNGKING, July 24.—Chinese troops, posing another threat to Japanese communications between Kwangsi and Hunan Provinces, are bombarding a village 3 miles northwest of Lingchwan, the Chinese high command announced.

The route already is obstructed by a roadblock which the Chinese established 41 miles northeast of Kweilin, former United States 14th Air Force base city which lies in the path of several Chinese columns.

Meanwhile, the high command said, other Chinese units tore up a stretch of railroad 5 miles northeast of Lingchwan, destroyed eight boxcars and took eight Japanese prisoners.

The high command indicated the Japanese were concerned over the vulnerability of their Hong Kong-Hankow corridor and were taking steps to strengthen it.

Between 500 and 600 Japanese troops drove from a point 19 miles east of Changsha, 265 miles northeast of Kweilin, to the western outskirts of Liuyang, 35 miles east of Changsha. The invaders were intercepted by the Chinese, swung to the southeast of Liuyang and suffered numerous casualties when the the Chinese attacked the enemy flanks, the war bulletin declared.

The high command said Japanese forces who had abandoned the former American air base at Kanhsien, nearly 300 miles east-northeast of Kweilin, and then struck northeast toward the Japanese bastion at Nanchang, south of the Yangtze port of Kiukiang, had made some progress in their fighting withdrawal.

On July 18 the enemy captured Wanan, on the Kan River 45 miles north of Kanhsien, and struck along the river in the general direction of Nanchang, 160 miles to the northeast.

The Chinese engaged the withdrawing Japanese 15½ miles southwest of Taiho, which is 24 miles north-northeast of Wanan.

JAP LOSSES HIGH IN BURMA TRAP

CALCUTTA, July 24.—(AP) Allied troops have killed more than 1,000 Japanese and captured 80 in heavy fighting against enemy forces attempting to escape a trap in lower Burma and to reach the Sittang river, Southeast Asia Command Headquarters announced today

These losses represented about one-fifth of the estimated strength of the Japanese pocketed in the area near Pegu, 45 miles northeast of Rangoon. The count of enemy dead did not include those killed by artillery and by planes which were "known to be taking a considerable toll."

Other Japanese still were striking at British positions along a 77-mile stretch of the Rangoon-Mandalay road between Toungoo, 150 miles north of Rangoon, southward to Nyaungleben, a communique said. The heaviest fighting was in an area about 30 miles north of Nyaungleben, it added.

In the lower Sittang river area, Gurkha troops successfully attacked enemy positions 25 miles northeast of Pegu, the bulletin said, and Allied planes bombed and strafed enemy installations in the river bend area and on both sides of the highway and railroad farther north.

1000 JAPS SLAIN IN BURMA POCKET

Calcutta, July 24 (A. P.).—Approximately one-fifth of the 5,000 Jap troops pocketed by Allied forces in the Pegu area in southern Burma now have been wiped out in their attempts to break out.

More than 1,000 Japanese have been killed and eighty captured in efforts of large groups of the enemy to escape eastward to the Sittang River. The total dead does not include those killed by artillery fire or by air strikes, which are taking a considerable toll. The communique said Jap attacks continued on Allied positions at many points.

Spitfires and Thunderbolts attacked in the Sittang area. An 80-foot schooner blew up when attacked off the east coast of the Kra Isthmus and a number of smaller craft were damaged.

CALCUTTA, July 24 (UP).—Tank-led British infantrymen in southern Burma's Pegu hills have killed more than 1,300 Japanese and are locked in battle with an estimated 3,000 survivors along a seventy-mile jungle stretch, a communique said today. As the conflict entered its third day, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten said another eighty Japanese were captured.

Canadian Cruiser Leaving Pacific

By the Associated Press.

DUNCAN, British Columbia, July 24.—Maj. Gen. G. R. Pearkes said in an address here that the Canadian cruiser Uganda is returning from the Pacific because 500 members of her crew resented being asked to volunteer for Pacific service after having already volunteered for service anywhere when they enlisted originally.

Gen. Pearkes, former general officer commander in chief of the Army's Pacific Command, spoke at an executive meeting of the Vancouver Island Progressive Conservative Association.

The Uganda carries a normal complement of about 900 officers and men.

Naval service headquarters at Ottawa refused to comment, but recalled that the announced government policy is that no man who did not volunteer for the Pacific war would be required to serve in it.

When this announcement was made the Uganda was in Pacific waters operating with the British fleet. Its crew had volunteered for the duration, but had the opportunity to decline to volunteer for service in the Pacific war.

It was understood 500 of the crew declined to volunteer.

CANADA AGAIN RATIONS MEAT

Purchases To Be Limited To 1 1-3 Pounds Per Week

Ottawa, July 24 (AP)—Meat rationing, limiting purchases by individulas to one and one third pounds per week, will be reinstituted in Canada no tlater than September 1 Donald Gordon, chairman of the Dominion Prices Board, announced today.

He said the rationing would be "tighter" than that imposed in May, 1943, and discontinued in February, 1944. The new measure is designed to meet obligations for meat shipments to hungry Europe and the United Kingdom.

More Severe Than Before

The weekly allowance of about two pounds, carcass weight, or 1⅓ pounds, clear weight, for each Canadian, is the same as that provided during the previous meat rationing period, but was described by the board as "more severe than before because all processed and 'fancy' meats will be included in the ration."

The new ration represents about 130 carcass-weight pounds annually per person, some five pounds more a year than the estimated United States meat-ration allowance, and 23 pounds more than in the United Kingdom. Such items as beef, calf, pork and lamb brains and heads, and beef, pork and lamb tails, will not be rationed. Poultry, game and fish also are ration-free.

Some Horsemeat Sold

Meat coupons will be valid until declared outlawed, and tokens also will be used to permit the purchaser to split up his coupon and buy less at one time than the entire coupon value. Meats having the highest value of one pound for a coupon include bacon, cooked pork and ham, and cured back pork.

Some horsemeat is being sold for human consumption, but no rationing is planned.

Gordon said the board would control slaughterhouses to see that meat goes to stores. Canada's black-market operators are subject to a maximum $5,000 fine and two years imprisonment.

U.S. Warships Invaded Sea Of Okhotsk Over Year Ago

WASHINGTON, July 24 — (AP) The Navy finally let it be told today that more than a year ago United States warships penetrated through the Kurile islands into the sea of Okhotsk, just north of the sea of Japan itself.

(The Navy explained that the operation was not revealed at the time because no Japanese craft were encountered and stormy weather then prevailing was believed possibly to have concealed the U. S. force from the enemy.)

Norman Bell of the Associated Press was on the mission, riding on the flagship of Rear Admiral Wilder D. Baker. Bell's now-released story said:

This scouting mission cut across the enemy's "lifeline" to northern bases on Paramshiro and Shimushu. It also struck directly at the vital Japanese fishing industry.

The task force making a bold search under orders from Vice Admiral Frank Jack Fletcher, commander of northern Pacific forces, was the same one that bombarded Paramushiro February 4 in the first sea attack against Japanese home territory.

The mission was carried out early in March, 1944, while plans of Fleet Air Wing four continued "express" bombing of the northern Kuriles. Combined moves by air and sea threatened to bring Paramushiro and Shimushu under at least limited blockade.

The northern Kuriles are important not only as enemy army, navy and air bases but also as bases for the Japanese fishing fleet.

Kurile island canners packed much fish including prized crabmeat from the Aleutian island area. But more important to the Japanese were the ordinary types of fish which, with rice, made up their major food supply. Reports from Tokyo have indicated a drastic shortage is already being felt.

The task force search mission failed to encounter a Japanese vessel of any type but officers pointed out it was yet too early in the fishing season. Stormy weather which prevailed also helped hide enemy shipping as well as island bases. The trip was cold, rough and wet.

MAGNUSON WARNS AGAINST DILUTING TERMS FOR JAPAN

Uniformed Men in Gallery Applaud Senator's Plea for Firm Attitude.

Washington, July 24 (A. P.).—Senator Magnuson (D.-Wash.) won applause from uniformed men in the galleries today when he told the Senate that the quickest way to defeat Japan is to "say that unconditional surrender means just that."

Magnuson took the floor during a speech by Senator Wheeler (D.-Mont.) on the United Nations Charter to assert that any softening in the American demands might be used by the Japanese militarists to "whip up their people" into continuing the war.

Wheeler had said that there is a "rising flood of demands for a definition of our terms to the Japanese," adding that many thought failure to outline these terms might be prolonging the war.

Magnuson Disputes Wheeler.

Magnuson interrupted to declare that the reverse result might be true if there is any slackening in the demand for complete capitulation by the Japanese. He added:

"Any information that we mean anything but unconditional surrender will be used by the militarists to whip up the Japanese people for further fighting."

Remarking that "we can't go over there and run Japan," Wheeler said that as a matter of fact the Japanese are whipped today and "if they had any sense they would give up the fight."

When Senator Wherry (R.-Neb.) asked Magnuson whether he had said that unconditional surrender meant annihilation of the Japanese people, Magnuson replied that it might mean "annihilation of the Japanese empire." He was not speaking of destroying the people, he said.

JAPS HAVE ONLY 5,000 WARPLANES LEFT, SAYS FITCH

WASHINGTON, July 24—(AP) Vice Admiral Aubrey W. Fitch expressed the opinion tonight that the Japanese have only about 5,000 combat planes left.

"Not many," he commented, "when you recall that the Japs lost over 4,000 planes around Okinawa."

Fitch expressed his opinion in a talk prepared for the "Navy hour," the Navy's own radio program broadcast over NBC.

Fitch said his opinion of Japan's remaining air power was also held by Vice Admiral Marc C. Mitscher, commander of Carrier Task Force 58 who will soon succeed Admiral Fitch as deputy chief of naval operations for air.

"The Jap Air chiefs, once so cocky," Fitch said, "shot their bolt in the perimeter defenses of their once vast Pacific empire. Today those war lords find themselves in the sad position of having too little—of being too late. The Divine Wind, or Kamikaze boys, carried the pitcher to the well once too often. Now they are shocked to find the Divine Wind blowing in the wrong direction.

"Today Jap aviators often high-tail for cover when the roar of our approaching planes is heard. Suicide crashes appear less frequently. Why?

"Because the enemy is possibly making every effort to save available planes and to build up reserves for the next air offensive and an impending invasion. Again, they may be short of gas, of trained pilots or aviation parts. And finally the output of their aircraft factories, arsenals, and metal industry plants has been seriously crippled by our pinpoint carrier plane attacks teamed with the Superfortresses."

Admiral Fitch said the 70,000,000 people cramped in the Japanese homeland "are taking a beating as no nation has ever received in history."

The War, he said, "is on schedule, but it is not over. We are climbing into the ring. This is the main bout. Our country is tough, crafty, unpredictable and treacherous. But all of us, swinging together, can deliver the knockout punch."

Tokyo Says U.S. Fears Post-War Role of Russia

Lays Peace 'Offensive' to Wish to Conserve Might, Predicts China Invasion

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24 (AP).—America is waging an "extremely fierce political offensive" to "bring about Japan's capitulation" because it fears it will "play second fiddle to the Soviet Union in the post-war period," the Tokyo radio argued today. A long war, said Tokyo, will reduce America's "national power."

On the military side, Tokyo said the stepped-up air blows in the Shanghai area were a prelude to landings on the China coast.

The "second fiddle" broadcast, intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission, apparently was a reply to recent American statements saying that Japan should accept unconditional surrender before the country is laid waste.

In another recorded broadcast, Tokyo announced that the Japanese Political Association, the nation's totalitarian party, would meet tomorrow and the first item on the agenda would be a report "on the latest state" of the health of Emperor Hirohito.

"Finally," reported Tokyo, "led by President Jiro Minami, all members will join in shouting 'Banzai' three times and the meeting will be brought to a close."

U.S.S. ST. LOUIS HURT AT LEYTE

But Survived Suicide Planes To Fight Again At Okinawa

Washington, July 24 (AP)—Japanese suicide planes seriously hurt the light cruiser St. Louis in the battle for Leyte Gulf, but they couldn't keep her from coming back for the Okinawa campaign.

The Navy told her story today.

In the Okinawa operation, the 10,000-ton ship lobbed a total of 26,265 rounds of five and six inch projectiles, weighing 2,116,585 pounds, into Japanese installations.

The greatest single day's expenditure was on April 1, when 1,450 rounds were fired to support initial landings.

In Flames Against Ship's Side

In the fight for Leyte, the St. Louis had delivered close support to the Philippine landings for thirteen days when, on November 27, 1944, she came under suicide attack.

She was engaged in fueling exercises when a Japanese plane dived out of the clouds to drop a bomb. Hardly had the bomb splash disappeared when a formation of ten enemy planes appeared overhead.

The St. Louis's guns opened fire as a single-engined enemy dive bomber peeled off in a dive. The plane was knocked out of control and crashed in flames against the cruiser's starboard side.

Other Suicide Planes Drive In

Fire and explosions aboard the cruiser attracted other suicide planes, and five other kamikazes singled out the burning ship.

A second attack came from another single-engined dive bomber which the ship's gunners shot down to port. A third was splashed on the starboard side.

Then a single-engined fighter, although well riddled, scored a near miss on the port side, ripping away some of the ship's hull plating.

6 Downed In 40 Minutes

Altogether in the action six of the ten attacking planes were shot down in less than 40 minutes, four by the St. Louis alone and two others with the assistance of other ships. The St. Louis lost fifteen men killed.

Although seriously damaged, the St. Louis, through courageous fighting and damage control, was still afloat and full of fight when the enemy attacks ended.

Then came the job of battle damage repair, and finally the return to action.

NAVY ANNOUNCES RELEASE PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, July 24 — (AP) The Navy today put into effect its announced program for release of certain older personnel on their request.

The program, under which approximately 30,600 reserve officers, warrant officers and enlisted men are expected to be eligible for release by next December 1, sets up a formula by which men will be allowed one point for each year of age figured to the nearest birthday and one point for each four months of active duty since September 1, 1939.

To be eligible, reserve line officers, enlisted reservists, Navy inductees and enlisted regulars serving under expired enlistments must have a minimum of 53 points. Reserve officers of the supply corps must have 55, and reserve officers of the civil engineers corps 57.

Orders putting the new program into effect went out today to all commanding officers of the Navy and the Coast Guard.

Announcing the action, the Navy said navy personnel eligible may apply for release immediately and action will be taken subject to possible delays.

For officers who apply for release and for whom a fully trained relief can not be furnished, a period not to exceed 90 days will be allowed for training of his relief following reporting for duty.

In order to prevent impairment of the operating efficiency of the Navy, commanding officers within the continental limits were given three months to act upon applications of enlisted men, and commanding officers afloat and abroad were given six months.

WHEELER FIGHTS TO LIMIT USE OF AMERICAN TROOPS

Will Vote Reluctantly for Charter, Montana Senator Declares.

STORMY DEBATE

Method of Ratifying Use of Troops Draws Heated Discussion.

WASHINGTON, July 24—(AP) Stormy Senate debate broke out today when Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) declared that while he would vote reluctantly for the United Nations charter, he would fight later to limit the use of American troops under it.

Senator Connally (D-Tex.), Senator Barkley (D-Ky.), and others immediately objected that to ratify the charter and then to refuse to back it up with troops to enforce peace would be to welsh on an agreement.

Senator Hatch (D-N.M.) challenged Wheeler to try to make his reservations now, and Senator Pepper (D-Fla.) commented that Wheeler intended to vote for the charter simply to get on record "before the next election."

Wheeler said that if the American people understood "their boys are going to be sent abroad to fight at the dictation of one man (the Security Council delegate) they would be against this charter."

He called Pepper a member of "an internationalist crowd" and Pepper retorted:

"I shudder to think where we would be today if the people had followed you."

Ratification Form Debated

A debate also broke out on how the United States would ratify an agreement, to be drawn up later, providing for the use of American troops to help put down incipient aggression.

Wheeler's position was this:

That John Foster Dulles, chief adviser to the American delegation at San Francisco, was of the opinion the allocation of troops was an issue to be settled in an agreement with the World Security council. Subject to Senate ratification by a two thirds vote. Some senators disputed that, saying the agreement should be submitted to a majority vote of both Houses.

Dulles also had taken the view in Senate Foreign Relations committee hearings that United States legislators would have the right to restrict both the size and use of American forces.

Senators Lucas (D-Ill.), Hatch (D-N.M.), Hill (D-Ala.) and Connally declared that when the Senate ratified the United Nations treaty which they called the "master agreement"—the United States will be under obligation to furnish troops.

Connally, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee, said the Senate had the power to refuse to supply them, but he did not believe it would.

"If we stipulate that we will furnish troops only in certain areas," Connally shouted, "we'll violate the agreements of this charter."

Wheeler made the point that in ate hearings Connally agreed th Dulles that ratification of the greement would be by two thirds vote of the Senate.

Individual View

Connally declared today that he was expressing only his "individual view" and added:

"When the agreements come back we can decide then whether ratification is by the Senate alone or by both Houses."

He expressed confidence that the Senate "whether it be Republican or Democratic, will rise to its duty and respond to its obligations."

Majority Leader Barkley expressed full agreement with Connally's conclusion, and added:

"It would be inconceivable for the Senate to ratify this charter by a well-nigh unanimous vote and thereafter undertake to nullify it by some technicality."

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), who served along with Connally on the American delegation at San Francisco, declared he was satisfied that any basic agreement on the use of force "must be ratified whether by Congress as a whole or by the Senate."

"My own personal view is that it would be by treaty," he said.

Wheeler said he would vote for the United Nations charter just to give the framers a chance to prove "their good intentions."

"I gravely fear that this charter will take away from the people of America the right to be heard on the crucial issues of war and peace," he said.

Wheeler's 15,000-word address held the close attention of the Senate which has heard the lanky Montanan oppose many pre-war policies he contended would draw the United States into European entanglements.

While he said he would join the overwhelming vote for ratification of this charter, Wheeler added that he would fight later to limit use of American troops under it.

Speaking slowly, Wheeler occupied the attention of the Senate most of the day. Prior to his speech, Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky urged ratification of this treaty as a rebuke to "cynics" who always predict war. Peace can be obtained, he said, "if the peoples of the world will that it shall."

Senator Hill (D-Ala) said the United States had this choice—joining this organization in a fight for peace or feeling the weight of scientific death-dealing instruments turned against us.

Wheeler found "amazing similarity" in the Atlantic charter and Woodrow Wilson's famed 14 points of World War I days; declared both had been scrapped at the expense of "human rights."

Cites Human Liberties

In all the 111 articles of the new world organization charter, Wheeler said he couldn't find "one single clear specific provision for the protection of the individual human personality."

"There is no bill of rights, no protection for the individual against tyranny," he complained.

The hope that this would be "worked out later" was also "Wilson's dream," he asserted.

After expressing fear that the American people would be deprived of a voice in war and peace issues under the charter, he said:

"But I am going to vote for it very reluctantly on the strength of the statements x x x that all the questions of the specific duties and powers of our delegate will be spelled out in supplementary agreements."

On that score, Wheeler said he could not subscribe to the idea that the President has the right to send American forces anywhere without a declaration of war by Congress.

"Personally," he added, "I am convinced that the American people are going to want more to say as to when and where their boys are going to fight on foreign soil in the future, rather than less."

Framers of the charter contemplated that the delegates to the security council would have authority to commit their nation's resources and troops, quickly, when an act of aggression must be quelled.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) has said that the delegate would have that right through the authority of the President to dispatch troops without a declaration of war.

The charter, Wheeler declared, is still "nothing but a declaration of pious intentions."

ASKED TO RESIGN, SAYS MORGENTHAU

'I Would Have Liked to Stay to V-J Day,' States Ex-Secretary.

NEW YORK, July 24—(AP) For-

JUL 25 1945

mer Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau told a New York State War Finance committee luncheon that "this departure from the treasury was not one of my own choosing."

Later, he said at a Press conference that his resignation had been requested by President Truman and that he submitted it immediately.

Morgenthau also told the luncheon::

"My 12 years under President Roosevelt's magnificent leadership I felt ended when he died."

Asked by reporters to elaborate, he declared, "it all happened the fifth of July. I would have liked to stay to V-J day. It didn't work out that way."

He added that President Truman had requested the resignation by letter.

In his extemporaneous talk at the luncheon, Morgenthau said, referring to his recently-acquired status of private citizen:

"I'm just 24 hours old and it feels good.

"Yesterday, when the telephone people came to my bedroom and snapped the wires to the White House and to the Treasury, I felt I was once again a free man."

He said he planned to complete a book dealing with the "Morgenthau Plan" for control of Germany

This so-called "hard peace" plan was said by many commentators to embrace the demobilization of Germany's industry to the extent of reducing Germany to a second-class agricultural power.

Morgenthau said he planned to complete the book by Aug. 6, and then go to his Fishkill, N. Y., farm for a rest.

WASHINGTON, July 24 — (AP) Henry Morgenthau, Jr., who retired yesterday as Secretary of the Treasury, has recommended to Congress that his successor be given policy control over all spending, lending, and insuring done by government agencies.

"No man can be a real watchdog of the treasury under the present set-up," he told newsmen in commenting on his final report to Congress, released for publication today. He also disclosed that he made the same recommendations to President Truman on May 9.

The final report was prepared shortly before Morgenthau ended his eleven and one-half years as secretary and was succeeded by Fred M. Vinson.

Morgenthau told Congress the treasury secretary's influence is mainly on "one side of the ledger" because he is "not in a position to exert proper influence over the use and disposition of the funds he must raise."

He said experience has demonstrated "the desirability of returning to the Treasury Department the responsibility for preparing and submitting the president's budget."

Officials of the budget bureau commenting on this statement, said the Treasury never had that responsibility.

Morgenthau proposed as a first step that a national committee for fiscal affairs be created with the Secretary of the Treasury as chairman.

The committee would be composed of representatives from government agencies dealing with industrial, agricultural, foreign, maritime, housing and public works finance, money and credit and the federal budget.

Morgenthau said this committee would afford a means of integrating the government's fiscal management without disturbing the existing pattern of government corporations and agencies.

However, he said, the work of the committee "would no doubt demonstrate the necessity for rather far-reaching, basic organizational changes. It seems likely that many of the corporate organizations while necessary at their inception could now be dissolved and their functions woven into those of the existing executive departments."

Morgenthau also repeated a suggestion he made in 1939 that four committees of Congress meet each session as one joint committee on fiscal policy to consider the over-all aspects of the expenditures and revenue program.

The four committees are: the ways and means committee and appropriations committee of the House, and the finance and appropriations committees of the Senate

RATIONING SEEN THROUGH 1946

New Books To Be Distributed In December

Washington, July 24 (AP)—The OPA said today that rationing will probably continue through most of 1946, but held out hope that it may end late that year.

Announcing plans to distribute Ration Book 5 next December 3 to 15, Price Administrator Chester Bowles said:

"The supply agencies—the Department of Agriculture and the War Production Board—have told us that meats and fats, canned goods, sugar and shoes all will be in tight supply for some months to come, as it looks as if a ration book will be needed throughout most of the next year.

Also New Gas Books

"We hope that Book 5 will be the last in the series of wartime ration books, and that there will be plenty of stamps we don't have to use."

New A gasoline books also will be issued at the same time. As in the past, schools and other public buildings will be the distributing points.

Both types of books will be arranged to last from ten to fifteen months, as war needs dictate. The gasoline book will become valid December 22, Book 5 soon after New Year's.

Book 5 will have only half as many stamps as Book 4. The cost of printing about 150,000,000 of the books is estimated at $750,000, less than half the cost of Book 4.

No Soap Rationing

Also today, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson announced formally that there are no plans for soap rationing. He appealed to housewives to buy only what soap they need, "instead of starting runs on scarce stocks."

Anderson said manufacturers will be permitted to make a ten per cent increase in the output of household heavy duty laundry type soap chips, flakes, powders, granulated and other similar types. He said:

"This should result in substantial increase in the amount of soap available for civilians and should persuade housewives to discontinue the practice of raiding the shelves of stores as soon as a new shipment of soap arrives. They have been doing this recently because they fear soap rationing."

Counterfeiting Steps

In connection with their announcement of the new ration books OPA officials said a number of steps are being taken to prevent counterfeiting of stamps.

A new type of safety paper is being used. The paper is being manufactured and the books printed "under close guard" to prevent theft and subsequent duplication.

Also the new books are being printed at only a very few plants in another move to prevent theft of paper.

No Blank Safety Paper

Previous books were printed at some 30 plants throughout the country. There will be no blank safety paper in the new book. A blank strip along the binding area in earlier books was sometimes removed by counterfeiters and used for printing illicit stamjs.

The new safety paper, OPA said, will respond to tests better and thereby make it easier to detect counterfeit coupons.

In recent months, following an intensive drive against the gasoline black market, the atcivities of counterfeiting rings have been concentrated on food stamps, particularly meat stamps. Many thousands of bogus red points have found their way into circulation and have been a major factor in the meat black market.

75,000 RAILROAD WORKERS NEEDED TO SPEED TROOPS

WASHINGTON, July 24—(AP) The senate war investigating committee today put its weight behind the drive to recruit 75,000 railroad workers needed to break the redeployment transportation jam.

The committee joined Defense Transportation Director J. Monroe Johnson in pleading for assignment of more workers to the overloaded western trunk lines. The urgency of the need recently was emphasized by President Truman in a message sent after his departure for the Big Three conference in Berlin.

Committee Chairman Mead (D-NY) promised to pursue the question with the war manpower commission, the war department, selective service, the railroad retirement board, and any other organization that might be able to help.

Johnson suggested that the simplest solution would be to discharge enough experienced railroaders from the army, or at least furlough them.

"One good railroad man working on a railroad is worth 100 railroad men in the army," he declared.

An unhesitating witness, Johnson said he was "very much afraid" he wasn't going to be able to get the men. When Mead asked what he was doing to recruit them, Johnson retorted:

"Yelling my head off! What else can I do? I can't draft men. A railroad man has a home, he has a family, and to try to move him out west would make many complications."

Although the ODT director said he considered the situation "very gloomy, very black," Mead predicted the necessary operating personnel could be obtained. The Senator said that for one thing, surely the army wouldn't need as many railroad battalions on the Pacific atolls as in Europe.

Even while Johnson was testifying, Undersecretary of War Patterson, appearing before another senate committee, rebuffed a proposal to release 30,000 soft coal miners from the army to avert a threatened fuel shortage. Patterson contended such a step would "break faith" with other fighting men and destroy the point discharge system.

Johnson had some good words for the civilian public. He said the people are staying off trains and that the response to the appeal to avoid unnecessary travel was quite evident on the trains and in hotels. He conceded that the situation might have been helped considerably by the 5-day reservation rule and the ban against operating pullmans on less than 450 mile routes.

The committee is trying to help hasten the redeployment of troops to the Pacific and the return of discharged soldiers as well as to look into complaints of unsatisfactory railroad accommodations for the troops. Public hearings were concluded today.

STOP PRODUCTION ON FLYING FORTS, B-29 LOSSES LOW

WASHINGTON, July 24—(AP) The Army airforces have ordered all production stopped on the B-17 bomber, having built up a fleet of these heavy ships sufficient for "all foreseeable requirements" against Japan.

Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, deputy airforce commanding general, told a news conference today that with this action the AAF has canceled orders for 44,300 airplanes since V-E day.

Eaker said the cancellations will save $7,600,000,000 in appropriations scheduled to be spent through 1946 and that 750,000 tons of steel and 900,000,000 pounds of aluminum is thereby saved for other war or civilian production.

There are no plans, Eaker said, for a step-up in production of the mammoth B-29s because "our losses of B-29s have been far fewer than we had expected." The Army disclosed recently an end of production of B-24s.

OPA Plans Ration Book 5 Will Be Valid in December

WASHINGTON, July 24—(AP) The OPA said today that rationing will probably continue through most of 1946, but held out hope that it may end late that year.

change in Pacific air commands to help blast Japan with a greater bomb tonnage than ever rained on Germany.

Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, deputy commander of army air forces, announced that:

1. Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay a veteran of the B-29 strikes against Japan, has been promoted from command of the 20th Air force to be chief of staff to General Carl (Tooey) Spaatz, commander of strategic army air forces.

2. Lt. Gen. Nathan F. Twining, native of Monroe, Wisc., will be head of the 20th Air force succeeding LeMay. Twining formerly commanded the big 15th Air force in Africa and Italy.

3. Major General John B. Brooks dropped on the Germans.

Eaker disclosed the Army has cancelled all remaining orders for production of the B-17 Flying Fortress, having a sufficient fleet of this type of bomber for the Pacific war.

Including a similar cutback six weeks ago on the B-24 Liberator, the army now has cancelled orders for 44,300 planes which Eaker said would have cost $7,600,000,000.

Eaker said that a group of the B-32 bombers, a new heavy bomber larger even than the B-29 Superfortresses will go into operation against Japan by the end of the year.

Eaker said he wanted to scotch an impression the air forces would reduce personnel sharply with a one-front war, that actually the AAF will go to 2,130,000 men from a peak 2,400,000.

the point system of discharge and "break faith" with other veterans.

Mr. Patterson appeared before the Senate Military Affairs Committee to oppose a resolution by Senator Harvey M. Kilgore, Democrat, of West Virginia, calling for release of 30,000 soft coal miners to avert what Senator Kilgore said was a threatened fuel shortage next winter.

To effect such release, Mr. Patterson said, would open the way for similar industrial discharges—loggers, stevedores, railroad workers, foundry workers, mechanics, textile workers, metal miners, farmers.

"All offer appealing reasons," he said. "If we authorized the discharge or furlough of all those for whom requests have been made, we would have to release as many as 1,000,000 men from the Army."

Senator Chapman Revercomb, Democrat, of West Virginia, forecast there would be a move in the Senate to act on the resolution, which is already on the calendar and does not need further committee consideration.

The committee chairman, Senator Elbert D. Thomas, Democrat, of Utah, said the members emphasized that the Army should ease up on selective service calls in the coal mining areas.

Mr. Patterson said the Army still considers a 7,000,000-man force needed to defeat Japan.

Promotions In Navy Confirmed By Senate

Washington, July 24 (AP)—The Senate today confirmed promotions of Robert C. Giffen and Alan G. Kirk as vice admirals.

Other promotions confirmed:

Oswald S. Colclough, rear admiral.

James M. Shoemaker, Ben H. Wyatt and Richard R. McNulty, commodores.

Ford O. Rogers and Byron F. Johnson, brigadier generals in the Marine Corps.

Gertrude Lawrence Back From War Tour

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 24.—Gertrude Lawrence was back home today after traveling about 25,000 miles in Pacific war zones since April.

She expects to be with her husband soon. He is Lt. Comdr. Richard Aldrich, just back from Europe to attend a Navy conference in Chicago. She may go there, she said, or to New York.

RELIEF CLOTHING IN WAREHOUSES

PORTLAND, Me., July 24—(AP) U. S. Rep. Robert Hale (R-Me) said today he planned inquiry into a situation involving large quantities of clothing gathered in a drive for devastated nations in April and still remaining in a Portland warehouse.

The garments, sorted and baled, lay waiting transportation to a shipping point in a condition described in newspaper reports as "damp and musty."

William P. Shapleigh, chairman of the Greater Portland United Nations clothing collection, that ended April 30, said that about 15 of the 42 1-2 tons of clothes collected had been sent by rail to a mill in Pawtucket, R. I., for storage, but that the mill was too small to accommodate contributions from the New England area.

He said he did not know how much more clothing had been sent out of Portland and could not estimate how much remained.

Shapleigh said the federal government apparently had not anticipated "such an overwhelming response to its call for clothing for Europe's ill-clad millions."

E. P. Carville Appointed Senator For Nevada

Reno, Nev., July 24 (AP)—E. P. Carville resigned as Governor and was appointed United States Senator for Nevada today.

He will fly to Washington tomorrow, arriving Thursday in time to participate in the Senate vote on ratification of the United Nations Charter. He succeeded the late James G. Scrugham.

Carville had planned to resign effective August 1. He advanced the date, he said, after receiving a telegram from Senator Alben W. Barkley (D., Ky.), majority leader urging him to be in Washington not later than Thursday to insure Nevada a full representation when the Charter ballot is taken.

Vail M. Pittman, who became Governor upon Carville's resignation, appointed Carville Senator his afternoon. Pittman will serve out Carville's unexpired term.

Had To Give PW's Dance: USO Girls

Los Angeles, July 24 (AP)—Two USO hostesses, Patsy Reno, 18, and Maisie Palmer, 19, both of Santa Monica, charged today they had been required to dance with Italian prisoners of war at a Camp Roberts (Cal.) USO entertainment program.

Miss Ruth Cowan, regional director for the USO, immediately replied that the girls' complaints were due to a misunderstanding.

The girls said that mimeographed instructions to "treat the Italian soldiers just like any other soldiers" were read to them on a bus en route to the camp a month ago.

They said there were about 25 or 30 Italian prisoners among some 200 United States soldiers at the dance, distinguished only by green shoulder patches. While the girls could refuse invitations to dance, they added, the men had the privilege of cutting in. And thus the Italians were able to force the junior hostesses to dance with them.

Miss Ruth Cowan blamed a misunderstanding of instructions.

"When junior hostesses go to a post where Italian prisoners are they are told beforehand that the Italians will be there and are asked to treat them with courtesy," she said. "No girl has to dance with any soldier, American or Italian."

She said the girls were handed the mimeographed instructions when they boarded the bus here and could have declined to make the trip.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The unfinished portrait for which President Roosevelt was sitting when he collapsed and died at Warm Springs, Ga., April 12 was unveiled yesterday at Gimbel Brothers, New York department store, in the presence of the artist, Elizabeth Shoumatoff.

The portrait has an uncompleted background, although the facial characteristics virtually are finished.

Troops In 6 Ships Reach New York

New York, July 24 (AP)—Carrying from a mere handful to several hundred returning troops each, six ships entered this harbor today, back from the European theater of operations.

Due tonight in the wake of the larger vessels were a flotilla of five landing ship tanks, the first of the ocean-going invasion craft to come to New York since V-E day.

Aboard the vessels, including 28 repatriated war prisoners on the LST group were 2,238 army veterans 323 navy personnel and 274 Dutch Marines.

About 500 of the troops were on the Liberty ship Ward Hunt, whose thirteen-day trans-Atlantic trip was marked yesterday by the transfer of two ill soldiers to a seaplane 200 miles at sea for removal to Quonset (R.I.) air base.

Other arriving ships were the James W. Riley, with 573 troops; Mormaclark, 15; Mormacmoon, 580; Thomas Hart Benton, 467, and Frederick Ives, 8.

The Benton's passengers included 444 Negro officers and men, among them the 3270th Quartermaster Company and the 4256th Engineer Company.

Price Curbs May Be Lifted From Minor Commodities

Washington, July 24 (AP) — The Government tonight outlined a program for removing price control from minor commodities "to clear the decks for speedier handling of reconversion programs."

Announced jointly by the Office of Economic Stabilization and the OPA, the program sets up procedures for eliminating price ceilings under specific conditions.

"Among the 8,000,000 commodities and services now under price control are some items for which ceilings soon will no longer be necessary," Chester Bowles, price administrator, said.

He added that it is "essential for us to clear our decks in OPA and streamline our procedures to permit speedy decisions" in the task of reconverting industry from war production to manufacture of peacetime goods.

Conditions Set Forth

In a directive effective July 28, the stabilization director, William H. Davis, authorized the OPA to remove controls under these circumstances:

1. When, in OPA's judgment, such action will not result in an increase in the general level of prices involved. If the commodity is one that "enters significantly into the cost of living," Davis must be notified of the proposed action. If he does not disapprove the proposal within five days, the suspension or exemption order may be issued by OPA. In all such cases exemption must be preceded by a trial period of suspension.

3 Other Points Listed

2. When the following three conditions are met:

(a) The commodity or service does not enter significantly into the cost of living or into business costs and (b) Continued control involves administrative difficulties out of proportion to the effectiveness of control or the contribution to economic stabilization, and (c) Suspension or exemption presents no threat of diversion of materials, plant facilities or manpower from war production or manufacture of other important commodities. Also, such action must not impair effective price control on other items.

While the announcement cited no specific examples of commodities which may be removed from price control, scrap aluminum has been mentioned as one. Others are costume jewelry, fur coats, and some varieties of liquor, exclusive of whisky.

First Surplus Goods Sale Abroad Nets $250,000

Oil Company in Persian Gulf Area Pays $171,219

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP).—The first overseas sales of surplus goods by the Army-Navy Liquidation Commission netted the government approximately $250,000, Thomas B. McCabe, A. N. L. Commissioner, announced today.

The sales, involving twelve transactions, were made in the Persian Gulf Command to the Russian and Iranian governments, the American Embassy and Legation, American relief agencies and private firms. Mr. McCabe's report did not give the original cost of the items sold.

The largest single purchaser was the American Arabian Oil Company, which bought five tractors, lead and asbestos pipe and miscellaneous material for $171,219.90. The American Joint Distribution Committee purchased $51,218.83 worth of clothing, food and tobacco to be made into relief packages for Poland.

The Soviet Embassy at Tehran bought twenty mosquito bars for $148.50, and the Iranian government bought 100 pounds of solder for $12.50 and a well-drilling rig for $9,043.55.

Trillion In Cash, Bonds Bears Morgenthau Name

Washington, July 24 (AP)—The signature of Henry Morgenthau, Jr., appeared on more than a trillion dollars' worth of paper money and bonds during the eleven and a half years he was Secretary of the Treasury.

Treasury records show the signature has been on about 13,619,000,000 pieces of currency with face value of about $64,986,000,000 and about 1,291,000,000 United States securities with face value of about $1,163,000,000,000.

Total: 14,910,000,000 pieces of paper with face value of about $1,228,000,000,000.

Treasury officials said the exact amount is unknown because plates bearing Secretary Woodin's signature remained in production in 1934 until the Morgenthau plates could be prepared.

The same situation exists today: Morgenthau's signature is still be-

LONDON, JULY 24-(AP)- THE TIMES DECLARED TODAY THAT THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT WAS "STRAINING EVERY NERVE TO ACHIEVE A COMPROMISE PEACE" BUT SAID ANYTHING LESS THAN UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER SHOULD BE UNACCEPTABLE TO THE ALLIES.

"BOTH BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES REALIZE THAT IN THE CASE OF JAPAN, AS IN THE CASE OF GERMANY, HALF MEASURES WOULD BE FATAL," THE TIMES SAID.

"IT IS NOT THE EXTERMINATION OF THE JAPANESE PEOPLE AT WHICH THE ALLIES AIM: IT IS THE DESTRUCTION OF THE AGGRESSIVE POTENTIAL OF THEIR SYSTEM OF GOVERNMENT. ON THIS CAPITAL AIM THERE CAN BE NO KIND OF COMPROMISE."

THE DAILY HERALD INTERPRETED A TOKYO PROPAGANDA BROADCAST CALLING FOR "A FRESH, VIGOROUS POLICY TOWARD THE SOVIET UNION" AS SUGGESTING THAT "A SECTION OF THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT WANTS 'A PEARL HARBOR' ATTACK ON THE SOVIET PORT OF VLADIVOSTOK."

THE PAPER SAID THE JAPANESE OBVIOUSLY ARE FEARFUL THAT RUSSIA MAY DECLARE WAR ON JAPAN AFTER THE POTSDAM CONFERENCE, AND ADDED THAT "IT SOUNDS ALMOST AS THOUGH A 'SUICIDE SQUAD' IN THE GOVERNMENT WERE BEGINNING TO URGE THAT JAPAN SHOULD MAKE WAR ON RUSSIA FIRST."

A DRAMATIC MOMENT CAME WHEN THE COURT DIRECTED PETAIN, IN ACCORDANCE WITH PROCEDURE, "TO BE SO GOOD AS TO RISE AND STATE YOUR NAME."

SECOND LEAD PETAIN

BY LOUIS NEVIN

PARIS, JULY 24-(AP)-FORMER PREMIER PAUL REYNAUD ACCUSED BOTH MARSHAL PETAIN AND KING LEOPOLD OF BELGIUM OF TREACHERY TODAY IN SURRENDERING TO GERMANY AND TOLD THE COURT TRYING THE OLD SOLDIER FOR HIS LIFE THAT A FRENCH-BRITISH UNION IS "AN IDEAL WHICH SOME DAY MUST BE REALIZED."

THE FIRST WITNESS IN THE TRIAL OF THE CHIEF OF STATE OF THE VICHY REGIME SAID THAT THE REASON THE BRITISH ATTACKED THE FRENCH FLEET IN NORTH AFRIGA IN 1940 WAS THAT PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL DID NOT TRUST THE WORD OF ADM. JEAN DARLAN, PETAIN'S RIGHT HAND MAN.

REYNAUD SAID THAT WHEN FRANCE WAS COLLAPSING, PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SENT PETAIN AN "EXTREMELY STRONG" MESSAGE SAYING ACCEPTANCE OF GERMAN ARMISTICE TERMS WOULD EMPERIL THE FRIENDSHIP OF FRANCE WITH THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT AND ITS PEOPLE.

REYNAUD SAID THAT SHORTLY BEFORE ITALY ENTERED THE WAR, HE HAD PROPOSED CONCESSIONS TO MUSSOLINI IN AN EFFORT TO PREVENT ITALIAN INTERVENTION, BUT THAT PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL OPPOSED THE PLAN.

EDOUARD DALADIER, WHO WAS FORCED FROM OFFICE AS PREMIER JUST BEFORE GERMANY INVADED NORWAY AND WAS SUCCEEDED BY REYNAUD, WAS THE NEXT WITNESS. HE SAID HE WAS TESTIFYING "SORROWFULLY, BUT WITHOUT RESENTMENT."

HE SAID HE HAD NO CRITICISM OF PETAIN BETWEEN 1934 AND 1939 BECAUSE "PETAIN DURING THAT PERIOD WAS HELD IN THE HIGHEST RESPECT BY BOTH THE ARMY AND NATION."

DALADIER, HOWEVER, DECLARED PETAIN LOWERED THE ARMY'S FUND FOR MANUFACTURING WAR MATERIALS BY 20 PER CENT WHILE PETAIN WAS A MINISTER IN 1934 "JUST WHEN WE SHOULD HAVE BEEN ARMING."

HE SAID HE HAD NO IDEA WHETHER PETAIN WAS IN CONTACT WITH THE CAGOULARDS, A HOODED ORGANIZATION OF SUBVERSIVE RIGHT WING ELEMENTS.

HIS TESTIMONY FOLLOWED ALMOST EXACTLY THE LINE OF HIS STATEMENT DURING THE ABORTIVE RIOM TRIALS OF 1942 WHEN THE VICHY REGIME SUSPENDED ITS TRIAL OF HIM, REYNAUD, LEON BLUM AND FORMER COMMANDER IN CHIEF GEN. MAURICE GAMELIN. COURT ADJOURNED AT 6:30 P.M. WITH DALADIER STILL ON THE STAND.

THE 29-YEAR-OLD ISE AND 23-YEAR-OKD HYUGA, JAPANESE BATTLE-SHIPS DAMAGED BY TUESDAY'S AMERICAN CARRIER STRIKE ON KURE, WERE 32,000-TON WARSHIPS RECENTLY CONVERTED INTO SEMI-CARRIERS, WITH FLIGHT DECKS AT THE STERN. THEY CARRY 12 14-INCH GUNS APIECE, PLUS SECONDARY 5.5-INCH ANTI-AIRCRAFT RIFLES. THEY WERE DESIGNED FOR A TOP SPEED OF 23 KNOTS BUT THIS MAY HAVE BEEN INCREASED. PRESUMABLY NEITHER WAS SEAWORTHY AT THE TIME OF TUESDAY'S ATTACK, SINCE EARLIER GUAM DISPATCHES HAD INDICATED THAT ONLY ONE JAPANESE CAPITAL SHIP--EVIDENTLY THE HARUNA--REMAINED USEABLE AFTER THE NAGATO WAS HIT.

THE NEW (1937) HEAVY CRUISER TONE IS BELIEVED TO BE A 10,000-TON SHIP, AND POSSIBLY CARRYING A FULL DOZEN 8-INCH GUNS. LIKE THE AOBA (1926 WHICH CARRIED SIX 8-INCH RIFLES, THE TONE IS LISTED AMONG JAPAN'S FIRST CLASS CRUISERS.

LITTLE IS KNOWN OF THE CRUISER OYODO, EVIDENTLY A RECENT ADDITION TO THE IMPERIAL FLEET.

NIGHT LEAD B-29S (450)
BY AL DOPKING
GUAM,WEDNESDAY,JULY 25-(AP)-AMERICAN RECONNAISSANCE PLANES FLEW OVER THE JAPANESE HOMELAND TODAY CHECKING DAMAGE INFLICTED IN YESTERDAY'S BOLD DAYLIGHT ATTACK BY A RECORD FORCE OF MORE THAN 600 SUPERFORTS ON THE CONGESTED INDUSTRIAL AREAS OF NAGOYA AND OSAKA.
UNESCORTED BY FIGHTER CRAFT, THE GIANT SKYSHIPS DUMPED ALMOST 4,000 TONS OF DEMOLITION BOMBS ON WHAT THE TOKYO RADIO ADMITTED TODAY WERE "IMPORTANT ESTABLISHMENTS," SOME OF WHICH, IN THE OSAKA DISTRICT, WERE SET AFIRE.
THE U.S. 20TH BOMBER COMMAND ANNOUNCED THAT "MORE THAN 600" B-29S STAGED THE ATTACK AND SAID THEY REPRESENTED A RECORD FLIGHT.
TOKYO ESTIMATED THE NUMBER AT A FLAT 700-SAYING 400 HIT THE OSAKA AREA WHILE 300 CONCENTRATED ON THE NAGOYA SECTION.
IT WAS THE THIRD TIME THE BOMBER COMMAND, GUIDED BY MAJ.GEN. CURTIS E.LEMAY, HAD USED THE "MORE THAN 600" FIGURE. EACH TIME THE RAIDING FORCES WERE IN NEW RECORD NUMBERS.
CATCHING HORDES OF JAPANESE WORKERS IN THE NOON PERIOD--MARKING THE SECOND TIME SINCE JUNE 26 THAT THE SUPERFORTS HAD MOVED BRAZENLY AGAINST MAINLAND TARGETS IN BROAD DAYLIGHT--THE HUGE BOMBERS SPLIT INTO TASK FORCES AND, FLYING AT BOTH MEDIUM AND HIGH LEVELS, POUNDED AWAY WITH BOMBS THAT WEIGHED FROM 500 TO 4,000 POUNDS EACH.
THE SKIES OVER OSAKA WERE CLEAR AND THE AMERICAN PILOTS DROPPED TO MEDIUM ALTITUDE TO STRIKE THE SUMITOMO LIGHT METAL PLANT, WHICH TURNS OUT PROPELLORS. THEN THEY SMACKED THE KAWANISHI AIRCRAFT PLANT, ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF OSAKA 12 MILES TO THE NORTHWEST.
AIRCRAFT AND BEARING PLANTS WERE BLASTED IN THE NAGOYA STRIKE BUT POOR WEATHER FORCED INSTRUMENT BOMBINGS. TARGETS IN THIS AREA WERE THE INDUSTRIAL SECTIONS OF TSU, WHICH IS CRAMMED WITH 68,000 JAPANESE, AND KUWANA, WITH A POPULATION OF 42,000.
TWO OF THE TARGETS, THE AICHI-EUTOKU AIRCRAFT PLANT AT NAGOYA, AN ASSEMBLY PLANT FOR THE NAVY DIVE BOMBER KNOWN AS THE "JUDY", AND THE SUMITOMO PLANT HAD BEEN HIT PREVIOUSLY BY THE B-29S.
THE 20TH BOMBER COMMAND SAID NO FIGHTER INTERCEPTION WAS ENCOUNTERED AND ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE WAS MODERATE.

GUAM, JULY 24-(AP)-MORE THAN 600 SKY GIANTS, MAKING THE GREATEST SUPERFORT RAID YET STAGED AGAINST JAPAN, TODAY BOMBED FIVE WAR PLANTS AND TWO CITIES IN THE NAGOYA-OSAKA AREA.
ALMOST 4,000 TONS OF DEMOLITION BOMBS WERE DROPPED, INCLUDING TWO TONNERS.
FIGHTER INTERCEPTION WAS NOT ENCOUNTERED AND ANTIAIRCRAFT WAS MODERATE.
RECONNAISSANCE PHOTOGRAPHS SHOWED THAT 56 PER CENT OF THE HUGE KURE NAVAL ARSENAL AT KURE ON THE INLAND SEA WAS DESTROYED BY DEMOLITION BOMBING JUNE 22 (CORRECT). THE DAMAGE COVERED OVER 2,400,000 SQUARE FEET OF ROOF SPACE AND EXTENDED TO MORE THAN 70 BUILDINGS.
OVER OSAKA TODAY SUPERFORT PILOTS FOUND CLEAR WEATHER AND DROPPED DOWN TO MEDIUM ALTITUDE TO BLAST THE SUMITOMO LIGHT METAL INDUSTRY PLANT, PRODUCER OF PROPELLERS. ZIGHT MILES NORTHWEST, BOMBARDIERS AIMED AT THE KAWANISHI AIRCRAFT PLANT.
POOR WEATHER OVER NAGOYA NECESSITATED INSTRUMENT BOMBINGS OF THE CITIES OF KUWANA AND TSU. AIRCRAFT AND BEARING PLANTS WERE ATTACKED.
TWO OF TODAY'S TARGETS WERE ATTACKED BY SUPERFORTS PREVIOUSLY -- THE AICHI-EITOKU AIRCRAFT PLANT AND THE SUMITOMO LIGHT METALS FACTORY.
THE AICHI PLANT ASSEMBLES THE NAVY DIVE BOMBER KNOWN AS THE "JUDY."
KUWANA, A VIRGIN TARGET, IS AN IMPORTANT INDUSTRIAL CITY OF 42,000 ABOUT 12 MILES SOUTHWEST OF NAGOYA.
THE CITY OF TSU, A HIGHLY INDUSTRIALIZED CITY OF 63,000, IS AN IMPORTANT TEXTILE AND LIGHT METAL CENTER.
TOGETHER WITH THE KURE ARSENAL, SUPERFORTS VIRTUALLY DESTROYED NEARBY HIRO NAVAL ARSENAL MAY 5. (CORRECT).
ADDITIONAL RECONNAISSANCE PHOTOGRAPHS, SHOWED THAT 16 PER CENT OF UWAJIMA, ON SHIKOKU ISLAND, WAS DAMAGED; 25.2 PER CENT OF THE BUILT UP AREA OF OITA ON KYUSHU ISLAND WAS DESTROYED; AND

30.24-28633

AKASHI ON HONSHU WAS 59 PER CENT DESTROYED.
THE NIPPON OIL REFINERY AT KUDAMATSU, PRODUCER OF AVIATION GASOLINE AND OILS, HAD 10 PER CENT OF ITS REFINING UNITS AND 20 PER CENT OF ITS STORAGE TANKS DESTROYED OR DAMAGED.
UWAJIMA, A CITY OF 52,000 BOMBED JULY 13, HAD ITS DAMAGE CONCENTRATED IN THE HEART OF THE CITY AND IN THE DOCK AREA. OITA, WITH A POPULATION OF 76,000 AND THE MOST IMPORTANT KYUSHU CITY FACING THE INLAND SEA WAS ATTACKED JULY 17. AKASHI, A CITY OF 47,000, WAS FIRED JULY 7.

WITH HALSEY'S THIRD FLEET, OFF JAPAN, JULY 24-(AP)-THE THIRD FLEET CARRIER FORCE THREW 1,000 PLANES AT THE JAPANESE TODAY AND FINALLY GOADED THEM INTO SENDING UP A FEW PLANES TO FIGHT.

THERE WERE ONLY A DOZEN OF THEM, AND THEY DIDN'T ACCOMPLISH MUCH AS THEY TRIED TO TAKE ON THE SWARMS OF AMERICAN PILOTS DUMPING BOMBS ON JAPANESE WARSHIPS ANCHORED AT THE GREAT KURE NAVAL BASE.

RADIO TOKYO HAD BEEN TRYING TO GUESS OUR WHEREABOUTS EVER SINCE THE THIRD FLEET DISAPPEARED AFTER ITS JULY 17 SORTIE. THAT WAS THE BOMBARDMENT IN WHICH HALSEY SENT MORE THAN 2,000 TONS OF HIGH EXPLOSIVES ROCKETING THROUGH THE FOGBOUND NIGHT INTO COASTAL WAR PLANTS.

TODAY, RADIO TOKYO GOT ITS ANSWER. THE FLEET WAS BACK AND BEGGING FOR A FIGHT, IN THE AIR OR ON THE SEA.

THE FIRST SWEEPS OF PLANES WERE LAUNCHED FROM THE FAST CARRIERS IN THE CLEAR DAWN. THE CARRIER FORCE HAD MADE A FAST RUN IN, STARTING AROUND MIDNIGHT.

THE FIRST PLANES BACK BROUGHT OBSERVATION REPORTS. THEN THE FIRST STRIKING PLANES TOOK OFF FROM THE DECKS OF THE CARRIERS AS THEY RODE THE MILDLY HEAVING SEA.

THROUGHOUT THE MORNING AND THE AFTERNOON THE ATTACKS CONTINUED.

THE MORE THAN 1,000 PLANES RANGED WIDELY OVER HONSHU. THEY SMASHED AT KURE WITH BOMBS, MACHINE GUNS AND ROCKET FIRE. FOR IT IS THERE THAT THE JAPANESE ARE THOUGHT TO BE HOARDING CONSIDERABLE OF THEIR MANGLED AND HAMSTRUNG NAVY.

KURE IS THE LARGEST OF JAPAN'S NAVAL BASES. IT IS ONLY LOGICAL TO MAKE THE ASSUMPTION THAT THE ENEMY WOULD TRY TO SHELTER HIS CRIPPLED FLEET THERE UNTIL HE DECIDES THE MOMENT HAS ARRIVED TO BRING IT OUT AND GET IT SHOT AT SOME MORE.

IT WAS ONLY LAST WEEK THAT THE JAPANESE NAVY BASE THAT RANKS CLOSE TO KURE--YOKOSUKA IN TOKYO BAY--WAS HIT BY A LIGHT FLEET FORCE. THE BATTLESHIP NAGATO WAS CAUGHT AND INFORMATION RECEIVED ABOARD SHIP WAS THAT IT WAS BADLY DAMAGED IN THE HEAVY BOMB ATTACK.

British Sink One Kobe Class Carrier

Also One Destroyer—170 Planes Destroyed Or Damaged—British And Yank Fliers Also Sink Or Damage 32 Merchant Ships And Damage 53 Small Craft—Foe's Carrier Force Out Of Commission.

By Murlin Spencer

GUAM, Thursday, July 26 (AP)—Twenty Japanese warships, including three battleships, six aircraft carriers and five cruisers, were damaged by American and British carrier pilots in Admiral Halsey's great 1,200 plane strike against Inland Sea bases Tuesday.

One of the ships, an escort Kobe class aircraft carrier, probably was sunk by British pilots, who also damaged an old destroyer, Admiral Nimitz reported in today's communique.

Yank fliers damaged the other 18 warships at the great Kure naval base.

NIGHT

209 Planes Damaged Or Destroyed

American and British pilots destroyed or damaged 170 Japanese aircraft and added 39 more yesterday morning for a total of 209. Nineteen enemy planes were shot out of the air, the remainder caught on the ground.

British and Yank fliers also sank or damaged 32 Japanese merchant ships and damaged 53 small craft.

All of Nimitz' figures, except the 39 aircraft wrecked yesterday, were for Tuesday's attack which wrought destruction and damage along a 325-mile sweep of southern Japan and centered on shipping in the inland sea.

Joining in the concentrated blasting of the enemy homeland, nearly 100 Superforts attacked oil refineries south of Tokyo last midnight. This twelfth B-29 attack on Japan's vital fuel centers followed by less than 36 hours a 625-plane B-29 raid on the Osaka-Nagoya area.

Bad Weather Halts Renewal

Announcement of the heavy damage to the Japanese fleet came as heavy weather hampered renewal of the strike on Inland Sea bases centered around Kure Naval base and Kobe yesterday. There were only meager reports of that strike.

Halsey's report, radioed from his flagship off the coast of Japan, carefully listed the warships as "heavily", "moderately" or "slightly" damaged.

In the latter class was the battleship Haruna, which was reported sunk in the early days of the war and for which Capt. Colin Kelly of the Army Air Force posthumously was given a Congressional medal or honor. Last October the Haruna escaped, damaged, from the Battle of Leyte Gulf.

Damage To Battleships

The converted battleships Hyuga and Ise—the only ones of their type left to the enemy—were heavily and moderately damaged, respectively. Each was equipped with a small flight deck after from which airplanes could be catapulted.

Among ships damaged but not listed in the Nimitz report yesterday were two large aircraft carriers, the Amagi and Katsuragi, the light carrier Hosho and the escort carrier Kaiyo. The large carrier reported previously as damaged was identified as the Aso.

Assessment of these new reports made it obvious that the Japanese fleet no longer could be considered an important factor in the Pacific war. On the basis of accurate reports, they now have only a few warships remaining undamaged and these mostly are cruisers and destroyers.

The greatest portion of the shipping attacked was in the vicinity of Kure naval base.

Hit Opportune Targets

With thick fog rolling in over Japan after the first morning attack yesterday, aircraft found great difficulty locating Japanese warships which had been tied up at their berths under camouflage. As a result, it was necessary to hit targets of opportunity.

While correspondents awaited further reports from yesterday's raids, there still was no indication that the fleet had pulled back from Japanese waters.

There were no reports of American losses, Nimitz said, but the British lost eight planes and 12 pilots and air crewmen in their attacks, which were in the east Shikoku-Okayama-Fukuyama area.

It is difficult to attempt to assess the size of the Japanese fleet which could be used against the Allies at present. Their converted Ise and Hyuga battleships are both out of commission. Still afloat but heavily damaged at Yokosuka naval base a few days ago is the battleship Nagato. Reports on June 29 said the Japanese had two other old battleships, but the Haruna, now slightly damaged, may have been included in those two.

Carrier Force No More

It is believed their aircraft carrier force virtually is out of commission. As of June 29, they were reported to have two or three large carriers and today's report lists two damaged, leaving the enemy possibly one.

Their cruiser force has been whittled down over a period of time. Five cruisers, three of them

20 Japanese Warships Damaged By Carrier Planes in Attacks On Naval Base, Nimitz Reveals

neavies, were damaged Tuesday. They had about 30 destroyers and four of these were damaged.

Reports of Japanese defenses against these great strikes are meager but 19 of their aircraft were shot down—16 over targets and three in attempts to attack the Third Fleet.

There was no report of anti-aircraft fire from the berthed ships, but previously it had been extremely heavy, particularly in the vicinity of Kure.

Liberators of the Aleutian-based 11th AAF bombed Kurabu airfield on Paramushiro in the Kuriles islands Tuesday, and Fourth Marine Air Wing planes attacked the Marshalls Tuesday and the Palaus yesterday.

Search planes of Fleet Air Wing 18 attacked Puluwat island in the Carolines Tuesday.

3d Fleet Shells Coast As Planes Hammer Ships, Airfields

Guam, July 25 (AP)—The Japanese home islands shuddered under tons of steel today as the 3d Fleet sent great waves of carrier planes boring in through fog, and the flaming guns of warships pounded coastal invasion defenses.

Carrier planes smashed for the second consecutive day at the remnants of Japan's Navy in the huge Kure naval base after heavily damaging seven warships yesterday.

Admiral Nimitz did not reveal the strength of today's assault, but it was presumed equal to yesterday's 1,200-plane strike. Airfields and other military installations on the main home island of Honshu also were hit. Returning pilots reported destruction of Japanese planes on the ground. Correspondent Richard O'Malley, aboard the carrier flagship, said a thick blanket of fog closed in late in the day.

Kushimoto Base Shelled

Fifteen cruisers and destroyers moved boldly inshore early today and shelled another Japanese fighting lair—the seaplane base and airfield at Kushimoto on the southwestern tip of Honshu.

Tokyo radio, heard in London, reported that still other warships bombarded Kanagawa prefecture on Honshu, just south of Tokyo Bay. Kanagawa is across the mouth of the bay from Cape Nojima, which was shelled by warships July 18.

[A Tokyo report that 200 American carrier-borne planes ranged north and were striking airfield and transportation facilities on Hokkaido Island, north of Honshu was monitored by the American Broadcasting Company.]

Planes and warships went into action again as tabulation showed this toll of Japanese fighting strength collected yesterday:

Two battleships, two carriers and three cruisers damaged. [British carrier planes accounted for one of the carriers at a Shikoku port.]

64 Jap Planes Hit Or Ruined

The incomplete score also showed 64 enemy planes destroyed or damaged. These results, plus other damage inflicted by British carrier planes and land-based navy bombers, increased to 563 the number of ships, and to 635 the number of planes, destroyed or heavily damaged by forces under Admiral Nimitz's command in the fifteen days beginning July 10.

Between the hours of yesterday's carrier-plane attack and today's, night fighters slashed at the enemy to make this the first around-the-clock carrier strike against Nippon. In a broadcast from the scene, Admiral Halsey termed it a new phase of naval warfare. . . . the final plunge into the heart of Japan.

"If the Nips do not know they are a doomed nation, they are even stupider than I think," he added.

Combined with a 625-plane B-29 strike on Osaka and Nagoya—heaviest of the war—and other army air raids, the blows of the last two days were the hardest ever struck against Japan. Some 2,000 planes, in all, participated.

Tokyo Has Jitters

Tokyo's jitters were obvious in its radio broadcasts.

The enemy radio made no effort to minimize seriousness of the threat as Halsey's ships steamed defiantly near the coast—close enough for cruisers and destroyers to shell Honshu's southern shore this morning, hammering at the Kushimoto seaplane base, Shionomisaki airfield and other targets. Tokyo radio acknowledged the shelling.

Japanese broadcasts reported carrier aircraft attacks today were concentrated on air fields and communications facilitites on south central Honshu, main island of Japan. They reported attacks were broken off in mid-morning after 14 raiders were shot down and 36 damaged in two days.

They returned again in the afternoon, Tokyo said, while a handful of Superfortresses scouted the capital area, presumably surveying damage of recent carrier raids and picking out targets for the next attack by B-29's or seaborne air power.

350 Planes Hit Shanghai

General MacArthur meanwhile reported more than 350 Far East Air Force bombers and fighters—grounded four days by typhoons—slashed anew at Shanghai Sunday, sinking or damaging thirteen warships and freighters, blasting three big airfields and destroying or damaging 45 enemy planes.

His communiqué also described dispersed air strikes on the same day from Korea to the Dutch East Indies and Malaya.

MacArthur listed a destroyer, a 3,000-ton freighter-transport and a smaller cargo vessel sunk and a 10,000-ton freighter-transport, a destroyer escort, two sub chasers and six small freighters probably sunk. There was no air interception.

Land-based navy planes added ten more enemy vessels to the carrier planes' toll of seventeen sunk or damaged in Tuesday's sweeps over the Inland Sea.

Pressing In For The Kill

Admiral Nimitz's 30-word communiqué today announcing resumption of the carrier attacks made it clear that Halsey is pressing in for the kill. "Combatant ships," it said, were the targets for the second successive day of sweeps over the great Kure naval base and Kobe, 150 miles east. Both are on the Inland Sea.

"What's left of the Japanese Navy is helpless," Admiral Halsey said in his flagship broadcast, "but just for good luck we will hunt them out of their holes."

First fragmentary reports of Halsey's carrier strikes yesterday showed American pilots heavily damaged the battleships Ise and Hyuga, left the heavy cruiser Tone and light cruiser Oyodo in flames, and damaged the heavy cruiser Aoba and a large aircraft carrier. British airmen damaged a Kobe type escort carrier.

The two old Ise-class battleships, recently converted into semi-carriers by the addition of small flight decks astern, are 32,000-ton ships, heavily armed.

Jap Ships Listed

Rear Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, Nimitz's chief of staff, announced recently in Washington that Japan has two other old battleships not now fit for service, a few carriers, including two or three fairly large ones, a few cruisers and about 30 destroyers. The battleship Haruna may be seaworthy at present, and the battleship Nagato, hit in the current carrier strikes, may be repairable.

These remnants of the Imperial Navy, which once commanded most of the Pacific, have been tied up at docks under camouflage, avoiding a fight, Admiral Sherman said. Carrier planes have been seeking them out at their concealed moorings.

Flares from the carrier-based night fighters lit Kure and Kobe at intervals through the night as the search continued. Correspondent James Lindsley reported from the fleet. The continuous sweeps of the night flyers gave the enemy no moment of relief.

Japs Lose Eight Planes

Japan risked a score or so of combat planes to oppose yesterday's carrier strikes, and lost eight of them to the guns of the American flyers. The Americans destroyed or damaged 31 others aground, and the British 25 also aground. There was no report of any enemy aircraft attempting to reach the powerful Allied fleet.

Bombardment cruisers and destroyers sank one small vessel by gunfire, and British carrier pilots sank or damaged ten others.

Elsewhere in the Pacific bombers and fighters attacked Tanega and Amami Island in the northern Ryukyus.

A 7th Fleet scout bomber shot down a Japanese plane and destroyed another on the ground near Kota Bahru in Malaya, while a navy patrol bomber sank a freighter and lugger off the west Borneo coast.

Australian Liberators in a 3,000-mile round trip, bombed Samarang shipyards 150 miles west of Soerabaja on Java, while other Aussie heavy bombers and fighters struck airbases on that island and in the Celebes group.

SUPERFORTS RIP OIL TARGETS IN TOKYO BAY AREA

'Good to Excellent' Results Reported in Bomb Raid on Refineries.

ONE SUPERFORT LOST

Heavy Antiaircraft Fire Reported; No Fighter Opposition.

GUAM, Thursday, July 26—(AP) B-29 bombers scored "good to excellent" results on three oil targets in the Tokyo area bombed last midnight in their twelfth blow at Japan's oil refining centers.

Only one Superfort of the nearly 100 attackers was lost to antiaircraft fire, which at some points was intense. There was no fighter opposition.

Twentieth Air Force headquarters reported simultaneously that two more Japanese cities had been hard hit by Superforts, increasing total damage to urban industrial areas to 143 square miles among 39 cities on the enemy's home islands.

Latest damage reports, based on photographic reconnaissance, showed 27.8 percent of the built up area of Sendai, northern Honshu city of 223,630 population, and 36.4 percent of the concentrated area of Chosi, important fishing harbor on the east coast, levelled by recent raids.

Three Plants Hit

Between 75 and 100 of the Marianas-based planes cascaded demolition bombs on the Mitsubishi, Hayama and Asaishi companies' plants less than 36 hours after 625 B-29s had blasted the Osaka-Nagoya industrial area in the most powerful Superfort smash of the war.

All three refineries, hit at medium altitude, are clustered wthin a few hundred yards of each other at Kawasaki, situated on reclaimed land on the west shore of Tokyo bay, between Yokohama and Tokyo.

The raiders had visited the Kawasaki area July 13, centering their explosives on petroleum facilities of the Nippon oil company and storage tanks of the Rising Sun, Standard Vacuum and Mitsui firms.

The Mitsubishi plant is believed to be the largest Japanese refinery of aviation gasoline and fuel and lubricating oils. The Hayama refinery is smaller and the Asaishi company consists mainly of tank farms.

Crewmen of the mighty Superfort fleet which hit the Osaka-Nagoya industrial sector with 4,000 tons of demolition bombs in a bold daylight attack Tuesday reported "excellent results."

Perfect hits were scored on the arsenal, the Sumitomo Light Metal factory and the Kawanishi aircraft plants at Osaka and vicinity, and the Aichi-Eutoku Aircraft factory and other industrial units at Nagoya.

Japanese air opposition was almost negligible but antiaircraft fire was heavy and accurate, the fliers said.

Superforts Hit 3 Oil Refineries Near Tokyo

Guam, Thursday, July 26 (AP)—In the second strike within 36 hours at industrial Japan, between 75 and 100 United States Superforts bombed three oil refineries near Tokyo at midnight last night at medium altitude.

The targets were the Mitsubishi oil refinery, the Hayama petroleum refinery and the Asaishi oil company, all within a few hundred yards of one another on industrially concentrated Kawasaki, a rectangle of reclaimed land jutting out into Tokyo Bay. Kawasaki is about 10 miles south of Tokyo.

Twelfth Raid On Oil Facilities

It was the twelfth strike by the 20th Air Force's B-29's against Japanese oil installations.

On July 13 the big raiders smashed at the Kawasaki petroleum center just south of last night's targets, hitting at the Nippon Oil Company refinery and tank farms of the Rising Sun, Standard Vacuum and Mitsui oil companies.

In striking at the Mitsubishi refinery the Suporforts assaulted the largest known enemy refinery of aviation gasoline, kerosene, fuel oil, lubricating oil and asphalt.

Hayama Plant Smaller

The Hayama refinery is smaller, but produces similar products, while the Asaishi company is confined to tank farms.

The Mitsubishi plant has a capacity of around 10,000 barrels daily.

30.24-28641

No estimate is yet available of damage caused by the July 13 raid on the Kawasaki center.

Seven Targets Smashed

Seven more cogs in Japan's failing war machine were literally blown apart in Tuesday's greatest Superfort strike of the war, returning crewmen of the 625 B-29's reported today.

The 20th Air Force, acknowledging loss of a single plane in the record-making sweep, said "heavy damage" was inflicted on these important targets of the Osaka-Nagoya industrial district.

OSAKA—The Osaka arsenal, the Sumitomo light metals plant, which produces aircraft propellers, and the Kawanishi aircraft plant at suburban Takarazuka.

NAGOYA—The Aichi-Eutoku aircraft plant, a bearing plant and the industrial hearts of Tsu, population 68,000, and Kuwana, population 42,000.

180 Land On Iwo

Flak damage and dwindling fuel forced 180 of the big planes down for emergency landing at Iwo, en route to their Marianas bases.

Corporal Angelo Vassalla, Rochester, N.Y., said he watched the bombs go down on the Kawanishi aircraft plant, "and when I looked again, the buildings weren't there."

The visual demolition bombing of the Osaka arsenal also produced "excellent results," reported Capt. John H. Coffman, Jr., Elkmont, Ala., and Capt. Lawrence Devine,

Big Push Coming, LINDSLEY Halsey Says

With 3d United States Fleet, off Japan, July 25 (AP)—Admiral Halsey yearned today for a fleet with wheels "so we could chase the Japs inland after we drive them from the coast."

Halsey's yearning was broadcast to the United States from his 3d Fleet flagship only 100 miles off the Japanese coast, even as his carrier planes were smashing at cowering remnants of the Japanese fleet in the inland sea.

"Opening Final Plunge"

Proclaiming that naval warfare had entered a new phase—"the opening of the final plunge into the heart of Japan," the Admiral said:

"The Allied team is working with speed and devastating precision and if the Nips do not know they are a doomed nation they're even stupider than I think they are."

Halsey then described what had been done in the past fifteen days:

Heavy naval guns had wrought "unbelievable destruction" in the northern industrial areas. Lighter units had smacked the mouth of Tokyo Bay, smashed shipping lanes and shot up coastal targets.

Kamikazes Still Dangerous

"The combination of the B-29's, the ground power of the Okinawa-based air forces and the unstoppable pin-point accuracy of the carrier planes are reducing the enemy's air potential to that of a painful nuisance," he said.

He warned that Japanese suicide planes are still capable of doing damage, but that "this cannot and will not stop us."

"The 3d Fleet's job is to hit the empire hard and often. This fighting outfit is doing just that," he asserted.

"I said after the far-flung battle for Leyte Gulf that the Japanese Fleet was routed, beaten and broken and nothing has happened since to change my opinion."

Brooklyn Flyer Saves Whole Crew of B-29

Guam, July 20 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The Superfort "City of Aurora," went down in flames after nearly completing a Japanese bombing mission on July 10, but the entire crew was saved—thanks to another B-29 and a United States Navy destroyer.

The plane caught fire from an engine backfire and emergency measures failed to check the flames. Guam was almost in sight at the time. The crew parachuted from heights ranging from 4,000 to 2,000 feet and another Guam-bound B-29, commanded by First Lieut. Burt W. Zimmerman of 373 East 29th street, Brooklyn, circled overhead. He called the U. S. S. Barber and kept his B-29 circling until the destroyer arrived and completed the rescue.

Le May, Men Honored For Record B-29 Raid

Guam, July 25 (AP)—In his first published order of the day for the United States Army Strategic Air Force, General Spaatz issued a commendation to Maj. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay and his 20th Air Force for the record Superfortress bombing of Japan, Tuesday, in which 625 B-29s participated.

Spaatz termed it an "exceptional accomplishment."

The strike was made at high noon under unfavorable weather conditions.

"This devastating strategic blow . . . exceeding anything yet seen in the Pacific war. It was made possible only by brilliant leadership and deep devotion to duty of officers and men of the 20th Air Force.

Nearly 4,000 tons of demolition bombs were dropped on targets in the Osaka-Nagoya area.

Flyer Does 'Seeing-Eye' Job, Guides Blinded One Home

OMALLEY JUL 26 1945

Aboard Admiral McCain's Flagship, Off Japan, July 25 (AP)—A flyer blinded by fluid from a shattered hydraulic system was guided to safety by another pilot who acted as his "seeing-eye" on a return from the bombing of the big Japanese naval base at Kure.

A flak hit had burst the hydraulic system in the plane of Lieut. (jg) Rexford Jones, of Columbus, Ohio. The generator was out, the propeller windmilling and the bomb bay doors stuck open. Jones's radio cal lthat he could not see was heard by Lieut. Merril J. Hemby, of Vicksburg, Miss.

"I told Jones to stick with the plane and I'd help him," Hemby said. "We worked up to 5,000 feet, where we ran into a little soup. Soon he could see a little and I did 'S' turns in front of him so he could see me. Once I lost him.

"Jones could receive on his radio, but it was out for sending. I told my radioman, Frank P. Coleman, of O'Fallon, Ill., to tap visible messages on his head so we could talk back and forth. They were seen by Jones's radioman, Paul Eisenberg, of Mexico, Pa.

"We finally located a destroyer on the outer screen of our force. Jones, whose plane was badly damaged by flak, could now see and he made a beautiful landing."

Hemby had used a lot of gas guiding Jones, and three or four gallons of gasoline in a presumably empty spare tank barely got him back to his carrier.

Predicts Light Opposition In Jap Invasion

General Kenney Announces Preparations For 5,000-ton Raids.

BERGHOLZ

MANILA, July 25, (AP)—Invasion of Japan will meet almost no opposition on the beaches, Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of the Far East Air Forces, predicted today in announcing that American airmen are about to smack Japan with 5,000-ton bombing raids.

"I'm conservative when I say we could hit them with 5,000 tons in a single attack, something the world never dreamed of," said the veteran commander whose armada includes the Fifth, Seventh and 13th Air Forces.

NIGHT

"We'll have enough stuff so that the Japs won't have a bridge or a sizable road that will help them for future operations. They'll be completely immobilized as regards any mass movement.

"I confidently expect that when we go ashore anywhere we want, we'll find almost a total lack of opposition on the beaches, the same as we've found it all through New Guinea and the Philippines."

More than 5,000 planes will be available for aerial leveling of Nippon's defenses and factories, said the aggressive officer who was General MacArthur's Air commander in the American drive from New Guinea to the Philippines.

Nothing Out Of Bounds

"There's no place in the entire Japanese empire that' can't be reached by Allied power, and there's nothing out of bounds for American airmen," Kenney declared.

"And that goes for the emperor's palace as far as I'm concerned."

If the Japanese air force continues its refusal to fight—and Kenney said it can't fight because it lacks sufficient trained pilots and fuel—"we'll go down and pick them off the ground," he asserted.

Kenney's air forces operate from bases on Okinawa, where Lieutenant General Doolittle's powerful Eighth Air Force also will be based next month. Superfort and Liberation heavy bombers will be in the striking squadrons, as well as medium bombers and fighters.

Supplementing these hosts will be Lt. Gen. Nathan F. Twining's 20th Air Force Superforts, already veterans of scores of blows on Nippon from Marianas fields, and Seventh fighter command Mustang fighter-bombers on Iwo Jima.

General Spaatz as commander of the U. S. Army Strategic Air Force will direct the Eighth and 20th in smashes at Japan vital war sources and communications.

The huge force of more than 5,000 planes will include at least 4,000 capable of carrying bombs, and more than half may be used in strafing attacks, Kenney said.

KENNEY FAVORS BOMBING PALACE

Manila, P. I., July 25 (A. P.).—Gen. George C. Kenney, commander of the Far East Air Forces, said today that "there's no place in the entire Japanese Empire that can't be reached by Allied air power and there's nothing out of bounds for American airmen.

"And," he added, "that goes for the Emperor's palace as far as I'm concerned."

Kenney Predicts 5,000-Ton Air-Raids

BERGHOLZ

Manila, July 25 (AP)—Japan was warned today by Gen. George C. Kenney that the American Air Forces are about ready to hit the Japanese homeland with 5,000-ton raids.

This size "is a cinch," said the commander of the Far East Air Forces. "I'm being conservative when I say we could hit them with 5,000 tons in a single attack—something the world never dreamed of."

"In the very near future," he added, "more than 5,000 planes will be available for the concentrated aerial smash at Japan."

Of these, at least 4,000 are capable of carrying bombs and more than half are capable of strafing.

Nothing "Out Of Bounds"

Kenney said: "There's no place in the entire Japanese Empire that can't be reached by Allied airpower and there's nothing out of bounds for American airmen." He added, "that goes for the Emperor's Palace as far as I'm concerned."

Kenney, who has seen his air forces grow in three years from a few overworked bombers and fighters to its present potent force, confidently predicted:

"We'll have enough stuff so that the Japs won't have a bridge or a sizable road that will help them for future operations. They'll be completely immobilized as regards any mass movement."

Expects Easy Beach Operations

"I confidently expect that when we go ashore anywhere we want, we'll find almost a total lack of opposition on the beaches, the same as we've found it all through New Guinea and the Philippines."

Kenney asserted that the Japanese air force is unable and unwilling to contest the American supremacy of the air over the homeland.

"They are short of trained pilots as they have been for three years and they are short of fuel."

The General said that some Japanese may be attempting to hide and hoard their air strength in the hope of using it against an invasion force or any other major threat. "But it won't do them any good because if they won't come and fight in the air we'll go down and pick them off on the ground."

Greatest Air-Power Massing

This will be "the greatest massing of air power the world has ever heard of," Kenney said.

"We'll be able to control it like water through a hose—turn it on and off and from target to target as we want to."

U. S. FLIERS KEEP UP WIDE ATTACKS

BRINES

Bombard Japs from Southern Malaya, Java to Nipponese Homeland.

MANILA, Thursday, July 26. — (AP) Allied airmen ranged from Japan to Southern Malaya and Java Monday in attacks on Japanese airdromes and shipping, American headquarters announced today.

Four Liberators of heavy bombers of the Thirteenth Air Force dropped 1,000-pound explosives on Miho airdrome on Honshu Island, Japan, for the second consecutive day of attacks on this field. Miho is near the town of Yonago on the Sea of Japan.

A single Liberator roamed southward of Kyushu Island, Southern Japan, to bomb an airfield on Tanega island in the Osumi group.

Another lone Liberator from Okinawa returned to Shanghai, bombing the Tinghai Airdrome, which was one of the targets in the previous day's heavy assault by American planes on this principal Nipponese war center in China.

Damage Shipyards

U. S. Seventh Fleet bombers Tuesday attacked and damaged shipyards at Trengganu on the Southeastern Malaya coast. The planes set a small freighter afire and strafed shipping 35 miles south of Singapore.

A headquarters spokesman said search planes were constantly covering the Singapore sector of Malaya, but the attack on Trenggnau was one of the comparatively few instances where ground installations had been attacked.

Raid Java City

Four Australian Catalinas staged the second consecutive day of raids on Semarang, third largest commercial city of Java, in a predawn attack Monday. They set fires in the dock area and in an oil dump.

Liberators of the 13th Air Force attacked shipping off Hatien, Indo-China port on the Gulf of Siam, sinking a small freighter and some barges and a tug. The Yanks also strafed river steamers.

One of the Liberators making a low level assault was destroyed by the explosion of an oil barge it had hit. All the plane's crewmen presumably were lost.

The 13th AF also sent 20 Liberators to strike the Japanese radio outpost island of Itu Aba in the South China Sea. The island is in a group known to the fliers as "Dangerous Ground" westward of Palawan Island in the Philippines.

YANKS, FILIPINOS JOIN UP ON LUZON

MANILA, Thursday, July 26. — (AP) American and Filipino forces have met at the enemy base of Banaue in Northern Luzon, splitting in two the strongest Japanese forces left in the Philippines, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

Filipino army units moved down from the north and met the U. S. Sixth Infantry Division in the fallen town, encountering no opposition enroute.

Thus they tightened the noose around a pocket which natives insist contains Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamushita, Japanese conqueror of Bataan and the Philippines.

A second junction of the Sixth and the Philippine army was made 15 miles to the east at the village of Mayoyao, where the road between the two points was secured.

A spokesman said the strongest segment of the Japanese force thus split was located southwest of the highway.

A patrol of the 32nd division, returning from a thrust into the Caraballo mountains on this front, said the Japanese remnants had turned to cultivating potatoes, corn and rice to provide their own food.

The patrol was led by Lt. Benjamin S. Blakelay, Dubois, Pa.

Aussies Thrust 7 Miles Inland

MANILA, Thursday, July 26. (AP) —Australian troops, striking a soft spot in the enemy defenses of eastern Borneo, thrust seven miles inland Monday along the Manggar river northeast of Balikpapan, General MacArthur's headquarters reported today.

Elsewhere on the Balikpapan front, patrols lashed out aggressively, hunting out the defense line which the Japanese have thrown across the highway leading north to two oil fields around Samardina, about 65 miles north of Balikpapan.

Australian fighter bombers hammered at these positions and other bombers and fighters of the 13th Air Force were active across the length and breadth of the big island.

Supply dumps, defense positions and troop areas at Jesselton, enemy base on the northwest coast, were attacked by 20 Mitchell bombers, which destroyed several buildings with bombs and rockets.

Liberators and Australian fighters attacked Sandakan, a second Japanese stronghold farther east, Samarinda and the big port and oil center of Bandjermasin in southern Borneo.

A Seventh Fleet patrol plane started fires in the shipyards of Kuching, awest coast air base.

Aussies Gain 2 Miles On East Borneo Coast

Manila, July 25 (AP)—Pursuing Japanese withdrawing into the Mount Batochampar area, Australian troops have moved 2 miles down the east Borneo coast, General MacArthur reported today.

This placed them within 50 miles of their next big objective, the oil field at Samarinda. Aussie Spitfires supporting the advance, which was made on Monday, spotted a Japanese truck convoy and probably got eighteen trucks loaded with troops.

RAAF Liberators, meanwhile, attacked Celebes Islands to the east and Kittyhawks teamed up with American P-T boats to shoot up Japanese water craft and buildings in Mandar Gulf in the Celebes.

AUSSIES SEIZE BY-PASSED ISLE

Choiseul in Solomons Won on Forgotten Front.

San Francisco, July 25 (A. P.). —Australian troops have invaded and completely liberated Choiseul, by-passed Solomon Island, the Australian Army broadcast today.

The announcement, heard by the FCC, said Aussies landed some time ago on the island, across narrow Bougainville Strait from Bougainville Island, which the Diggers are clearing of Nipponese. A small Australian landing force has been harrying the Japanese on Bougainville. Some hundreds of the enemy soldiers have been killed. The broadcast from down under mentioned no dates.

American Marines landed on Choiseul on October 28, 1943, in a diversionary move to the invasion of Bougainville. The Yanks withdrew a week later.

The Bougainville operation was for the purpose of hacking airdromes out of the jungles from which to neutralize the Japanese Rabaul fortress and other strong points of now by-passed New Britain and New Ireland. Aussies, who took over from the Americans, have expanded the small Allied control of Bougainville to much of the island.

Filipino Chaplain Being Tried

Manila, July 25 (AP)—The first important collaboration trial began this week as a Filipino Army chaplain, who received the Silver Star for gallantry at Bataan, faced a general court-martial for alleged Japanese propaganda activity during the occupation period.

The accused, Dr. Enrique C. Sobrepena, the island's most prominent Protestant church leader, was in uniform and faced the crowded hall calmly.

The Philippine Army prosecutor accused him of "delivering sermons favoring the war efforts of Japan;" of co-operating with the Japanese propaganda corps in convincing members of the Federation of Evangelical Churches in the Philippines to favor Japan," and of "accepting and performing services for the consolidated organization that the Japanese forced all Protestant churches to enter."

Japan "There To Stay"

Witnesses, including American and Filipino bishops, ministers and laymen, testified that Sobrepena told war prisoners that Japan had come to stay and America could never return.

Newspaper articles presented in court purported to show the leader as the author of pro-Japanese statements.

Defense counsel contends the whole case is based on personal animosities against Sobrepena.

At the war's outbreak, Sobrepena was president of Union College of Manila and executive secretary of the Philippine Federation of Evangelical Churches and pastor of the United Church of Manila.

Japs Losing Garden Zone.

Manila, July 25 (A. P.).—The job of rooting out the foe on Bougainville was turned over to Lieut.-Gen. S. G. Savige's Second Australian Corps last fall and the first attack was mounted on November 23. The diggers now have driven into the gardens area of Kahili, vital to enemy subsistence, and have advanced through jungle and swamp to within eighteen miles of nearby Buin, at Bougainville's southern tip.

An estimated 17,000 Japs remain under Lieut.-Gen. Kanda, commanding the remnants of the Seventeenth Japanese Army. They still have heavy 155 artillery, 4-inch defense guns and an abundance of 75 millimeter anti-aircraft dual purpose guns that can be turned against tanks with devastating effect.

Savige said recently that Kanda is "as good as any general the Allies have opposed—shrewd and able." Kanda sent an entire company to kill Savige but it was wiped out. Corsairs have destroyed Kanda's headquarters three times, but each time he has turned up. He once personally led an attack in which the Japs left 325 dead in a space 35x100 feet.

Ever since the Australians moved south from Empress Augusta Bay it has been obvious that the Japs intended to hold the garden food areas of southern Bougainville at all costs. Now Kanda must make his last stand. He cannot go further south, beyond the plantation areas, because there is no natural food.

Shanghai Dock a Bed of Flames

OKINAWA, July 22 (Delayed) (AP)—Pilots returning today from a 350-bomber fighter attack on jammed Shanghai harbor and nearby airdromes reported a major oil refinery set ablaze, the big Kiangwan airdrome badly cratered and the entire dock area of Japan's prime China-coast port converted into a bed of flames.

The small operational losses in the Ryuykus-based strikes against Japan and the China coast w s emphasized in a report of one Seventh Air Force Mitchell group under Col. Murray A. Bywater of Salt Lake City. He reported 476 sorties flown in the first three weeks of operations from Okinawa without the loss of a plane.

Japanese Radio Bids U. S. Ease Its Peace Terms

Says More Lenient Attitude Is Needed in Place of UnconditionalSurrender

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25.—The Tokyo radio tonight urged the United States to adopt a more lenient attitude toward Japan with regard to conditions of peace.

"Should America show any sincerity of putting into practice what she preaches, as for instance in the Atlantic Charter, excepting its punitive clause, the Japanese nation, in fact the Japanese military, would automatically, if not willingly, (several words missing) follow in the stopping of the conflict and then and then only will sabers cease to rattle both in the East and in the West," said the broadcast.

There are no problems between a "liberal America" and Japan, said the broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission. "A liberal America has never given occasion for Japanese militarists to rise, but America now talks of unconditional surrender for Japan.

"Though its official quarters keep relative silence, its official publicists declare that Japan should be stripped of this or that.

"In short, they intend to mete out such a hard retribution that the Japanese people are more determined than ever to unite and resist as a united mass of 100,000,000 souls and will so continue as long as American minds remain dictatorial and oppressive."

JAP BROADCASTS ADMIT GIGANTIC OFFENSIVE NEAR

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25. —(AP) The Japanese declared today that the "audacious" attacks by Allied warships signalled the opening of a "gigantic offensive" against the home islands which "has now entered upon its most decisive stage."

One broadcast recorded by the Associated Press in New York speculated that the first landings might come in Chiba Prefecture, whose plain stretches from Tokyo bay eastward to the sea.

The skies over the prefecture, said the Tokyo radio, had been "converted into a hurly-burly thoroughfare for Superforts, Liberators and Mustang fighters" with air raid sirens howling every day since late June.

Machine Gun Farmers

It declared that even farmers in the fields and small fishing boats at sea were being chased by machine-gunning Mustangs.

A Tokyo radio correspondent, back from watching workers rushing coastal defenses, declared the Japanese people should expect that "all the cities and villages would be virtually burned down and all the transportation network practically cut off" but should still keep faith in the fortifications.

"And if the enemy should refrain from landing in fear of the Japanese defense system and continue solely to tighten the blockade, we shall wait 20 years, 30 years and even 50 years."

Broadcasts heard here by the Federal Communications Commission were preoccupied with the repeated sea and air attacks, Japan's deteriorating military position, and the specter of invasion.

The Tokyo Newspaper Asahi warned the people to expect "a daily increase in both the intensity and tempo" of Allied air attacks and "increased activities of enemy task forces in our home waters."

Admit Situation Unfavorable

All this, added Asahi, presaged "the enemy's landing on our mainland" and "the present military situation is by no means favorable to us."

The refusal of the Japanese fleet and air force to fight now, Asahi insisted, was necessary because "in the showdown battle to be fought with our total strength, the momentous decision as to when and where to fight such a battle should be of our own choosing."

Premier Suzuki, who spent the day discussing the war situation with his cabinet, privy council and military leaders, was quoted as follows:

"The Japanese people are different from the German nation. I am sure the Japanese people have not yet given out their full strength.

"When the Japanese people fight with their backs to the wall they will most assuredly display tremendous power. In other words, when the worst comes to the worst, they will show their true mettle."

Gen. Jiro Minami, Totalitarian Party president, was quoted by Domei Agency as urging members to speed preparations "for the eventuality when the Japanese mainland is segregated by enemy air raids and other enemy operations."

Addressing the opening of a conference of regional party chiefs, Minami said "further difficulties" lay ahead and the people must be prepared for "intensified raids and the strain of living conditions."

In an attempt to ease part of the strain—a recent 10 per cent cut in food rations—Suzuki's government announced plans to mobolize 1,500,000 students to put 250,000 acres into cultivation.

Monday in a strafing attack by an American plane while traveling from Haiphong to Hanoi, The kingdom of Vietnam was created from the former protectorate of Annam, which declared "independence" after full occupation of French Indo-China by the Japanese last March.

The enemy radio sought to cheer the Japanese people with a report that even though invasion of the home islands is "probable," Premier Kantaro Suzuki has never changed his attitude of "utmost calm and composure." It quoted an article in the newspaper Asahi which pictured the 78-year-old leader as "firmly resolute and indeed the fighting symbol of Japan."

Radio Tokyo, which interprets Allied air-raids on Shanghai as preliminary to landings on the China coast, reported that 250 American fighter and bomber planes struck airfields in the Shanghai area in five waves for two hours yesterday.

Planes Downed, Claim

A Domei dispatch claimed that Japanese anti-aircraft guns downed five of the attacking planes, another probably and "heavily crippled" ten. Domei reported yesterday that 100 American planes raided the Chushan Islands, 100 miles south of Shanghai, on Monday. Neither report has Allied confirmation.

Jap Broadcasts Gloomy, But Claim 1 U.S. Sub

San Francisco, July 25 (AP)—In a day of gloomy broadcasts that ran from admission of heavy Allied air-raids to deaths of important leaders, Radio Tokyo gave the Japanese people only one bright item today —a claim that an Allied submarine had been sunk.

A Domei agency report said without confirmation that Japanese planes sank an "enemy" submarine with a direct hit Sunday morning off South Ceram Island, west of Dutch New Guinea.

Another Tokyo broadcast recorded here started by announcing promotion of a colonel to major general, but finished glumly with a list of nine more dead generals killed in the last year.

Okinawa Governor Dead

Domei cointributed news of the death of Sattoru Shimada, former Japanese Governor of Okinawa, in the fight for that island. On July 9 he had been commended for rallying Okinawans for a last stand.

The 44-year-old Welfare Minister in the puppet government of Vietnam in French Indo-China rounded up the day's death list. He was Dr. Vun Goe Khanh, reported killed ment ten days ago reduced the northern Japanese city of Muroran to "pitiful ruins." It claimed that the great majority of factories and workers in the Hokkaido Island port and mill city were back on the job.

Citizens of Tokyo were promised potatoes "by the middle of next month." A broadcast said the harvest had begun and that already the tubers are being rationed in neighboring provinces.

ALL BIG BRITISH SHIPS IN PACIFIC

San Francisco, July 25 (A. P.). —All of Britain's greatest battleships, cruisers and carriers are now fighting in the Pacific with American fleet units, Admiral Sir James F. Somerville, one of England's three active "five star" admirals, announced at a press conference here.

"Our 'second eleven' is in the Burma waters, fighting a war much bigger than most people think," he said. Somerville is head of the British Admiralty delegation in Washington, and a member of the Allied Combined Chiefs of Staff.

He arrived here yesterday for an inspection of Pacific Fleet headquarters and expects to continue on to Vancouver, B. C., where he visited as a midshipman over forty years ago.

He said all Englishmen are determined to fight until the Nipponese are defeated.

"We have territory to win back, 75,000 British prisoners to release and scores to pay off we don't want anybody else to settle," he declared.

Somerville described combined operations of the Royal Navy and the United States fleet in the Pacific as those of a "team," and said Britain's adoption of the American "fleet train" floating supply base idea made such cooperative action possible.

NIPS REPORT INVASION OF ISLE OFF MALAYA

SAN FRANCISCO, July 25—(AP) The Japanese Domei agency said tonight that "some 500 enemy troops landed on Puket island, off the west coast of the Malay peninsula, Wednesday morning" Japanese time.

There has been no Allied confirmation.

"Enemy invaders came ashore in nine landing barges under cover of bombardment by two cruisers," Domei added in a broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

"The Japanese unit garrison x x x immediately x x x pushed the invaders back to their shoreline, where fighting is now in progress. x x x The enemy invasion force was accompanied by six transports."

Armed Home Guards Sighted on Honshu

San Francisco, July 25.—Pilots returning to Vice-Admiral John S. McCain's carrier task force from raids over Honshu reported today that they saw civilian home guard members handling machine-guns, the Mutual Broadcasting Company's Jack Mahan reported today.

Lieut. (j. g.) Thomas E. Flynn of Queens Village, N. Y., said: "The guys looked like a converted bunch of bank tellers and their aim was about what you'd expect."

Churchill In London For Vote Counting

Attlee Also Returns From Potsdam Meeting —Tense Nation Breathlessly Awaits Results—Definite Leftist Trend Anticipated.

By Richard Kasischke

LONDON, July 25 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill and Clement R. Attlee returned to London tonight from the interrupted Big Three conference at Potsdam to be on hand for tomorrow's counting of the general election ballots determining which will be Britain's leader and chief spokesman in world affairs.

Excitement Spreads

As the Conservative and Labor Party standard-bearers returned, excitement spread through Britain in anticipation of the count which will decide the leadership of the nation's first "peace in Europe" government.

Ballots were cast July 5 in 640 parliamentary districts.

Most observers agreed the result would be close. Practically all conceded that Labor would gain and the overall result would show a definite Leftist trend. In the old parliament the Conservatives and their allies counted about 400 out of 615 votes.

Churchill was the first to fly in from Potsdam. A crowd was waiting at the entrance to his office at 10 Downing street as he arrived. Tonight he had an audience with the king at Buckingham palace and gave him a personal account of progress made at Potsdam. Tomorrow, with the ministers of his interim "caretaker" government gathered around him, he will receive election returns.

Attlee Plans Brief Visit

Attlee planned a brief visit to his constituency of Leamington, row morning, and then to gather with other Labor leaders at party headquarters in London.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, No. 2 man among the Conservatives, also returned from Potsdam. He planned to receive returns in his constituency of eLamington.

The verdict for which these men waited was written in Britain's first general election in more than 10 years. Churchill's Conservatives campaigned on a "free enterprise" platform. Attlee's Labor Party campaigned for nationalization of fuel and power, inland transport, iron and steel industries and the Bank of England.

One of these two men is certain to be called upon by the king to form a government which will be responsible for seeing through the war against Japan and tackling the domestic program, including housing, restoring war damage, handling demobilization and multiple other tasks.

Liberal Party Platform

The Liberal Party, which hopes to gain the balance of power in the House of Commons between its two stronger opponents, also has a platform balanced between those of Laborites and Conservatives. In case of a close result, both the Laborites and Conservatives are expected to invite the Liberals into a coalition to gain a working major-at 4 a. m. (EW.T.) tomorrow, and final results are expected within about eight hours. Returns in 624 contested districts will be counted tomorrow.

Results of 12 seats will not be tabulated until about Aug. 1. If the election is extremely close, they could decide the winner. Previously, the Conservatives held four of these seats, and the Nationals, who support Churchill, one. Labor held one, and Independents six.

BRITAIN TENSE AS VOTE COUNT IS AWAITED

Churchill Returns to Learn His Government's Fate in House Election.

RESULTS KNOWN TOMORROW

Definite Trend to the Left Is Forecast, With Many Persons Discontented.

London, July 25 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill arrived in London late today from Potsdam to learn the fate of his Conservative Government in the tabulation tomorrow of British general election votes. Clement R. Attlee, leader of the Labor party, also returned.

Churchill, wearing civilian clothing, flew from Potsdam, where he has been attending the Big Three conference. He went immediately to his official residence, No. 10 Downing Street.

London, July 25 (AP)—Britain awaited today without visible signs of excitement announcement of the results of the July 5 parliamentary elections, which will determine whether Prime Minister Churchill is to remain at the head of the Government upon whose shoulders will fall the task of prosecuting the war against Japan.

It is expected that the first returns will start trickling in from the nation's 640 districts about noon tomorrow, and that the bulk of the votes will be tabulated within the next five hours.

Speedy Tabulation Sought

The British Press Association and Exchange Telegraph have combined their services to obtain and tabulate the results quickly.

There is an outside chance that tomorrow's count may not decide control of the House of Commons if the race between the Conservative and Labor parties is close. The votes in eleven University seats will not be tabulated until August 1 and the ballots in one district in Hull will not be added until a week later.

Districts Important

It is conceivable that the balance of power in the House—which will determine whether Churchill is to continue as Prime Minister—might hinge on the outcome in these twelve districts.

LEFTIST GREEKS ACCUSE BRITISH

London, July 25 (A. P.).—A British Foreign Office spokesman said today that an on the spot investigation would be made of charges that 3,000 to 4,000 Greek service men interned in Africa have been beaten and starved and given inadequate medical attention.

The accusations of maltreatment came from Maritpress, a Greek leftist news agency in London.

The Foreign Office spokesman said the charges were of the gravest character but expressed doubts of Maritpress's responsibility in circulating them. He said that between 3,000 and 4,000 Greek army and navy men were being held in Middle East camps, most of them in Egypt and Eritrea, as an aftermath of the civil strife in Greece last year.

Only a small proportion of the interned persons, the spokesman said, are "convicted mutineers." He classified the other internees as dissatisfied persons whose desires for repatriation have been thwarted by a lack of shipping. The whole situation, the spokesman added, has been complicated by the arrival of large numbers of refugees from Germany.

The London Daily Herald in a story of the Maritpress charges said that the resignation of Foreign Minister John Sofianopolous "makes the Greek government even more clearly one of stark reaction."

Levant-Control Settlement Reported

London, July 25 (AP)—French and British officers have agreed provisionally to split military control of the Levant, with French forces withdrawing from eastern Syria, but remaining in Lebanon and on the Syrian west coast, the Paris radio said today.

The agreement, reached by Lieut. Gen. Etienne Paul Beynet, French delegate to the Levant States, and General Sir Bernard T. Paget, commander of British forces in the Middle East, "will by no means affect later decisions on the withdrawal of foreign troops from Syria and the Middle East," the radio said.

Under the pact, the French also will retain control of several airfields in Lebanon.

SEEK TO DISSOLVE POLISH ARMIES

LONDON, July 25—(AP) Britain and the new Polish government still are discussing the disposition of Poland's army which fought with the western allies, Henry K. Lukasiak, representative here of the Warsaw regime, said today.

He told a press conference that his government as well as the Polish nation felt that their troops in the west, having fulfilled their obligations toward the Polish state satisfactorily, should return home in their organizational units.

Soldiers who do not wish to return home would be released, he said, but until results of the British-Polish discussion are announced, any effort to eliminate from their units any men who wished to go home should be considered illegal.

Leaders of the defunct Polish government in exile here have called on Polish soldiers abroad to remain loyal to the exiled regime.

Lukasiak declared all Polish citizens abroad had both the right and the duty to return home, and said a program of repatriation would be published as soon as the Polish and British governments reach an agreement.

He denied that any Poles were deported to Russia, or that Poles native to places east of the Curzon line would be regarded as Soviet citizens. He also said that Poles who served in the German army would be punished only if they had volunteered and had acted against Polish national interests.

British Explain G. I. Ship Fare

London Says $100 Fee Serves Lend-lease Purposes—U. S. Army Supplies Food.

London, July 25 (A. P.).—Responsible quarters said today that the provisional fee of about $100 for the trans-Atlantic passage of each American soldier returning to the United States in British-operated ships had been established for the purpose of reverse lend-lease accounting.

This charge compares with the peace-time price for a one-way passage third class on the Queen Mary and the Queen Elizabeth of approximately $86, but both American and British sources, in confirming the present assessment, said that it was subject to later revision.

Just how the current figure was arrived at was not clear, nor could any responsible person say for attribution whether it represented a profit or deficit.

Troop travel, however, would fall far short of peacetime third class accomodations. With speed the dominating factor, soldiers have been crowded to capacity into the big liners, eating and sleeping in relays.

The Cunard Line's Total.

The Cunard White Star Line has carried a total of 1,872,702 passengers across the Atlantic in the period from the beginning of the war through March 31, approximately 869,500 of them eastward and the balance west. A spokesman for the steamship line said a "big percentage" of the passengers were American troops.

But the question of the provisional charge and its later readjustment and the general question of lend-lease and reverse lend-lease hold potentially important implications in the anticipated post-war discussions on such questions as shipping, bases and trade routes. There are a number of factors on the British side of the problem to explain the higher-troop-charge over peacetime third class rates.

The huge vessels travel westward loaded to full capacity but make the return trip with only a handful of passengers; during the war they ran the risk of being torpedoed and presumably the British Government must bear the cost of restoring the luxurious appointments of the liners for peacetime use.

On the other hand, some of the ships have been repaired with the cost marked down to direct lend-lease, and in addition the mass movement of troops does away with many of the peacetime costs figured into the price of the ticket—advertising and maintenance of special accommodations. In addition the Army mess has fed the soldiers.

BELGIAN PAINTER BEATEN

Castelein, Noted for Portraits of Beauties, Injured in London

LONDON, July 25 (AP)—Ernest Castelein, 64-year-old Belgian painter of beautiful women, was found seriously beaten about the head today in his studio in the Hammersmith section.

A woman tenant of an apartment near the studio, hearing groans, discovered the painter lying in front of a just-completed portrait. His condition was described as serious. Scotland Yard began an investigation.

A bachelor, M. Castelein gained prominence in the Nineteen Twenties for his portraits of Pauline Frederick, star of the silent films; Margaret Bannerman, the British actress, and other women. Recently he has been painting leaders of the Free Belgian movement.

3 Carrier Pigeons Win War Medals

London, July 25 (A. P.).—Three carrier pigeons, William of Orange, Ruhr Express and Scotch Lass, were awarded medals yesterday for wartime service. Citations credited William of Orange with a 260-mile flight in less than five hours during the Arnheim operation. Ruhr Express brought valuable information 300 miles to his base after being released within enemy lines and Scotch Lass, although injured, flew 200 miles to deliver photographs dispatched by an intelligence agent in Holland.

The awards were made by the Allied Forces Mascot Club of the Peoples Dispensary for Sick Animals.

$76,000,000 Jackpot Awaits Distribution In Britain's Navy

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 24.—A handsome cash "bounty" payment—from a jackpot that already exceeds $76,000,000—awaits every man in the British Navy.

It's an old tradition in the British Navy that war booty be distributed among seamen. In the American Navy everything captured automatically becomes the property of the United States Government.

The British Admiralty Prize Court, which rules on the disposition of all captured goods, has collected and earmarked for distribution among men up to date 19,000,000 pounds from the proceeds of the sale of cargoes of enemy ships captured by the British during the war.

For the first time in history the Navy is cutting in another branch of the service on the fund—all RAF airmen who participated in sea warfare, mainly coastal command flyers, will be voted an equal share with seamen.

War's End Awaited.

The prize fund already totals more than the total amount split up among the men in blue after the last war. Several million more dollars' worth of sea prizes still await a prize court decision, and a sizable amount is expected to be collected, as the British share in the Pacific.

None of this bonus money will be handed out until after the end of the war with Japan, an Admiralty official said.

The booty is split among the entire service and not just crews who had a direct hand in the capture of ships—as was the case half a century ago. However, naval-"chair-borne" personnel—men in shore and administrative jobs—receive only one-third as much as combat men.

Merchant seamen do not share in the dividends, but a navy man is quick to point out that merchant seamen as a rule draw considerably higher wages than Royal Navy seamen.

By the same token, the pay scale for United States Navy personnel is higher than the British.

Policy Is Ancient.

The bonus payment scheme dates back to before the days of Drake, when all booty went to the crews that took it.

When asked if there was a law providing that "loot" go directly to the men instead of to the government, a senior naval officer said, "You've got me there. But it's one of our oldest traditions."

There is no record of any complaints ever being registered by John Q. Taxpayer, who might want the money used some other way.

In this war, for the first time, the capture of many enemy ships and cargoes was due to detection by aircraft, which subsequently guided the Navy in for the kill. Thus airmen were voted shares in this novel business enterprise.

Although no decision has been reached by the Treasury in regard to a scale of payment, in relation to rank, precedent indicates that individual shares will range from about $15,000 for admirals to $80 to $100 for mess boys.

After the last war approximately $60,000,000 was distributed roughly this way: Admirals, $12,000; captains, $2,000; lieutenants, $480; seamen, $100; boys, $60.

Petain Keeps Strict Silence During Trial

Aged Marshal Refuses To Answer Queries On Purported Congratulation Of Hitler After Dieppe Raid—Appears Disinterested.

By Relman Morin

PARIS, July 25 (AP)—Aged Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, his face like an image, bluntly refused at his treason trial today to answer questions whether he had congratulated Adolf Hitler on the British defeat at Dieppe and asked Hitler's permission for French troops to fight alongside the Germans.

"The marshal's honor is at stake," a juror shouted across the jammed and overheated courtroom in the Palace of Justice, and mutterings and protests from jurors and spectators met Petain's refusal.

Refuses To Reply

But the 89-year-old former chief of the Vichy state remained adamant. The said through his lawyers that he would not reply.

The dramatic issue was raised during the third day of Petain's trial on charges of intelligence with Germany and of plotting the security of the French state—a day in which former French Premier Edouard Daladier and Albert Lebrun, last president of the third republic, testified against the old soldier.

Much of the day Petain appeared uninterested. Once he said he hadn't heard a question. He saw Lebrun near tears as the former French president said he could hardly express his "profound distress" at the sight before him of "a man, a warrior of France, who has risen so high to have fallen so low."

Both Daladier and Lebrun sidestepped questions whether they though Petain guilty of treason, saying there were many different definitions. Daladier said: "He betrayed his duties as a Frenchman."

Lebrun said: "I reserve my judgment on that."

Answers Juror's Question

Only once did Petain break his self-imposed silence. That was to answer a juror's question as to when the marshal began organizing what later became the Vichy government. It was another of the 24 jurors hearing the testimony who brough up the alleged messages to Hitler.

Daladier, who went to Munich with Neville Chamberlain, had just ended a gesticulating, chest-thumping and chair-banging speech and was being questioned by lawyers when the juror asked Daladier if he knew of two telegrams sent to Hitler by Petain in 1942.

"Of his intelligence with Hitler I know nothing," Daladier said. Presiding Judge Paul Mongizeaux promptly read aloud a telegram asking Hitler's permission for the French to conduct their own defense against the Allies, and a bitter argument broke out between lawyers and the judge over the latter's intervention.

"It would be preferable for Marshal Petain to answer himself," the judge said. Petain refused. The court then announced that the telegraphers who transmitted the messages would be called to testify against Petain.

Speaks in Own Defense

Later, during the cross-examination of Lebrun, Petain spoke in his own defense. After the resignation of Premier Paul Reynaud on June 16, 1940, Lebrun said, he asked Petain to form a new government. The marshal, Lebrun said, instantly showed him a list and said: "Here's my government."

Lebrun said he was astonished. It usually took three or four days to form a cabinet in France, he said.

Springing to his feet a juror cried: "I now feel we have come to the heart of this trial—to the core of accusations of a plot against the republic."

He demanded to know from Petain when the list the marshal withdrew from his pocket was prepared. The implication in the juror's question was that Petain had completed plans for a new government of France well before Reynaud resigned under pressure from Petain and others for an armistice with Germany.

Every eye in the courtroom was riveted on Petain's face. He sat with his head resting in one cupped hand and his eyes were closed. He sat still, apparently unhearing. Judge Mongibeaux called on him to rise. He still sat. A policeman touched him. His lawyers then explained what the question was. Scowling, Petain replied in a frosty voice.

Several Lists

"That list—well, I had considered some names, but the list I took from my pocket was not the one that came into effect. There were several lists."

The juror said the marshal had not answered the question, but Mongibeaux did not press the point, despite an outbreak of mumbling through the court.

Daladier, in his testimony against Petain, described Petain's assumption of power as a "coup d'etat" which destroyed the republican institutions of France. He shook his fist and frequently shouted as he hammered home his points. Once he picked up a chair and slammed it on the floor as his face flushed with anger.

Contrary to testimony given previously by Reynaud, Daladier, from whom Reynaud took over the premiership, said that "France was not disarmed" when Germany attacked. France, he said, had 3,600 tanks against Germany's 3,200 and Germany's production was "not greater than ours."

After the armistice on June 24, 1940, he said, there were 4,200 warplanes in the free zone of France.

Daladier Describes Flight

After describing his flight with other members of the government from Bordeaux to North Africa, Daladier said:

"If only Petain had given the signal for an uprising of France on the day of the Anglo-American landings in France. what a glorious page in the history of his long life he would have written. I would have kneeled in front of him.

"I waited for this and prayed for this. Instead he, Petain, ordered troops in North Africa to resist our Allies."

Asked whether he thought Petain betrayed France, Daladier said: "I believed he betrayed his duties as a Frenchman. Treason has many different definitions. You can betray for money or out of sheer incompetence. Petain betrayed his duty as a Frenchman."

During cross-examination, Daladier agreed with Reynaud's testimony yesterday that attempts were made in 1940 to keep Mussolini out of the war. "I wrote an impassioned letter" to Mussolini, he said, suggesting a meeting to compose differences, but Il Duce refused.

He denied, however, that he had offered Italy co-dominion over Tunisia and over parts of Africa, and said Mussolini refused because the French failed to specify the concessions they might make. He said the British were fully informed.

True Cause of Defeat

Daladier said the "true cause of our defeat" was "demoralization of the army and the old conception of the inviolability of the Ardennes." He placed the blame for defeat on military incapacity and the activities of the fifth column.

After a recess, Lebrun was summoned as the third witness against Petain. He was dressed in a formal morning coat and striped trousers. He appeared excessively nervous. His mouth twitched and his voice quivered.

The 73-year-old ex-president described the dramatic French cabinet sessions of June 16, 1940, of Petain's threat to resign if there was no armistice, how Reynaud urged the marshal to wait, of word of complete collapse of the French army and the resulting shift in cabinet opinion toward seeking peace.

He told of Reynaud's resignation and of Petain's immediate production of a cabinet list when Lebrun asked him to become premier.

Visited By Laval

The day France asked Germany for terms, Lebun went on, he was visited by now-fugitive Pierre Laval, who became Petain's right-hand man. Laval assertedly told Lebrun that a plan for the government to leave France was "sheer treason."

After the armistice at Vichy, he said, three officials, whom he did not name, demanded his resignation as President. He refused, only booted out by the Vichy government's action suspending the constitution and making Petain a dictator.

Lebrun's voice broke completely as he spoke of the "tragic moments" when Petain's government announced its plan to abolish the third republic.

"In my opinion," Lebrun said, "two great mistakes were made by Petain—or perhaps I should say by the government of Vichy." The first was the belief Germany was going to win the war and the second that Petain's own prestige could protect the country. He recalled that President Roosevelt "with his clear sight" never believed in a German victory.

Lebrun's cross-examination was marked by the reading of a letter purportedly from Lebrun to Petain in January 1941 after a meeting between Marshal Petain and Hitler. Petain's lawyer, Jacques Isorny, asserted it was couched in friendly terms and expressed Lebrun's good wishes.

Lebrun did not comment. The day's session ended when he left the stand at 5:30 p.m.

EX-PRESIDENT OF FRANCE LAYS FALL TO PETAIN

Lebrun Tells How Marshal Threatened to Quit in Face of Nazis.

DALADIER DENOUNCES VICHY

Ex-Premier Says Hero of Verdun Plotted in 1940 to Wreck Third French Republic.

Paris, July 25 (A. P.).—Former President Albert Lebrun testified today that Marshal Petain threatened to resign from the Reynaud government unless it asked an armistice from Germany and later the same day took a complete Cabinet list from a pocket when asked to form a new administration.

Before Lebrun told of the dramatic Cabinet sessions of June 16, 1940, the court had echoed with mutterings and protests from jurors and spectators when Petain curtly refused to answer questions about telegrams congratulating the Germans for repulsing the Canadians at Dieppe and asking Adolf Hitler's permission to allow Vichy troops to fight alongside the Germans in defense of France. The question of the telegrams arose from a juror during the cross-examination of Edouard Daladier, Premier of France when the Germans struck.

Refusal to Resign.

Lebrun told in a voice quivering with emotion of news from the front telling of the complete collapse of the French armies. He recounted how three unnamed Vichy officials demanded his resignation as President, but he added that he refused and was ousted by the Vichy regime's action in suspending the Constitution and making Petain a dictator.

Lebrun told the court trying Petain for making contacts with the enemy and plotting against the security of France that President Roosevelt, "with his clear sight," never believed in a German victory even during the worst days.

"In my opinion, two great mistakes were made by Petain—or, perhaps, I should say by the Government of Vichy," Lebrun said. "The first was the belief that Germany was going to win the war and the second was that Petain's own prestige—his seven stars as a Marshal—could protect the country."

Court Suspended for Day.

The uneventful cross-examination of Lebrun concluded at 5:30 P. M., and court was suspended for the day. Jules Jeanneney, former President of the French Senate, will open testimony tomorrow.

Petain [illegible] refused to answer questions [illegible] to his vow on the first day of the trial. Judge Paul Mongibeaux then read into the record what he said was a telegram from Pétain to Hitler asking permission for Vichy troops to help the Germans in defense.

The issue arose during the cross-examination of former Premier Edouard Daladier, whose angry testimony was punctuated by chair slamming and shouts.

Lebrun Next Witness

Daladier was followed to the stand by the last elected President of the Third Republic, Albert Lebrun—dressed in a formal morning coat and striped trousers and wearing a rosette of the Legion of Honor in his lapel.

Lebrun, who recited a succession of military defeats which preceded the French armistice, appeared nervous. His mouth twitched, his voice quivered, and he declined the court's invitation to sit down.

He told of the last meeting of the Superior War Council and said that Gen. Maxime Weygand, French Commander in Chief, reported after touring the front that the situation was serious. He said that Weygand had a plan for a counter-attack.

Weakness of Colleagues.

"There was a certain amount of weakness among my colleagues," Lebrun testified. He said that it was decided to strengthen the Government and that Gen. Charles de Gaulle and others were brought in.

Lebrun said that Weygand asserted on June 9 that France must ask for an armistice. He testified that Paul Reynaud, Premier at the time, would not hear of this while the fleet and empire were intact.

He recounted again the circumstances leading to the armistice and the exchanges with Prime Minister Winston Churchill. Then he told of a meeting in which Petain read a long statement declaring that France must not be abandoned and "placing his (Petain's) faith in some indefinite future."

Lebrun said that President Roosevelt sent a telegram on June 15 congratulating France on her magnificent courage and promising arms. On the next day, however, the President said that Petain read his letter of resignation which he said he would submit unless an armistice were not demanded.

Lebrun said that Alphonse Georges, field commander of all French armies, informed the Cabinet at about the same moment that the forces were falling back in disorder and that there was terrible confusion at the front. Reynaud, finding himself in the minority in opposing an armistice, then resigned and Lebrun said that he asked Petain to form a Cabinet.

Rumor Campaign.

The 73-year-old witness said that the fifth column started a rumor campaign and that presently the Petain cabinet appointed a commission headed by Gen. Charles Huntziger to ask German terms. Lebrun said that Pierre Laval told him that the projected "plan to leave France is sheer treason."

The witness said that he argued violently with Laval on the question of moving the Government to North Africa and quoted Laval as saying: "What will you do there when they form a government here in France? You won't even know what is going on here."

Almost in Tears.

Two days later, he learned that the Vichy government was going to revise the constitution. His voice broke and he was near tears as he spoke of the tragic moments when Petain's government announced a plan to pass three laws abolishing the republic and giving the marshal almost dictatorial powers.

Lebrun told of his last meeting with Petain before leaving Vichy for his home in Lorraine. From there, he said, the Gestapo took him to a scene of "brutality—I might say of bestiality—in Innsbruck.

Concluding his declaration, Lebrun said that he could hardly express his profound distress at the sight before him of "a man, a warrior of France, who has risen so high, to have fallen so low." Another flurry of confusion swept the court when a juror insisted that Petain relate when he prepared the list of ministers which Lebrun said was submitted to him immediately upon asking the Marshal to form a government.

After some consultation with his lawyers, Petain broke his silence and said: "That list was like others—it was not carried out exactly. There were several lists."

The juror said that the Marshal had not answered the question, but the judge did not press the point.

The telegrams to Hitler were read in response to a juror's questioning of Daladier, who had testified that "all the traitors of France" flocked to Vichy after the armistice and that the Pétain regime destroyed the republic. Daladier had declared that France was not unarmed when the Germans struck in 1940.

The juror asked Daladier whether he knew of a telegram from Pétain to Hitler congratulating the Germans on the bloody repulse of the Canadians at Dieppe.

There was no immediate reply.

Concessions In Africa

Daladier agreed during cross-examination with testimony yesterday of former Premier Paul Reynaud that "certain concessions in Africa" to Mussolini were considered in 1940 in an effort to keep Italy at peace.

"The true cause of our defeat," Daladier said, "resulted from demoralization of the army and the old conception of the inviolability of the Ardennes"—the mountainous gap of Belgium and northeast France through which the Germans burst French lines in 1940 and pushed back the Americans last December.

He said the defeat also was due to military "incapacity" and activities of the fifth column.

Vichy New Order

"On June 25, 1940, we were told a new order was being constituted," Daladier said.

"It consisted of destroying republican institutions of France. The republic was destroyed contrary to the wishes of the National Assembly that met at Vichy. As delegates to the National Assembly left Vichy, we saw arriving all the traitors of France. The people of France, stupefied, witnessed the Vichy coup d'état."

"Do you believe Pétain betrayed his country?" Defense Attorney Fernand Payen asked Daladier.

"I believe he betrayed his duties as a Frenchman," the former Premier said.

"Ah, but that is not the same thing," Payen said.

Daladier's testimony disclosed that the General in command of the French 2d Army on May 5, 1940, received a telegram ordering hi mto destroy all fortifications in his zone.

Nazis Reached Meuse

"It was then that German tanks were able to reach the Meuse," Daladier said.

"Was Pétain ever on the point of being arrested for membership in the Cagoulard (a subversive right-wing organization) as Pierre Cot says in a book published in New York?" Defense Attorney Jean LeMaire asked.

"No, that is false," Daladier answered.

The audience burst into laughter when Defense Attorney Jacques Isorni read a statement to Pétain, written in 1944 by the French poet, Paul Valery, who was being buried today. Valery died last Friday. The room was filled with mocking cries and jeering laughter.

Daladier, the second witness, was continuing the statement he started yesterday. Pétain had entered the courtroom at 1.22 P.M.

Questioned further by the defense, Daladier said:

"Of his intelligence with Hitler, I knew nothing."

"Betrayed As Frenchmen"

Amplifying his assertion that Pétain "betrayed his duties as a Frenchman," Daladier said:

"Treason has many different definitions. You can betray for money or, like Bazaine, out of sheer incompetence. Pétain betrayed his duty as a Frenchman." [Marshal Achille Francois Bazaine (1811-1888) was convicted of negotiating with and capitulating to Germany in the Franco-German war and was sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment. He escaped in 1874 to Italy.]

Daladier said he wrote an "impassioned letter" to Mussolini on May 29, 1940, just before Italy declared war, suggesting that they meet to compose Franco-Italian differences. Mussolini refused, he said.

"I never offered Italy a condominium (joint control) over Tunisia or other parts of Africa," Daladier testified.

No Specific Concessions

He said Mussolini refused to meet him because the French did not offer specific concessions. He said the British were fully informed of his action and that Reynaud approved.

Isorni returned to the question of Pétain's alleged enactment of anti-Communist policies and asserted that the Marshal had only applied decrees drawn up in 1939. He asked Daladier about the decrees.

"I drew up the decrees after the signing of the Russo-German treaty of friendship," Daladier said. "They were signed by the entire Cabinet. I thought it my duty to outlaw the Communists. I would like to add, however, that after Russia entered the war the Communists all did their duties as courageous Frenchmen."

Slammed Chair

Daladier at one point picked up a chair and slammed it to the floor as his face flushed with anger. He was recounting the story of the Riom trials, in which the Vichy regime tried unsuccessfully to pin the blame for the French collapse on him, former Premiers Reynaud and Leon Blum, and Gen. Maurice Gamelin.

He said he had learned at Bourrasol that without having been tried or condemned he had been sentenced to life imprisonment. He recalled that the former Attorney General, Gaston Cassagnau, had refused to prosecute the case at Riom and at this point he slammed the chair to the floor.

As Daladier spoke he shook his fist. His voice frequently rose to a shout. Reynaud listened intently to the man he had succeeded as Premier.

Journey To Africa

Daladier told of the voyage of French officials aboard the liner Marsillia bound for North Africa and denied that they were "fugitives or cowards," saying they did everything possible to organize resistance in North Africa. He said he tried to convince Gen. Auguste Nogues, then commander of French Morocco, to rally French resistance, using American planes then being assembled in Casablanca.

Daladier turned to the American invasion of French Africa and said: "If only Pétain had given the signal for an uprising of France on the day of the Anglo-American landings in North Africa! What a glorious page in history of his long life he would have written. I would have kneeled in front of him."

"Prayed For It"

Daladier pounded his chest and his voice rang through the crowded courtroom as he added:

"I waited for this and prayed for it. Instead, he, Pétain, ordered troops in North Africa to resist our allies."

Daladier read into the record figures on the increase of French war materials between June, 1936, and May, 1940, during which he was Premier and Minister of War:

	1936	1940
Mortars	450	9,550
Heavy tank guns	1,280	6,000
Maginot Line guns	0	560
Armored cars	700	6,000
Light tanks	0	2,900
Heavy tanks	17	340
Modern machine guns	0	865

France "Not Disarmed"

"France was not disarmed," Daladier said, and German production was "not greater than ours." This testimony varied with that given earlier by Reynaud.

After the armistice on July 25, 1940, Daladier said there were 4,200 warplanes in the free zone of France of which 1,200 were first line.

He ended his statement at 1.50 P.M. and was crossexamined.

The defense asked if he believed former Chief of Government Pierre Laval exercised any influence on Pétain. Daladier said:

"On November 13, 1940, Pétain dismissed Laval but in 1942 he recalled him. Did we need him so badly? I don't know."

the plains of northern France.

Yesterday's proceedings did much to expose the international diplomatic-political maneuvering during the period leading to France's collapse, but little new evidence was added to the case against Pétain. The defense limited its cross-examination of Reynaud to an attempt to discredit him as a witness.

TROOPS REACH ASSEMBLY AREA

Units at Sea and Others Awaiting Shipment.

Paris, July 25 (A. P.).—The United States Thirteenth Airborne Division—the first American airborne outfit to be redeployed—began arriving today at the Reims assembly area on the road home and then to the Pacific, Communications Zone Headquarters announced. The division was one of the last to arrive in Europe and one of the few kept in reserve.

The port of Antwerp now is in full operation as a redeployment embarkation point, shipping mostly small specialized service groups and men returning to civilian life. The port's assembly area has 166,000 men moving through seventeen camps and 10,000 Ninth Air Force flight and ground personnel will arrive soon.

No Joyriding in Paris for Generals, Either

Paris, July 25 (A. P.).—More than 300 jeeps and United States Army staff cars have been impounded in a two-day anti-joyriding campaign staged by Paris and military police. At least three belonging to generals were whistled over to the curb to the cheers of onlooking G. I.'s and civilians.

The police, operating mostly on the Champs Elysees, Place de la Concorde and The Grand Boulevards, stopped all military cars containing civilians, especially mademoiselles, or Army Wacs, nurses or Red Cross girls.

A car driven by a brigadier general was stopped on the Champs Elysees because he was accompanied by a French girl. They left the car and walked away. A jeep of Lieut.-Gen. C. H. Lee was stopped, and its driver, an Air Force lieutenant, and a Red Cross girl with him were taken off by M. P.'s to explain things. The general was not in the jeep.

Another of Lee's cars had been stopped the day before and a junior officer escorted off to explain where he was driving alone. Unlike other cars, generals' vehicles are not impounded but the drivers are required to show satisfactory evidence of where they are going.

M. P.'s are working under orders that mademoiselles are not supposed to be riding around in Army cars, and that the only "authorized" women in such vehicles would be "Army nurses in ambulances going to or from an accident, Wacs on a military mission, or soldiers and Wacs together on organized recreation."

France, Britain Reach Levant Troop Accord

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, July 25—The French Foreign Office revealed today that an accord had been reached between British Gen. Sir Bernard C. Paget, commander in chief of British forces in the Middle East, and French Gen. Paul-Etienne Beynet.

Under the accord, French troops will remain in the western Levant along the coast but will withdraw from eastern Syria, although retaining control of several airdromes.

OWI Drops Venture With $230,000 Profit

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, July 25—The picture magazine Voir, which showed a profit of $230,000 for the past quarter and has the largest circulation of any picture magazine in France, will cease publication with its Aug. 15 issue, its publisher, the Office of War Information, announced today.

The OWI said that the magazine had been of great value in placing American information before the French public but that there had never been any intention of continuing it indefinitely. Budget revisions were said to be the cause of the suspension.

Voir, originally a leaflet dropped into France before D-day, grew into a magazine with a 450,000 circulation. It sold at 10 francs at newsstands. It was published at a cost of $140,000. Paid circulation in the past quarter was 370,000. The profits went to the United States Treasury.

HERO TO BE AN EMBALMER

N. Y. Medal of Honor Winner to Ask Army Discharge

PARIS, July 25 (AP)—Tech. Sgt. Francis S. Currey of Hurleyville, N. Y., who received the Congressional Medal of Honor for knocking out three German tanks and killing fifteen Germans, said today he would ask the Army for a discharge so he could study embalming and become an undertaker. The 20-year-old sergeant is going home with the Thirtieth Division next month.

"If I had to depend on points, I'd never get out," he said. Sergeant Currey has fifty-five points, but said he believed his discharge would be granted because he holds the Medal of Honor.

He received the highest award an American soldier can win for a day-long battle last Dec. 21, when he and his hard-hit platoon held back tank-led German attacks from a key crossroad just outside of Malmedy, Belgium. He used a bazooka, rifle grenades, a Browning automatic rifle and light and heavy machine guns.

He worked for an embalmer while attending high school in Hurleyville. "I liked the work," he said. "Besides, there is money in it."

Col. Gill Working On Trial Preparations

Paris, July 25 (AP)—Evidence for war criminal trials to be held in Nuernberg is being gathered by a small American Army legal staff that has been working in Paris for the past two months, Justice Robert H. Jackson disclosed today.

Heading three branches of the staff are Col. Robert J. Gill, of Baltimore, as executive officer; Col. Robert G. Storey, of Dallas, Texas, in charge of collecting documentary evidence, and Col. John Harlan Amen, of New York city, in charge of interrogations.

President Is Expected To Address U. S.

Radio Report On Results Of Conference Planned.

POTSDAM, July 25 (AP)—President Truman is expected to report to the nation by radio on results of the Big Three conference immediately after he returns to Washington, if Congress has recessed, it was announced tonight.

The disclosure of the President's plans for a heart-to-heart talk with the people at home was made at "the little white house" as Truman prepared to go to Frankfurt-on-Main tomorrow to review U. S. troops during a lapse in the Big Three discussions.

The lapse was caused by the return to England of Prime Minister Churchill. The prime minister flew home today to be present for the announcement tomorrow of the results of the July 5 British election.

Statement Made

The announcement concerning the President's plans for a broadcast said:

"If the President returns to the United States from the interallied conference in Berlin after Congress has recessed it is believed he will make a radio report to the nation."

Truman's original plan was to report to Congress immediately after returning to the United States, but in view of expectations that Congress will recess about Aug. 1, the President apparently thinks the country would like him to discuss the results of the conference with the whole people rather than to delay his report until Congress reconvenes.

His aim from the beginning, associates have said, has been to acquaint the people of the United States and the world of the position of the American government on vital issues.

Advocates Communiques

He is known to have advocated that communiques be issued here whenever the progress of the conference warrants disclosures.

Truman, in a one-day round-trip, will fly to Frankfurt, U. S. Army occupation headquarters, lunch with Gen. Eisenhower, and inspect the 84th Infantry and Third Army Divisions, it was announced officially. He plans to return early Thursday evening.

Churchill, Foreign Secretary Eden, and Clement Attlee, Labor Party leader and Churchill's election opponent, flew to London today. The British delegation—headed either by Churchill or Attlee—is expected back Friday.

Premier Stalin's plans for tomorrow were not disclosed.

The Big Three held their ninth formal session this morning, again with no details announced. Tomorrow the work of the conference will be carried on by Foreign office representatives of each nation.

Byrnes To Frankfurt

Secretary of State James F. Byrnes also will go to Frankfurt, probably in a separate plane. This procedure has been followed on other flights in case of mishap to the President and the man who would be his successor. Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, Truman's military aide, and White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross, also will make the trip.

This will be Truman's first flying sidetrip since his arrival in Potsdam July 15. He motored into Berlin for a tour of the battered capital on his second day here, and later again went into the city for a flag-raising ceremony and a brief speech.

A Soviet-sponsored editorial in the Berliner Zeitung declared "The Allied fight against Japan is currently in its final phase, and its result will be the same as against the Hitlerite Germany of Europe."

The editorial was considered especially timely in view of the prevailing belief that the Big Three conferees had reached a substantial agreement on coordinated action to vanquish Japan.

The editorial was credited to a German writer, but to Allied readers its contents appeared to have been supplied largely by Moscow specialists. It reviewed how Japanese industrialists had expanded to support war plans, and then declared:

"Piece by piece the forces of the Allies have taken away from Japanese imperialism its stolen riches. Today squadrons of the American fleet stand before the gates of Tokyo and the air force bombards

Truman To Fly To Frankfurt Tomorrow

Potsdam, July 25 (AP)—President Truman will fly to United States Army Headqularters at Frankfurt tomorrow and review American troops, taking advantage of the off-day in the Big Three schedule, officials announced today.

General Eisenhower, commander of United States Forces in the European Theater, will meet the President in Frankfurt, where they will inspect the 84th Infantry and 3d Armored divisions. The two will have luncheon together.

Mr. Truman will return to Potsdam early tomorrow evening for resumption of the Big Three conference, interrupted by the departure for London of the highest British leaders to await election returns.

Secretaries To Meet

Sessions of the foreign secretaries will be continued tomorrow morning.

Secretary of State Byrnes will make the trip to Frankfurt along with Major-Gen. Harry B. Vaughan Jr., the President's military aid, and Presidential Press Secretary Ross.

President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin met for the ninth time shortly before the British leader departed for London.

A four-engined plane carrying Churchill and his party took off from a strongly guarded airport here this afternoon.

Churchill, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Clement R. Attlee, Labor party leader attending the conference as an observer, arranged a recess so they could be in London when the election results were announced.

No Formal Farewell

Four army sedans from the British compound took the passengers to the airport. There was no formal farewell from American and Soviet delegates.

In the absence of Eden, Britain will be represented by Under Secretary Sir Alexander Cadogan at the secretaries' session tomorrow. He will meet with United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov.

While it was not disclosed what plans Mr. Truman and Stalin may have for tomorrow, it was said they would not discuss matters on the conference agenda between themselves until the top-ranking British delegates return.

If the election returns show the Conservative party victorious, Churchill and Eden may return to Potsdam Friday.

Attlee Would Take Over

In the event of a Labor party victory, however, the task of continuing the Big Three talks will devolve upon Attlee.

A change in British leadership, it was believed here, would not result in any marked setback to the Potsdam negotiations. No sharp differences on foreign policy were raised between Churchill and Attlee during the election campaign.

[A Paris dispatch last night said United States Ambassador Jefferson Caffery and Soviet Ambassador Alexander E. Bogomolov had been summoned to Potsdam, suggesting that the conference had reached a point where expert assistance on problems involving France was needed.]

ALLIES AGREE ON BERLIN RULE

Wages, Prices, Rations and Fuel Controlled.

Berlin, July 25 (A. P.).—The top American, Russian and British authorities in Berlin announced today that they had reached a large area of agreement on controlling the civilian population, establishing uniform pricing and rationing systems and heating the city next winter.

A communique said:

"The desirability of having uniform wage and rationing scales throughout the city was agreed upon. The ways and means of ensuring these are being examined."

The Allies agreed to issue orders for harvesting all ripe grain crops in the Berlin area and to study the problem of domestic heating next winter.

A proposal for fixing ceiling prices on all commodities instead of continuing the Soviet-approved practice of letting some be sold for as much as the market will bear was put over for further consideration.

The Kommandatur also undertook a study of suggested uniform measures for control of Berlin theaters, films, the press and radio.

With an anti-black market drive still being pueshed, the Kommandatur agreed to maintain and reinforce police measures against illicit traders.

Soviet Col.-Gen. Gerbatov, British Major-Gen. L. O. Lyne, and United States Major-Gen. Floyd L. Parks attended the Kommandatur meeting. The French representative was absent.

Food from the British occupation zone in northwest Germany will be distributed for the first time next Saturday in the British sector of Berlin, and American authorities are preparing to take similar steps with supplies already trucked in from the southwestern provinces, officials disclosed today.

A statement distributed to Berlin newspapers and radio by the Soviet Information Bureau said that because of difficulties experienced by the British and Americans, the Russians had stepped in during the past week and continued feeding the population in all three sectors of the capital.

Berliner Seized in Sales Of 'Safety' Cards to Nazis

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, July 25—American security officials arrested today one of the strangest confidence men ever brought to book.

He is William Esch and his racket was selling alleged "letters of clearance" to former Nazi party members—for thousands of marks—in the name of an "American mixed claim commission." The letters instructed German civilian authorities to cancel each purchaser's name from the party's records and to exempt him from the menial labor now required of Nazis.

The impressive letterhead was labeled: "American Mixed Claim Commission, Washington, D. C., U. S. A., Temporarily Berlin, Germany. William Esch, Commissioner, Member American Mixed Claim Commission." Another "commissioner" was listed as "Dr. Adams, Continental representative, Union Carbite [sic] and Carbon Corporation."

On the right side of the letterhead was the familiar blue eagle of early depression days in the United States and an apparent attempt at duplicating the famous NRA slogan: "We do our part." It read: "We do our best." Each order contained three paragraphs in English followed by German and Russian translations.

CORPSES CLOGGING SUBWAY IN BERLIN

Berlin, July 25 (A. P.).—German divers have found hundreds of corpses still clogging a flooded three-mile section of Berlin's subway in the heart of the city, and have refused to continue work there, officials disclosed today.

The stretch of subway, running under Unter den Linden from Anhalter, was being used as a hospital during the fighting for Berlin. Nazi SS leaders are reported to have flooded it when those in the tunnel signified a wish to surrender just before the city fell.

A British member of the Allied Transport Commission said the bodies were those of wounded soldiers and hospital workers with Red Cross arm brassards.

Former Nazi Party Members Victims of Confidence Man

Kohner

BERLIN, July 25 (AP) Truly Barnum was right — a sucker is born every minute even among "smart" Berlin Nazis—and American security officials rubbed their eyes in wonder today after arresting one of the strangest confidence men ever brought to book.

His name is William Esch and his racket was selling alleged "letters of clearance" to former Nazi party members—for thousands of marks—in the name of an "American Mixed Claim Commission."

The letters instructed German civilian authorities to cancel each purchaser's name from the Nazi party records and exempt him from the menial labor now required of Nazis.

The impressive letter-head was labelled "American Mixed Claim Commission, Washington, D. C., U. S. A., temporarily Berlin, Germany. William Esch, commissioner, member American Mixed Claim Commission."

Another "commissioner" was listed as "Dr. Adams, Continental Representative Union Carbide and Carbon, Corp."

On the right side of the letterhead was the familiar blue eagle of early depression days in the United States and an apparent attempt at duplicating the famous NRA slogan "We Do Our Part." It read: "We Do Our Best."

Each order contained three paragraphs in English followed by German and Russian translations and signed "William Esch, Commissioner." Beside the signature was a round stamp reading "American Mixed Claim Commission, notary public. Commissioner."

It is understood that some local mayors were impressed with the authoritative air of the letters and removed the bearers' names from Nazi records, but the cat is out of the bag now and Esch is in jail as an imposter.

The three paragraphs of the "letters of clearance" read:

"First the competent authorities are herewith requested to cancel once and for all the name of Mr. Blank (address inserted) from all records and lists of the former Nazi party.

"Second, Mr. Blank may attend exclusively to his own affairs and must not be employed for any other work whatever.

"Third, Mr. Blank is strongly recommended to the protection of Allied Occupation Authorities."

350 GI'S START SWISS VACATIONS

Fischer

ABOARD A SWISS TRAIN, July 25.—(AP) Two trains reached Switzerland today with the first 350 American soldiers starting a furlough system in which 300,000 troops will visit the country during the next year.

The troops expressed primary interest in beer, milk and watches. Available beer was lapped up by the troops even before this train reached the Alpine tunnel from Chiasso. The leaves are for seven days.

The first man official admitted to Switzerland from the Mediterranean theater was Sgt. Donald Ross, North Adams, Mass.

"I came to Switzerland because everybody else in my company was broke and I was the lucky man," he said. "I'm going to buy something for my wife."

It was Ross' first furlough in 26 months abroad.

All troops obtaining furloughs are allowed to spend 150 Swiss francs—Just over $30—which is barely enough for one of the cheapest watches.

WAC Sgt. Margaret E. Gamble of Boston and two nurses were the only women in the group. Sgt. Gamble said that after 21 months in Algiers and Italy she was "looking forward to a glass of fresh milk."

"It looks good just to see grass and trees again," she added. She explained personnel in the Naples area were used to seeing only olive trees and little grass.

Some of the troops hoped to buy nylon hose for gifts. Swiss manufacturers require purchasers to buy six pairs of silk hose with each pair of nylons, which would cut the 150 Franc allowance to almost nothing.

Col. G. A. Cortese of Omaha, Neb., who is in charge of this tour, said the object was to show soldiers "something that is not destroyed and remind them that war is not the normal condition of mankind."

The Swiss turned out in crowds at almost every station.

SHUSTER MISSION ARRIVES TO TALK TO NAZI LEADERS

Tucker

MONDORF, Luxembourg, July 25—(AP) Dr. George Shuster of Hunter college and a mission of American historians have arrived from Washington to interrogate once-powerful German leaders on a number of social, economic and political aspects of the Nazi regime.

The mission was ordered by the Historical branch of the War department after a considerable number of gaps in information on nominally non-military matters began to appear.

"These reports thoroughly covered military questions," Shuster said, "but in order to broaden its information the War department invited a number of historians who knew the German question, and who spoke the language, to select a number of important aspects of it and try to determine what really went on inside Germany before and during the war. My field is in foreign relations."

College Men in Group

Dr. Frank D. Graham of Princeton, Dr. John Brown Mason of the Hoover War library at Stanford, Lt. Col. O. J. Hale, on leave in war service from the University of Virginia, Lt. Col. John J. Scanlon of the office of the Director of Materiel, Washington, and Maj. Kenneth W. Hechler of Columbia are members of the mission.

Graham is interested in the economic development in Germany since the beginning of the Nazi regime.

To Study Courts

Mason said he would inquire into matters of Nazi party courts which mediated between leaders and members in order to preserve unity.

"The purpose of the court," Mason said, "was to decide whether party members were guilty before a regular court got them. If the court found a member guilty, it expelled him before tie faced regular trial so that no one could accuse the party of harboring criminals."

Hale is inquiring into conflicts among the leaders over matters of important domestic politics, on the impact of the war on the German population, and shifts in public opinion.

Hechler will study the military strategy and tactics with emphasis on the war in the west and the role of Hitler in directing strategy.

Scanlon's study will be the industrial mobilization of Germany.

Shuster said they hoped to fulfill their mission within 90 days.

Nazi Bigwigs Not Favored, Says Andrus

Mondorf les Bains, Luxembourg, July 25 (AP)—Col. B. C. Andrus, American commanding officer of the Mondorf prison inclosure, has denied a Moscow radio report that Nazi bigwigs are living a life of luxury.

"The only food they get is that prescribed for prisoners of war by military regulations," Colonel Andrus said.

THREATEN SUICIDE BOMBING OF U. S.

Moscow, July 25 (A. P.).—The Japanese News Agency Domei was quoted in Red Star today as saying that Japan soon would direct balloons piloted by suicide flyers across the Pacific to bomb the United States.

Domei said that these devices, flying at over 50,000 feet, would reach the United States in a little more than 100 hours.

The Red Star writer, M. Markov, quoted the Domei threat in a review of the Pacific war that gave Soviet readers the best account they yet read of the attack on Japan's industrial cities by American and British airmen.

Japan is faced with "serious difficulties," Markov wrote, picturing the aerial blockade which the Americans and British have effected over Japanese shipping.

"Japanese propaganda," he said, opposes this situation "with references to special types of weapons, such as the Japanese suicide planes and secret weapons called stratosphere bombs," as well as by the trans-Pacific bombing threat.

Inquiry Into Swiss Refugee Treatment

Moscow, July 25 (A. P.).—The Moscow radio said last night the Soviet Government had accepted a Swiss proposal that an American-British-Russian-French commission investigate living conditions of Soviet citizens who fled to Switzerland from German captivity. The Swiss Government has denied Russian reports that Soviet citizens were being mistreated.

The broadcast added that a commission also would be organized to direct transportation of Russians back to the Soviet Union.

GESTAPO STOOLPIGEON SENTENCED TO DEATH

PRAGUE, July 25—(AP) A former monastery servant accused of bearing "tales" to the Gestapo was sentenced to death today by a Peoples' court at Bruenn.

The prosecution charged that the servant, Jaroslav Maiousek, a Czech, spread stories of hidden weapons and treasure, which led to 12 arrests and two executions in the monastery at Bruenn.

Patton to Visit Prague

PRAGUE, July 25, (AP)—Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., will arrive in Prague Friday from the American occupation zone, it was announced today. Patton will be awarded a medal by the Czech government and will be the luncheon guest of President Benes.

LEHMAN MEETS TITO, PROMISES MORE AID

BELGRADE, July 25. — (AP) Herbert H. Lehman, UNRRA director, in personal talks with Marshal Tito today said the relief agency had succeeded in obtaining additional and unexpected shipments to be delivered to Yugoslavia next month.

Lehman told Tito that while in Italy he had obtained more trucks for delivery to Yugoslavia, as he "fully understood Yugoslavia's desperate need for transport."

Chinese Threaten Nanking; Battle in Yangso Streets

By Spencer Moosa

CHUNGKING, July 25 (AP)—Chinese troops have captured a town 48 miles from Nanking, Japanese puppet capital of China, and have broken into the streets of the walled stronghold of Yangso, a former auxiliary American air base in South China, Chinese reports said tonight.

New Civil Clash

The Chinese threat to Nanking, nerve center of Japanese military and political control in China, coincided with reports of a new clash between Chinese Communist troops and government forces of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek 430 miles northeast of Chungking.

Government quarters minimized the incident, but Communist newspapers in Chngking charged the government had started "civil war."

Front dispatches from the Yangtze river battlefront claimed that Gen. Chiang's fighting forces captured the highway center of Hanshan, 48 miles southwest of Nanking, on July 19 and subsequently repulsed a Japanese counter-attack from Hoshien, 15 miles west of Hanshan.

There was no indication of the strength of Chinese forces at Hanshan. It appeared, however, that the Chinese might be attempting to reach the Yangtze, 20 miles distant, in an effort to disrupt river traffic between Nanking and the Chinese interior.

Jap Troop Movement

Other press dispatches told of a constant movement of Japanese troops down the Yangtze at night from Hankow to Nanking and Shanghai.

Four hundred miles southeast of Chungking, Chinese veterans sweeping toward the Kwangsi province capital of Kweilin from the south crashed through the south gate of Yangso yesterday, and today were locked in a swaying street battle with the Japanese garrison, the Chinese High Command said.

Supporting Chinese troops fighting for possession of the air base at Shaoyang, 145 miles northeast of Kweilin, U. S. Mustang fighter-bombers hit enemy troop positions there and ranged eastward to Kiangsi province, where they firebombed enemy compounds near the Chinese-held air base of Suichwan.

Twelve miles northeast of Suchwan, Chinese ground forces repelled a heavy Japanese counter-attack which tried to disperse Chinese soldiers attempting to halt an enemy withdrawal toward the Yangtze port of Nanchang headquarters said.

Reach Yeungkong's Suburbs

Along the South China coast, Gen. Chiang's forces reportedly reached the suburbs of the important highway hub of Yeungkong, 145 miles from Hong Kong, clearing a 50-mile stretch of the invasion vulnerable seaboard between Yeungkong and Tinpak.

Farther west, the Japanese launched an attack designed to drive the Chinese from positions along the Indo-China frontier 74 miles northeast of the capital city of Hanoi. Striking from the border town of Dong Dang, the enemy attempted to oust the Chinese from Chennankwan and Pingsiang on the Chinese side of the frontier, but the Chinese said the attack was repelled.

Lightning fighters of the U. S. 14th Air Force struck into Indo-China and attacked shipping along the coast an American communique said.

In other air operations, American Mitchell bombers hammered a Japanese headquarters at Wuchang across the Yangtze river from Hankow and swept over the West (Si) and North rivers, destroying 15 enemy boats and damaging 175 others.

Chinese Break Into Walled

Yangso

JUL 26 1945

Chungking, July 25 (AP)—Chinese troops have broken through the south gate of the walled town of Yangso, site of a former United States 14th Air Force base 44 miles south of the Japanese-held city of Kweilin, the Chinese high command announced today.

The announcement said street fighting was in progress in Yangso, which is on a subsidiary highway between Liuchow and Kweilin.

The Chinese also reported they had driven another wedge into the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad to seal more effectively the enemy escape route from Kwangsi to Hunan.

Rails Blocked At Two Points

They have blocked the rails 58 miles northeast of Kweilin and 9 miles southwest of the Japanese bastion at Chuanhsien. Fighting was still in progress in this sector.

The high command said several hundred Japanese from Dong Dang, 85 miles northeast of Hanoi, capital of French Indo-China, attacked positions at Chennankwan on the Chinese side of the Indo-China frontier and at Pingsiang, 11 miles north of Dong Dang, but were repelled.

Chinese striking eastward along the South China coastal highway reached the suburbs of Yeungkong, 125 miles southwest of Canton. Yeungkong, which is 50 miles east of Tinpak, from which point the Chinese launched their current drive, was under direct attack.

Jap Thrusts Repulsed

In Kiangsi, the Chinese repelled with heavy enemy casualties a Japanese counterattack 12 miles northeast of the liberated airbase city of Suichwan, roughly midway between Hong Kong and Hankow.

The counterattack presumably was made in an attempt to disperse Chinese forces likely to interfere with the withdrawal toward Nanchang of Japanese who recently abandoned Kanshien, the sixth of the lost airbases recovered by the Chinese.

A Chinese press report said Chinese troops had captured the Hanshan highway center, 45 miles southwest of Nanking, and had repulsed a Japanese counterattack from Hohsien, 15 miles east of Hanshan.

Northern China Faction Blames Ruling Forces

JUL 26 1945

Communists Charge Government Troops Started Civil War.

CHUNGKING, July 25—(AP)—Chinese Communists charged today that Chinese government troops had started civil war by attacking their forces in Northern China, but a Chungking spokesman said the situation was not serious and declared the Communists were responsible for the clashes.

Communist sources here said government soldiers from Honan Province attacked the Communists last Saturday in the border region of Shensi Province, about 350 miles north of Chungking, striking at "strategic points."

Maj. Gen. Kuo Chi-Chih, spokesman for the government forces, accused the Communist soldiers of attacking and temporarily occupying the Chunyao district in Shensi Province, about 70 miles north of Sian, on July 16. He said this was "definitely outside the Communist border region."

Extra Newspapers Sold

Communist in Chungking printed and sold extra newspapers alleging that government forces had started civil war and demanding their "original positions." Wide publicity also was given a telegram purportedly sent him by the Communists to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, urging him to intervene.

Kuo asserted the Chunyao district was "later re-taken by local garrison forces" and that central government troops had been ordered "to hold only the districts they were originally assigned to garrison." He added the episode was "nothing serious."

A cabinet spokesman, P. H. Chang, asserted the Communists were in the habit of attacking and occupying districts not strongly held by government troops. He said that when such districts were reloccupied the Communists, accused government soldiers of attacking them.

CHINESE TROOPS AND REDS CLASH

Each Side Blames the Other for Incident.

Chungking, July 25 (A. P.).—Chinese Government troops and Communist forces have clashed in the border region of Shensi province in North China, but an Army spokesman said today the incident was not serious.

The Army spokesman, Major-Gen. Kuo Chi-chih, asserted that Communist forces had attacked and temporarily occupied the Chunyao district in Shensi province, about seventy miles north of Sian, which he said was "definitely outside the Communist border" region.

Communist sources here, however, maintained that Government troops had started the attacks and demanded that the Army forces withdraw to their original positions.

Kuo said the district was "later retaken by local garrison forces" which had been ordered to "hold only the districts that were originally assigned to the garrison."

CHINA EXPLAINS BAN ON 2 CORRESPONDENTS

CHUNGKING, China, July 25 (AP)—P. H. Chang, a Cabinet spokesman, said today that in refusing re-entry to two correspondents, Harold Isaacs of Newsweek and Darrell Berrigan of The New York Post, the Government was in no way discriminating against the publications.

He said that China was engaged in a life-and-death struggle against Japan and "cannot be expected to admit persons whose past records are such as may be deemed to have endangered friendly relations between China and her allies." Asked what was required of correspondents, generally, to save them from being barred from China, Mr. Chang replied: "Common sense."

Mr. Isaacs, returning from home leave, learned of the ban on him when he arrived last week in India, en route to Chungking. Mr. Berrigan had previously been barred. Mr. Isaacs said that he was evidently being barred because he had written several "outspoken" articles on China while he was in the United States.

Kung Quits as Head Of Bank of China

Chungking, July 25 (A. P.).—H. H. Kung, brother-in-law of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, resigned today as governor of the Central Bank of China and was replaced by Minister of Finance O. K. Yui, who retained his cabinet post.

CALCUTTA, July 25—(AP) Allied forces have wiped out half of 5,000 trapped Japanese trying to escape over the Sittang river in lower Burma, the Southeast Asia command said today.

In another action farther north, headquarters reported capture of the road center of Tuanggyi, 100 miles southeast of Mandalay.

A communique declared more than 2,000 Japanese were killed in four days of fighting north of Rangoon.

(A Rangoon dispatch to the London Exchange Telegraph placed the Japanese dead at 2,700, compared with 36 British killed, 81 wounded, and two missing. Losses from bombing and shelling raised the enemy toll to 3,500, it said.)

The communique declared that Tuunggyi, 100 miles from Mandalay and 280 miles northeast of Rangoon, was captured in an advance eastward along the highway from Heho. In the Sittang battle area, it said, Allied forces captured two villages.

(A Tokyo broadcast heard by the FCC said Allied forces had stepped up their attacks in the Sittang and Myitkyo areas despite rains, and were staging "an average of 35 ground attacks a day.)

2000 JAPS KILLED IN SITTANG BATTLE

Calcutta, July 25 (A. P.).—Allied troops have killed more than 2,000 Japanese in a three-day battle with enemy forces seeking to escape from a trap in southern Burma and reach the Sittang River, Southeast Asia Command headquarters announced today.

These casualties, coupled with 252 prisoners and an uncounted number killed by artillery and by planes, have reduced by more than one-half a Japanese force estimated at 5,000 in the Pegu pocket.

A communique said heavy fighting continued today along a seventy-seven-mile stretch of road between Toungoo and Nyaunglebin. A large body of the enemy which crossed the road by night was engaged by guns and mortars.

Two villages, five miles northeast of Pyu, were occupied by Allied troops following a successful strike. Advancing eastward from Heho, a 3,000-foot high trading center in the Shan State, the Allies occupied Taunggyi and patrolled east of the town.

Strong forces of Spitfires and Thunderbolts are supporting the ground troops in the Toungoo-Nyaunglebin corridor.

A Domei broadcast recorded by the FCC said that Allied attacks against the Sittang and Myitkyo areas had "mounted in strength, despite the fact that the rainy season has set in." The enemy agency's correspondent said Allied troops were carrying out "an average of thirty-five ground attacks a day, made with support of a total of 100 fighter planes." Domei declared, however, that "our counterattacks continue to foil the enemy's plans."

MERRILL LEAVES INDIA-BURMA POST

New Delhi, July 25 (A. P.).—Major-Gen. Frank D. Merrill has left the India-Burma theater for an important assignment, United States Headquarters here announced today. The nature of the assignment was not disclosed.

Merrill became head of the Liaison Group of Southeast Asia Command Headquarters August last, after yielding command of the Burma Task Force known as Merrill's Marauders to Brig.-Gen. Theodore F. Wessels. It was officially announced then that "the only reason for his relief was his health."

General Johnston To Resume Rail Job

Melbourne, Australia, July 25 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Paul Johnston, general purchasing agent for United States forces in Australia, is returning to the United States to retire from the Army and to resume his post as vice president in charge of operations of the Erie Railroad.

Since coming to Australia in 1942 he has been responsible for transactions involving $800,000,000 in supplies and equipment. The date of his departure was not announced.

New Zealanders Await Ship

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, Wednesday, July 25 (AP)—More than 300 New Zealand wives, children and fiancées of American service men are awaiting passage to the United States, but responsible officials said today that there was little expectation that a ship would be made available this year. The previous ship that took New Zealand wives to America left here last February.

Henderson To Set Up 'OPA' In Guatemala

Guatemala, July 25 (AP) — Leon Henderson, former United States price administrator, is scheduled to arrive in Guatemala August 10 to set up a system similar to the OPA.

Robert A. Triffen, a Washington financial expert, is scheduled to arrive August 15. Both are being sent by the Inter-American Development Commission in Washington at the request of the Guatemala Government for technical assistance.

Canada Not Asked To Enter Grain Pool

Ottawa, July 25 (A. P.).—Canada has received no results thus far to provide a share of an estimated 1,500,000 tons of grain required to supplement the German ration in the zone occupied by British forces, trade department officials said today.

The head of the food and agriculture branch of the military government in the zone said it was expected the grain would be provided by the United States, Canada and South America, although negotiations for its transportation nave not been completed.

Government officials said it was not likely that direct Canadian grain shipments to Germany would be made as the policy in military relief has been for countries with surpluses to contribute to a pool from which food is distributed. Under this system, Canadian grain was provided to the supreme headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary force during the European campaign.

Stalin Brought Nip Peace Bid Says Newsweek

Magazine Discloses Unconfirmed Report Of Offer To Big 3.

NEW YORK, July 25 (AP)—Newsweek Magazine says Generalissimo Stalin took to the Big Three meeting a Japanese peace offer with the proviso that the Japanese home islands remain free of American invasion and occupation.

The magazine says also, without giving the source of the information, that Widar Bagge, retirng Swedish minister to Japan, transmitted to the United States early last May a "Japanese request for clarification of the American 'unconditional surrender' formula."

The article says in part:

"As a price of Russian nonintervention, the Japanese offered to withdraw from Manchuria in favor of Moscow. Moreover, they offered to 'recognize the principle of independence' of Indo-China, Burma and the Philippines and to submit to American occupation of Korea and even Formosa on one condition—that the Japanese home islands should remain free of American invasion and occupation.

Up To President

"It will be up to President Truman and to his closest advisers now in Potsdam to decide whether the Japanese offer to Russia falls within the American interpretation of 'unconditional surrender.'"

The magazine said the State department's July 18 denial of any knowledge of Japanese peace proposals was "technically correct because the Russo-Japanese negotiations concerned primarily Russia's attitude toward the Far Eastern war."

Bagge's action, Newsweek said, was the "peace feeler" referred to by Acting Secretary of State Joseph C. Grew on July 10 and credited to a neutral diplomat in Tokyo.

RUSSIA REQUESTS 700 MILLION IN UNRRA ALLOTMENT

U. S. Has Contributed Major Share of $1,862,788,348 Already Handed Out.

WASHINGTON, July 25 — (AP) UNRRA has received its first request for assistance from Russia—$700,000,000 worth.

This was disclosed today by UNRRA Deputy Director Roy F. Hendrickson at a news conference at which he also said that getting supplies and means of distributing them is a "very difficult problem indeed."

Hendrickson, who is acting director of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration while Herbert H. Lehman is in Europe, announced that:

1—Total contributions to UNRRA so far authorized by participating governments is $1,862,788,348, of which the United States authorized $1,350,000,000.

2—A total of 1,304,298 long tons of supplies valued at $296,563,000 have been furnished through June 30 to seven occupied countries—Greece, Italy, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, China, Albania—and UNRRA camps. Western Hemisphere sources supplied 1,069,639 tons valued at $223,038,000.

Hendrickson said the Russian request was received yesterday. It did not specify what was needed or over how long a period, but said detailed needs would be outlined later. It merely said the amount was needed for relief and rehabilitation.

The deputy said the request—submitted by Russia's alternate delegate here on the UNRRA council, Vlas Andreevich Klentsov,—will be handled in the routine way and referred to a committee for examination of the Soviet government's ability to pay.

Ability to pay, he explained, is interpreted in "terms of exchange and ability to import goods."

Russia Not To Donate

Russia, being an invaded country, was not called upon to contribute to UNRRA operations, but only to donate toward its administrative expense. Its allocation for 1944 expenses is $1,000,000.

"I should imagine she would need about everything," Hendrickson said in reply to a question as to what Russia might want.

He said China had asked around $945,000,000 over an 18-month period and Poland is asking between $600,000,000 and $700,000,000.

Need $325,000,000 Monthly

Describing UNRRA's minimum needs for the rest of this year as around $325,000,000 a month, Hendrickson said the UNRRA council meeting in London next month would indicate its financial position and the type of program for 1946.

He said the relief agency "definitely contemplates tapering off" next year because it is hoped that projects like Bretton Woods will permit more and more countries to import goods. He emphasized UNRRA is only a "transitory agency" which will disappear when the relief emergency ends.

Replying to criticisms that UNRRA has been slow in distributing relief, the deputy said it has placed goods into occupied countries as rapidly as shipping was available. He predicted much improvemnt in port reception in the near future. Trieste is now open which will step up supplies to Yugoslavia. Danzig will be opened next month to expedite shipments to Poland.

Expense Misunderstanding

The deputy said there had been some misunderstanding about the share of UNRRA expenses. Nations that were occupied by the enemy in the war are not expected to make contributions except for administrative expenses, he explained. Countries not occupied are supposed to put up one per cent of their income for one year, with each country being the judge of what it can afford.

"Some have indicated they could afford only one-half or one-fourth of one per cent," he said. To a question whether UNRRA was embarrassed by this, he replied:

"It will not be long before UNRRA is pretty short of funds, but the main problem now is converting funds into goods."

He said the No. 1 priority for relief needs now is trucks—needed primarily for movement of crops in Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Poland because railroad recovery is going to be slow.

He said 50,000 trucks are going to be needed and that "outstanding cooperation" is being afforded by Canada, which has agreed to furnish 13,000. The United States is supplying 1,600 new trucks and has just arranged to buy 2,600 surplus American army trucks in Italy for transfer to Yugoslavia.

WILEY ASKS RUSSIA TO ENTER JAP WAR

Washington, July 25 (A. P.).—Senator Wiley (R.-Wis.) urged today that Russia enter the war against Japan.

"It would be our dearest hope," he said, "that Russia's mere entrance into the war would be sufficient to make the Japs throw in the sponge, without a single additional Russian boy or a single additional American boy dying."

The Wisconsin Senator read part of his speech and obtained permission to insert the remainder in the Congressional Record. He declared the United States had adopted a "hush hush" policy about possible Russian entrance into the Pacific war—a policy he characterized as "ridiculous."

"If Russia declared war, if her bombing fleets roared out from Vladivostok over to Japan, these acts might be the final ones to force a quick surrender of the Japs," he said. "Why then should we pussyfoot with our Russian ally and not declare openly that we want them to make common cause with us in the Pacific? Why then should we not strengthen President Truman's hand by making known this desire from here at home in no uncertain terms?"

Showdown Now On Troop Use Wanted

Washington, July 25 (AP) — A three-point program to carry out the United Nations Charter emerged today from the smoke of unexpected Senate fireworks that threatened brief delay in ratification of the document.

What the Administration wants, as outlined by several senators, is this:

1. Ratification of the Charter with the explicit understanding that the United States is thus committing itself to use its troops to help police future peace.

2. Enactment next fall of a law giving this country's Security Council delegate authority, through the President, to vote for the use of United States troops for police work short of actual war.

3. Later approval by both houses of Congress of an agreement with the Security Council on furnishing American troops and equipment.

Vote Dispute Arises

Half a dozen Charter supporters, headed by Senator Lucas (D., Ill.), prepared today to drive home the contention that the contemplated military agreement with the Council should be submitted to both houses for simple majority agreement.

Senator Hatch (D., N.M.) plunged the Senate into an uproar yesterday when he challenged an earlier assertion by John Foster Dulles, chief adviser to the American delegation in San Francisco, that this agreement would come back to the chamber for a two-thirds ratification vote.

Dulles, Connally Quoted

Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.), droning through a 15,000-word speech in which he said he would vote for the Charter largely because of Dulles's statement on this point, read Dulles's testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. He added that the record showed Chairman Connally (D., Texas) agreeing "thoroughly" with Dulles that a treaty was in order.

The issue had not been raised before. It was a loosely guarded secret, however, that several State Department officials were worried over the possibility of facing another treaty debate on this score. Wheeler said it would be a "real fight" and that he would help wage it.

Constitution Cited

Lucas told reporters he plans to point out that the Constitution gives Congress the authority to raise armies and as a result both houses should pass on the military agreements.

Senator Pepper (D., Fla.) said he would contend that the main step is being taken in ratification of the treaty and that the agreements under it should not also have to be put in treaty form where one third of the Senate, plus one, could defeat them.

Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) said it had not occurred to him before that anything but a treaty would be offered but that he had no objection to approval in statute form.

Connally Explains

Wheeler's reading of the Dulles statement and Connally's approval of it brought Connally to his feet with the assertion that he was expressing only a personal view in favoring submission of the agreement as a treaty.

That question could be decided later, when the agreement had been made, Connally said, adding that he wasn't afraid to submit the issue to the Senate alone despite the necessity for a two-thirds vote there.

Senate Argument Flares On Charter Troop Pact

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP)—Powerful support developed in the Senate today for the argument that United Nations pacts assigning American troops to keep the peace will be treaties subject to two-thirds approval of the Senate.

Another group of senators, fearing that this might spell defeat of the pacts to be submitted long after the basic United Nations charter is ratified, hotly argued that the documents will be agreements requiring only majority approval by Senate and House.

Wheeler's Position

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont), a critic of the United Nations charter, took the position yesterday that the later pacts will be treaties. Senator Connally (D-Tex), one of the foremost supporters of the charter, said today that in his view, they will be treaties. The same position was taken by Senator White (R-Me) and Taft (R-Ohio).

The question of these pacts, which will determine how many American troops will be assigned to the peace-keeping role and where they will serve, came up during debate on the basic charter.

Disagreeing sharply with the Wheeler view, Senator Lucas (D-Ill) referred to the failure of the old league of nations to gain two-thirds approval of the Senate.

I want to take my chances with Congress, not with one-third of the United States Senate for I've seen what has happened here before," Lucas said.

Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky sided with Lucas, and he warned against anyone "lying in ambush to nullify our solemn agreement" when the implementing legislation comes up.

Wheeler took this personally and retorted that he didn't think "anyone is lying in ambush."

He referred again to John Foster Dulles, chief adviser to the American delegation at San Francisco, who testified at the Senate committee hearings he thought the later agreements would be treaties. Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) jumped into the debate, observing there had been a good deal of discussion about what Dulles meant so he took the "unique" course of calling him today to find out. Said Vandenberg:

"The sole question presented to him was the choice between a treaty on the one hand and a presidential executive order on the other. It is Mr. Dulles' view that these agreements should be made by treaty but he wishes me to say for him that he never passed on the question of whether there may not be an alternative choice between a treaty and a joint resolution of Congress."

Vandenberg Prefers Treaty Method

Vandenberg said he had a "preference" for the treaty method but he could see that there was a choice.

Connally, who served with Vandenberg as a delegate to the San Francisco conference, said the word "ratification" in the charter itself meant treaty to him. But he added that he didn't care which method was used for "I have no doubt that we'll redeem our faith."

Said Senator White, minority leader:

"I am glad to have that information from Mr. Dulles. It confirms my own opinion for I never have thought that a joint resolution of Congress is ratification."

Barkley remarked that while he had great respect for Dulles' opinion, he didn't share it.

Taft commented:

"I fully agree that we must enter into those agreements with good faith after we've ratified the charter itself but it can be a treaty and I think it should be."

Lucas was joined by Senators Hill (D-Ala), Ellender (D-La) and McClellan (D-Ark) in vigorous disagreement with that thesis.

Lucas Challenges Critics

The tall, incisive Lucas pointedly challenged any critics of the charter to offer any "reservations or amendments now—"not a year hence" when the agreements come up.

He said the charter can develop into one of the "greatest documents in history" and no senator should vote for it "because he believes it politically dangerous to do otherwise."

"Let no one vote for this document," he added, "with the belief that some day when the implementing statutes and the special agreements come to us for congressional action, then will be the hour to draw the military teeth from this new international agreement.55

Lucas said ratification of the charter implies full authority for the U. S. delegate by presidential authority to use American troops to quell an aggression.

"Such action would not constitute act of war . . . but rather participation in international police action to prevent war. The exclusive power of the Congress to declare is not affected."

"We're not surrendering anything," Senator McClellan (D-Ark) agreed.

Senator Burton (R-Ohio), opening the third day of debate, saw in the postwar council a unit so strong no nation will be able to resist its decisions. The Allies "won the championship of the world," Burton said, and the best way to keep it is to keep "The team intact."

Senator Smith (R-NJ) said he would vote for ratification of the charter "with enthusiasm."

"A despairing, chaotic world is crying for the positive, constructive, dynamic leadership of America," he declared.

Senator Hawkes (R-NJ) strongly appealed for "an arc light which brings out complete, accurate and true publicity" on all deliberations and actions of the world organization. He said:

"Let there be no news 'blackouts' in connection with the operation of the international organization. Let us make certain that the press, the radio and other agencies of information to the public are able to know the facts and present the truth promptly to all the people of all countries.

"Let the press, the radio and the other agencies of information recognize their responsibility, not to tear down but to build up insofar as lies within tehir power, and above everything, to give the people the true facts so they may have accurate information on which to base their own judgments.

"I have more faith in an informed people wanting to keep the peace than I have in the political leaders of the people wishing to keep the peace."

JAPS VISION DOOM, THOMAS ASSERTS

WASHINGTON, July 25 — (AP) Senator Elbert Thomas of Utah, who regularly peppers Japan with broadcasts, said today the Japanese are beginning to realize they are headed straight for doom.

Thomas, a Democrat who knows the Japanese from years of missionary work among them, said in an interview:

"We are winning at psychological warfare now, just as we are in actual warfare. We were losing at the start.

"Of course, the real force is the bombing and the killing. If you tell a man he is going to be destroyed, and he sees destruction all about him, he's going to take your word for it."

Thomas' remarks were in connection with the argument addressed to the Japanese last week-end by Captain E. C. Zacharias of the U. S. Navy as an "official spokesman" for the American government.

Zacharias told the Japanese that surrender did not mean extinction of the people, and Thomas said that this definition needed to be given.

"We've got to get the Japanese out of the notion that they have to fight to the last ditch," he said. "I have always said that we couldn't beat Japan until 1947, because the task is so big. But if we can start them to surrendering, we can do it much quicker."

He was asked if the Japanese were receptive to arguments from abroad.

"Yes, they're humans," was the reply. "And news spreads like wildfire among them."

Thomas has been broadcasting a message to the Japanese each month since January 7, 1942. Now he's on a weekly basis.

"I am now trying to help bring down the Japanese government by a direct appeal to the Japanese people."

A soft-spoken man who used to teach at the University of Utah, Thomas takes modest pride in the fact that Tokyo warlords once labeled him "The world's No. 2 criminal," No. 1 in their books was Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Combat Vets Begin Training For Pacific

Black Hawk Division Troops Swarm Into Camp Gruber For Retraining—First Group To Be Redeployed From Europe.

By Howard Brisco

CAMP GRUBER, Okla., July 25 (AP)—Troops of the 86th (Black Hawk) Division, veterans of action in Cologne, the Ruhr pocket and Bavaria, swarmed into this $40,000,000 post today for retraining for Pacific combat.

Personnel of the division, first to be redeployed from Europe through the United States to the Pacific, will continue to arrive for a week or ten days before reaching its full strength of 15,000.

Small Unit Operations

Their training will stress individual initiative and operations by small units, regarded as much more essential in the Pacific than in the European theatre.

Winding up one war only to descend into another is "just one of those things," representative enlisted men agreed, although Corp. Clarence F. Napier, 21, Williamson, W. Va., wanted it known that "it wasn't my idea.

In store for the youthful soldiers—their average is 23—was an eight-weeks workout including physical conditioning, prevention of tropical and insect-borne diseases, flame-throwing techniques and jungle fighting in general.

Plan to Toughen Troops

The plan, directed by Lt. Col. Stanley Gortikov, Los Angeles, Calif., G-3 operations officer, was designed to toughen the troops for hardships in the Pacific area even more severe than those they experienced in European fighting.

In combatting Nazis, the 86th's officers recall, "everything came down from the company," whereas in jungle conflict a squad of eight men often is on its own. This calls for the utmost in "know how" for every man involved. They'll learn in maneuver on this 70,000-acre reservation and in assault on a simulated Japanese village.

Lessons in use of the flame-thrower to silence pill boxes and drive Japanese from hiding places will be stepped up. In Europe flame-throwers hardly came into their own, the officers said, because of the open nature of the terrain, but in the closer fighting of the Pacific zone they are more effective.

Generals Already on Post

Already on the post, when trains from assembly points came pulling, were Maj. Gen. Harris M. Melasky, Los Angeles, Calif., the division's commanding general, and Brig. Gen. E. B. Gjelsteen, Menominee, Mich, artillery commander.

Under a system devised by Col. Landon J. Lockett, Brenham, Tex., camp commanding officer, and Col. Marcel A. Gillis, New Orleans, commanding officer 25th Headquarters Special Troops Fourth Army, men from the trains were transported quickly to barracks and released to take it easy until the rest of the troops arrived.

Hart Hits Failure To Use 'Bargaining' Power with British

Urging Adoption of United Nations Charter, Senator Warns U. S. Resources Being 'Depleted', Says America Cannot 'Carry Burdens of All the World.'

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(AP) Senator Thomas C. Hart (R-Conn) the retired admiral, declared today that the U. S. has failed to use its "bargaining power" with Britain and other Allies and may wind up badly "depleted" in natural resources if the Japanese war continues long.

The ex-chief of the Asiatic Fleet in a Senate speech endorsing the United Nations Charter, developed a pointed critique of the war effort which hit at Britain, at U. S. war expenditures and political leadership.

Carrying World's Burdens

"We shall ratify the charter and loyally fulfill our commitments thereunder," the spare, gray Hart said, "but we must above all remain a strong America. We must not break the back of America in ill-judged attempts to carry the burdens of all the rest of the world."

Going into the Pacific war situation, Hart asserted:

1—It is America's fight, Britain's will has been greatly affected by "the exhaustion of nearly six years of war."

2—Admiral Nimitz doesn't need British help against the Japanese now "because by the time they had joined he had already beaten the Japanese navy at sea and in the air."

3—The British navy should have brought amphibious power into action from the Indian ocean "many months ago and thus driven into the Netherlands East Indies" to relieve the supply situation. They didn't because "they were tired from long years of war."

4—Western Hemisphere bases obtained on 99-year lease from the British in exchange for 50 overage destroyers "cannot be used for commercial purposes after the war . . . The leases do not provide that our air commerce can utilize the flying fields which have been built at the expenditure of United States money."

Expenditures Useless

5—Heavy expenditures on the Canol project to get oil out of Canada, the Alcan (Alaskan) highway and the Pan-American highway "are scarcely defensible—turned out to be virtually useless."

6—"We have wholly failed to obtain agreements under which we can make any postwar use" of several Pacific bases now on "foreign soil. "A certain amount of judicious bargaining could have put us in a position to obtain some postwar returns from those heavy expenditures on foreign soil."

"We still have some bargaining power left and in my humble opinion it ought to be used," Hart said.

"If the Pacific war continues for years, as it may, the end of it will see us most seriously depleted. There is abroad in the land too much of a feeling that we are powerful and strong enough to do almost anything for the rest of the world. We will be wiser if we keep a reasonable estimate of our ability to carry burdens more firmly in mind."

Attacks Ickes Plan

Hart cited as an example the proposal of Interior Secretary Ickes that the U. S. ship 6,000,000 tons of coal to Europe.

"To get it across the Atlantic will require many hundreds of round trips of our freighters. If we use our best ships, something like 700 of those 7,000 mile voyages would be required."

He said he thought "some subordinates — bright young men — thought up that 6,000,000 ton project," not Ickes.

"It is such errors in judgment in our international dealings which I seek to illustrate and warn against," he said.

Fireworks Set By Morgenthau Keep Popping

Cabinet Evacuee May Have Misunderstood Reporter's Question.

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP)—Fireworks set off by Henry Morgenthau, Jr., when he retired as secretary of the treasury were still popping today.

Morgenthau denied that President Truman requested his resignation. Reporters in New York yesterday gained the impression from Morgenthau's remarks that he was forced out by Mr. Truman.

Morgenthau's friends said today he may have misunderstood the reporters' question. While denying that his resignation was requested, Morgenthau repeated today his assertion in New York that his departure from office was not of his own choosing.

He wouldn't discuss the matter further, but his friends explained he meant that he wanted to stay as secretary but felt it necessary to resign because he learned that President Truman planned to replace him with Fred M. Vinson in a few months.

Expresses Astonishment

In another development, Budget Director Harold D. Smith expressed "a certain astonishment" over one passage in Morgenthau's final report to Congress, made public yesterday.

This passage said:

"Personally, I feel that experience has demonstrated the desirability of returning to the treasury department the responsibility for preparing and submitting the President's budget."

Smith and other budget officials said the treasury has never had this responsibility. They said the budget director has always been responsible directly to the President, although the budget bureau was in the treasury department in a loose administrative sense until 1939.

There was little doubt the budget bureau, which is considered a part of the President's staff, is strongly opposed to any attempt to subordinate the bureau or its functions to any executive department.

Budget Chief Hostile To Morgenthau Idea

Washington, July 25 (AP)—Henry Morgenthau's proposal that the job of preparing the President's budget be "returned" to the Treasury echoed sharply in the Budget Bureau today.

Budget Director Harold D. Smith said he felt "a certain astonishment" because the Treasury has never prepared the Government's annual fiscal estimate.

Smith added to a reporter that although the Budget Bureau had a "loose connection" with the department until 1939, it was never under Treasury control.

Other Officials Oppose Idea

Other budget officials flatly opposed Morgenthau's suggestion, saying the bureau is not an operating agency but a part of the President's staff, and should remain so.

The Budget Bureau shift was among several that Morgenthau recommended in a final report to Congress, made public last night. Morgenthau said the department he turned over to Fred M. Vinson on Monday should have firmer control over the Government's financial policies.

To accomplish that he suggested that the Treasury be given policy control over the spending, lending, borrowing and insuring activities of such Government agencies as the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the Agriculture Department, the National Housing Agency and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Changes Believed Likely

Despite some evidence of opposition in quarters other than the Budget Bureau, officials of the various fiscal agencies were generally agreed today that more unity is needed in fiscal policy.

And it seemed likely to observers that the White House and Congress would strengthen the Treasury's authority in many ways with Vinson at the helm. President Truman's desire to absorb agencies into the regular departments and to give his Cabinet members more responsibility is well known.

In New York yesterday, Morgenthau said that his retirement was "not of my own choosing" and that his wish to remain in office until V-J day "didn't work out that way." On his return to Washington, Morgenthau said he had not meant to imply that the President had asked him to resign.

U. S. Receives Partial List Of Jap Prison Ship Victims

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(AP) The War department disclosed tonight this government has received from Japan a partial list of 1,001 Americans who lost their lives in the December 1944, torpedoing of a Japanese prison ship.

Notices sent to next of kin said that of more than 1600 American prisoners of war on the ship 942 were killed outright, 59 died later, two survived and evaded capture, and 618 survived and presumably were taken on to Japan.

The name of the ship was not given in casualty notices. These notices said the ship left Manila December 13, 1944, apparently for Japan and was torpedoed two days later in Subic bay. Relatives of a total 616 dead—Army personnel or War department civilian employes—have been notified of their death by the Army.

Of 618 survivors the names of 32 have been received from Japan, the notices said, adding that names of the other 136 are "expected."

The sinking apparently is the same one disclosed here last February, although at that time it was attributed to American bombs instead of a torpedo.

On Feb. 22, Navy Lieut. George Karl Petritz, 27, of Rockford, Ill., told of surviving the sinking of a Japanese prison ship off Luzon on Dec. 15. He said the ship carried 1,600 Americans and that more than half died.

He asserted the bombing actually saved American lives because without it more of the prisoners jammed in suffocating holds would have perished. Before the attack, he said, many prisoners died of suffocation because the Japanese had crowded them into spaces big enough to accommodate only a few.

Hidden Fields Fool Japs

Washington, July 25 (AP)—Japanese troops lived right on top of camouflaged guerilla-built airfields in the Philippines, but never discovered them.

Major Emerson J. Watson, just returned from a 31-month tour in the Pacific, told a news conference that at the proper time the guerillas cleared away huts and other disguises to make way for American troop carrier planes.

Watson, 27, whose parents live in Knoxville, Tenn., commanded a squadron of the 317th Troop Carrier Group (Jungle Skippers).

The outfit participated in a series of major Pacific campaigns from Brisbane, Australia, to Luzon, in the Philippines, ferrying men and supplies, often without fighter escort.

Press Is Lauded For Its Court Expose Role

Washington, July 25 (AP)—Local newspapers are credited by Representative (D., Tenn.) with helping congressional investigators "get to the bottom" of conditions in Pennsylvania's Middle District Federal Court.

Kefauver is chairman of the House judiciary subcommittee investigating the conduct of Judge Albert L. Watso nand former Judge Albert W. Johnson.

"The newspapers performed a great public service over the years in standing up against conditions existing in the court," Kefauver said. "The newspapers also gave us invaluable assistance in the investigation.

Public Hearing Closes

He singled out, particularly, reporter George Martin, of the Scranton Times, but said other staff members of that paper and of the Scranton Tribune were also helpful. Both papers, he added, along with others in the 33-county district, for years complained editorially of court procedure that appeared irregular.

Kefauver made the statement following the close of a public hearing into former Judge Johnson's handling of the Williamsport (Pa.) Wire Rope Company receivership. Johnson resigned during the investigation and subsequently waived his $10,000-a-year statuory pension.

Kefauver said he believed the case indicated that a "good many changes" in judicial laws were needed.

Among them, he said, should be a prohibition against court orders directing purchasers of receivership assets to assume costs of administration of the receivership without setting out what the costs will be.

Witnesses in the Williamsport Wire Rope hearing testified that the Bethlehem Steel Company bought the firm at a oourt-ordered foreclosure sale and subsequently paid $240,000 in "administrative costs" to receivership officials.

NAVY RELEASES

Washington, July 25 (A. P.).—Older Navy officers and men now may apply for discharge. The Navy's announced point system was placed in operation yesterday, but releases may be months coming through.

The plan provides one credit for each year of age at the nearest birthday plus another for each four months of active duty since September 1, 1939. Requirements are fifty-three points for reserve line officers, enlisted reservists, inductees and enlisted regulars serving under expired enlistments; fifty-five points for reserve officers of the Supply Corps and fifty-seven for reserve officers of the Civil Engineers Corps.

The Navy said that commanding officers in this country are given three months to act upon release applications and those afloat or abroad six months.

WAR RELIEF CLOTHING IN 'GOOD' CONDITION

WASHINGTON, July 25 — (AP) A spokesman for the Treasury's Procurement Division said today that war relief clothing stored in a Portland, Me., warehouse is in "good condition."

It was reported earlier from Portland that Rep. Robert Hale (R-Me) planned an inquiry upon hearing the garments, sorted, baled and waiting shipment, were damp and musty.

"There is not any damp or musty clothing in the place," the Treasury source told a reporter.

"The clothing is inspected twice a week, and after publication of a newspaper story we looked in on it again and found it in good condition. The Portland warehouse is a place we are proud of. We will be glad to have reporters and photographers visit the place."

The Procurement Division acts as an agent of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. It receives clothing from the local committees, stores it as long as necessary, and contracts for baling it.

The procurement spokesman said that out of about 121,300,000 pounds of clothing taken into warehouses, 61,800,000 pounds has been sent to the balers, and "it is a huge operation, moving along at good speed."

gaol of a six to seven per cent cut in prices this year has just about disappeared as the result of a series of price concessions OPA has made to fabric manufacturers.

The latest of these, announced last night, allows producers of woolen and worsted fabrics to postpone their scheduled price reduction until next January. Even then the cut will not be as great as planned originally. The reductions had been due to go into effect this month.

Quality Slump in Clothing Has OPA Officials Stumped

JUL 26 1945

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(AP) Wartime deterioration of clothing quality—a problem paralleling soaring prices for garments—has the OPA stumped.

Officials of the agency who declined to be quoted by name acknowledged today that OPA is powerless to curb shoddiness in clothing to any extent.

They said also that to a great degree quality deterioration has not been the fault of garment manufacturers. It has developed principally, they added, from requisition by the military of nearly the entire supply of better grade fabrics.

Made from Leftovers

"In most cases," one official said, "manufacturers have no choice. They are obliged to make civilian clothing from the fabric left over when military needs have been met."

So long as the war continues civilians probably will have to get along with materials the Army and Navy don't want, it was stated.

While efforts to improve quality have been thus stymied, OPA said it has had some success in curbing so-called "fancying-up" of garments so that higher prices could be charged. Officials said that regulations requiring the elimination of price-boosting frills have begun to show results.

"For example," an official said, "a leather belt on a dress could hike the price considerably. Substitution of a fabric belt might keep the garment in the low-price range."

The agency concedes, however, that so far various cost-curbing measures have had no effect whatever in the government campaign to roll back over-all clothing costs.

Costs up 12 Per Cent

Retail prices for clothing have risen 12 per cent in the last 22 months and OPA sees this climb as one of the greatest inflationary dangers.

Any prospects for achieving the made to rayon producers.

OPA is planning to allow garment manufacturers to pass on at least part of these increases. Also, part of a scheduled retail reduction for cotton garments already has been cancelled.

Order Too Stringent

In making these adjustments OPA has said that the original order was too stringent. It required fabric manufacturers and garment makers to return to the same average price lines of merchandise that they handled in 1943.

Merchants contended that inexpensive fabrics available in 1943 no longer can be obtained.

In the case of woolens and worsteds, they pointed out that government restrictions that year required them to mix other fabrics with wool to conserve the supply. This reduced the cost of woolens and worsteds.

Manufacturers argued that they should not be obliged to return to an abnormally low price now that virgin wool may be used again and costs are higher.

ARMY MEAT QUOTA WILL BE SLASHED

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(AP) Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, acting upon Army recommendations, today reduced the portion of beef which federally-inspected slaughterers must set aside for the armed services.

Effective July 29, the Army's portion of Army styled beef will be reduced from 25 to 20 per cent and of utility, canner and cutter grades from 65 to 55 per cent of the production of such slaughterers.

No change was made in the present set aside of 20 per cent of Kosher beef produced in the northeastern states.

These reductions in military set asides were made to bring Army procurement in line with the share allocated the military services for the current quarter.

The reductions reflect increase marketings of cattle. As a result of the larger marketings, civilian supplies are increasing. As was reported earlier in the week, these increases in civilian supplies will make possible slight reductions in ration point values of beef for the August rationing period.

EXONERATED BUNDISTS WANT RIGHTS RESTORED

WASHINGTON, July 25—(AP) Fifteen German-American bundists freed by the supreme court from charges of conspiring to advise evasion and resistance to the selective Service Act sought today to have their citizenship restored.

A suit filed in district court named Attorney General Tom Clark as defendant and asked the court to enjoin Clark from any proceedings to deport the 15 men. The suit said the 15 were naturalized American citizens and their citizenship had been unlawfully revoked because of their connection with the bund.

The suit said 10 of the plaintiffs are now interned at Ft. Lincoln, N. Dak., and listed them as Gustave Elmer, Walter Borchers, Otto Fentzke, Bruno Knupfer, William C. Kunz, Louis Schatz, Ernest M. Christopher, John C. Fitting, Herman Agne and Fritz Struer. Others listed as plaintiffs were Herman Schwinn and August Klapprott, identified as defendants in the mass sedition case and held in jail here, and Max Rapp, New York; Walter Schneller, Erie, Pa., and Otto Willumeit, Chicago.

(The Justice Department, in an announcement June 26 said Schwinn, Rapp and Schneller never were American citizens.)

ARMY NEEDS 800 DOGS FOR DUTY AGAINST JAPS

WASHINGTON, July 25.—(AP) Many of the dogs offered to the Army for scout duty against the Japanese have had to be rejected, and an appeal was issued today for 800 new canine recruits by Sept. 15.

A campaign began May 1 to enlist 1,600 dogs for training. Dog owners responded with offers of about 3,000 but most of the animals were rejected because of improper temperament and a heart ailment determinable only by microscopic examination.

German shepherd and Belgian sheep dogs have proved most adaptable but other acceptable breeds include Doberman pinschers, collies and giant Schnauzers. After training they are able to detect the enemy at 250 to 400 yards—further if the wind is in the dog's favor.

"I appreciate the reluctance with which anyone parts with a highly regarded dog," said Lt. Gen. Edmund B. Gregory, quartermaster general, "but it should compensate them in large measure to know that in so doing they are saving the lives of our soldiers."

PHILIPPINE BILLS HALTED

Opposition Forces Senate Committee to Forego Action Now

WASHINGTON, July 25 (AP)—Opposition from members of the Senate Territories Committee and the Filipino Rehabilitation Commission has forced Senator Millard E. Tydings to drop plans for immediate action on two bills dealing with the Philippines.

Reliable sources said Senator Robert Taft and Senator Carl Hayden objected to the Tydings-sponsored measures during yesterday's executive session of the committee, They succeeded in convincing other committee members that action on the bills should be delayed for more study.

Both bills are opposed by Filipino Government representatives in Washington. They disagree with provisions to levy five per cent duty on Filipino exports to the United States after independence and in addition feel the United States should appropriate $100,000,000 to pay for war damage.

Minor Items Slated For Price-Curb End

Washington, July 25 (AP)—The stage is set for gradual elimination of price controls on a wide variety of minor commodities.

Granted this authority by Stabilization Director William H Davis, the OPA said it would help clear the way for the "gigantic task" of setting price ceilings for civilian goods coming back into production.

The program, announced last night by Davis and Price Administrator Chester Bowles, provides for the removal of controls on items selling substantially below the ceiling, and on commodities which do not "enter significantly into the cost of living or business costs."

Costume Jewelry, Some Liquor

While no commodities were listed specifically as eligible under the plan, an OPA official said a "very large number" would qualify. Among products mentioned as likely to meet standards were costume jewelry, fur coats, some kinds of liquor and scrap aluminum.

Bowles cautioned, however, that OPA is not planning the suspension of ceilings on "major items in the American economy."

"Firm and steady controls cannot be relaxed on food items, clothing, fuels, other important cost-of-living commodities or rents, where higher costs might result from suspension or termination," the OPA chief said.

Autos And Radios

Among products returning to the market for which controls must be maintained for some time, Bowles listed automobiles, electric refrigerators, vacuum cleaners and radios. He said also that a "firm hand" must be kept on prices for some industrial raw materials which manufacturers "will begin bidding briskly for in the reconversion period just ahead."

"Even in the case of controls removed, close watch will be maintained and ceilings restored if prices get out of line, Bowles stated.

5,350 TONS PULP ARRIVE IN MAINE ON SWEDISH BOAT

JUL 26 1945

PORTLAND, ME., July 25—(AP) The Swedish Motorship Selma Thorden docked today with 5,350 tons of baled wood pulp, from huge stocks piled up in Sweden during the war.

Out of Gothenburg, the Thorden sailed the Baltic Sea and the Danish Sound in the wake of German minesweepers. Sighting of four mines and an occasional British fighter plane were the only reminders of the war.

For two years the Thorden had been tied up in the Baltic and the trip concluded today was her maiden voyage. She was the first vessel to arrive at Portland from a neutral country since the outbreak of war.

Among her six passengers was Ernst Lindhe of Gothenburg, Swedish manufacturers' representative coming to explore Swedish-American postwar trade possibilities, particularly in the textile, plastics, glassware, and metal fields.

Happily reunited were Mrs. Olga Norrberg and her daughters, Greta, 13, and Enga, 8, with husband and father, Christof Norrberg, Brooklyn, N. Y. carpenter who met them at the dock after a separation of six years.

The Norrberg trio, formerly of Rigul, Estonia, had been in Sweden for two years awaiting opportunity to return to America.

Also aboard was Theodore E. Rosenthal, Associated Press Correspondent from Stockholm who will join the AP World Service Staff in New York, and John Anderson, 56, former Proctor, Minn., resident, returning to settle in Worcester, Mass., after 17 years in Sweden.

A 20-year-old Estonian stowaway, a former crew member, was turned over to immigration authorities.

Alaskan Judicial Conference Approved

Washington, July 25 (AP) — The first Alaskan judicial conference in which all four members of the court will participate will be held this year, Delegate Bartlett (D., Alaska), said recently.

Bartlett said Henry B. Chandler, director of the Administrative Office of the United States Courts, has given his consent for the conference and that the Justice Department has also approved.

The time and place for the meeting will be set by the judges.

Data on Cotton Exports In War Period Released

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 24—The Department of Commerce releasing today hitherto confidential cotton export figures, said exports from Pearl Harbor day to the end of last April averaged about 105,000 bales a month. This was only one-fourth of the monthly exports in five years before the war, which averaged 419,000 bales.

Since the liberation of countries occupied by Germany, United States cotton exports have shown a slight increase. Monthly shipment from Aug. 1, 1944, to April 30, 1945, averaged 125,000 bales.

For the last forty-five months 61.9 per cent of cotton exports have been lend-lease shipments. The highest proportion of lend-lease exports was in the "cotton year" 1942-43, when they represented 69.3 per cent of the total. A cotton year begins on Aug. 1 and ends on July 31.

SISTER TO CHRISTEN DESTROYER KENNEDY

QUINCY, Mass., July 25.—(AP) A sleek 2,200-ton destroyer that will bear the name of Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr., heroic eldest son of the former ambassador to Great Britain, was poised on the ways of the Bethlehem Steel company's Quincy shipyard tonight, awaiting its christening tomorrow.

Chosen as sponsor was Miss Jean Kennedy of Hyannisport, Mass., sister of the young lieutenant who was posthumonously awarded the coveted Navy Cross. Lt. Kennedy was reporeed missing a year ago and subsequently was declared dead.

The medal was awarded "for extraordinary heroism and courage in aerial flight as pilot of a United States Liberator bomber on August 12, 1944."

Lt. Kennedy, born in 1915 at Nantasket, Mass., and a graduate of Harvard and the Harvard Law School, he entered the U. S. Naval Reserve October 15, 1941. He had just been promoted to lieutenant before his death.

Besides the Navy Cross, Lt. Kennedy was entitled to the American Defense Service Medal and the European Area campaign medal.

1,482 AILING NAZIS SAIL FOR HOME TODAY

It will be the largest group of ailing Nazis shipped back to Germany so far. Sixty GI's have been detailed to guard the POW's during the voyage.

Wilson Announces Long Range Plan to Electrify Industry

NEW YORK, July 25—(AP) Charles E. Wilson, president of the General Electric Co., announced today a long-range plan designed to increase the pace of mechanized and electrifying American industry and farming after the war.

Winson, former executive vice chairman of the War Production Board, said the plan called for unified action by electric power companies, machinery producers and electrical manufacturers. He listed these three major benefits which he said would accrue:

1.—Put into action, widely, it would facilitate reconversion of industry on a soundly engineered basis—insuring costs which would enable businesses to compete successfully in domestic and export markets.

2.—It would improve peacetime industrial operations and America's living standard by increasing earnings and workers' productive ability.

Help Military Standards

3.—It would help maintain the United States as a potential military and naval power by strengthening productive capacity.

Wilson said the plan would bring to small businesses a sizeable amount of technical know-how from big business since this was a keystone of the program.

"It is one of the happy characteristics of the electric power business," he aded, "that increasing electrification means increased efficiency and productivity, expanding markets for all kinds of capital goods and machinery and a high rate of employment.

"Electric power has been applied to American industry along the lines of least resistanse. The first and most logical customers to be served in modernizing and electrifying the industrial field were naturally the big industries, such as steel, automobiles, chemicals, mining and transportation.

"Their needs could not wait, and it should be noted that as they were electrified their productivity increased, their business multiplied and the income of workers rose to new high levels. These units still represent continuing markets."

20-Year Program

Wilson said the plan, known as "More Power to America," was thought if in terms of five, 10 or perhaps even 20 years and had been endorsed enthusiastically after being tested some 200 times on groups of power company executives, sales engineers and representative machinery manufacturers throughout the country.

"At the same time we have a real obligation to contribute to the building of a peacetime America that will afford our people the best in life," he concluded, "and in so doing protect the nation against the dangers of future aggressors."

OSLO, NORWAY, JULY 25--(AP)--TOR GJESDAL, DIRECTOR OF THE NORWEGIAN INFORMATION BUREAU, SAID TODAY THAT SWEDEN HAD AGREED TO ALLOW THE SHIPMENT OF 1,000 GERMANS DAILY FROM NORWAY TO GERMANY VIA SWEDEN AS A RESULT OF AN ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH TELLING OF THE BREAKDOWN OF THE ORIGINAL NEGOTIATIONS.

THE AP DISPATCH FROM OSLO, WRITTEN EARLY IN JULY ON THE BASIS OF INFORMATION FROM ALLIED MILITARY AUTHORITIES, WAS GIVEN WIDE CIRCULATION IN SWEDEN AND AROUSED CONSIDERABLE COMMENT THERE, HE SAID. A SIMILAR DISPATCH WAS WRITTEN BY LORIMER MEN MOE, CORRESPONDENT FOR THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

SUBSEQUENTLY OTHER NEWS SOURCES IN EFFECT DENIED THE AP ACCOUNT AS PREMATURE AND WITHOUT FACTUAL BASIS. A SIMILAR DISPATCH WAS WRITTEN BY LORIMER MOE, CORRESPONDENT FOR THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR.

IN AN INTERVIEW WITH MOE AND ME, GJESDAL SAID THAT UNDER THE NEW PLAN THE GERMANS WOULD TRAVEL THROUGH SWEDEN TO HALSINGBORG WHERE THEY WOULD BE FERRIED TO DENMARK AND THEN TRANSPORTED TO GERMANY.

GJESDAL SAID THE NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN NORWAY, ALLIED MILITARY AUTHORITIES AND SWEDEN STARTED LAST APRIL, BEFORE GERMANY'S SURRENDER. UNDER THE ORIGINAL PLANS, HE EXPLAINED, SWEDEN AGREED TO BUILD RECEPTION CAMPS TO RECEIVE GERMAN TROOPS AND EVENTUALLY SEND THEM HOME. GJESDAL ADDED THAT AFTER THE REICH'S SURRENDER, THE SWEDES, "APPARENTLY OVERWHELMED" BY THE PROSPECT OF HANDLING THE 300,000 TO 350,000 GERMANS IN NORWAY, MADE NO FURTHER MENTION OF THE PLAN.

NEXT IT WAS PROPOSED TO TRANSPORT 6,000 GERMANS DAILY THROUGH SWEDEN TO TRALLEBORG WHERE THEY COULD BE FERRIED TO SASSNITZ, BUT THIS PLAN FELL THROUGH, GJESDAL SAID, BECAUSE THE GERMANS APPARENTLY HAD DESTROYED OR REMOVED THE FERRIES.

AT THIS POINT AN ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH QUOTED ALLIED MILITARY AUTHORITIES AS ANNOUNCING THAT "NEGOTIATIONS WITH SWEDEN HAVE FALLEN THROUGH." AFTER THAT DISPATCH WAS PUBLISHED THE SWEDISH GOVERNMENT RENEWED NEGOTIATIONS, GJESDAL SAID.

NIGHT LEAD GI TOURISTS

BERN, JULY 25-(AP)-AMERICAN GI'S STARTED A NEW INVASION TODAY--OF NEUTRAL SWITZERLAND--FOR A HOLIDAY WHICH WILL GIVE THIS COUNTRY'S TOURIST BUSINESS ITS FIRST REAL SHOT IN THE ARM SINCE 1938.

THE GROUP ENTERING TODAY NUMBERED 350--VIA BASEL FROM GERMANY AND VIA CHIASSO FROM NORTH ITALY--THE FIRST OF 300,000 EXPECTED HERE WITHIN A YEAR. EACH GI GETS A SEVEN-DAY TOUR.

THE SOLDIERS WON'T HAVE MUCH MONEY, BUT IF THE EXPECTED MAXIMUM NUMBER COME THE TOTAL SPENT WILL BE A BIG HELP TOWARD THE RE-INSTALLATION OF SWITZERLAND'S FAMOUS TOURIST BUSINESS.

EACH SOLDIER IS PAYING $35 FOR THE ALL-INCLUSIVE TRIP, IN ADDITION TO WHATEVER THE ARMY PAYS, AND IS ALLOWED TO SPEND 150 SWISS FRANCS--JUST OVER $30.

THE TROOPS SHOWED PRIMARY INTEREST IN BEER, MILK, WATCHES AND NYLONS.

FRANKFURT-ON-MAIN, JULY 25-(AP)-APPARENTLY IT'S AMERICA AND THE ADVANTAGES OF DEMOCRACY THAT HAND-HOLDING GI'S AND GERMAN MAIDENS HAVE BEEN DISCUSSING SINCE NONFRATERNIZATION REGULATIONS WERE LIFTED LAST WEEK.

PFC JOE LECLERC, 20, OF (105 TREMONT ST.) LOWELL, MASS, SAID "GERMANS ARE GOOD LISTENERS AND WE DON'T HESITATE TO IMPRESS ON THEM WHAT AMERICA AND DEMOCRACY ARE LIKE."

THE BAN, AGREED LECLERC AND A DOZEN FELLOW PARATROOPERS FROM THE CRACK 506TH PARACHUTE INFANTRY REGIMENT, GENERAL EISENHOWER'S HONOR GUARD, WAS A "LOT OF FOOLISHNESS," AND MOST OF THEM SAID THEY FELT THEY WERE MAKING SOME HEADWAY IN TEACHING THE GERMANS "A LESSON OR TWO IN DEMOCRACY."

JUL 26 1945

LT.COL.REDMOND J.CONNOLLY, OF (234 LINDEN BOULEVARD) BROOKLYN, N.Y. PROVOST MARSHAL FOR THE AMERICAN HEADQUARTERS COMMAND, SAID THE FIRST WEEK HAD NOT CHANGED THE ATTITUDE OF THE AVERAGE GI TOWARD THE AVERAGE GERMAN "IN THE SLIGHTEST."

"THEY STILL REGARD GERMANS AS BEATEN ENEMIES AND DON'T CONSIDER THEM BROTHERS BY ANY MEANS," CONNOLLY SAID, ADDING: "THEY ARE BEHAVING LIKE THEY SHOULD IN OCCUPIED COUNTRIES--DECENT BUT FIRM."

HE ADDED THAT THE AMERICANS STILL WERE FORBIDDEN TO GO INTO GERMAN HOMES, AND "AT LEAST TECHNICALLY" WERE NOT SUPPOSED TO EVEN HOLD HANDS WITH THE PRETTY FRAULEINS.

THE MP'S UNDER HIS COMMAND, HOWEVER, HAVE BEEN TURNING THEIR HEADS TACTFULLY ON THE HAND-HOLDING COUNT AND CONNOLLY SAID RELAXATION OF THE BAN ON FRATERNIZATION AND "HELPED SOLDIER MORALE."

"GI'S, GENERALLY, AND EVEN THE CHAPLAIN, ARE HAPPY ABOUT THE WAY THE WHOLE THING IS TURNING OUT," HE SAID.

PFC ROBERT PULLEN, 22, OF HUNTINGTON, W.VA., LIKES IT TOO. "GERMAN GIRLS ARE MORE LIKE AMERICAN GIRLS THAN IN ANY OF THE FOUR COUNTRIES I HAVE BEEN IN," HE SAID.

JUL 26 1945

MAJ.FRANK P.KLADKY, PROTESTANT CHAPLAIN FROM CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA, SAID RELAXATION OF RESTRICTIONS HAD BROUGHT A DEFINITE CHANGE IN THE ATTITUDE OF THE SOLDIERS. "UNDER THE BAN," HE SAID, "MANY OF THE PROTESTED BEING TIED DOWN, BUT NOW FEW OF THEM MENTION THE SUBJECT."

PVT.JACK GRUBBS, 22, OF KNOXVILLE, TENN., HAD ONE SMALL BEEF. "A GAL WILL SPEAK TO YOU ONE NIGHT WHEN SHE'S ALONE," HE SAID. "THEN THE NEXT NIGHT IF SOMEONE'S WITH HER, SHE'LL GIVE YOU THE GO-BYE."

PFC CARMEN PESANTE, 23, OF PITTSBURGH (SWISSVALE DISTRICT) MET ONE GIRL WHO, HE SAID, TOLD HIM THAT SHE DIDN'T BELIEVE HITLER WAS DEAD BUT WAS "HIDING IN THE ALPINES."

SGT.MARIO CELARDO, 11 ORINACO PLACE, STATEN ISLAND, N.Y. SAID HE MET A GIRL WHO "ARGUED THAT HITLER DID LOT OF GOOD IN SOME WAYS BUT FAILED TO STARTING A WAR."

PVT.ZENAS WILLIAMSON, 19, OF WEDOWEE, ALA., REMAINED DOUBTFUL. "THERE ARE STILL LOTS OF NAZIS AROUND," HE SAID, "AND YOU CAN'T TELL THESE GERMANS ANYTHING. THEY'RE TOO DUMB."

CANBERRA,AUSTRALIA,JULY 25 (AP)-THE AUSTRALIAN GOVERNMENT LIKELY WILL CONSIDER SOON THE APPOINTMENT OF ADDITIONAL DIPLOMATIC REPRESENTATIVES TO SOUTH AMERICA, AN AUTHORITATIVE SOURCE SAID TODAY.

THE DIPLOMATS WOULD BE ASSIGNED DIRECT TO VARIOUS GOVERNMENTS SUPPLEMENTING LEWIS MACGREGOR, RECENTLY APPOINTED AUSTRALIAN MINISTER AT LARGE TO SOUTH AMERICA. MACGREGOR FORMERLY WAS DIRECTOR OF THE AUSTRALIAN GENERAL WAR SUPPLIES PROCUREMENT MISSION IN THE UNITED STATES.

EXTENSION OF AUSTRALIAN REPRESENTATION IN SOUTH AMERICA IS EXPECTED TO BE CONSIDERED IN A GENERAL REVIEW OF THE COMMONWEALTH'S DIPLOMATIC SETUP BY ATTORNEY GENERAL HERBERT V.EVATT, WHO WILL MAKE RECOMMENDATIONS TO THE CABINET, IT WAS REPORTED.

THE GOVERNMENT REALIZES THAT ONE MINISTER FOR ALL SOUTH AMERICAN REPUBLICS WOULD BE INADEQUATE. THE FIRST EXCHANGE OF MINISTERS PROBABLY WILL BE WITH CHILE IN VIEW OF THE CHILEAN GOVERNMENT'S APPOINTMENT OF MANUEL BURNER AS CHARGE D'AFFAIRES AT CANBERRA.

APPOINTMENT OF A NEW AUSTRALIAN MINISTER TO WASHINGTON MAY BE NECESSARY BECAUSE OF THE ILL HEALTH OF SIR FREDERIC EGGLESTON WHO NOW HOLDS THAT POSITION.

GUAM, THURSDAY, JULY 26-(AP)-AMERICAN SUPERFORTS STRUCK THREE JAPANESE OIL REFINERIES NEAR TOKYO AT MIDNIGHT LAST NIGHT WITHIN A FEW HOURS AFTER THIRD FLEET CARRIER PLANES AND WARSHIPS POUNDED COASTAL DEFENSES ON THE ENEMY HOMELAND.

BETWEEN 75 AND 100 BIG B-29S HIT THE MITSUBISHI, HAYAMA AND ASAISHI REFINERIES, ALL WITHIN A FEW HUNDRED YARDS OF EACH OTHER, AT KAWASAKI ON TOKYO BAY, ABOUT 10 MILES FROM TOKYO CITY. IT WAS THE SECOND SUPERFORTRESS RAID ON NIPPON IN 36 HOURS.

CARRIER NIGHT ATTACKS (380)
BY JAMES LINDSLEY
WITH THE U.S. 3RD FLEET OFF JAPAN, JULY 25-(AP)-NIGHTFALL BROUGHT NO RELIEF TO THE BOMB-PUMMELED JAPANESE HOMELAND LAST NIGHT; IT DIDN'T EVEN BRING DARKNESS TO LARGE SECTIONS AS CARRIER PLANE FLARES TURNED KURE AND KOBE MILITARY AREAS INTO GREAT PANORAMIC STAGES ON WHICH TASK FORCE 38 CARRIER FLIERS PLANTED THEIR GRIM LOAD OF DEATH AND DESTRUCTION.
AFTER A DAY IN WHICH KURE AND KOBE WERE POUNDED CEASELESSLY BY

AFTER A DAY IN WHICH KURE AND KOBE WERE POUNDED CEASELESSLY BY AMERICAN AND BRITISH CARRIER PLANES, NIGHT FIGHTERS TOOK UP THE ATTACK AFTER DUSK AND MADE CONTINUOUS SWEEPS OVER VITAL ENEMY BASES.
IT WAS THE FIRST ROUND-THE-CLOCK CARRIER ATTACK EVER LAUNCHED BY THE THIRD FLEET.
KURE, SITE OF JAPAN'S LARGEST NAVAL BASE, IS BELIEVED TO BE A HAVEN FOR MUCH OF THE REMAINDER OF THE SEVERELY CRIPPLED ENEMY FLEET.
KOBE IS AN IMPORTANT RAIL CENTER AND THE HOME OF A NUMBER OF INDUSTRIES IMPORTANT TO THE JAPANESE WAR EFFORT.
BOTH CITIES ARE PORTS ON THE NORTHERN COAST OF HONSHU ON THE INLAND SEA.
CARRIER AIRCRAFT RETURNED TO THE ATTACK AT DAWN TODAY. THERE ARE NO REPORTS YET ON RESULTS OF LAST NIGHT'S OR THIS MORNING'S STRIKES, BUT YESTERDAY'S WERE MORE THAN SATISFACTORY TO MANY HIGH RANKING OFFICERS.
YANK FLIERS DAMAGED SIX WARSHIPS--TWO BATTLESHIPS CONVERTED INTO PLANE CARRIERS; A LARGE AIRCRAFT CARRIER AND THREE CRUISERS, AND THE BRITISH DAMAGED AN ESCORT CARRIER. AMERICANS ALSO DESTROYED OR DAMAGED 39 JAPANESE AIRPLANES; THE BRITISH 25.

A28FX
THE SWEEPS WERE THE MOST EXTENSIVE CARRIER ATTACKS YET MADE ON THE JAPANESE HOME ISLANDS, EXTENDING 325 MILES.
MORE THAN 1,200 AMERICAN AND BRITISH AIRCRAFT PARTICIPATED.

THE JAPANESE WERE STUNG FROM THEIR APATHY, OR WHATEVER HAS BEEN KEEPING THEIR PILOTS GROUNDED WHILE AMERICANS REPEATEDLY GAVE THEIR WAR PLANTS AND AIRFIELDS MERCILESS POUNDINGS THE PAST 15 DAYS.
FLIERS REPORTED SKILLED JAPANESE PILOTS FLYING EFFICIENT PLANES MET THEM OVER SOME TARGETS.
AMERICAN PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN, BUT NO FIGURES ON LOSSES HAVE BEEN ANNOUNCED YET.
CARRIER PLANES ALSO ARE STRIKING AT AIRFIELDS, OF WHICH THERE ARE REPORTED TO BE 50 TO 60 IN THE TARGET AREAS. TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT OF THEM ARE LISTED AS "IMPORTANT." THE WHOLE AREA IS HIGHLY DEVELOPED; KOBE HAS A POPULATION OF MORE THAN 1,000,000, AND KURE MORE THAN 300,000.
TODAY'S FIRST TWO STRIKES GOT OFF IN FAVORABLE WEATHER, AND PILOTS SAID THEY DID NOT ANTICIPATE MUCH TROUBLE IN FINDING THEIR TARGETS. AS THE THIRD STRIKE GOT UNDER WAY, HOWEVER, THE WEATHER CLOSED IN, LIMITING VISIBILITY.
AS A RESULT, THIS STRIKE WAS INSTRUCTED TO HIT "TARGETS OF OPPORTUNITY."

MANILA, JULY 25-(AP)-THE PENT-UP WRATH OF MORE THAN 350 OKINAWA-BASED AMERICAN PLANES THUNDERED ON SHANGHAI SUNDAY (CORRECT) AFTER FOUR DAYS OF BOMBLESS BAD WEATHER, GEN. MACARTHUR ANNOUNCED TODAY.
HIS COMMUNIQUE ALSO DESCRIBED DISPERSED AIR STRIKES ON THE SAME DAY FROM KOREA TO THE DUTCH EAST INDIES AND MALAYA.
BEFORE DAWN ON SUNDAY, LIBERATORS CAUGHT AN EIGHT-SHIP JAPANESE CONVOY ON ITS WAY TO SHANGHAI AND BROKE IT UP. THIS WAS FOLLOWED BY THE BIG DAYLIGHT SWEEP BY 5TH AND 7TH AIR FORCE BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS WHICH GOT THROUGH THE FIRST HOLE IN THE WEATHER SINCE JULY 18 TO BLAST CRATERS IN THREE AIRDROMES, SHOOT UP SHANGHAI'S TEEMING WATERFRONT, AND FLAY JAPANESE SHIPPING IN THE WHANGPOO RIVER.
MITCHELL BOMBERS ATTACKING FROM MEDIUM ALTITUDE, AND THUNDER-

BOLTS AND MUSTANGS STREAKING IN JUST OVER THE MUDDY WATER, GOT THE LARGEST SHIPPING HAUL IN RECENT WEEKS.
THEY LISTED A DESTROYER, A 3,000 TON FREIGHTER-TRANSPORT AND A SMALLER FREIGHTER AS DEFINITELY SUNK; A DESTROYER ESCORT, TWO SUB-CHASERS, A 10,000 TON FREIGHTER-TRANSPORT AND SIX FREIGHTER-TRANSPORTS PROBABLY SUNK, AND MANY SMALLER VESSELS DAMAGED.
THREE LARGE FIRES AND SEVERAL SMALLER ONES BLAZED AT KIANGWAN AIRDROME, JUST NORTH OF THE CITY, AFTER FLIGHTS OF LIBERATORS PASSED OVER.
INVADER ATTACK-BOMBERS ROARED IN LOW OVER TACHANG AND TINGHAI AIRPORTS TO DROP FRAGMENTATION BOMBS ON BUILDINGS AND DISPERSAL AREAS. AN ESTIMATED 45 JAPANESE PLANES ON THE GROUND WERE EITHER DESTROYED OR DAMAGED AT THE THREE FIELDS.
TOKYO CLAIMED SEVEN OF THE ATTACKERS WERE SHOT DOWN BY ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE. THERE WAS NO AERIAL INTERCEPTION.
(MEANWHILE, IT WAS REPORTED FROM GUAM THAT NEARLY 100 MUSTANGS BASED ON IWO JIMA YESTERDAY SHOT UP AIRFIELDS AND RAILWAYS IN THE NAGOYA AREA ON JAPAN AND ENCOUNTERED ONLY LIGHT ENEMY OPPOSITION.)
FEAF PATROL BOMBERS SUNDAY RETURNED THROUGH BAD WEATHER TO SOUTHERN HONSHU TO HIT MIHO AND YONAGO AIRDROMES. THEY SET BIG FIRES WHICH LIGHTED THE ENTIRE AREA.
SEARCH PLANES BOMBED THE AIRDROME NEAR THE BIG FERRY PORT OF FUSAN IN KOREA, HIT AN AMOY MUNITIONS DUMP ON THE SOUTH CHINA COAST, AND SANK A RIVER BOAT NEAR SAIGON IN FRENCH INDO-CHINA.

A12FX
BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS ATTACKED TANEGA AND AMAMI ISLAND IN THE NORTHERN RYUKYUS.
A 7TH FLEET SCOUT BOMBER SHOT DOWN A JAPANESE PLANE AND DESTROYED ANOTHER ON THE GROUND NEAR KOTA BAHRU IN MALAYA, WHILE A NAVY PATROL BOMBER SANK A FREIGHTER AND LUGGER OFF THE WEST BORNEO COAST.
AUSTRALIAN LIBERATORS IN A 3,000-MILE ROUNDTRIP, BOMBED SAMARANG SHIPYARDS 150 MILES WEST OF SOERABAJA ON JAVA, WHILE OTHER AUSSIE HEAVY BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS STRUCK AIR BASES ON THAT ISLAND AND IN THE CELEBES GROUP.

A53FX (NEW GUINEA)
(500)
BY SPENCER DAVIS
MANILA, JULY 25-(AP)-ON AN ALMOST FORGOTTEN BATTLEFRONT FAR TO THE SOUTH OF OKINAWA AND THE PHILIPPINES, AUSTRALIAN TROOPS ARE WAGING SAVAGE WARFARE AGAINST A JAPANESE ENEMY TRAPPED, BUT SURPRISINGLY WELL FED AND FULL OF FIGHT.

MEN ARE STILL DYING ON DARK, BROODING BOUGAINVILLE ISLAND IN THE SOLOMONS AND IN THE UNTAMED SAGO SWAMPS OF THE SEPIK RIVER IN BRITISH NEW GUINEA, JUST NORTH OF AUSTRALIA.

THE WAR HAS SWEPT NORTH, AND THE WORLD WAITS IMPATIENTLY FOR THE INVASION OF JAPAN ITSELF, BUT THE BY-PASSED NIPPONESE GARRISONS OF BOUGAINVILLE AND NEW GUINEA FIGHT ON. THE AUSTRALIANS HAVE KILLED 12,000 OF THEM IN THE LAST EIGHT MONTHS.

IN THE SAME PERIOD, UNITED STATES MARINE AND NEW ZEALAND DAUNTLESS DIVEBOMBERS AND CORSAIR FIGHTERS, TOGETHER WITH AUSTRALIAN KITTYHAWKS, BEAUFIGHTERS AND LIBERATORS, HAVE FLOWN 27,000 SORTIES AGAINST JAPANESE CONCENTRATIONS IN THE AREA.

THE JAPANESE PLAN OF CONQUEST CALLED FOR BOUGAINVILLE TO BE THE KEY JUMP-OFF BASE FOR INVASION OF NEW ZEALAND AND AUSTRALIA BY WAY OF THE SOLOMONS. THEY POURED HUGE STOCKPILES OF WAR SUPPLIES INTO THE BUIN AREA BEFORE ALLIED PLANES, SUBMARINES AND WARSHIPS COULD SEVER COMMUNICATION LINES.

ALLIED LANDINGS ON NEW BRITAIN TRAPPED 50,000 MEN ON THE GAZELLE PENINSULA AT THE ISLAND'S NORTHERN TIP. THE MIGHTY ENEMY BASE AT RABAUL WAS NEUTRALIZED. JAPANESE ON BOUGAINVILLE ISLAND TO THE EAST WERE HOPELESSLY BY-PASSED.

THE JOB OF ROOTING OUT THE FOE ON BOUGAINVILLE WAS TURNED OVER TO LT.GEN.S.G.SAVIGE'S SECOND AUSTRALIAN CORPS LAST FALL AND THE FIRST ATTACK WAS MOUNTED NOVEMBER 23. THE DIGGERS NOW HAVE KNIFED INTO THE GARDEN AREAS OF KAHILI, VITAL TO ENEMY SUBSISTENCE, AND HAVE PUNCHED THROUGH JUNGLE AND SWAMP TO WITHIN 18 MILES OF NEARBY BUIN AT BOUGAINVILLE'S SOUTHERN TIP.

AN ESTIMATED 17,000 JAPANESE REMAIN UNDER WILY LT.GEN.KANDA, COMMANDING THE REMNANTS OF THE 17TH JAPANESE ARMY. THEY STILL HAVE HEAVY 155 ARTILLERY, FOUR-INCH DEFENSE GUNS AND AN ABUNDANCE OF MILLIMETER ANTI-AIRCRAFT DUAL PURPOSE GUNS THAT CAN BE TURNED AGAINST TANKS WITH DEVASTATING EFFECT.

JUL 26 1945

A54FX

SAVIGE SAID RECENTLY THAT KANDA IS "AS GOOD AS ANY GENERAL THE ALLIES HAVE OPPOSED--SHREWD AND ABLE." KANDA SENT AN ENTIRE COMPANY TO KILL SAVIGE BUT IT WAS WIPED OUT. CORSAIRS HAVE DESTROYED KANDA'S HEADQUARTERS THREE TIMES BUT EACH TIME HE HAS TURNED UP. HE ONCE PERSONALLY LED AN ATTACK IN WHICH THE JAPANESE LEFT 325 DEAD IN A SPACE 35 BY 100 FEET.

EVER SINCE THE AUSTRALIANS MOVED SOUTH FROM EMPRESS AUGUSTA BAY IT HAS BEEN OBVIOUS THE JAPANESE INTENDED TO HOLD THE GARDEN FOOD AREAS OF SOUTHERN BOUGAINVILLE AT ALL COSTS. THEY HAVE FOUGHT FIERCELY ACROSS EVERY RIVER. AUSTRALIAN COMMANDERS REPORTED 6,000 JAPANESE HAVE DIED IN THIS BITTER WITHDRAWAL, MAKING NO ALLOWANCE FOR SICK OR WOUNDED. THE CASUALTIES RUN 20 TO 1 OVER AUSTRALIAN LOSSES.

NOW KANDA MUST MAKE HIS LAST STAND. HE CANNOT GO FURTHER SOUTH, BEYOND THE PLANTATION AREAS, BECAUSE THERE IS NO NATURAL FOOD.

(240) SAN FRANCISCO, JULY 25-(AP)-DETAILS OF THE EXTRAORDINARY SECURITY PRECAUTIONS TAKEN HERE DURING THE RECENT UNITED NATIONS CONFERENCE FOR INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION WERE DISCLOSED TODAY.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS, RADAR STATIONS, PATROL AND FIGHTER PLANES, HUGE SEARCHLIGHTS AND HUNDREDS OF MILITARY POLICEMEN MADE A SOLID PROTECTIVE RING AROUND SAN FRANCISCO DURING THE INTERNATIONAL MEETING.

BIG NAVY PLANES PATROLLED THOUSANDS OF SQUARE MILES OF WATER OFF THE GOLDEN GATE AND SOLDIERS WERE ATOP DOWNTOWN BUILDINGS GUARDING 300,000,000 CANDLEPOWER SEARCHLIGHTS WHICH WERE READY TO SWEEP THE SKY SHOULD ANY STRANGE PLANE APPEAR.

MACHINE GUNS WERE ON MANY ROOFS, AND THERE WERE BATTERIES OF EIGHT 90-MILLIMETER GUNS IN NEARBY PARKS. FIFTEEN RADAR STATIONS WERE SPOTTED AT KEY POINTS.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN WAS GUARDED CLOSELY, OF COURSE, BUT THE HEIGHTH OF SECURITY PROBABLY WAS REACHED BY ONE MILITARY POLICE MESS SERGEANT WHOSE SOLE TASK WAS TO PURCHASE LIVE CHICKENS TO SUPPLY THE ONLY MEAT USED BY THE RUSSIAN DELEGATION.

THE SERGEANT WENT TO A DIFFERENT MARKET EACH DAY, PURCHASING THE CHICKENS WITHOUT ADVANCE NOTICE.

THE ARMED DEFENSE RING WAS KNOWN AS THE SAN FRANCISCO PROVISIONAL ANTI-AIRCRAFT ARTILLERY GROUP, ESTABLISHED BY BRIG.GEN.PAUL W. RUTLEDGE ON PLANS DEVELOPED BY COL.W.B.ARENS, COMMANDER OF THE PROVISIONAL GROUP.

GOOSE BAY, LABRADOR, JULY 22-(DELAYED)-THE GREATER PART OF THE REDEPLOYMENT OF AMERICAN AIR FORCES FROM EUROPE THROUGH THIS BUSY NORTH AMERICAN BASE IS TENTATIVELY SCHEDULED FOR COMPLETION BY LABOR DAY.

MEN ATTACHED TO THE UNITED STATES ARMY AIR BASE AT GOOSE BAY SAID HEAVY STREAMS OF WESTBOUND COMBAT AND TRANSPORT AIRCRAFT FROM THE UNITED KINGDOM, WHICH BEGAN WITH THE DEFEAT OF GERMANY, PROBABLY WOULD CONTINUE THROUGHOUT THE SUMMER.

THEY SAID THE PACIFICWARD FLOW OF EIGHTH AIR FORCE PLANES HAD DWINDLED ALMOST TO A TRICKLE, HOWEVER, MORE THAN 1,200 PLANES OF THAT COMMAND HAVING PASSED THROUGH THIS FIELD OR NEWFOUNDLAND'S TWIN BASES -- GANDER AND HARMON FIELDS -- EN ROUTE TO THE UNITED STATES.

NINTH AIR FORCE PLANES NOW ARE STARTING TO FLY HOME. THEIR TRANSFER IS EXPECTED TO BE COMPLETED BY SEPTEMBER. IN A SINGLE DAY RECENTLY 135 AMERICAN PLANES CHECKED THROUGH HERE FROM ENGLAND, MOST OF THEM HEADED FOR BRADLEY FIELD AT WINDSOR OAKS, CONN., DESTINED FOR REASSIGNMENT TO THE PACIFIC.

FOUR-MOTORED AIRCRAFT FLY HERE DIRECTLY FROM THE BRITISH ISLES, WHILE SMALLER PLANES -- INCLUDING THE ROBUST TWIN-ENGINED C-47 TRANSPORTS, SOMETIMES MAKE THE TRIP IN EASY HOPS VIA ICELAND AND GREENLAND.

MOST FIGHTER PLANES IN ENGLAND ARE BEING DISMANTLED AND CRATED FOR SHIPMENT HOME.

THIS NORTHERNMOST LARGE AMERICAN BASE--CARVED OUT OF A GREAT FORESTED WILDERNESS AND STILL WITHOUT TELPHONE OR TELEGRAPH COMTACT WITH CIVILIZATION -- ALSO DISPATCHES PLANES TO LONELY ARMY OUTPOSTS ON BAFFIN ISLAND AND WITHIN THE ARCTIC CIRCLE.

EVEN DURING POOR FLYING WEATHER LAST FEBRUARY AND MARCH THIS BASE HANDLED MORE THAN 500 PLANES A MONTH. CANADIAN AND BRITISH FLIERS ALSO ARE STATIONED HERE, ALONG WITH MORE THAN 100 ARMY TRANSPORT COMMAND AND OTHER GROUND PERSONNEL.

IT IS A SCENIC SPOT WITH INVIGORATING, IF RUGGED CLIMATE, BUT AS PVT.ERNEST PISANO, 42 ABERDEEN STREET, NEW YORK CITY SAYS: "WE WILL ALL BE GLAD WHEN WE CAN GO BACK HOME."

(ADVANCE)...WASHINGTON, JULY 25-(AP)-REDUCTIONS IN WAR CONTRACTS TOTALLED $16,300,000,000 IN THE FIRST SIX MONTHS OF 1945 AND AFFECTED NEARLY 2,500 PLANTS, THE WAR PRODUCTION BOARD REPORTED TONIGHT.

INCLUDED IN THE TOTAL ARE ACTUAL CUTS IN PRODUCTION AS WELL AS SO-CALLED PAPER CUT-BACKS, WHICH MERELY REDUCE PROJECTED PRODUCTION GOALS.

IN JUNE, WAR CONTRACT CUT-BACKS REPORTED HAD A DOLLAR VALUE OF $3,478,591,000, A SHARP DROP FROM MAY'S $7,668,472,000, THE WPB REPORT SAID.

DESPITE THE REDUCTION IN THE DOLLAR VOLUME, WPB SAID THE IMPACT WAS PROPORTIONATELY GREATER BECAUSE MOST OF THE JUNE CUT-BACKS AFFECTED ACTUAL PRODUCTION.

WHEREAS 31 PER CENT OF THE CONTRACTS CUT BACK IN APRIL AND 14 PER CENT IN MAY WERE "PAPER," ONLY FIVE PER CENT OF THOSE IN JUNE FELL INTO THIS CATEGORY. THE OTHERS REPRESENTED ACTUAL REDUCTIONS IN PRODUCTION.

MUNITIONS PRODUCTION IN JUNE TOTALLED $4,283,000,000, SEVEN PER CENT BELOW MAY, BUT WPB ATTRIBUTED MORE THAN HALF OF THIS DECLINE TO THE FACT THERE WAS ONE LESS WORKING DAY IN JUNE.

THE CHANGE FROM MARCH, THE LAST MONTH OF FULL TWO-FRONT WAR PRODUCTION, WAS 12 PER CENT. TAKING INTO CONSIDERATION THE SHORTER MONTH, HOWEVER, THE DECLINE WAS ONLY ABOUT NINE PER CENT.

PRESENT SCHEDULES CALL FOR ACCELERATION OF THE DOWNWARD PRODUCTION TREND DURING THE JULY-AUGUST-SEPTEMBER QUARTER, FOLLOWED BY A SLOWING DOWN IN THE RATE OF DROP. BY DECEMBER, THE OUTPUT OF MUNITIONS IS SCHEDULED TO BE 32 PER CENT BELOW MARCH.

JUNE PRODUCTION FELL ABOUT TWO PER CENT SHORT OF SCHEDULE, BUT WPB SAID IN A STATEMENT THAT THIS DOES NOT "REPRESENT ANY CAUSE FOR ALARM." MOST OF THE SHORTAGES, IN FACT, WERE IN PROGRAMS WHICH WILL BE TRIMMED MUCH FURTHER.

ON THE OTHER HAND, MOST OF THE PROGRAMS SCHEDULED TO INCREASE DID MOVE UP.

JUNE MUNITIONS PRODUCTION BY MAJOR CATEGORIES COMPARED WITH MAY:

AIRCRAFT, DOWN 10 PER CENT; SHIPS, INCLUDING MAINTENANCE AND REPAIR, DOWN 5 PER CENT; GUNS AND FIRE CONTROL, DOWN 13 PER CENT; AMMUNITION AND BOMBS, DOWN 16 PER CENT; COMBAT AND MOTOR VEHICLES, DOWN 8 PER CENT; COMMUNICATIONS AND ELECTRONIC EQUIPMENT, DOWN 5 PER CENT; OTHER EQUIPMENT AND SUPPLIES, UP 1 PER CENT.

War Premier Steps Out After Heavy Defeat at Polls

By The Associated Press

London, July 26.—Winston Churchill resigned tonight as Prime Minister in the wake of a voting tabulation which showed the strongly socialistic Labor Party had won a 2 to 1 landslide over Churchill's Conservatives in the July 5 election.

Wartime Premier Resigns as Vote Landslide Buries Faction

LONDON, July 26—(AP) Britain's Labor party, advocating a socialist program for national reconstruction, stunningly defeated Prime Minister Churchill's Conservative regime today, and King George VI tonight commissioned Labor Leader Clement R. Attlee to form a new government.

Churchill, doughty war leader from Britain's darkest hour to final victory over Germany, had presented his resignation to the King at Buckingham palace just a few minutes earlier.

Capture 417 Seats

With votes in 627 of Britain's 640 constituencies counted, the Laborites and Allied parties had captured 417 seats, against 210 for the Conservatives and their allies. Labor candidates had won 390 contests, Conservatives only 195. Results of the remaining 13 contests will not be made known until early in August.

Attlee told a cheering, tumultuous mass meeting of his followers tonight that "the first thing we have to do is to finish the war with Japan."

"We are embarked," he cried, "on a great adventure of democracy, freedom and social justice."

Simultaneously the outgoing Churchill, in a farewell statement to the nation as premier, declared that victory over Japan may come "much quicker than we have hitherto been entitled to expect."

"The decision of the British people has been recorded in the votes counted today," he said. "I have therefore laid down the charge which was placed upon me in darker times.

"I regret that I have not been permitted to finish the work against Japan. For this, however, all plans and preparations have been made, and the results may come much quicker than we have hitherto been entitled to expect.

Expresses Gratitude

"It only remains," he concluded, "for me to express to the British people for whom I have acted in these perilous years my profound gratitude for the unflinching, unswerving support which they have given me during my task, and for the many expressions of kindness which they have shown towards their servants."

Prof. Harold Laski, chairman of the Labor party's executive committee, declared the Labor party victory would make possible "full friendship with the Soviet Union."

Churchill's Conservative National government was swept out of power by a more than 2-to-1 vote. The Laborites won a clear-cut majority of the new 640-member House of Commons.

Ballots cast in the July 5 general election and counted today gave Laborites the right to form the first one-party government since 1931.

At 8:30 p.m. tonight, with the count completed in 616 constituencies, Labor party candidates and those of supporting parties had captured 408 seats, against 208 for the Conservatives and Liberals. The Laborites had won 381 seats.

Party triumph in the first general election Britain has had in ten years, was commissioned by King George VI to form a new government.

The amazing sweep exceeded even the most optimistic forecasts of the Laborites, who captured a clearcut majority control of the new 640-member House of Commons and the fight to form Britain's first one-party government since 1931.

At 8.30 P. M. tonight, with the count completed in 616 constituencies, Labor Party candidates and those of supporting parties had captured 408 seats against 208 for the Conservatives and Liberals. The Laborites alone had won 381 seats.

In the popular vote, Labor had 11,567,996 to the Conservative Party's 8,656,966.

Churchill, his face grave, drove to Buckingham Palace to present his resignation. He summoned a brief smile for the crowd which greeted him outside the palace gates, and gave to them his last V-sign as their premier.

Mrs. Attlee Drives New Prime Minister's Car

Churchill left Buckingham Palace at 7.25 P. M. and five minutes later Attlee arrived to receive the King's commission to form a new government. Mrs. Attlee drove the new Prime Minister's motor car.

Attlee faces twin tasks of leading Britain's part of the war on Japan and reconstructing this war-torn nation under a program that calls for nationalization of much of its industry.

To the world at large, this election meant no change in Britain's policies for carrying through the war against Japan and building the peace of Europe. These were not at issue.

But it did swing Britain definitely left domestically, and it swept from the world stage and from the councils of the Big Three the ebullient Churchill, Britain's great leader during the European war.

Into his place stepped small, bald, soft-spoken Attlee, leader of the Labor Party.

Escapes Personal Defeat

Churchill, who had been Prime Minister since May 10, 1940, escaped personal defeat, being returned from his constituency of Woodford to a Commons seat from which he will lead the opposition when the new Parliament convenes August 8. His Foreign Secretary, Anthony Eden, No. 2 man in the Conservative Party, also survived, winning in Warwick and Leamington.

The British Press Association called labor's victory "the most astonishing and significant of the century." There were many efforts to explain the upset, one of the most prominent being that Britons were tired of wartime restrictions and eager for a change.

Afternoon newspapers bannered "Britain swings to the left" and called editorially for acceptance of the people's verdict.

Attlee served until June 15 as Deputy Prime Minister in Churchill's wartime coalition government. He said the victory "will enable us to implement the policy of the Socialist Party."

"This is the first time in the history of this country that Labor has ever had a cleancut majority," he commented.

Ratio of 11 to 8

The 1935 general election—last until that held July 5, whose results were counted today — gave labor 154 seats to 387 for the Conservatives. In the 1935 popular vote, the Laborites received 8,350,000 to the Conservatives' 10,496,000. In today's count, the Labor party was leading the Conservatives at a ratio of nearly 11 to 8.

Attlee, who was returned to his seat by a 6,700 vote majority in London's Limehouse district, spoke out tonight for "co-operation with other nations, particularly our great allies, the United States of America and the Union of the Soviet Socialist Republics."

"These clever, clever people of the Conservative central office, with Mr. Churchill and his political agents, have proved much too clever," the 62-year-old Laborite said. "The country, however, has been wise and sound in its outlook.

"The business of the Labor government will be bold, determined, sound and sensible to carry through their program. We have a combination of boldness and good sense."

The Labor program advocates nationalization of basic industries such as railroads, steel and coal mining, public ownership of the Bank of England and ultimate nationalization of the land.

No Halfway Trend

There was no halfway trend in the election pendulum. Many Conservatives had counted upon the Liberal Party, which stands midway between the two major parties, splitting the Labor vote. But the Liberal Party returned few members and several leaders were defeated. Among them were Sir William Beveridge, father of the "cradle to the grave" security plan, and Sir Archibald Sinclair, Air Minister, who lost by six votes to a Conservative.

Big personalities in British politics, mainly conservatives, tumbled from office. Several key ministers who had been with Churchill throughout the war were counted out early.

The Prime Minister's son and son-in-law both were defeated.

Major Randolph Churchill was beaten 33,053 to 29,129 by Squadron Leader S. Segal, Labor, in the Preston district, where Captain Julian Amery, son of the Secretary of State for India, L. S. Amery, also was beaten by a Labor candidate. The elder Amery also lost his seat.

Duncan Sandys, red-haired son-in-law of Churchill and Minister of Works and Housing in the present government, lost to his Labor opponent by about 2,000 votes.

Churchill himself won by 27,688 to 10,488 in his Woodford district.

Eden, second ranking Conservative, was re-elected in his Warwick district with a majority of 17,634 over his Labor opponent, Donald Chesworth. Eden polled 37,110 votes.

MacMillan is Loser

Harold MacMillan, Secretary of State for Air, was defeated at Stockton-on-Tees by a Labor opponent.

Brendan Bracken, former Minister of Information and present First Lord of the Admiralty, was ousted in Paddington district of West London by a vote of 16,630 to 10,093. Bracken has long been regarded as one of Churchill's closest advisers and confidants.

The question of who will be chosen Eden's successor as Foreign Secretary remained undetermined, but speculation has centered around three names in this order—Ernest Bevin, Hugh Dalton and Herbert Morrison.

All three served in the coalition cabinet of Churchill, Bevin as Labor Minister, Dalton as president of the Board of Trade and Morrison as Home Secretary.

Conjecture on New Cabinet

How Labor Party leaders will line up in the Attlee cabinet is pure guess work, but it appeared certain that places would have to be found for them in the new government. Some Liberals also may be given cabinet posts.

Two women may enter the government. Miss Ellen Wilkinson, acid-tongued former parliamentary secretary for the Home Office, may be headed for the Ministry of Education, or the Ministry of Health.

Dr. Edith Summerskill also is held to be cabinet material.

A. V. Alexander is expected generally to return as First Lord of the Admiralty, a post he held during the war.

Sir Stafford Cripps, who headed a futile mission to India to talk independence, and Philip Noel-Baker are mentioned for Secretary of State for India. Noel-Baker also is discussed for Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. Sir Stafford was Minister of Aircraft Production in the coalition. He might become Home Secretary, although some observers think the chances of Arthur Greenwood are better.

Arthur Henderson, whose father was Foreign Secretary under Ramsey MacDonald, held the inside track as future Secretary of War.

Little Chance for Laski

No prognosticator thought much of the chances of Professor Harold Laski getting into the government. Laski is chairman of the Labor Party Executive Committee and some of his campaign utterances embarrassed Attlee considerably as Attlee prepared to go to the Potsdam conference with Churchill.

Many other Labor Party leaders retained their seats.

Arthur Greenwood, deputy leader of the Labor Party since 1942, was elected by a majority of almost 6,000 over his Conservative opponent.

Aneurin Bevan, a young Labor leader and one of Churchill's most caustic critics on the floor, won easily. Bevan's wife, who goes by her maiden name of Jennie Lee, was elected by a 19,000 majority.

Tom Smith, Laborite miners leader, overwhelmed his Conservative rival by 28,000 to 5,000.

Tom Driberg, London newspaperman, was re-elected by Labor.

Hore-Belisha Out

Army Sergeant Ed Willis, Labor, defeated the veteran Sir A. G. Erskine Hill, Conservative, by 500 votes. Hill is a prominent lawyer in Edinburgh.

Ministers now in Churchill's "caretaker" government who were ousted included Sir Donald Somervell, Home Secretary; Richard Law, Minister of Education; Leslie Hore-Belisha, Independent, Minister of National Insurance and Minister of War in 1937 to 1940. Hore-Belisha bowed to Michael Foot, Labor, who was a columnist for the London Daily Herald, England's leading Labor paper.

Captain A. S. Cunningham-Reid, Independent, who has figured in many acrimonious debates on the floor of Commons, was defeated.

Lady Middleton, Laborite, was elected in Lady Astor's old constituency at Plymouth. Lady Astor did not seek re-election. Lady Apsley, war widow and British legion executive who sought re-election as a conservative, was beaten.

W. W. Astor, Conservative son of Lady Astor, was defeated by 5,353 votes in Fulham district by a Labor candidate.

Leading Liberal Fails

Sir Percy Harris, a leading Liberal, was defeated by a Labor opponent, as was Sir Ronald Cross, Conservative and former Austrian High Commissioner.

Both Florence Horsbrugh, parliamentary secretary to the ministry of Health in the coalition government, and Dingle Foot, former parliamentary secretary to the Ministry of Economic Warfare, lost in Dundee, Scotland, districts.

Sir Richard Acland, leader of the Commonwealth Party, was defeated.

Ralph Assheton, chairman of the Conservative Party, was swept out by the Labor landslide, defeated by a housewife candidate sponsored by the Laborites.

Ernest Brown, Minister of Aircraft Production in the caretaker government, fell under a flood of labor votes.

A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty in the wartime government and leader of the Co-operative Society movement, was among the top rank Labor leaders returned.

Win by Slim Majorities

Oliver Lyttelton, Conservative, president of the Board of Trade, retained his seat by a narrow margin.

Two Conservative cabinet members returned by slim majorities were R. A. Butler, Minister of Labor, and H. U. Willink, Minister of Health.

Earl Winterton, one of the Conservative Party's best vote getters, was returned for his 40th year in Commons from Horsham.

Group Captain Max Aitken, Canadian-born son of Lord Beaverbrook, won a seat as a Conservative in one of the heavily bombed districts of central London.

Colonel Clifton Brown, Conservative speaker of the last House of Commons, was re-elected.

Vernon Bartlett, Independent, author and widely known broadcaster on foreign affairs, was elected at Bridgewater, Somerset, by 2,000 majority.

Oliver Stanley, Conservative colonial secretary, was re-elected at Bristol.

Captain Ian Fraser, Conservative, blind soldier and chairman of St. Sunstan's Institution for the Blind, was returned by 5,000 majority.

smile for the crowd which greeted him outside the palace gates, and gave to them his last V-sign as their premier.

War Aims Unchanged

To the world at large, this election meant no change in Britain's policies for carrying through the war against Japan and building the peace of Europe. These were not at issue.

But it did swing Britain definitely left domestically, and it swept from the world stage and from the councils of the Big Three the ebullient Churchill — Britain's great leader during the European war.

Into his place stepped small, bald, soft-spoken Attlee, leader of the Labor party and the apparent premier-designate.

Churchill escaped personal defeat, being returned from his constituency of Woodford to a Commons seat from which he will lead the opposition when the new parliament convenes Aug. 8. His foreign secretary, Anthony Eden, No. 2 man in the Conservative party, also survived, winning in Warwick and Leamington.

But there were numerous casualties among Churchill's interim "caretaker" government as Labor's landslide rolled in from ballots cast July 5 in Britain's first general election since 1935. Down to defeat went cabinet ministers Brendan Bracken, L. S. Amery, Sir. James Grigg, Duncan Sandys, Sir Donald Somervill, Leslie Hore-Belisha and Richard Law.

Back into their seats—and likely into the new cabinet—swept the parade of Labor's top men headed by Attlee, Ernest Bevan, Herbert Morrison, Hugh Dalton, Sir Stafford Cripps and A. V. Alexander. They were trailed by a host of lesser lights and newcomers.

It was nearly all Labor this amazing day, with the expected show of strength in the industrial areas plus deep inroads in the traditionally conservative country districts.

There was no sign of any Liberal revival despite their 306 candidates Liberals who had hoped to gain the balance of power in case of a close contest between the Conservatives and Laborites, actually saw such of their stars as Sir Archibald Sinclair, Sir William Beveridge, Sir Percy Harris and Lady Violet Bonham Carter go down in the landslide.

The first statement from Labor's standard-bearer was this exultant plege from Attlee: "This is the first time in the history of this country that Labor ever had a clear-cut majority. It will enable us to implement the policy of the Socialist party."

Parley is Question

An immediate question was that of British participation in the Potsdam Big Three conference, which was suspended temporarily yesterday to allow Churchill, Attlee and Eden to return to Britain to get the election results.

It was assumed that Attlee would return to Potsdam to take up the deliberations where he and his opposition colleagues left off. He likely will be accompanied by Bevin, who is expected to be foreign secretary in the new cabinet, but whether Churchill—the voice of Britain in the past Big Three parleys—and Eden would accompany Attlee was uncertain.

A dispatch from Potsdam said the impression prevailed there that Churchill would decline to return.

The big scale defeat of Churchill, who to the world represented the spirit of Britain and fighting democracy during England's fight for life and its resurgence with the Allies to victory over Germany, was a surprise at home as well as abroad.

The British Press association termed Labor's victory the "most astonishing and significant of the century."

Britain's "man-in-the-pub"—however he may have voted—hoisted a beer and shed a sentimental tear at the departure from power of "good old Winnie," but added confidently that "we'll get along all right."

ATTLEE PUTS JAP KNOCKOUT FIRST

JUL 27 1945

Peace Abroad, Security at Home Outlined as Labor's Stand.

LONDON, July 26—(AP) Clement Attlee, victorious leader of the Labor Party, told a mass meeting tonight that "the first thing we have to do is to finish the war with Japan" and declared that "we must see that our fighting men get all the support that they need."

Addressing a cheering throng of followers, the successor of Winston Churchill said that he had been summoned to Buckingham Palace to receive instructions to form a new government. A short time earlier Churchill had tendered the resignation of his defeated "caretaker" administration.

Favors Cooperation

Attlee spoke out for "cooperation with other nations, particularly our great allies, the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics."

The British electorate, he declared, realized that the Labor party was the only party which could lead the British to peace abroad and social security at home.

"We never swerve from our contentions that we need a new world order to prevent war," he said, adding that the party's economic policy would endeavor to raise the standards of life everywhere.

Highly gratified with the results of the general election which gave the Laborites a smashing victory over the Conservatives, the 62-year-old, Oxford-educated Attlee said:

"I and my colleagues fully realize the magnitude of the task which faces us.

"This is the first time in the history of the country that Labor has ever had a clear majority, and it will enable us to implement the policy laid down by the Socialist Party."

Acclaimed throughout the country as Britain's man of the hour, Attlee stands now on the threshold of No. 10 Downing street, the official residence of prime ministers, after having fought in politics for 26 years for the cause of Socialism.

Attlee Easy Winner

Attlee himself easily won re-election from his bomb-battered Limehouse district in London's East End, defeating Lt. Alfred Woodward, a Conservative, 8,396 to 1,618.

When he went to Labor Party headquarters Attlee was greeted by strains of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and surrounded by cheering Laborites and photographers.

Describing the results of the election as "very remarkable and gratifying," he said that the voting "shows that the electorate will respond to a clear definite policy based on principles and on the application of those principles to the needs of the day."

He added: "I believe the people have made up their minds as to the kind of policy they want, and they have confidence labor can deliver the goods."

Later at a press conference Attlee explained that the Labor party went into the election with a "carefully thought out program based on very definite principles."

"These clever, clever people of the Conservative central office with Mr. Churchill and his political agents have proved much too clever," he said. "The country, however, has been wise and sound in its outlook."

Foreign Policy Set

He said the Labor party's foreign policy had been set in the days when Arthur Henderson was foreign secretary.

The policy was made clear to the electors, he said.

"I think the results show that the electors understand that policy and they realize that labor has the will and the men to carry it out. The remarkable thing about these electoral returns is the heavy vote throughout the country.

"Not only areas where labor has been strong previously, but rural districts, urban districts, manufacturing areas, residential areas, every kind of constituence has shown a great increase in labor's vote.

"Labor has been fortunate in having a very fine lot of candidates, including a great many young servicemen who will bring into the House of Commons the spirit of a new age.

"We are facing a new era and I believe that the voting at this election has shown that the people of Britain are facing that new era with the same courage as they faced the long years of war.

"I am confident that British democracy can make a tremendous contribution to the building up of world peace and prosperity on firm foundations.

"We have no illusions as to the difficult tasks which face this country and the world in the next few years, but I am convinced that we can carry the thing through to success to get into a world in which we shall not again be faced with periodical world wars or periodical world slumps.

"I believe we are on the eve of a great advance of the human race.

"That will mean not only the work which must be done here in reconstruction, but above all cooperation with other nations and particularly with our great allies the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Republics."

For a New World Order

LONDON, July 26 (AP)—"We never will swerve from our contentions that we need a new world order to prevent war," Mr. Attlee declared.

Acclaimed throughout the country as Britain's man of the hour, Mr. Attlee stands now on the threshold of 10 Downing Street after having fought in politics for twenty-six years for the cause of socialism. Mr. Attlee himself easily won re-election from his bomb-battered Limehouse district in London's East End, defeating Lieut. Alfred Woodward, a Conservative, 8,396 to 1,618. He, his wife and 18-year-old daughter listened to returns there.

"Confidence in Labor"

He said: "I believe the people have made up their minds as to the kind of policy they want and they have confidence Labor can deliver the goods."

Later, at a press conference, Mr. Attlee explained that the Labor party went into the election with a "carefully thought-out program based on very definite principles. These clever, clever people of the Conservative central office with Mr. Churchill and his political agents have proved much too clever. The country, however, has been wise and sound in its outlook."

He said the Labor party's foreign policy had been set in the days when Arthur Henderson was Foreign Secretary.

"The business of the Labor Government will be bold, determined, sound and sensible to carry through their program," he said. "We have a combination of boldness and good sense." The Labor program advocates nationalization of basic industries such as railroads, steel and coal mining, public ownership of the Bank of England and ultimate nationalization of the land.

Cornered By Crowd, Attlee Makes 'Speech'

London, July 26 (AP)—The new Prime Minister, Clement Attlee, might have escaped the crowds jamming the exits of Westminster Hall, where he addressed a party rally tonight—but he forgot where he had parked his car.

Whisked through the throngs by his escort he reached the lines of parked automobiles and started an anxious search for his own. Then the hand-shaking, back-thumping crowd was upon him, jostling him and his guard almost off their feet.

Attlee located the car and stepped upon the running board.

"Speech," someone yelled. Others cried "quiet," and a hush settled as the hundreds who had missed the speech inside the hall waited while the nation's new chief cleared his throat, lifted his head and said:

"Wil you folks please let my daughters through?"

Attlee, Socialist, Oxford Graduate, Is Colorless, Cautious, Thorough

JUL 27 1945

Studied Poverty of London while a Young Lawyer; Began Public Career as Stepney Mayor in 1919

London, July 26. — Cautious, colorless Clement R. Attlee, who as leader of the Labor Party emerged today as the next Prime Minister of Great Britain, smiled when he learned that he had been re-elected to Parliament from his bomb-battered Limehouse district.

Sixty-two-year-old Attlee, his wife and 18-year-old daughter listened to returns in the London East End, where he defeated his Conservative opponent, Lieutenant Alfred Woodward, 8,396 to 1,618.

When he went to Labor Party headquarters he was greeted by strains of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Labor Party officials told him of the tremendous gains and he seemed moved as he scanned new returns.

"No, I am not surprised," he said. "I have ceased to be surprised at anything these days."

Attlee has been overshadowed throughout the war by Prime Minister Churchill, whom he served as Deputy Prime Minister in the coalition government that carried Britain from the darkest days of defeat to triumph over Germany.

So dry are his speeches that his secretary once remarked that he "wouldn't walk five yards to hear him."

Friends and foes alike describe Attlee as sane, solid but not brilliant. He is a middle-of-the-road politician, steering on an even keel between the extremities of his own party. A friend gave this opinion of Attlee:

"If I had Attlee by my side in the government I should never expect a daring innovation from him, but I should always expect to see his job completely performed, with no loose ends left behind."

Attlee had been attending the Big Three Conference in Potsdam beside Churchill, to assure that there would be no break in the continuity of Great Britain's foreign policy.

In Politics 26 Years

Attlee has fought in politics for 26 years for the cause of Socialism in England and today was on the threshold of No. 10 Downing Street, residence of British Prime Ministers.

If he steps into Churchill's shoes he will direct one of the most sweeping changes of modern times.

His party advocates a "Socialist Commonwealth of Great Britain," with nationalization of all its basic industries, public ownership of the Bank of England and ultimately nationalization of the land.

Attlee lacks the vividness of Churchill, but there is no doubt about his integrity and his fighting spirit.

As Deputy Prime Minister in the wartime coalition government, he directed Britain's whole fighting machine during Churchill's frequent absences from the country.

Likened to Truman

In a measure, Attlee after Churchill would be to Great Britain what President Truman is to the United States after President Roosevelt.

Both men believe in committee action. Both are unpretentious, yet abounding in courage and determination. President Truman is perhaps more of a politician; Attlee more of an academician.

The great difference between the two leaders, however, is Attlee's firmly anchored Socialism. He has been a member of the Fabian Society since 1908 and one of the strongest pillars in the Labor Party in its rise to political domination.

In contrast, Mr. Truman was in Mr. Roosevelt's own party and pledged himself to continuance of the Rooseveltian policies.

Attlee started his government career in 1919 when he became mayor of Stepney, and two years afterwards Labor M. P. for Limehouse and Parliamentary Private Secretary to the Leader of the Opposition, Ramsay MacDonald.

Re-elected in 1923

He was re-elected to Parliament at the general election of 1923, and became Undersecretary of State for War in the first Labor government. The Labor government was defeated in 1924, and for the next five years he was in the opposition.

In this period he had many varied activities, including two years in India and Burma as a member of the Indian Statutory Commission.

In the second Labor government in 1929, Attlee was made Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, being particularly concerned with the work of the Imperial Conference, agricultural legislation, and the Economic Advisory Council. In 1932 he became Postmaster General.

Although the Labor Party was heavily defeated in the general election of 1932, he retained his seat and became deputy leader of the Parliamentary Labor Party. After the general election of October, 1935, he was elected leader of the party, a position that he still holds. He was the first leader of the Opposition ever to receive a salary, this position being officially recognized and a salary assigned to it in 1937.

Since May, 1940, when the National Government was formed, Attlee has held a number of posts in the Churchill War Cabinet. He was first appointed Lord Privy Seal and Deputy Leader of the House of Commons.

Succeeded Viscount Cranborne

In February, 1942, he gave up both posts to succeed Viscount Cranborne as Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs. In September, 1943, he left the Dominion office to become Lord President of the Council.

Attlee spent his early life as one of a large family in well-to-do English middle class surroundings.

He went to Haileybury College and later to Oxford University, where he took his degree with honors in modern history.

He was called to the bar in 1905 and practiced up to 1909. In the meantime, he had gone to work in Haileybury House, a settlement in the east end of London, where he had his first contact with working-class life and saw what poverty meant.

He lived in East End until the first World War. He joined the South Lancashire Regiment and served with it in Gallipoli and Mesopotamia.

Attlee was severely wounded in the attempt to relieve Kut and was invalided to England. After a period with the Tank Corps he returned to the infantry and served in France. He finished his service in 1919 with the rank of major.

Mrs. Attlee Shuns Limelight, Always Drives Car for Husband

LONDON, July 26—(AP) The slim, grey-haired wife of Clement Attlee is apprehensive over the prospect of running the premier's residence at 10 Downing street.

"Don't talk about it," she said. "It's been bad enough running my house at Stanmore during the war. I have a housekeeper now but I haven't had her long and I find cooking, as well as everything else these days, takes a lot of doing."

Violet Helen Attlee is little known, even at Labor party headquarters. She shuns the limelight, works hard in her home and as a commandant of the Red Cross, which she first joined during the last war.

Drives for Husband

She always drives her husband's car, sitting outside knitting while he goes in for appointments.

During the counting of election returns, she had with her her second daughter Felicity, nearly 20, who will graduate from a nursery training school in another year. Brown-haired and hatless, Felicity looks very much like her mother. After the morning count, they slipped away from the crowds at Transport house to meet the youngest daughter, Alison, 15, who attends school in Salisbury. The other daughter, Janet, 22, a section officer in the WAAFS, got leave to join the family party for lunch, and a tea at the Paddington hotel.

The Attlee's only son, Martin, joined the merchant navy 10 days ago.

"I don't know where he is," said Mrs. Attlee, "and I suppose I won't hear from him until he hits a port."

The wife of the new prime minister-designate should well understand the troubles of British women.

"I was a wartime girl of the last war," she said. "I joined the Red Cross in 1915 and went on working until I got married in 1922. Since then I've been pretty busy with four children and a house to run and lately many engagements with my husband. It's been a hard war for all of us and often I don't get to bed until the small hours of the morning—so much to do."

She also is sympathetic with the first priority problem of the new government—housing. She has lived in the same house for the last 13 years and hoped to have it "done up" before warm weather, but put it off.

Bombs Wrecked Home

"Then the buzz bombs came," she said. "It's almost falling down now and it's not been repainted in years."

That's one problem she won't find at 10 Downing street which a policeman said is "all in order and ready for occupancy."

Although today was sunny, Mrs. Attlee firmly clasped a large black crooked umbrella.

"I can't afford to spoil my hat. It's an old one but a nice one," she said. Her hat was a scarlet boater which suits her grey hair and pink complexion.

"I can't afford new clothes these days with the coupon situation as it is and three daughters," she laughed.

She would not admit the possibility of going to the Big Three conference with her husband.

"Goodness, no," she asserted. "I'll be too busy. Besides, I am not a great traveler."

Mrs. Attlee has never visited the United States.

Who May Sit in Labor Cabinet

Twenty Veterans Are Looked Upon as Likely Candidates for Government Posts.

London, July 26 (A. P.).—At least twenty leaders of the Labor party gained Cabinet stature today in their overwhelming victories in the general election. Foremost, of course, was the quiet, determined head of the party, Clement R. Attlee, who will—presumably—succeed Winston Churchill as Prime Minister.

The next name on many tongues is that of Ernest Bevin, rough-hewn Minister of Labor in the wartime Coalition Cabinet. He will probably succeed Anthony Eden as Foreign Secretary if his health permits. Bevin had the gargantuan task of marshaling the country's man power during the war in Europe.

Hugh Dalton, president of the Board of Trade (Minister of Commerce) in the Coalition Cabinet, also has been mentioned for the Foreign Office but it seemed more likely that he would return to his old post.

He also has been mentioned for Chancellor of the Exchequer. The consensus was, however, that the two-fisted Cockney, Herbert Morrison, would move into that important Treasury post. Morrison was Minister of Home Security and was Home Secretary until the coalition was dissolved.

Two Women May Enter Cabinet.

How Labor party leaders will line up in the Attlee Cabinet is pure guess work, but it appeared certain that places would have to be found for them. Some Liberals also may get posts in the new Cabinet.

Likewise two women may enter the Government. Miss Ellen Wilkinson, acid-tongued former Parliamentary Secretary for the Home Office, may be headed for the Ministry of Education or the Ministry of Health. Dr. Edith Summerskill also is considered Cabinet material.

A. V. Alexander is generally expected to return as First Lord of the Admiralty, the post he held during the war.

Sir Stafford Cripps, who headed a futile mission to India to talk independence, and Philip Noel-Baker are mentioned for Secretary of State for India. Sir Stafford was Minister of Aircraft Production under the coalition. He may become Home Secretary, although some observers think the chances of Arthur Greenwood are better.

Arthur Henderson, son of Ramsay MacDonald's Foreign Secretary, held the inside track for the post of Secretary for War.

No prognosticator thought much of the chances of Prof. Harold Laski's getting into the Government. Laski is chairman of the Labor party executive committee and some of his campaign utterances embarrassed Attlee considerably, as Attlee prepared to go to the Potsdam conference with Churchill.

Great Figures Defeated.

On the other hand great personalities of British politics, mainly the Conservatives, were tumbled to defeat.

Prime Minister Churchill was re-elected to a seat in Parliament, but several key ministers who had been with him throughout the war were counted out.

The Prime Minister's son and son-in-law were both defeated. Major Randolph Churchill was beaten 33,053 to 29,129 by Squadron Leader S. Segal, Laborite, in the Preston district, where Capt. Julian Amery, son of the Secretary of State for India, L. S. Amery, also was beaten by a Labor candidate. The elder Amery also lost his seat in Parliament. Duncan Sandys, red-haired son-in-law of Churchill and Minister of Works and Housing in the present Government, lost out to his Laborite opponent by about 2,000 votes.

Alexander Hancock, the Woodford farmer who popped up belatedly to oppose Churchill on a platform of one hour's work a day, polled 10,488 votes to Churchill's 27,688.

Eden Is Re-elected.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, the second ranking Conservative, was re-elected in his Warwick district with a majority of 17,634 over his Laborite opponent, Donald Chesworth. Eden polled 37,110 votes

The first ministerial casualty was Harold MacMillan, Secretary of State for Air, who was defeated at Stockton-on-Tees by a Laborite.

Brendan Bracken, the former Minister of Information and present First Lord of the Admiralty, was ousted in Paddington, in the West End of London, by a vote of 16,630 to 10,093. Bracken has long been regarded as one of Churchill's closest advisers and confidants.

Sir James Grigg, the War Minister, was defeated, as was also Gerald Spencer, the Secretary to the Department of Overseas Trade.

Geoffry Lloyd, wartime Petroleum Director, who supervised the laying of oil pipelines under the English Channel, was likewise beaten. He was Minister of Information in the current caretaker Government.

Sir William Beveridge, Liberal, author of the famous Social Security plan bearing his name, went down in defeat also.

Other Ministers Ousted.

Other ministers ousted included Sir Donald Somervell, the Home Secretary; Richard Law, the Minister of Education; Leslie Hore-Belisha, Independent, the Minister of National Insurance and Minister of War in 1937 to 1940. Hore-Belisha bowed to Michael Foot, Laborite, who was a columnist for the London Daily Herald, England's leading labor paper.

Capt. A. S. Cunningham-Reid, Independent, who has figured in many acrimonious debates on the floor of Commons, was defeated.

Lady Middleton, Laborite, was elected in Lady Astor's old constituency at Plymouth. Lady Astor did not seek re-election.

Lady Apsley, war-widow and British Legion, executive who sought re-election as a Conservative, was beaten.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, leader of the Liberal party and Minister for Air in the Coalition Government, lost by six votes to a Conservative.

Sir Percy Harris, a leading Liberal, was defeated by a Laborite, as was Sir Ronald Cross, Conservative and former Australian High Commissioner.

Both Florence Horsbrugh, parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Health in the coalition government, and Dingle Foot, former Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Economic Warfare, lost in Dundee.

BEVIN EXPECTED TO JOIN CABINET IN FOREIGN POST

LONDON, July 26—(AP) Clement Attlee will be able to surround himself with a strong, experienced cabinet when he becomes prime minister, and most observers favor Ernest Bevin to become his foreign secretary.

Many of the Labor party leaders who loom the largest for ministerial appointments served in the wartime coalition government that waged the war against Germany.

Attlee himself was deputy prime minister, and many times directed the British war machine when Churchill was away from the country.

Bevin, generally favored to succeed Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, was minister of labor and marshalled the country's full resources in man and womanpower during the European phase of the war.

Most political experts slated Herbert Morrison, tough old party man from the East End, to become chancellor of the Exchequer. He was minister of home security and home secretary in the coalition.

Others Are Mentioned

Other experienced labor leaders and the posts for which they are prominently mentioned are:

A. V. Alexander, first lord of the Admiralty, which he held under the coalition.

Hugh Dalton, president of the board of trade, his coalition post. He also is mentioned as possible foreign secretary or chancellor of the exchequer.

Sir Stafford Cripps, secretary of state for India. He was coalition minister of aircraft production.

Arthur Greenwood, home secretary.

Arthur Henderson, secretary of war.

There also was speculation that two women might be named to the cabinet. One is Miss Ellen Wilkinson, former parliamentary secretary for the home office, who is mentioned for the ministry of education, or ministry of health. Dr. Edith Summerskill also may be slated for a cabinet position.

Morrison, who was chairman of the Labor party campaign committee, tonight declared voters had balloted on the real issues of the campaign, rather than making the election "a plebiscite for and against the prime minister.

"Mr. Churchill went hopelessly astray from the beginning," he said. "It is in some respects sad that a man who led the country so ably through the European war should have led his party on such a low level during the general election. He joined in the stunts. He cultivated the red herrings."

Six London Journalists Win Seats in Parliament

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, July 26—Four Fleet Street newspapermen won Labor party seats in Parliament in today's voting, and two other journalists were re-elected.

The newcomers were Michael Foot, Daily Herald columnist and one-time protégé of Lord Beaverbrook; Maurice Webb of Lord Beaverbrook's Sunday Express; Haydn Davies of The Star and Larry Alligan of The Daily Mail.

Re-elected were Independent Vernon Bartlett of The News Chronicle and Laborite Tom Driberg of Sunday Reynolds News.

2 Dead Men Elected to Commons

LONDON, July 26 (AP).—Two dead men were elected to the House of Commons in returns counted today. Both were Conservatives. They were Leslie Pym and Sir Edward Campbell, both of whom died July 17, twelve days after the ballots were cast. Both elections will be accepted formally in Parliament and then the seats will be declared vacant and new elections will be ordered.

Scores Of Wartime Leaders Swept Out Of Posts By Vote

JAMESON

London, July 26 (AP)—Today's Socialist landslide swept out of office scores of British politicians, Cabinet members and wartime executives whose names had become well known to Americans.

The country's two best-known ambassadors—Winston Churchill and Anthony Eden—were re-elected, but they were stripped of the vast power and prestige which had been theirs since before Dunkerque.

Instead of being heads of government when Parliament reconvenes next month, they will be just two more members of the minority party, with Churchill the leader of the opposition. Eden is a career diplomat who has been in politics all his adult life.

Shock After Shock

Clement Attlee, titular head of the Labor party, who was re-elected by a big majority from the Limehouse district of London, will succeed Churchill as Prime Minister.

With some of the constituencies still to be heard from, at least 27 of Churchill's ministerial and Cabinet appointees had been defeated.

From the very start of the delayed count of ballots cast on July 5 a strong swing toward socialism was clear. Heads fell rapidly among the Conservatives. Shock followed shock as the day wore on.

Brendan Bracken, First Lord of the Admiralty and one of Churchill's closest advisers, lost to General Sir Mason MacFarlane, Labor, by 6,000 votes in a West London district. Air Minister Harold MacMillan lost by about 9,000 votes, and Sir James Grigg, Minister of War, ran 4,000 behind his Labor opponent at Cardiff.

"Big Five" Ride In

Labor's "big five" rode in side by side as Herbert Morrison, Home Secretary in the War Cabinet, and Arthur Greenwood, deputy Labor leader, joined Attlee, Bevin and Dalton in the victory ranks.

Laborites swept the big cities, winning at least 41 of the 62 seats in London, compared with 22 in the last election.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal party leader and Secretary for Air in the coalition government, was nosed out by the Conservative candidate. Most other Liberal candidates were beaten badly, among them Air Vice Marshal Bennett, who was head of the RAF's famous Pathfinder force.

Outside of the Prime Minister himself, the Churchill family did not fare so well. Major Randolph Churchill, his son, was beaten at Preston, and Duncan Sandys, his red-haired son-in-law who was Minister of Works and Housing in the present Government, was routed in a Blitzed London district where housing is a prime issue.

10,000 Votes Against Churchill

The Prime Minister was returned by a 17,000 majority, but his opponent, Alexander Hancock, Woodford farmer who entered the race at the last minute, surprised veteran observers by polling more than 10,000 votes. Eden was re-elected by a 17,600 majority.

Geoffrey Lloyd, Minister of Information, was defeated at Birmingham, which he had held as a Conservative since 1931.

The Conservatives also lost another ministerial seat at industrial Birmingham, where L. S. Amery, Secretary for India, was beaten by Paul Shurner, Labor, by 5,634 votes. Amery had held this seat since 1911. Amery's son, Capt. Julian Amery, also was defeated by a Labor candidate.

Other Cabinet ministers and prominent personalities who were ousted included Sir Donald Somervell, Home Secretary; Richard K. Law, Minister of Education; Leslie Hore-Belisha, Minister of War from 1937 to 1940; Capt. A. S. Cunningham-Reid, Ernest Brown, Minister of Aircraft Production, and Sir William Beveridge, who was author of the famous social security plan bearing his name.

Foot Wins Seat

Hore-Belisha was beaten by a London newspaper columnist, Michael Foot.

Ralph Assheton, chairman of the Conservative party, lost to a woman Laborite in Rushcliffe and the party's vice chairman, Col. Harold Mitchell, also was routed.

Both R. A. Butler, Minister of Labor in the "caretaker" Cabinet, and R. S. Hudson, Minister of Agriculture, are in again, as is Sir Maxwell Fyffe, solicitor general, and Colonel Clifton-Brown, Conservative speaker of the House.

Ten New Seats Won By Women

London, July 26 (AP)—Women won at least ten new seats in Parliament today, and party leaders gave them part of the credit for pointing the election into a Labor landslide.

Of the record field of 83 women candidates for Commons, 23 had been elected, 57 defeated, and three were in races in constituences not yet reported.

Twenty one of the women M.P.'s are Laborite. One, Viscountess Davidson, is a Conservative, and another—Miss Megan Lloyd George—is Liberal. Mrs. Barbara Gould, wife of a newspaper man, will be Common's youngest member at the age of 33.

Housing A Major Factor

Party leaders, who had feared the girls might be swayed by the personal popularity of Prime Minister Churchill, theorized that the turn toward Labor might have resulted from women's impatience at the difficult housing situation under the old Government.

They admitted the "doubtful element" in the election had been the feminine vote.

Among the new women Laborite M.P.'s were:

Mrs. E. M. Braddock, who defeated Colonel Sir John Shute by 655 votes to become the first woman member in history from Liverpool; Miss Alice Bacon, who won in heretofore strongly Conservative Leeds by 8,400, and Mrs. Lucy Middleton, victorious in Lady Astor's old stronghold of Plymouth.

LABOR LAST TOOK POWER IN 1929

Ramsey MacDonald was Named Premier; Lost out in 1931

London, July 26—(AP)—The Labor Party last formed the government in 1929 under the late Ramsay MacDonald, and held power until 1931, when it was forced to go to the people on the gold standard issue.

Following that election, it was forced to lean heavily on the Liberal Party section of the government coalition, and in 1935, Britain's last general election until July 5, Stanley Baldwin led the Conservatives into power.

In one of the most acrimonious campaigns in Britain's history, the Labor Party pledged itself in this election to support a program of national socialization of heavy industry, transportation, mines and the Bank of England.

The first thing Clement Attlee and his party probably will attempt to do when they take over the government will be nationalization of these enterprises, including the iron and steel industry, and all forms of inland transport.

"When monopoly gets into the hands of a few men, then the only safe monopoly is a monopoly of the community," Attlee has declared.

He has promised political liberty for India "if they can achieve it for themselves," and he has declared for the closest possible relations with the United States and Russia.

There has been little outward difference of opinion between the Labor and Conservative parties on foreign policy, as shown by Attlee's willingness to accompany Churchill to Potsdam. The Laborites did challenge Britain's position in Greece.

CHURCHILL WAR ACTS NOT HIT, SAYS PRESS

LONDON, July 26 (AP)—The British press, admitting its own amazement at labor's smashing election victory, hastened today to give the world assurance that the vote was not a condemnation of Churchill's war leadership, and that the change in Government would not hinder prosecution of the war against Japan.

Other comment ranged from gloves-off criticism of the Conservative party's election tactics to cautious reminders to the victorious Laborites that the proof of their ability in Government would lie in performance. Labor papers made proud claims that the new Government would score "a magnificent success."

The Conservative Times of London said editorially: "British history affords no such example of reversal of national leadership on the morrow of a crowning victory," then added "it will be the mission of those whom Mr. Attlee calls to make up his Government to prove that confidence has not been misplaced."

The Daily Herald, chief Labor paper, stated "there is not the slightest doubt that gratitude to Mr. Churchill as war leader, admiration for his genius and reverence for his courage is shared by every party and every social class."

The Daily Telegraph declared "the decision certainly does not indicate a weakening of our resolve to fight the war through and maintain Allied unity."

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express exclaimed that "the watching world stands amazed," but pledged it would not indulge in "captious criticism of the new Government."

The Glasgow Herald lamented the "loss" of Churchill and Eden in world councils and said it was up to Labor party chieftains "to prove themselves their equals."

Londoners Approve Attlee Victory, but Regret Blow to Churchill

London, July 26 (AP)—The general reaction of London's man-in-the-pub to the election returns today was approval of the Labor victory, but regret at the blow to Prime Minister Churchill.

"Well, old Winnie is out, and that's a shame that is," summed up the expressions of many. "But we'll get along all right."

A tall man in a black derby said Churchill, whose oratory and two-fingered "V" sign were a whiplash and symbol of the British war effort, "should have just put on his hat and walked out on V-E Day."

"He'd done his job well, and could have gotten out gracefully," the tall man commented.

A pale barmaid came up to draw another pint of bitter for a fat man on the other side of the room who was loudly celebrating the Labor Party victory.

"We showed the blasted Tories," he said.

"Yes, you showed them," retorted the barmaid. "After poor Mr. Churchill took us all through the war, you showed him, too."

"Too bad about old Winnie, of course," the fat man rejoined. "But he couldn't have whipped Hitler alone, you know. It took a little help from the rest of us, and all that, and he had other parties in his war cabinet."

When the mid-afternoon closing hour came, the barmaid said:

"Come along now. Got to close up you know, and all this argument is doing no good to anybody. It makes no difference who won. We'll get along like we always have."

But another worker added: "Poor old Winnie. I bet he could stand a double scotch right now."

"a new chapter opens in the life of Britain."

The commentator attributed the victory to "war-time movements of population" and the fact that "about 7,000,000 people came of voting age."

Russia Recalls Laborites Urged Soviet Friendship

Moscow Lays Victory to New Voters and War Movements

LONDON, July 26 (AP).—The Moscow radio, in the first Russian comment on the British Labor party victory, observed tonight that the party last May called for a "consolidation of relations of friendship with Russia and issued a warning against anti-Soviet propaganda."

Commentator Mikhail Mikhailov said the party's program is "based on its old tradition in international affairs and solid definite principles in home policy" and added

Text Of Churchill's Final Statement

London, July 26 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill made this farewell statement today to the British people:

"The decision of the British people has been recorded in the votes counted today. I have therefore laid down the charge which was placed upon me in darker times.

"I regret that I have not been permitted to finish the work against Japan. For this, however, all plans and preparations have been made, and the results may come much quicker than we have hitherto been entitled to expect. Immense responsibilities abroad and at home fall upon the new Government, and we must all hope that they will be successful in bearing them.

"It only remains for me to express to the British people for whom I have acted in these perilous years my profound gratitude for the unflinching, unswerving support which they have given me during my task, and for the many expressions of kindness which they have shown toward their servants."

One-Hour's-Work-a-Day Candidate Beaten

London, July 26—(AP)—In his personal election victory, Winston Churchill defeated Alexander Hancock, a Woodford farmer, who popped up belatedly to run on a platform of one hour's work a day.

Hancock, who polled 10,488 votes to Churchill's 27,688, said he thought he had "scored a great success with a revolutionary, practical proposition."

Mrs. Churchill went to Woodford to hear her husband counted in.

"It will be my husband's duty and pleasure to serve you again in Parliament," Mrs. Churchill said to a crowd at the Town Council office. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mary.

LABOR IN 48 LONDON SEATS

Gains 20 in Parliament to Lead Conservatives by 37 in City

London, July 26—(AP)—The Labor and Conservative parties each had nearly the same number of seats from London constituencies in the last House of Commons, but today, with full returns for the 62 London boroughs reported, Labor had 48 seats while the Conservatives had only 11.

In the old Parliament the Conservatives held 31 seats from London, Labor 28, Liberals 1 and Independents 2.

LONDON MARKET AFFECTED

Some Shares Drop as Much as $1 After Election Report

London, July 26—(AP)—Defeat of the Churchill government and Labor landslide at the polls had an immediate effect on the stock exchange today with some shares dropping as much as five shillings (one dollar).

Industrials and home rails were particularly sensitive. The Labor Party had advocated nationalization of heavy industry.

Declines also appeared among leading tobacco and radio shares.

Communist Hails Victory, Pledges Party's Support

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, July 26—Harry Pollitt, general secretary of the Communist party, which seated two members in the new Parliament, said of the Labor party's victory today:

"It gives the labor movement its greatest opportunity to write new and glorious pages of British history. The verdict of the people is unmistakable. There must be no pulling of punches to see that what they voted for they shall receive. The Communist party pledges its full support."

Temporary Delay Looms For 'Big Three' Sessions

LONDON, July 26.—(AP) Labor's victory in Britain's general election threatened tonight to disrupt at least temporarily the tri-power conference in Potsdam, and to leave many of Europe's problems up in the air. SINCLETON

The landslide underscored sharply the leftist trend now apparent throughout Europe and there was expectation that the ultimate effect of the election would be to bring Russia and Britain closer together on some issues, such as economic pressure on Spain to force the downfall of Gen. Francisco Franco.

Prof. Harold Laski, a leader of the Labor party, said that the victory would make possible "full friendship with the Soviet Union" and that the new government would be in a position to do "full justice" to Spain.

May Hit Greece

There also was speculation the new government would withdraw British support of the extreme rightwing elements in the government of Greece.

Heretofore Winston Churchill and his foreign secretary, Anthony Eden, have personally directed Britain's foreign policy and there was a question tonight whether they would be called upon to lend their experience and counsel to the new government.

In view of the acrimony which marked the election there was no indication that Churchill would accept an invitation into the government if one were extended.

However, Eden said in answer to a question that he would return to the Potsdam conference if he were asked and would continue to do his best to help.

Clement Attlee, leader of the Labor party and former deputy prime minister in Churchill's wartime coalition government, has attended the Big Three conference as a "friend and advisor" of Churchill.

This fact should prove a valuable aid in continuance of the negotiations at Potsdam, but at least temporary delay in the resumption of the Big Three meetings may be forced by Attlee's immediate task of forming a government and preparing a program of reconstruction in Britain—one of the Labor party's prime objectives.

JUL 27 1945

some of the conference delegations flabbergasted. One conference official said "big things have happened so suddenly we haven't had time to digest them."

President Truman's press secretary, Charles G. Ross, asked to comment on the election, said at a press conference "we have no comment on that at the moment."

Whether there would be an announcement later tonight was not known.

VOTE NEWS STIRS POTSDAM PARLEY

Many Questions Raised by Delegations on Issues Left Undone

By The Associated Press

Potsdam, July 26.—News of the British Labor Party's election triumph produced the political sensation of the year among delegations of the three great Allied Powers in Potsdam today.

Defeat of Prime Minister Churchill's government apparently marks the second break in the original "Big Three" and leaves Premier Stalin as the only member of that triumvirate.

The first break was the death April 12 of President Roosevelt, whose place was filled by President Truman.

Clement R. Attlee has been attending the Potsdam conference with Churchill and thus is fully informed on the discussions.

The fact that Attlee's party received a Parliamentary majority with which to form a Socialist type government for the first time since the 1920's raised these questoins here:

Who will share with Attlee the responsibility for directing Britain's foreign affairs?

How soon can the chiefs of the new government return to Potsdam to conclude the deliberations on which the Big Three have already spent nine days of heavy labor?

How many of Britain's commitments as made by Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden from Tehran through Yalta to Potsdam will be shouldered by the Laborite who sat in here as an "observer?"

The first impression here this afternoon was that Attlee would extend Churchill the courtesy of an invitation to return to Potsdam as a member of his delegation. But it was only a guess and few appeared to believe that Churchill would accept, in view of the British voters' verdict.

There was no authoritative information at once available to clarify the question as to how soon Attlee himself might be able to come back, but in most quarters it was believed that this would be within two or three days at most or the conference recess would become a formal adjournment.

Not Great Campaign Issue

Veteran diplomatic observers pointed out that Britain's foreign policy was not the great campaign issue. They expressed belief that Attlee would not sharply readjust Britain's aims abroad.

What the Kremlin wants the world to know of its opinion of Britain's political shakeup may be expected to be presented ultimately in Moscow newspapers.

Previous comment in these organs spoke of the need for the emergency of what were called "democratic" elements in British political life as opposed to "reactionaries."

It was expected that the British election would have an electric effect on left-wing political coalitions in liberated Europe from the Low Countries to the Mediterranean.

For the Americans the basic fact of Potsdam has undergone no change. The Americans' biggest objective in the world remains the defeat of the Japanese empire.

The extent of the British participation in the climax of the Japanese war was outlined many months ago, and obviously will be carried out regardless of the country's political change.

Truman, Stalin Are Silent

POTSDAM, July 26.—(AP) President Truman and Premier Stalin withheld comment tonight on the British election which removed Winston Churchill as their partner in the Big Three.

The presumption was that plans were being made for continuance of the tri-power conferences here with Clement R. Attlee, Churchill's successor as prime minister, as the British representative.

Attlee has attended the conferences as an "observer" and has had full opportunity to get acquainted with Stalin and Truman, upon whom he previously called at the White House.

The 62-year-old Laborite was expected here to continue the foreign policies laid down by Churchill's government in connection with the Big Three discussions.

The fact that today's U. S.-British-Chinese surrender ultimatum to Japan was released after the defeat of Churchill indicated that whatever regime was succeeding him had already subscribed to the three-power statement.

INDIAN LEADERS SEE LITTLE AID FROM LABORITES

BOMBAY, July 26—(AP) The general view here tonight on the British Labor party victory was that the new government, like the old, would do little toward advancing independence for India.

During the campaign a somewhat bitter comment has been that whatever British government is in power it will seek to preserve the empire. Dadyabhai Vallabhai Patel, Bombay businessman and brother of Vallabhai Patel of the congress working committee, said: "I don't think it will make any difference to us."

Indian journalists said their experience indicated that no matter which government was in power it meant no change in the attitude of Britain toward India.

PARIS, July 26—(AP) The Labor party victory in the British elections was greeted with a surprised enthusiasm in left-wing French political circles.

Leftists had expected labor gains but were surprised by the margin of victory. The general feeling seemed to be that the new labor government would improve French-British relations.

ATHENS, July 26—(AP) Greek Royalists and Conservatives voiced disappointment while Leftists and Communists rejoiced tonight over the sweeping Labor party victory in England.

Leftists and Communists said they were confident a change would occur soon in the Greek government, with Britain less actively influential in Greek domestic affairs.

British Result Deeply Felt in Other Nations

Franco Press Had Forecast Labor Loss; Italian and Greek Leftists Rejoice

MADRID, July 26 (AP).—It is doubtful whether news of the smashing Labor victory in Great Britain was more of a surprise in any country outside the United Kingdom than in Spain, where the controlled press consistently had predicted a Conservative victory. Generalissimo Francisco Franco, who met with the Cabinet early tonight, apparently had expected a Conservative victory.

There were reports that the success of the Labor party might inspire Franco to make another shake-up in his Cabinet with a real effort to please Prince Juan, exiled heir to the Spanish throne. In a speech July 17 Franco said he was preparing for a return to the monarchy, although he made no direct reference to Prince Juan.

Spanish Republicans Cheer

MEXICO CITY, July 26 (AP)—The large Spanish Republican colony rejoiced today at the Labor party's victory in England.

Alvaro de Albornoz, president of the Spanish liberation junta, said "the defeat of Churchill, who supported Franco in Spain, brings great satisfaction to all the Spanish Republicans. It means that chances for restoration of the republic in Spain are greatly improved."

duced among mankind."

"I find that 76 is not an age at which a man wishes to worry about the world," said Tarkington in an interview at Seawood, his beautiful seaside summer home. "Perhaps this is a wise provision of nature. Worries about the world take an aged mind off its own antiquity.

"A person at 76 finds the world is a lot older than even he is and still survives. The world will survive the shock the British voters have just given it.

"It consoles a little for Mr. Churchill's present defeat to know that the English, like their cousins, ourselves, have always been a volatile people, easily tiring of what is best as well as what is worst and eager to follow the will-o'-the-wisp of change.

"Apparently, to the English mind, as to ours, mere change means progress. The basis of this belief is that it's quite as progressive to leap from the frying pan into the fire as it is to squirm up from the fire and into the frying pan.

"Mr. Churchill was neither fire nor frying pan. He has been and still is the rock of hope for his fellow countrymen who have just expressed their belief that they know more than he does about what is rock and what is hope. My pleasantest theory for this coming birthday is that it won't take them very long to discover their mistakes and that our own country will profit by its observation of other people's errors. Finally, neither they nor we are saying goodbye to Mr. Churchill."

BRITAIN'S FOREIGN POLICY MAY SHIFT

Labor Victory Might Eve

States in some internationa spheres.

The chief changes are expected tc concern the liberated countries of Europe — notably Belgium and Greece. Churchill had consistently supported right wing governments in such places and this had been a point of friction between London and Washington. The expressed American policy being to let the people have any government they wanted.

Clement Attlee is expected tc adopt a policy much nearer that followe dby President Roosevelt and President Truman. British and American concern would then be to see that the people of eastern and western Europe alike have full chance—guaranteed by the big Powers when necessary—to choose their own governments.

May Affect Other Lands

Thus it is possible that the government upset in Britain may be followed by a change of administrations in various European countries.

In basic issues of co-operation among the Big Three Powers—in British prosecution of the war against Japan—in British adherence to the United Nations Charter, Bretton Woods agreements and the like, the incoming of a Labor government is expected to make no significant difference.

One comparison offered by American officials is that there should be no greater changes in British foreign policy now than were the changes in American foreign policy when President Truman succeeded Franklin D. Roosevelt.

One place at which some differences of operation may be noted is the Big Three meetings, including the current one at Potsdam. Prior to Russia's entrance into the war with Germany, Churchill had a long anti-Communist record. As British Prime Minister he proved himself able to work with Generalissimo Stalin despite that. But the belief has always persisted here that while Stalin accepted Churchill's war aims entirely, he would be somewhat suspicious of his long-range political aims.

No Anti-Russian Record

One result of this as well as of the British-Russian conflict of interests at many points in Europe was that first, Mr. Roosevelt, and now, Mr. Truman has served as the chairmen or mediators in most Big Three sessions when controversy arose.

Attlee as Prime Minister would have no such record of anti-Russian policy in his distant background. But he would have this handicap: Stalin, an extremely practical man, knew that Churchill could get things done; he still has to find out about Attlee, as in fact he has had election result should have no influence on prosecution of the war against Japan.

Senator Aiken (R.-Vt.) foresaw "vast repercussions" in India and elsewhere. While asserting that England had by no means gone communistic, he predicted that the Labor party would not be so anxious as the old government to restore the Italian king to the throne. He also said he believed that the presence of 2,000,000 American soldiers in the British Isles must have opened the common peoples' eyes when the G. I.'s referred to the homes and cars and other conveniences back home.

Representative Rankin (D.-Miss.) said he saw in the defeat in Churchill's Government an indication of a "communist trend that should be a warning to the American people," adding: "I am disappointed with the election results in England. Churchill was a great man and a great servant of his country in time of crisis. His defeat is distressing."

Representative Eaton (R.-N. J.), a delegate to the San Francisco conference, said he did not expect any wild radical change as a result of Churchill's defeat.

Green Sees Trend.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said:

"The Labor party's victory in Great Britain must be interpreted as the outcome of the insistent desire of British workers to gain higher living standards and a greater degree of economic and social security. The same aspiration for a better life after the grim experiences of war are moving workers in our own country. The results of the British election should not be viewed as a repudiation of the brilliant war leadership of Winston Churchill, but rather as a popular rejection of the standpat domestic policies of the Conservative party."

Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, declined immediate comment at Atlantic City, where he is vacationing.

John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, likewise refused to make any comment. His Mine Workers' Journal on June 1 had declared editorially, however, hat the British Labor party did not want to win this election, recalling that Ramsey MacDonald's Labor government after the last war had borne the onus of reconversion difficulties.

The American Zionist Emergency Council, under the co-chairmanship of Dr. Stephen S. Wise and Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, issued a statement which said the election of a British Labor majority "gives hope that the intolerable regime in Palestine of the white paper . . . will now come to an end."

Comment in Congress Is Varied

Leaders Express Their Opinions on Defeat of Churchill Government in Britain

JUL 27 1945

Washington, July 26 (A. P.).—The defeat of Winston Churchill's government in Great Britain brought a mixed reaction today from congressional and other leaders.

Senator Austin (R.-Vt.) said: "We have grown to know Mr. Churchill well here and we like him. But I have no doubt that Mr. Atlee, if elected, would carry out the general policies and principles of Mr. Churchill. He may make some improvements in the details, and that he should."

Senator George of Georgia, ranking Democratic member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, expressed frank surprise and said the change would inject "a certain amount of uncertainty" in international relations. But he declared that the

Stocks Feel British Upset

Market Generally Slips with Losses Up to Three Points.

NEW YORK, July 26—(AP) Bearish interpretations placed on the sharp swing to the left in the British elections and substantial defeat of the Churchill government today put the Stock Market generally on the downgrade with losses ranging from one to more than three points.

The retreat was fairly active but orderly at the start. Dealings then slowed. Liquidation became rather urgent after midday when the day's principal volume appeared. While mild recoveries were in evidence at the close, the majority of leaders finished at or near the bottom. Transfers of 1,440,000 shares compared with 620,000 Wednesday and were the largest since July 18.

In addition to the cloudy news from London, brokerage clients were inspired to cautious procedure pending Far Eastern war developments and resumption of the Potsdam conference under a new English political set-up. Earnings, dividends and special situations aided a few favorites.

The Associated Press 60-stock average dropped 1.3 points to 68.6 where it was back to its low of mid-April. The slide was broad, 917 issues registering against 816 the day before. Of these, 723 were lower, 90 higher and 104 unchanged.

An isolated strong spot was Graham-Paige which rose 1 1-8 to 9, a 1945 peak, in the wake of this company's tie-up with Henry J. Kaiser in an automotive manufacturing organization. The stock opened up 7-8 on a 40,000-share block.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem lost 1 3-4 points each and, after the close, the latter voted the usual $1.50 dividends and reported net per share of $1.15 in the June quarter against $1.77 in the like 1944 period and $2.03 in the March quarter this year.

Prominent casualties included Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Railway, Northern Pacific, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, American Telephone, International Telephone, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, Anaconda, Standard Oil (N.J.), du Pont and Johns-Manville.

WOULD LIMIT NIPS TO HOME ISLANDS OUST WAR LEADERS

Unconditional Surrender of All Armed Forces Is Demanded.

GIVE UP CONQUESTS

Points in Jap Territory Would Be Occupied, U.S., Britain, China Say.

(EARLY)

POTSDAM, July 26—The United States, Britain and China tonight demanded in an ultimatum stating "our terms" that Japan immediately surrender unconditionally or undergo "prompt and utter destruction."

Asked if Premier Stalin were aware of the ultimatum, Presidential Press Secretary Charles Ross said "Mr. Stalin's government is not at war with Japan."

President Truman, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and retiring Prime Minister Churchill asserted they "have conferred and agreed that Japan shall be given the opportunity to end this war."

Truman and Churchill drew up the document, and Chiang quickly concurred when it was submitted to him.

Would Occupy Jap Territory

Their historic proclamation offered the Japanese people the hope of peaceful, productive lives if they submit now. It declared "points in Japanese territory" would be occupied.

Clearly stipulating "our terms" under such surrender, the ultimatum declared "we shall not deviate from them: There are no alternatives: we shall brook no delay."

"We call upon the government of Japan to proclaim now the unconditional surrender of all Japanese armed forces, and to provide proper and adequate assurances of their good faith in such action. The alternative for Japan is prompt and utter destruction," the ultimatum asserted.

Greater and more terrible Allied armed might than conquered Germany now is "poised to strike the final blows at Japan," it asserted.

"The full application of our military power will mean the inevitable and complete destruction of the Japanese armed forces and the utter devastation of the Japanese homeland."

The terms demanded:

Limiting Japanese sovereignty to the four major Japanese home islands "and such minor islands as we determine—carrying out the Cairo declaration.

Must Oust Leaders

Elimination of Japanese leaders who embarked on world conquest, and destruction of Japanese war-making power.

Occupation of Japanese territory until a new order "of peace, security and justice" shall be established.

"We do not intend that the Japanese shall be enslaved as a race or destroyed as a nation," the proclamation asserted, "but stern justice shall be meted out to all war criminals, including those who have visited cruelties upon our prisoners."

Japanese military forces, after being disarmed, "shall be permitted to return to their homes with the opportunity to lead peaceful and productive lives," the document promises.

Further, "Japan shall be permitted to maintain such industries as will sustain her economy and permit the payment of just reparations in kind, but not those industries which will enable her to rearm for war.

"To this end, access to, as distinguished from control of, raw materials shall be permitted. Eventual Japanese participation in world trade relations shall be permitted.

"The occupying forces of the Allies shall be withdrawn from Japan as soon as these objectives have been accomplished and there has been established in accordance with the freely-expressed will of the Japanese people a peacefully inclined and responsible government."

It also was demanded that "the Japanese government shall remove all obstacles to the revival of democratic tendencies among the Japanese people. Freedom of speech and religion and of thought, as well as respect for fundamental human rights shall be established."

"The time has come for Japan to decide whether she will continue to be controlled by those self-willed militaristic advisors whose unintelligent calculations have brought the empire of Japan to the threshold of annihilation, or whether she will follow the path of reason."

The proclamation was drawn in Potsdam by Truman and Churchill, and submitted to Chiang, who promptly concurred, it was announced.

The document will be broadcast to the Japanese people in every way possible by the OWI, Secretary Ross said.

Text of Warning

The warning to Japan was phrased thus:

"The prodigious land, sea, and air forces of the United States, the British Empire, and of China, many times reinforced by their armies and air fleets from the west, are poised to strike the final blows upon Japan.

"This military power is sustained and inspired by the determination of all Allied nations to prosecute the war against Japan until she ceases to resist.

"The result of the futile and senseless German resistance to the might of the aroused free peoples of the world stands forth in awful clarity as an example to the people of Japan.

"The might that now converges is immeasurably greater than that which, when applied to the resisting Nazis, necessarily laid waste to the lands, the industry, and the method of life of the whole German people."

Allies Offer Foe Chance to Give up

Terms Provide that Japs Won't be Enslaved or Destroyed as Nation

By The Associated Press

President Truman, President Chiang Kai-shek of China and retiring Prime Minister Churchill issued a joint proclamation today calling upon Japan to cease resistance or be destroyed.

Chiang, it was disclosed, had conferred with Truman and Churchill. The proclamation was issued as Churchill, his government beaten in the British elections, bowed out as Prime Minister of that country, to be succeeded by Clement R. Attlee.

The proclamation outlined the terms for unconditional surrender.

Text of the Proclamation

POTSDAM, July 26 (AP).—Following is the text of the American-British-Chinese proclamation calling on Japan to surrender:

1. We, the President of the United States, the President of the national government of the Republic of China and the Prime Minister of Great Britain, representing the hundreds of millions of our countrymen, have conferred and agreed that Japan shall be given the opportunity to end this war.

2. The prodigious land, sea and air forces of the United States, the British Empire and China, many times reinforced by their armies and air fleets from the west, are poised to strike the final blow at Japan. This military power is sustained and inspired by the determination of all Allied nations to prosecute the war against Japan until she ceases to resist.

3. The result of the futile and senseless German resistance to the might of the aroused free peoples of the world stands forth in awful clarity as an example to the people of Japan.

The might that now converges on Japan is immeasurably greater than that which, when applied to the resisting Nazis, necessarily laid waste to the land, the industry and the method of life of the whole German people.

The full application of our military power, backed by our resolve, will (underscored) mean the inevitable and complete destruction of the Japanese armed forces and just as inevitably the utter devastation of the Japanese homeland.

4. The time has come for Japan to decide whether she will continue to be controlled by these self-willed militaristic advisers whose unintelligent calculations have brought the Empire of Japan to the threshold of annihilation, or whether she will follow the path of reason.

5. The following are our terms: we will not deviate from them; there are no alternatives; we shall brook no delay.

6. There must be eliminated for all time the authority and influence of those who have deceived and misled the people of Japan into embarking on world conquest, for we insist that a new order of peace, security and justice will be impossible until irresponsible militarism is driven from the world.

7. Until such a new order is established and until there is convincing proof that Japan's war-making power is destroyed, points in Japanese territory to be designated by the Allies shall be occupied to secure the achievement of the basic objectives we are here setting forth.

8. The terms of the Cairo declaration shall be carried out and Japanese sovereignty shall be limited to the Isltnds of Honshu, Hokkaido, Kyushu, Shikoku and such minor islands as we determine.

9. Japanese military forces after being completely disarmed shall be permitted to return to their homes with the opportunity to lead peaceful and productive lives.

10. We do not intend that the Japanese shall be enslaved as a race or destroyed as a nation, but stern justice shall be meted out to all war criminals, including those who have visited cruelties upon our prisoners.

The Japanese government shall remove all obstacles to the revival and strengthening of democratic tendencies among the Japanese people. Freedom of speech and religion and of thought, as well as respect for the fundamental human rights, shall be established.

11. Japan shall be permitted to maintain such industries as will sustain her economy and permit the payment of just reparation in kind, but not those industries which will enable her to rearm for war.

To this end access to, as distinguished from control of, raw materials shall be permitted. Eventual Japanese participation in world trade relations shall be permitted.

12. The occupying forces of the Allies shall be withdrawn from Japan as soon as these objectives have been accomplished and there has been established in accordance with the freely expressed willof the Japanese people a peacefuly inclined and responsible government.

13. We call upon the government of Japan to proclaim now the unconditional surrender of all Japanese armed forces, and to provide proper and adequate assurances of their good faith in such action. The alternative for Japan is prompt and utter destruction.

POTSDAM WARNING SPEEDED TO JAPAN

WASHINGTON, July 26 — (AP) America's propaganda machinery began speeding news of the Potsdam proclamation to Japan soon after its announcement, the Office of War Information reported today.

The first bulletin in the Japanese language was beamed into the Pacific from San Francisco.

Within a short time, OWI officials said, the surrender terms laid down by the United States, Britain and China were being beamed to the world in 20 languages from San Francisco and in 24 languages from New York.

To get the Allied message into Japanese homes, OWI shortwave transmitters in San Francisco sent the declaration to Honolulu, where it was relayed to Saipan.

From Saipan the peace terms and the grim warning of destruction if they are not accepted were sent by medium wave toward Japan.

Text of the surrender terms went on the air in Japanese at 6 p. m. (E.W.T.) from San Francisco, after OWI linguists had prepared a careful translation. The translation was checked with the State Department in Washington by telephone.

SENATE HAILS ULTIMATUM

Believes It Will Shorten War, Save Yank Lives

Washington, July 26 (AP)—Senators tonight hailed the Potsdam "surrender-or-be-destroyed" ultimatum as likely to shorten the war with Japan.

The Truman-Churchill-Chiang Kai-shek statement served also to underscore army plans to deploy 7,000,000 soldiers for one gigantic knockout punch unless the Nipponese enemy heeds the call to quit without quibbling.

Legislators who had been most outspoken in their demands for a specific definition of "unconditional surrender" were prompt with approval of the formula of Potsdam.

Said Senator Wherry (R., Neb.) who only this week had demanded a blueprint of what this country would accept from Japan:

"I want to compliment the President of the United States for defining the terms of unconditional surrender. I believe it is a step in the right direction and that something will come of it."

To Hasten End

Before the Potsdam statement was issued, Wherry, commenting on a Japanese radio plea for a soft peace, had said he believed an actual outline of terms, no matter how stern, would hasten the end of the fighting.

Wherry asked permission to put the ultimatum in the Congressional Record.

Senator Capehart (R., Ind.), another who has insisted on more precise conditions for the Japanese, told the Senate:

"The ultimatum spells out what we mean and have meant by unconditional surrender, and I congratulate the President of the United States."

"Reasonable," was the description given the Potsdam terms by Senator Bridges (R., N.H.).

"If Japan desires peace and wants to save her homeland from destruction, I think she should accept these terms," Bridges told a reporter.

Connally Approves

"I have urged the step (delineation of terms) on the President and other high officials of government for some time in the hope that a definition of our surrender terms would help shorten the war and save American lives."

Chairman Connally (D., Texas) of the Foreign Relations Committee, shown a copy of the terms, told a reporter:

"I thoroughly approve the joint statement. Unless the Japanese intend to commit national hara-kiri they will surrender and save millions of lives of their people and their national existence. Unless they are determined to be engulfed in ruin, they will accept the terms."

Gen. Jacob L. Devers, new chief of army ground forces, told a news conference that he hoped to get 7,000,000 men "redeployed against the Japanese in a single blow."

"There's no use doing it piecemeal," he said.

The 7,000,000 total will be the approximate size of the army after partial demobilization. Devers explained that he did not mean the whole 7,000,000 will actually be on the firing line. Millions will be in the service of supply and other branches in the United States and elsewhere, but all will be part of a single team with a single objective.

Grew Ignores Plan

Even before the Potsdam proclamation was made public Japan's radio feeler for a "soft peace" had been sharply brushed aside here, both by the State Department and leading legislators.

Joseph C. Grew, acting secretary of state, declined even to dignify the enemy's newest feeler with a formal statement.

Asked for comment on last night's broadcast which in effect pleaded for modification of Allied demands, Grew sent out word through the department's press section that there would be no direct reply from this Government.

But his July 10 statement still stands, he said.

That statement was basically a repetition of previous warnings against what Grew called "a compromise peace with Japan, no matter how alluring such a peace may be or how desirous we may become of ending this terrible conflict."

Surrender Not Annihilation

It added: "Japanese militarism must and will be crushed. The policy of this Government has been, is, and will continue to be unconditional surrender."

The statement repeated previous assurances that enforcement of that policy does not require "destruction or enslavement of the Japanese people."

Senator Connally (D., Texas) [illegible] chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, summed up the most common reaction in Congress:

"The fantastic suicide policy of Japanese airmen seems about to be adopted by the Japanese nation as a whole. Japanese unconditional surrender does not mean the annihilation of Japan. However, continued and futile resistance will mean the ruin of Japan."

Tokyo Radio Falls Silent On Subject Of Surrender

San Francisco, July 26 (AP)—The Tokyo radio fell silent today on the topic of surrender after launching on the air waves a peace feeler saying a more lenient American attitude might prompt the Japanese military "automatically if not willingly" to cease fighting.

It was too early for Tokyo to react to today's Potsdam pronouncement by the United States, Britain and China that the Japanese must cease resistance now or see their homeland destroyed.

Predicts Joint Proposal

But a few hours earlier the Federal Communications Commission heard Tokyo radio preparing the people for some sort of a statement out of the Big Three conference.

Tokyo said the Big Three—in this case, however, making Russia instead of China the third party—had "reached a decision for the war against Japan" and might issue "a joint proposal to Japan soon."

But, Tokyo continued, Japanese diplomatic circles "appear to have no interest" in the report.

Talks Of Tank Strategy

Some time later, the Japanese propagandists returned to the theme of a "fortress Japan" that would swallow up the invaders. A Domei agency correspondent from "a frontline base on the Japanese mainland" reported a tank corps was undergoing "strenuous practice day and night."

He then told of an interview he had with the corps commander who declared that in the showdown battle "we can bring into full play our strategy of tank warfare by taking every advantage peculiar to the topography of the Japanese mainland."

"Fathomless mountains and valleys," the commander said, "will overwhelm the enemy and the mobility of his tanks will be rendered useless.

"Those lucky enough to escape these natural crevices will have to face an incessant blistering barrage of gunfire and the fierce storming assaults of our new crack tanks."

Straw Hat For Protection

The officer predicted American flame-throwing tanks would lead the attack but said they were slow and vulnerable to "our body-crashing (suicide) tactics."

"A person can protect himself from the flames by using a straw hat when seeking shelter and after a few minutes can continue his attack," the commander said.

There were other Japanese broadcasts, such as one admitting that Hidachi, on the east coast of Honshu north of Tokyo, was "more or less seriously affected" by the United States fleet shelling July 17.

Tokyo Broadcasts Japan Is Calm

San Francisco, July 26 (A. P.).—Tokyo said today that Japanese diplomats and the press are remaining calm, though they are aware that the Big Three leaders at Potsdam may have "reached a decision on the war against Japan" and may issue a "joint proposal to Japan soon." The calmness was reported in a Japanese Domei news agency broadcast intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission.

LEGISLATORS WANT NO SOFT PEACE

Jap Appeal for Leniency Stirs Demand for more Exact Terms

Washington, July 26—(AP)—Tokyo radio's bid for a soft peace found universal rejection among Congressmen today but provoked some demands that the United States fix more exact terms for a Japanese surrender.

Democrats and Republicans alike said there ought to be no temporizing with the Japanese on the issue of eliminating their future power to make war.

At the same time, Acting Secretary of State Grew declared that the policy of this Government toward ending the war with Japan remains unconditional surrender.

Grew was asked for comment on the enemy broadcast last night in which the Japanese in effect begged for more lenient terms of surrender. Through his press officer, Grew replied that he had no comment to make directly on the broadcast but that his July 10 statement still stands.

Warned Against Compromise

In that statement he repeated previous warnings against what he called "A compromise peace with Japan, no matter how alluring such a peace may be or how desirous we may become of ending this terrible conflict."

Senator Wherry, of Nebraska, the minority whip, said he thought the Japanese feeler indicated a willingness to give up that ought to be met with a definition of the unconditional surrender demand.

"The peace terms with Japan should be just as hard as the military authorities think they should be made," he declared. "The sooner we announce our terms, however harsh they may be, the quicker we will be able to end the war. If we want anything short of complete annihilation of the Japanese people, we ought to say so."

Democratic Leader Barkley (Ky) said the Japanese feeler offers nothing that the United States can consider.

Hill Comments

Senator Hill, of Alabama, the Democratic whip, said he imagined that if the Japanese could just get the United States to call off the war, so that they could keep their resources intact to build up a new military machine, they would be glad to stop fighting now.

The Japanese radio appeal was carefully hedged about with qualifications which fitted it neatly into Tokyo's usual propaganda line. Nevertheless, it gave the impression that Japan would be definitely interested in peace if the unconditional surrender formula could be softened.

The broadcast, heard by the FCC, came on the heels of the most disastrous two weeks the empire has undergone.

War Machine Mangled

Mammoth Superfort raids, paralyzing land-based aerial strikes from Okinawa, and the great fleet bombardments and carrier attacks since July 10 have ripped the empire from stem to stern and further mangled the Japanese war machine in China and elsewhere.

So much so that Tokyo radio agreed with Admiral Halsey that American sea and air power indeed had opened the pre-invasion phase of warfare against the Japanese homeland.

The Japanese peace feeler said there really are no problems between a "liberal America" and Japan, and claimed that a "liberal America has never given occasion for Japanese militarists to rise, but America now talks of unconditional surrender."

"Though its official quarters keep relative silence, its official publicists declare that Japan should be stripped of this, or that."

Imply U. S. Not Liberal

The implication is that America is not now "liberal" and that the unconditional surrender formula is an outgrowth of the lack of what the Japanese consider liberality.

"In short, they (American officials) intend to mete out such a hard retribution that the Japanese people are more determined than ever to unite and resist as a united mass of 100 million souls and will so continue as long as American minds remain dictatorial and oppressive," declared the Japanese commentator.

"Should America show any sincerity of putting into practice what she preaches, as for instance in the Atlantic Charter, excepting its punitive clause, the Japanese nation, in fact the Japanese military, would automatically, if not willingly (several words missing) follow in the stopping of the conflict and then and then only will sabers cease to rattle both in the east and in the west," he continued.

May Be Reply to Broadcast

The spokesman's reference to the Atlantic Charter suggested that he might be replying to an American broadcast made to Japan last Saturady by Captain E. C. Zacharias, USN, who told Japanese leaders they had a fast-fading choice of two opportunities at present:

1. Virtual destruction of Japan followed by a dictated peace.

2. Unconditional surrender with its attendant benefits as laid down by the Atlantic Charter.

Two other factors may be involved:

There have been persistent reports that Big Three conference in Potsdam has discussed and reached agreement on Far Eastern questions. The general assumption is that the result bodes no good for Japan and that Japan knows it.

Much interest also had been attached to a statement made in Chungking by China's Premier, T. V. Soong, just back from several personal conferences with Marshal Stalin in Moscow. Soong made plain that he had made good enough progress with the Russians regarding mutual problems that he was willing to be optimistic in public and predict the war would end this year or early in 1946.

Another Sign of Defeat.

Still another sign of political defeat for Japan came from Chungking. The Central Chinese Government admitted that its troops had clashed with Chinese Communist forces in the north. While both sides blamed the other for starting the fight, the attitude of each was significantly different.

Chungking shrugged it off with an air of confidence, as much as to ask the Communists what they intended to make of it.

The Reds, on the other hand, said they were "very indignant." Communist irritation might have stemmed, it was considered here, from a fear that Moscow has no intention of cold-shouldering the Chungking government and actively supporting the Chinese Red regime in Yenan. Such a Moscow decision, if actually taken, would be almost certainly an outgrowth of Soong's talks with Stalin.

This would mean a political defeat for Japan because her propaganda has sought to split the Allies away from Russia. While attacking Chinese Communists with every propaganda weapon at hand, the Japanese for several years have carefully avoided carrying military operations against them too far, content to let Chinese oppose Chinese rather than unite completely against the invaders themselves.

SHAW, 89, WORKS AS USUAL

Playwright Bars Celebrations and Congratulations

London, July 26—(AP)—George Bernard Shaw was 89 years old today, and his program called for work as usual.

He refused to celebrate. He made it clear he would not be at home to callers. He wanted no congratulation by telephone.

Safe from interruptions at his rural refuge in Ayot St. Lawrence, about 25 miles outside London, the world famous playwright and critic made it wholly evident by this attitude that he still feels the same way about birthdays. Last year he snorted:

"I don't want congratulations. You know very well I hate them. To hell with birthday wishes, I say. Who in his senses wants to be reminded he's growing old?"

Five Officers, 8 Soldiers Relieved of Duty in Army Camp

London, July 26—(AP)—The Army newspaper Stars and Stripes quotes U. S. Army officials as disclosing that five officers and eight enlisted men were relieved of duty, and some recommend.d for court-martial late in 1944, after soldier-prisoners at the 10th Reinforcement Depot, Lichfield, England, alleged they were beaten by guards. Names were withheld.

The announcement was made after Stars and Stripes printed letters from soldiers complaining of beatings. The Army said an investigation has been in progress for a good many weeks.

PETAIN PICKED "CABINET" IN '39, JURY TOLD

Former Aide In Spain Charges Laval Brought Marshal To Power

Paul Reynaud, wartime premier of France, in the eighth of a series of articles, discusses the military causes of France's defeat.....Page 8

Paris, July 26 (AP)—A surprise witness at the treason trial of Marshal Pétain testified today that the old soldier was formulating plans as early as 1939 to become head of the French Government.

The witness, Armand Gazel, had been counselor of the French Embassy in Spain while Pétain was there as Ambassador.

He appeared briefly at the end of the fourth day of the Marshal's trial, in which two parliamentary leaders, Jules Jeanneney and Louis Marin, explained how Pétain gained dictatorial power. They charged Pétain and all those who demanded an armistice with moral guilt.

Laval Also Accused

Jeanneney said that Pétain and Pierre Laval, now in Spanish detention, "made common cause" and that it was the plotting of the white-tied Laval which actually brought Pétain to power.

This was done by abolishing the two houses of the National Assembly by decree and reassembling them in extraordinary session, after Laval had mustered sufficient voting strength to make a dictator of the Marshal.

Marin, shouting much of his testimony, said that Pétain's refusal to leave France made the armistice possible. He cited a law of 1893 fixing the death penalty for anyone dealing with an enemy occupying a part of France, as the Germans did when the armistice was sought and signed.

Pétain, he said, obstinately refused to leave France for either England or Africa and influenced others to remain.

Petain Disclaims Telegram

When the trial opened, one of the 89-year-old soldier's lawyers read a statement in which Pétain denied sending telegrams to Hitler congratulating him on repelling the Canadians at Dieppe and asking permission for Vichy troops to help the Germans defend France.

Judge Paul Mongibeaux had read one such telegram yesterday.

But it was from Gazel that the most startling evidence came.

The five witnesses who preceded him were all highly placed members of former governments. Gazel was and is a diplomat—tall, thin and bearing himself in a suave, professional manner.

"I will speak objectively and without hatred," he said, launching into his relations with Pétain after the Marshal had been sent to Spain, perhaps because Generalissimo Franco once had been his military pupil.

Gazel Accuses Petain

Before October, 1939, Gazel testified, Pétain already had drawn up lists of men he was considering as ministers in his prospective government.

Daladier was then Prime Minister. There was no question in those days of the "phony war" of a change in the French Government. The prosecution alleges that Pétain, while still in Spain, made a statement that 'next May, they are going to have need of me."

Gazel said nothing of that remark, but testified that on two occasions Pétain showed him lists of men he said would become his ministers. Laval's name appeared on both lists, Gazel testified.

The diplomat said Pétain expected to gain power through legal means. He quoted the marshal as saying "when I become head of the government, it will not be the result of a coup d'etat."

Accused Of Plotting Defeat

One part of the Pétain indictment contends that the marshal planned to overthrow the Government and that he needed the military defeat of France to realize the project.

Though he was a state witness, Gazel cut some of the ground from under the accusation that Pétain was on friendly relations with Franco and with the Germans, while in Spain.

Only "cold politeness" existed between Pétain and Franco, Gazel said. He described their first meeting at Burgos and declared that Franco hardly spoke.

"Marshal Pétain conducted a monologue," the witness said. "He was very worried over having shaken hands with the German Ambassador at an official function."

France Compared To Norway

Gazel said that at one time he was negotiating for the release of some members of the International Brigade, including Frenchmen, whom the Spanish had imprisoned.

"These negotiations were extremely difficult for me because I was not assisted by my chief (Pétain)," he said.

LAVAL-PETAIN PLOT REVEALED BY EX-SENATOR

Jeanneney Tells High Court How Two Conspirators Hoodwinked French.

MARIN BACKS UP TESTIMONY

Republican Federation President Says Paris Dishonored Word to London.

Paris, July 26 (A. P.).—Jules Jeanneney, former president of the French Senate, told the High Court of Justice today that the machinations of Pierre Laval made Marshal Petain dictator when France collapsed in 1940, and that the two men "made common cause together." The white-haired witness appeared at this fourth day of Petain's trial on charges of betraying France.

Jeanneney, president of the Senate in 1940, described an extraordinary session of Parliament in which Laval, Vichy Chief of Government, suppressed debate and rammed through three constitutional acts abrogating the constitution and giving the Marshal virtually unlimited powers. He said that Petain showed "deplorable weakness" when he succeeded Paul Reynaud as Premier at Bordeaux in June, 1940.

Bows in Court.

"Let us admit that we had no other choice," Jeanneney said. As the witness left the courtroom, the 89-year-old Marshal, who had been maintaining an aloof air, made the extraordinary gesture of bowing to the witness. Jeanneney bowed in return.

Louis Marin, former Minister of State, then testified.

Marin, like Jeanneney, said that Petain blocked the French Government's moving to Africa when the Germans overran the country. He recalled a law of 1893 fixing the death penalty for any one dealing with the enemy while any part of France is occupied.

Denial From Petain.

When the trial opened Jean Lemaire, a defense attorney, read a short statement from Petain denying that Petain ever sent a telegram to Adolf Hitler.

"The prosecution alleged that Petain congratulated the Germans on having repelled the Canadian attack at Dieppe and requested that France be allowed to participate in the fight against Allied invasion," Lemaire said. "I have this statement from Petain: 'I am certain I never gave any order to send such a cable, I cannot believe that any authority other than the Foreign Office would have been intrusted with such a message.'"

Jeanneney said that the Reynaud Cabinet considered moving both to England and North Africa in the last days before Petain became Premier and that the Marshal flatly refused to leave France. Shortly after the armistice was signed, Jeanneney said that Laval came to him and asked him to convoke the Senate.

Laval's Steam Roller.

"I curtly refused," Jeanneney said, "but next day, two decrees were promulgated ending the regular session of Parliament and convoking it as an extraordinary session on July 9."

Jeanneney said he learned that members of both Houses of the National Assembly had agreed to forgo all debate, "so there was nothing to do but vote on the resolution to give Petain full power and to draw a new constitution for France. When certain members attempted to explain their views, Laval told them there would be no comment. It was a violation of all our constitutional procedure."

Jeanneney said that he saw Petain only twice afterward. At one meeting they disagreed totally. At the second meeting, he said, Petain asked for a list of Jewish parliamentarians.

"Former Premier Herriot and I explained that we would not lend ourselves to any such action and he would have to obtain such a list from his own sources," the witness said. Jeanneney said that his last official act was to write protesting German mistreatment of a Senator. He was near tears when he told of Petain's reply assuring him that everything would be done to prevent the execution of hostages.

The witness said that in October, 1941, the Germans killed 100 hostages. A defense attorney interrupted and said that Petain had offered himself as a hostage. A dispute with the judges ensued.

During cross-examination, defense counsel attempted to establish that Laval, rather than Petain, was mainly responsible for clothing the aMrshal with dictatorial powers. Responding to a defense question, Jeanneney said:

"I cannot say what influence Laval had upon Petain; I am sorry to say, however, that they made common cause together." He commented that "the armistice was an unpardonable and irreparable mistake."

Pledge Dishonored.

Marin, the netx witness, was a member of the Chamber of Deputies from Nancy and president of the chamber's Republican Federation. He hammered at the point that France dishonored her word in signing a separate peace in violation of her agreement of March 28, 1940, with Great Britain.

Marin recalled that Norway, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg and Greece never signed an armistice and added: "Only we failed to honor our given word. The whole future of France was at stake on the issue of whether the armistice should be requested."

His voice thundered, despite his 74 years, as he said that Gen. Maxime Weygand had insisted on the armistice and that Reynaud proposed permitting the army to surrender while the Government went abroad. He attacked Petain's assertion that "I have given myself to France," asking how the Marshal had the right to say that "while so many young soldiers on the battlefield were in fact giving their lives for France."

Court's Adjournment.

He expressed the opinion that everything Petain did after assuming full power on July 11, 1940, was completely illegal. Marin was cross-examined uneventfully and court adjourned for the day.

The first three days of the trial of the 89-year-old former chief of the Vichy French State, charged with intelligence with the enemy and plotting against the security of France, progressed so slowly that on several occasions members of the special twenty-four-man jury exclaimed, "Let's get on with it."

Nazi Ammunition Will Aid America

Paris, July 26 (A. P.).—Nearly 1,000,000 tons of captured German ammunition will be used in various forms to help beat Japan and to aid industry and grow better crops, Col. T. J. Kane of the ordnance section of United States forces in the European theater announced today.

Only ammunition that presents an immediate hazard to American men and property will be destroyed. Some, he said, will be shipped to the Pacific and some will be salvaged for brass, steel and ammonium nitrate, the latter to be used for fertilizer.

Petain's Wife Worried Over Marshal's Health

Paris, July 26—(AP)—Eugenie Petain, 70-year-old wife of Marshal Petain who is sharing his little apartment in the Palace of Justice, expressed concern today that her husband won't be able to stand those long hours in that hot (court) room.

"I am so dreadfully worried about him," she told the Marshal's attorneys.

On the second day of the trial a stretcher was brought into the hall outside the trial room in case a repetition of the first day's excitement should be too much for the 89-year-old former hero of Verdun, even though his heart has been pronounced as sound as that of a man of 40.

Except for the time that he is in the courtroom, Mme. Petain stays at her husband's side. She is not under arrest and walks about the corridors as she pleases.

TRUMAN VISITS GI'S ON RHINE

President Goes Through American Occupation Zone

(JACOBS)

Frankfort-on-Main, July 26 (AP)—President Truman put aside the momentous duties of the Big Three conference in Potsdam temporarily today and visited thousands of American troops in a swing through the Rhine Valley to get a first-hand view of the American occupation zone.

In brief impromptu talks the President promised to help the troops find the United States "as you like it and want it to be" when they return home and expressed the determination to implement the ideas of his "great predecessor," Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Plays Piano In Jazzy Style

In less serious vein, he shook hands with hundreds of GI's, scores of them from his native Missouri, climbed in and out of his touring car dozens of times for reviews and informal chats, and played the piano in jazzy style. Afterward he commented: "A damn good piano."

Looking fresh and happy despite the 97-degree heat which wilted some others in his entourage, the President covered a 49-mile route after a 90-minute flight from Potsdam in the plane "Sacred Cow."

Jospeh F. Byrnes, Secretary of State and Brig. Gen. Harry Vaughan, the President's military aide, flew in a separate C-54 transport. General Eisenhower accompained the party on the tour.

Takes A Spin In Hitler's Car

Truman took a ride in a little Mercedes which, according to legend, was once owned by Adolf Hitler, hopped into armored vehicles, viewed the bomb damage of Frankfurt and ate fried chicken and ice cream at the officers' mess of the 84th Division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Alexander Bolling.

Heavy guards patrolled the highways and camps as the President's party drove through. German civilians stared but showed no emotion.

The natty 508th Parachute Infantry Regiment, wearing white silk scarfs and gloves, formed an honor guard at Frankfurt airport. The battalion was commanded by Major Leroy Bell, of Boston, one-time Red Sox player.

During the tour Truman stopped to talk with 285 Missouri members of the 84th Division especially assembled for the visit.

His Admiration For Roosevelt

"You have fought so that we can live, think and act as we like," he said. "I want to implement that policy in following in the footsteps of my great predecessor, Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

"My one regret in the late unpleasantness is that I was not allowed to wear a uniform. I certainly tried hard enough, but it seems to be my responsibility to speak for all of you."

Declaring he admired Roosevelt "more than any other man in the world," Truman said he was trying to carry out his responsibilities not only "for the benefit of the United States," but also for peoples all over the world.

The impromptu talk was made after passing rows of tanks and thousands of fighting men of the 3d Armored Division, commanded by Brig. Gen. Doyle O. Hickey.

Truman And Barbecue

At one point the President stopped the car to talk to a private. The soldier told reporters he was Floyd B. Adams, of Caruthersville, Missouri.

"I used to run a barbecue stand," he said. The President did not know him, he added, but "he knows my barbecue stand. He has stopped there."

After playing the piano at Bolling's mess, Truman turned to Lieut. Roy E. Wilder, Jr., of Spring Hope, N.C., and declared, "damn good piano."

Before departing for Potsdam in the evening, the President awarded the Distinguished Service Medal to Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, commander of the 1st Canadian Army, and three British military chieftains, Major General Sir F. W. de Guingand, All Marshal Sir Arthur Coningham and Air Marshal Sir James Robb.

TRUMAN DELIGHTED TO SEE U.S. TROOPS

Reviews Men in Frankfurt Area after Flight from Potsdam

(JACOBS)

Frankfurt on the Main, July 26—(AP)—President Truman, reviewing troops in this area, told men of the 84th Infantry Division today that he hoped they would come home to a United States that was "as you like it and want it to be."

The President arrived at the Eschborne Army airport shortly after 9.30 A. M. after a 268-mile, 90-minute flight from Potsdam, and began a round of inspections with a review of an honor guard made up from the 508th Parachute Troop Regiment of the 82d Air-borne Division.

The President took off by plane at 4.17 A. M. after getting a first-hand view of the American occupation zone.

In a two-hour visit with the 84th Infantry and Third Armored Division he expressed delight at getting to see American soldiers.

Praises Troops

"You have fought so that we can live, think and act as we like," he said.

Speaking on a roadside near Weinheim, Truman said he was "glad to get a chance to look at good American soldiers." One of his regrets, he added, was that in this war he was not allowed to wear a uniform, "although I tried hard enough."

Instead, he said, he found himself responsible for the welfare of all American soldiers "and I hope I can fulfill that responsibility."

The President also promised that he would try to implement the principles of his predecessor, President Roosevelt, in sponsoring a program that would permit all men to think and act as they like.

The President's tour was a brief holiday from the Big Three conferences at Potsdam and covered dozens of towns surrounding Frankfurt.

Missourians Assemble

After lunch at headquarters of Major General Alexander R. Bolling, commander of the 84th, the President was taken just outside Weinheim, where 286 Missourians from various outfits had assembled for his review.

After shaking hands with many, he told them in a brief speech that he had admired President Roosevelt more than any other man in the world.

The President joked with the men and told them he would like to shake hands with everyone, but that he was not running for election and "I don't want to keep you out in the sun too long."

Mr. Truman returned to Potsdam tonight.

NAZI CLUBBING OF YANKS TOLD

Last Moments Of 6 Pilots Described At Trial In Germany

Darmstadt, Germany, July 26 (AP)—A cemetery caretaker testified to a military commission today that "some" of six American flyers were still alive and "moan-brought to him for burial last August after being stoned and mobbed by German civilians.

The caretaker, Jakob Raab, questioned by Lieut. Col. Leon Jaworski, of Houston, Texas, testified that blood was flowing from a push-cart in which a group of Hitler youth brought the airmen to the cemetery. 'Those flyers still breathing," he said, 'were finished off with a club."

Women Declared Leaders

Jaworski, prosecutor in the trial of two eGrman women and nine men charged with killing the defenseless Americans last August 26 in the village of Russelsheim a few miles from here, finished his case today and said the trial might end tomorrow.

In the first day of the hearing yesterday, fourteen witnesses testified that the two women defendants led the attackers, one of them yelling: "Kill the dogs. Don't have any pity on them."

Accused Slashes Wrists

Jaworski told the commission, headed by Brig. Gen. Garrison N. Davison, former West Point football coach, that the flyers were captured after being shot down in a raid on Osnabrueck and were being marched through Russelsheim when the mob attacked.

One witness said a flyer cried out: "We didn't bomb Russelsheim. We bombed Osnabrueck."

One of the men accused, Joseph Hargen, came to court with both wrists bandaged. Guards said he had slashed his wrists with a piece of bedspring.

German Uniforms Banned

Eckener Still Predicts World Dirigible Travel

War Halted Ship Designed for 90-Hour Atlantic Round Trip

CONSTANCE, Germany, July 26 (AP).—Dr. Hugo Eckener, the Zeppelin builder, takes a gloomy view of the future of Germany—which he says was wrecked by "that fool with criminal instincts," Adolf Hitler—but still clings firmly to his personal dream of international air transport by dirigible.

Eckener was interviewed at his villa near the bomb-scarred Friedrichshafen Zeppelin plant, where French occupation forces have allowed him to live unmolested since the surrender.

He disclosed that the outbreak of the war in 1939 halted construction of his biggest and fastest lighter-than-air ship, a Zeppelin designed to travel from Frankfurt am Main to the United States and back in ninety hours' flying time.

Eckener insisted he had always regarded the Zeppelin as a device to promote understanding among nations, which he said was his aim in trying to establish trans-Atlantic commercial travel with the Graf Zeppelin and other airships before the war.

Now, however, he doubts that he can have much part in future developments, because of his age. He is seventy-seven.

Nightlife Faces Curb In U.S.-Berlin Zone

Berlin, July 26 (AP)—Military government authorities are going to curb night life in the American zone of Berlin to prevent any trend toward "promiscuity and perversion" which might develop among the city's demoralized people.

Currently there are twelve to sixteen night clubs operating in the American zone and officials said most of them would be closed. Those permitted to remain open will be placed under strict supervision.

Although it was not said so officially, one motivating factor for the closing order probably was a desire to prevent fraternization by American troops with women who frequent bars and other night spots.

CHINESE RETAKE SEVENTH FORMER YANK AIR FIELD

CHUNGKING, July 26—(AP) Chinese troops have seized a seventh former American airbase with capture of Namyung in the important wolfram mining district 150 mile northeast of Canton, the Chinese high command announced today.

Due west, other Chinese units punched to new points within six and eight miles of the triple airfield city of Kweilin, and fought in the streets of a ninth airbase city, Yangso, 45 miles to the south, a communique declared.

Abandoned in January

Namyung, abandoned last Jan. 2 by the U. S. 14th air force, was the aerial starting point of shipments to the United States of wolfram, a mineral vital in the production of war munition. Nearby Tayu, in the heart of the mining area, already has been recaptured, and wolfram shipments possibly can be resumed soon.

The Chinese won Namyung, 65 miles southwest of Kanhsien, on Monday, and the enemy retreated toward Kukong, on the Canton-Hankow railroad 125 miles north of Canton, the high command said.

Two hundred and fifty miles westward, Chinese troops struck yesterday to a point only six miles west of Kweilin, now apparently manned only by Japanese rearguards. On Tuesday, another Chinese column had won a position on the railroad only eight miles southwest of the city, and was reported stabbing on toward Kweilin, Liangkiangyi, 12 1-2 miles west of the city, was taken Tuesday, the Chinese said.

The high command declared its forces on Wednesday also captured the railroad town of Yungfu, 32 miles southwest of Kweilin, which had been a main stumbling block to the advance of the principal Chinese units on Kweilin.

Battle in Streets

Street fighting was reported continuing in the walled city of Yangso, 45 miles south of Kweilin, which the Americans abandoned last year. Yangso seemed likely to become the eighth lost airbase to revert to Allied control.

A Japanese counterattack recaptured the highway center of Ining, 11 miles northwest of Kweilin, the Chinese command said, and the enemy also attacked repeatedly against a Chinese roadblock at Chiehshou on the railroad 41 miles northeast of Kweilin.

"Both sides sustained numerous casualties" in this fighting, where the Chinese had cut the enemy's main route of escape from Kwangsi to Hunan province, the high command said.

New fighting broke out along the Indo-China border area, the Chinese said. Enemy troops on Sunday launched a drive southeastward from the important Indo-China base of Caobang, with one column driving over the frontier into China and penetrating to near Shatung, nine and one half miles northeast of Lungchow and about 30 southeast of Caobang.

These enemy troops later were repelled, a communique declared. Another Japanese column struck toward Shuikow on the border 25 miles southeast of Caobang.

The High Command said that farther southeast Japanese forces who drove from Dong Dang in Indo-China on Monday against Chennankwan and Pingsiang still were being engaged by the Chinese. A Chinese press report, however, said the Japanese on Tuesday broke into Pingsiang, a border town eleven miles north of Dong Dang. Pingsiang has changed hands repeatedly in recent weeks.

In Kiangsi Province the Chinese command said enemy forces swinging northward from Kanhsien—sixth air-base site to be recovered—continued their fighting progress toward Nanchang, and had occupied Taiho, sixty-five miles north of Kanhsien, on Monday. Other Japanese forces were engaged by the Chinese twelve miles east of the rewon air-base city of Suichwan, fifty miles northwest of Kanhsien, it added.

Chinese headquarters also declared its forces had cut the supply line of an undetermined number of Japanese who recently swung from the area southeast of Changsha into Kiangsi Province.

This enemy thrust perhaps was designed to protect the Japanese withdrawal toward Nanchang from the Kanhsien area.

CHINESE RECOVER SEVENTH AIR BASE

Chungking, July 26 (A. P.).—The Chinese High Command announced today that Chinese troops had captured the city of Namyung, 155 miles northeast of Canton and site of the seventh former American air base to be gained from the Japs in recent months. The announcement said the Japanese garrison was retreating westward toward Kukong, on the Canton-Hankow railway 125 miles north of Canton. Namyunk was the point from which Wolfram, mined in the surrounding district, started on the first leg of its air journey to the United States.

Recovery of Namyung means that shipments of Wolfram can be resumed, since Tayu, less than twenty miles to the northeast, in the heart of the Wolfram mining district, was recently recaptured by Chinese troops.

The High Command reported that the Japs on July 22 started a drive from Indo-China toward Kwangsi Province. One column was subsequently repelled. Jap forces which on July 23 drove from Dong Dang against Chennankwan and Pingsiang are still being engaged by Chinese forces.

Location of Third Fleet Cloaked in Radio Silence

GUAM, July 27—(Friday)—(AP) Radio silence cloaked the activities and whereabouts of Admiral Halsey's Third fleet today as Allied strikes against the Japanese empire were confined to land-based aerial actions.

The last report on the great American and British force which smashed at the Japanese fleet remnants Tuesday and against bases on the inland sea Wednesday was contained in yesterday's communique, which said Wednesday's action was limited to hitting small vessels and damaging ground installations because of extremely bad weather.

No Fleet Mention

Admiral Nimitz' communique today made no mention of Halsey's fleet.

Twenty-four of Japan's warships, including 14 carriers, battleships and cruisers, were damaged within a week—20 of them Tuesday.

Only the fog that rolled in Wednesday saved the Japanese from another crushing blow by the more than 1,250 U. S. and British carrier planes which wrought Tuesday's devastation.

While there was no new word from Halsey, Japanese broadcasts said they expected a return of the fleet and cautioned the empire to be vigilant.

The Japanese, also invasion jittery, began broadcasting advice to their citizens on the weapons the Allies were expected to use. They predicted flame-throwing tanks would lead the invasion forces on the beaches, but said there was no need to fear these monsters too much.

They also said Japan was turning to construction of wooden planes and expected transfer of one-third of the homeland's shipyard employes to manufacturing wooden aircraft.

In 15 days of relentless slugging, Admiral Nimitz's naval forces through Tuesday had sunk or damaged 620 Japanese ships—warships and merchant vessels—and destroyed or damaged 773 planes.

Results of Wednesday's interrupted raids have yet to be assessed except for a preliminary report that 39 enemy aircraft were knocked out.

20 Warships Hit

Altogether, American and British planes sank or damaged 20 warships crowded in the waters of Japan's inland sea Tuesday which, coupled with the July 18 [illegible] on Yokosuka naval base in Tokyo bay, made a total of 24 warships put out of action within a week.

Now should Japan, once the world's third greatest naval power, propose to put her fleet to sea its mauled remnants would be no match for a single task force out of Admiral Halsey's U. S. Third fleet.

Best estimates are that Japan has at present in seaworthy condition and untouched by July's raids one battleship, an aircraft carrier, a few cruisers and perhaps 25 or so destroyers.

Some of her capital ships hit Tuesday were listed as only slightly damaged and could get into action quickly, but at least half of the ships will take some time for refitting and repair—if repair actually is possible under the repeated attacks which Halsey plans to deliver.

The American and British carrier planes roared out over 390 miles of the inland sea and the southern coast of Honshu Tuesday, seeking out the Japanese fleet which lay camouflaged and at anchor.

The fleet was known to be in hiding there since its heavy pounding last March.

The main force of the American attack by more than 1,000 planes was concentrated on Japan's main naval base of Kure, while the British force of approximately 250 planes took on 100 miles of inland sea targets to the east.

Few Japanese planes rose to meet the challenge and 19 of them were shot out of the air, three of them as they tried to attack Halsey's fleet standing possibly 100 miles out to sea.

HALSEY'S FLEET SEEN DEPLOYING FOR NEW BLOWS

Has Already Immobilized Jap Navy at Kure With Carrier Attacks.

ASSAULT LASTED TWO DAYS

Flyers Damaged Six Carriers, Three Battleships and Five Cruisers.

Guam, July 26 (A. P.).—The United States Third Fleet which smashed twenty-four Jap warships in the seventeen days it has made the home waters of Nippon its own, moved menacingly off the Mikado's islands today, deploying for its next blows at the enemy's stunned cities and shattered ships.

As Admiral Halsey pulled back to sea for refueling, there was no indication that he intended to let up in his steady pounding of war plants, coastal defenses, airfields and the remnants of the Japanese fleet.

Halsey continued to move his ships about the enemy home waters as he chose, with no resistance on the sea. The Nipponese finally perked up a little in the air, but the few planes they put aloft were almost lost among the Allied hundreds. Nineteen were shot down.

Ships Like Sitting Ducks.

Latest reports on Tuesday's strike indicated that enemy warships caught like sitting ducks at Kure Naval Base probably would be on the repair list for long periods. Listed as hit by torpedoes, bombs and bullets from 1,200 carrier-based planes that damaged them from "heavily" to "slightly" were twenty warships, including six aircraft carriers, three battleships and five cruisers. British planes probably sank an escort carrier of the Kobe class and damaged an old destroyer.

The bag of enemy vessels was pushed to twenty-four by the four hit by Third Fleet planes at the Yokosuka Naval Base on July 18. The superstructure of the 32,700-ton battleship Nagato was heavily damaged. Two other vessels were damaged and a destroyer sunk.

Of equal importance in speeding the end of the war were heavy new blows on the enemy merchant fleet, already reduced to such an extent it could not move sufficient supplies for the homeland or fighting fronts. One oiler was sunk from the almost depleted fleet of tankers; nine cargo ships went down and eighteen cargo vessels were damaged. Dozens of small coastal craft, such as luggers and junks, were sunk or damaged by strafing planes. In all, thirty-two enemy merchant ships and fifty-three small craft were sunk or damaged.

With the Japs finally offering token resistance in the air, nineteen enemy planes were shot down. Together, American and British airmen destroyed or damaged 190 other Jap aircraft Tuesday and Wednesday morning.

Bad Weather Curbs Attack.

Bad weather interrupted yesterday's renewed carrier-plane attacks after the early morning flights returned, but the assault was resumed in the afternoon, and there was no reason to believe Halsey's fleet had left Jap waters.

Through Tuesday, 620 Japanese ships had been knocked out and 778 airplanes destroyed or damaged in fifteen days of strikes by units under Nimitz's command. Most of this damage was inflicted by Halsey's force.

Nimitz's announcement of Tuesday's results included damage listed in his preliminary report yesterday. It added the well-known—and once-feared—battleship Haruna and six aircraft carriers to the list of major warships damaged.

The Haruna erroneously was reported sunk early in the war—but has been damaged at least twice since the Army Air Force's Captain Colin Kelly posthumously was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for crashing his burning plane into her. She was damaged in the battle for Leyte Gulf last October and fled, with other Imperial Fleet survivors, to port.

The other battleships damaged were the Hyuga, heavily, and the Ise, moderately. Both had been equipped with small flight decks aft for carrying and catapulting planes.

The large aircraft carrier Amagi was heavily damaged and the Katsuragi moderately. Slightly damaged were the large aircraft carrier Aso, light carrier Hosho and escort carrier Kaiyo.

Three of the five cruisers hit were heavies, including the Tone, heavily damaged, and the Aoba, moderately. Other warships knocked out by American bombs or torpedoes were three destroyers, a midget submarine and a gunboat.

Bad Weather Interferes

American pilots, attacking Kure naval base, Japan's largest, found the bulk of the warships Tuesday and were searching for them under their heavy camouflage again yesterday when bad weather interfered.

Firebombs Rain on Three Jap Cities As B-29s Hit Anew in Fierce Campaign

GUAM, Friday, July 27.—(AP) General conflagrations swept the three Japanese industrial cities of Omuta, Matsuyama and Tokuyama early today after more than 350 Superfortresses struck them with more than 2,200 tons of incendiary bombs.

In this third Superfortress raid on the enemy's homeland in four days of a blazing campaign which Gen. Doolittle has declared would turn Japan into a nation of nomads, smoke curled more than 18,000 feet into the air.

Fires spread several miles from the target areas, returning crewmen said, using the term "conflagrations" to describe results.

One Superfortress was missing from the medium-sized force which struck before dawn against the comparatively small-sized cities, all in southwestern Japan.

It was the second fire raid on Omuta, important chemical center and coal port of 177,000 population on Kyushu island. The city previously was hit June 18.

Matsuyama and Tokuyama got their first baptism of American fire. They were hit previously with demolition bombs. The former city of 122,000 people, on the western coast of Shikoku island, is a factory community which produced cotton fabrics before the war. Tokuyama, at the southwestern end of Honshu island, has large chemical plants and an oil refinery and fuel tank farms. Its population is 40,000.

The before-dawn attack by the Marianas-based Superforts of the 20th Air force followed a raid by 100 of the big bombers Wednesday midnight on oil plants near Tokyo and the record 625-plane mission Tuesday against the Osaka-Nagoya area.

Doolittle made his prediction on Okinawa, where he personally raised the flag over his newly-established Eighth Air force headquarters and announced B-29s of his command would soon be joining in the blows against the Japanese homeland.

Maj. Gen. Curtis Lemay disclosed here that the 20th Air force has now reached full operational strength, with five B-29 wings based on Guam, Tinian and Saipan.

He also reported, prior to today's raid, that reconnaissance had disclosed that devastation in Japan's urban industrial areas had reached 143 square miles in 39 cities.

Added to the "hard hit" cities listed in the growing destruction roll were the ports of Sendai, 27.8 per cent levelled, and Chosi, 36.4 per cent burned and blasted out.

Doolittle said in an interview with Associated Press Correspondent Richard Cushing on Okinawa that the B-29s of his Eighth Air force, redeployed from Europe, would be striking Japan in force by the end of next month.

Several days ago Doolittle asserted here that some planes of his force, which also will include Thunderbolt fighters, would be raiding the Nippon mainland by Aug. 1.

"Japan eventually will be a nation without cities—a nomadic people," he told Cushing. "Our B-29s can easily reach all of Japan itself and even up into Mongolia if there are any targets there."

He declared that Nippon would be attacked by as many as 5,000 planes in one day and that "the actual tonnage dropped on Japan will be about twice that which was dropped on Germany from England."

Doolittle's Eighth Air force and the Marianas-based 20th Air force, under Lt. Gen. Nathan F. Twining, will throw the B-29s against the Japanese when their combined assaults get underway.

Lemay, who has been in command of the 21st Bomber command (now the 20th Air force) has been promoted to chief of staff to General Spaatz, strategic overall commander of B-29 forces.

MacArthur's headquarters today.

Evidence that the enemy was withdrawing generally, however, was seen in a delayed report from the Royal Australian Air force that on Sunday four of its Spitfires strafed 16 enemy trucks moving northward on the road from Balikpapan toward the Samarinda oil field area 60 miles northward.

The Japanese meanwhile made a slight recovery in the air, sending eight to ten twin-engined bombers on a two-hour raid over Balikpapan Tuesday morning. At least one was shot down.

On the coastal road between Balikpapan and Sambodja, a road the Australians already have traversed, an Aussie force caught and wiped out a party of eight Japanese laden with demolition charges.

Allied torpedo boats strafed Laoet island off southeast Borneo and shelled the Jesselton docks in north Borneo, drawing some machine gun fire in return.

On the isolated New Guinea fronts, Dutch Kittyhawks attacked enemy small craft off the northwest coast and Australian fighters supported Australian Sixth division troops who are moving into the enemy's farming area around Maprik near Wewak.

There was no confirmation here of an Australian broadcast report of a new Allied landing on Choiseul island in the Solomons.

AUSSIES PROGRESS IN BORNEO DRIVE

3-Way Attack by Superforts Sears New Areas in Japan

350 B-29s Shower 2,200 Tons of Bombs on 3 Cities, one a Chemical Center; Fleet Still Off Nippon

By The Associated Press

Guam, Friday, July 27—A sky fleet of more than 350 Superfortresses dropped more than 2,200 tons of fire bombs today on three industrial cities scattered over three home islands of Japan.

Splitting into three task forces, the Superforts in the early morning darkness roared in at medium altitude and showered their incendiaries in these three prime targets:

Omuta, one of the empire's most important chemical centers on the southernmost island of Kyushu.

Matsuyama, important port city on the western shores of the neighboring Island of Shikoku.

Tokuyama, another chemical center as well as refining city on the main home island of Honshu.

Third Blow This Week

It was the third time this week that the silvery giants of the sky had paid their devastating respects to the enemy homeland.

The first raid came Tuesday noon when a record flight of 625 B-29s hit industrial regions on Honshu. A smaller force hit oil targets near Tokyo yesterday.

Omuta had been hit by a firebomb raid June 18, but today's raid was the first on the urban areas of the other two cities although the naval fueling station and a synthetic oil plant on the Tokuyama waterfront and the Matsuyama airfield had been raided previously.

Matsuyama has a population of 122,000, Tokuyama 40,000 and Omuta 177,000. Japan's largest artificial harbor is located at Omuta.

Omuta is one of the most important chemical centers in the empire and a vital port for coal shipments. It also is the home of Japan's ten largest synthetic oil refineries and a major zinc refining district. It covers about five miles along the waterfront and extends inland for two and a half miles.

Converted for War

Matsuyama, covering about four square miles, manufactured cotton fabrics before the war but most of the mills have been converted to war production. Matsuyama, with access to the sea through the port of Mitsuhama, is connected with other cities of Shikoku Island by the national railroad system.

Tokuyama, situated about 50 miles east of Shimonseki Strait, is the home of two large soda and chemical plants, a large refinery and oil tank farms. It covers about one mile square and its houses are are of the typical Japanese frame-stucco construction, easily inflammable.

The new raid followed announcement by the 20th Air Force that devastation in Japan's urban industrial areas had reached 143 square miles in 39 cities.

"Good to excellent" results were reported from yesterday's midnight's attack by 100 Superforts on oil targets near Tokyo.

AUSSIES DRIVE 7 MI. IN EAST BORNEO

Meet no Jap Opposition in Advance; Patrols Active on West Flank

Manila, July 28—(AP)—Austral-

JUL 27 1945

ian Seventh Division forces, combing the jungle hinterlands of Dutch East Borneo between Balikpapan and captured Samt odja oil fields for isolated Japanese, advanced seven miles to the upper reaches of the Manggar River without opposition, General MacArthur announced today.

Ahead of the Aussies lay some of the toughest terrain on Borneo. The Diggers were consolidating for a movement north toward Mahakam River, third largest on the island. The wide delta of the Mahakam, resembling the mouths of the Ganges, has four channels navigable for vessels. The enemy-held town of Samarinda is the key to its control.

One column of Aussies was advancing toward Samarinda from the inland highway, still 50 miles from the objective, but other columns at Sambodja were less than half this distance.

In western Borneo, Australian forces engaged in extensive patrols from Miri to a point less than thirty miles south of Jesselton.

SHANGHAI DROMES BATTERED, FIRED BY 300 BOMBERS

MANILA, Friday, July 27. — (AP) More than 300 Far East air force bombers smashed Shanghai's air dromes Wednesday setting raging fires while other units of Gen. MacArthur's air forces returned to the attack on Japan.

Japan's hoarded fighter planes came out of hiding for the first time in weeks and intercepted Liberators as they swept in over northern Kyushu where the important air center of Tsuiki was left wrapped in flames and rocked by repeated explosions.

Fourth Heavy Attack

The attack on Shanghai's network of airfields was the fourth heavy raid in a week on that base of Japan's waning air power on the Asiatic mainland.

In the attempt to check the raid on the home island of Kyushu, at least seven Japanese fighters out of 30 that rose to challenge were shot down and an eighth probably was destroyed.

The Liberators, losing one plane, bored in doggedly over the crisscross of runways at Tsuiki. From the size of the fires that broke out bombardiers believed they had hit an oil storage area.

Other heavyweights from Okinawa cratered runways on Kikai island air strips in the Ryukyus south of Kyushu.

Liberators, Mitchells, Invaders, Thunderbolts and Mustangs of the Fifth and Seventh air forces made the co-ordinated attack on Shanghai with bombs, bullets and rockets.

Liberators rained fragmentation bombs and 100 pounders on Kiangwan, Woosung and Lungwha air fields. Mitchells drove in at medium level and hit a fourth air strip at Tachang.

Mitchells also worked over warehouses along the Whangpoo river and the mouth of the mighty Yangtse.

Invader attack bomber veterans of the fighting in the Mediterranean struck Chushan island south of Shanghai, starting fires in hangars at Tinghai air field. Thunderbolts plastered the same air field with rockets and bullets.

Planes Are Destroyed

A number of grounded air craft were destroyed and one Thunderbolt was shot down by antiaircraft fire. No Japanese interceptors were encountered.

Enemy shipping raised anchor and tried to run out of Shanghai harbor for the open sea, but they were caught by bomb-carrying Mustangs and one 3,000-ton freighter and five smaller freighters probably were sunk.

A gunboat also was probably sunk on the Whangpoo river.

Other Far East bombers ranged the Asiatic coast from Fusan, on the southern tip of Korea, where a single Seventh air force Liberator bombed the town, to Hatien, on the gulf of Siam, where three Liberators shot up 10 barges and two river boats.

Patrol planes also roamed over Japan and bombed the air field at Otake, on southern Honshu, the main home island.

HELMET SAVES LIFE

MANILA, July 25.—(AP) "Things like that might easily give a man a headache," mildly observed Sgt. Hugh E. Bullington, Barlin, Ark. A Japanese bullet had just knocked his helmet off and flipped it onto the head of a comrade.

YANKS CLOSING IN ON LUZON POCKET

Manila, July 26 (A. P.).—Combined American and Filipino forces capitalizing on a juncture at the former enemy base of Banaue in northern Luzon, pressed in today on a pocket of hungry Japanese troops, still led, so natives insist, by Lieut.-Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, blatant conqueror of Bataan and the Philippines.

A United States Thirty-second Division patrol, led by Lieut. Benjamin S. Blakelay, Dubois, Pa., came out of the Caraballo Mountains on this front and reported remnants of the Jap forces were cultivating their own vegetables to keep from starving.

The meeting of the Yankee and Filipino forces splits two of the strongest enemy outfits in the Philippines. Repeated rumors have said Yamashita was in the area, but there has been no confirmation by American headquarters.

Doolittle Aims To Make Japan A Cityless Land

Would Reduce Its People to Nomads; He Will Use 1,000 B-29s on Okinawa

OKINAWA, July 26 (AP).—American bombers will level Japanese cities, and transform the country into a nation of nomads, Lieutenant General James Doolittle predicted today.

The general, who led the first air raid on Tokyo—on April 18, 1942—personally raised the flag over his newly established 8th Air Force headquarters here and predicted his Superfortresses would be striking at Japan by late next month. They will use six or seven Okinawa airdromes, augmenting the 20th Bomber Command B-29s operating from Marianas Island bases.

"Japan will eventually be a nation without cities—a nomadic peoples," General Doolittle said. "Our B-29s can easily reach all of Japan itself and even up into Mongolia if there are any targets there."

Japan will be attacked from the air by 5,000 planes in one day, he told correspondents, until their industries and air force are destroyed.

"The actual tonnage dropped on Japan will be about twice that which was dropped on Germany from England," he said.

He said B-29s were ideal for the Pacific and required about 50 per cent less shipping of supplies for each bomb dropped.

Doolittle echoed comments of other air generals that Japan has undoubtedly a considerable number of planes, but is saving them to repel the feared invasion.

"Germany did the same thing," he observed.

The pattern of knocking out Japan is likely to be similar to that used in North Africa, Italy and Germany.

While Doolittle estimated that 1,000 Superfortresses will be required to do the job from Okinawa, he said that, "More will be sent out here if we need them."

Okinawa Mass for Chaplain

OKINAWA, July 26 (AP).—Thirty-four Catholic priests and more than 4,000 servicemen ranging from privates to generals, participated today in a huge memorial mass at the grave of the Rev. Lawrence E. Lynch, chaplain of the 27th Infantry Division, who was killed by an artillery burst on Okinawa three months ago.

Japs Dig up Aesop's Fable to Illustrate Appeal

San Francisco, July 26—(AP)—Tokyo radio dug up one of Aesop's Fables today to emphasize a plea for easier American peace terms.

The broadcast said:

"He (Aesop) suggests two methods in which a man might surrender his possessions. The wind said forcefully to the sun that he could make a passerby give up his overcoat quicker than the sun. It began to blow harder and harder, but the man held his coat tighter and tighter. The wind failed. The sun took his part. He gently smiled and warmed the passerby with his sunbeams. The passerby shed his coat."

JAPS SAY LANDING ON PUKET FAILS

Report Repulsing Scout Force Off West Coast of Malay Peninsula

San Francisco, July 26 — (AP) — An unconfirmed Japanese broadcast reported today that an American reconnaissance force landed on Puket Island, off the west coast of the Malay Peninsula yesterday but was driven back to the sea by the Japanese garrison.

Puket is in the Andaman Sea, a part of the Bay of Bengal. The island, only a few miles off the western coast of Thailand where that country juts into the Malaya Peninsula, is on the northern flank of the Strait of Malacca, waterway leading to Singapore.

This is in the British area of operations but the Japanese Domei news agency despatch said the landing force was identified as American.

The broadcast said two cruisers began shelling the island about 8 A. M. Wednesday. Behind this bombardment six transports disgorged 500 troops.

The Japanese garrison, Domei continued, "immediately counter-attacked and repulsed the enemy troops from the landing point with heavy casualties inflicted on the invaders."

B-29 Bombs Kill P. W.s

SAN FRANCISCO, July 26 (AP). —The Japanese Domei news agency said today that a prisoner-of-war camp in Kawasaki, midway between Tokyo and Yokohama, was hit by B-29 bombs during a raid last night. "Some casualties were caused among the war prisoners, who were mostly Americans," said the Tokyo broadcast, heard by the Federal Communications Commission.

Japanese Inflation Growing, Paper Says

Moscow, July 26 (AP)—The Soviet news agency Tass reported today that the Japanese newspaper Asakhi mentions a growing inflation in Japan based on the sharp increase in paper yens listed in the statement of the Japanese bank.

The sum of paper yens on July 13 had reached 25,800,000,000, an increase over the same time last year of 12,700,000,000.

Devers Declares Army Plans Single Blow to Crush Japan

Commanding General of Ground Forces Says There Is No Use Doing Job Piecemeal—7,000,000 Will Be Needed for Task.

Washington, July 26 (A. P.).—Gen. Jacob L. Devers, new Chief of the Army Ground Forces, said today that the plan is to mass a force for a single crushing blow against Japan, adding: "There's no use doing it piecemeal."

Appearing at a news conference with Acting Secretary of War Patterson, Devers said that "we hope to get these 7,000,000 (the approximate total of the Army after partial demobilization) redeployed against the Japs in a single blow."

He explained that he did not mean the whole 7,000,000 could be used "on one small island" but that they would be needed here in this country, in the pipeline of supply that feeds the forces on the Pacific front, and elsewhere.

The general was commander of the Sixth Army Group in the European fighting.

The big job now, he said, is to get the men who have been on furloughs back to camp and put them in re-training for the Pacific war. Along with them must be trained men who are coming into the Army for the first time and who will go into the reorganized outfits bound for the Pacific. The men will get a minimum of eight weeks' re-training, he said.

In this re-training, the emphasis will be on across-the-beach action, on how to rout the enemy out of caves with flamethrowers and other types of liquor fire, and on demolition of the walls that defend Japanese villages. Much time will be spent on training for night fighting, Devers added, explaining that the value of this type of warfare had been proved in Europe.

Increasingly, the General said, American-born Japanese — the Nisei—will be used in helping retrain troops for Pacific combat. He added that he did not think any large number of the Nisei who fought in Europe would fight in the Pacific because most of these men have high point scores for discharge due to long service in European combat. He praised highly the performance of the Japanese-American units under his command in Europe.

"I don't know too much about Japanese," Devers said with reference to the enemy, "but I do know about American-born Japanese. Not once did the 3,000 American-Japanese who served under my command fail to take their objectives."

86th Division Praised.

Patterson singled out for special praise the 86th Division—first to complete furloughs after return from Europe and to start retraining for the Pacific.

Patterson said reports from Camp Gruber, Okla., where the division under Major-Gen. Harris M. Melasky is undergoing retraining, make it apparent its officers and men have "mature appreciation of the job which lies ahead of them."

Patterson said: "These men have already met the Germans in Europe. They know war. But they also know that they have a duty as Americans, and they are prepared to perform it with determination. I am sure the nation will take as much pride as I do in this fine division."

who came here with plans to establish a government in exile, declined comment on the trip. Alvarez del Vayo said they plan to continue their conferences with other Republican leaders here.

CANADIAN DOLLAR RATE TO STAND

Washington, July 26 (A. P.).—The exchange rate between Canadian and United States dollars, once fixed under the Bretton Woods agreement, must be kept at that figure by each country, a Treasury spokesman said today. Any later change in the rate may then be made only according to express provisions of the agreement, recently approved by Congress.

Ottawa, July 26 (A. P.).—Finance Minister Ilsley said today the Government sees no evidence that under present circumstances a change in the rate of exchange on the Canadian dollar would be appropriate.

Contrary to impressions in certain quarters, he said, on balance Canada owes the United States more now than at the beginning of the war. His statement had reference largely to recent rumors that the Canadian dollar, now at a 10 per cent discount, would be placed on a parity with the United States dollar.

Red Plea Gets Mixed Reaction

Senator Taft Says $700,000,000 Requested Is Beyond Scale of the UNRRA.

Washington, July 26 (A. P.).—Russia's request for $700,000,000 worth of the UNRRA aid met a mixed reception in Congress today.

Simultaneously, but without reference to the Russian appeal, a UNRRA official said that the agency's funds are running low and that nations participating in its relief and rehabilitation operations might be asked to increase their contributions. These now are fixed at 1 per cent of their national income for one year.

The Soviet Government's initial application for help was disclosed by Roy F. Hendrickson, UNRRA deputy director, yesterday. He said the request would be screened to determine Russia's ability to import goods and pay for them.

Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) said:

"I am very much afraid they won't get that much. I don't think the UNRRA is going to operate on such a large scale.

"We (the United States) are down for only $1,350,000,000 and I don't think we've put in more than 75 per cent so far (the UNRRA said $800,000,000). I don't think anybody else has put in anything very much." (Hendrickson disputed this, saying nine nations have authorized their full one per cent.)

Senator Tunnell (D.-Del.) said: "The Russians were a terrific help in the war and I hope they get their proportion from this fund."

Russia said that details of her needs would be furnished later.

Hendrickson said that the UNRRA would need about $325,000,000 a month for the remainder of this year. A total of $1,862,788,348 has been authorized or is in the process of authorization by the forty-four participating nations. Through June 30 $296,563,000 had been spent for shipment of 1,304,298 long tons of supplies to liberated areas. The UNRRA probably will run out of funds by the end of this year, he said, and all nations may be asked at next months' council meeting in London for an additional assessment for 1946 op[illegible]

He added that [illegible]gency plans to taper off [illegible]rations next year because the Bretton Woods monetary program and similar measures should permit more and more countries to buy goods. Russia's request, plus $945,000,000 sought by China and more than $600,000,000 asked by Poland, far exceed total authorized expenditures to date.

Of the forty-four nations in the UNRRA, twenty-three are making or have pledged contributions for operations. The other twenty-one are invaded countries which contributed only toward administrative expenses. These contributions to date total, in paid and pledged amounts, around $18,000,000 for the years 1944 and 1945. Russia is in the latter category. She has paid $200,000 and is about to pay another $800,000 toward expenses. She will then owe $250,000 for 1945.

Hendrickson said that the United States now pays 70 per cent of the UNRRA operating expense and 40 per cent of its administrative costs. To critics, he said today:

"In the last war we paid 100 per cent. We are getting off a little cheaper this time."

WILEY CHIDES RUSSIA

Senator Says She Must Disavow Red Groups in Democracies

WASHINGTON, July 26 (AP)—Senator Alexander Wiley, Republican, of Wisconsin, declared today that Russia must repudiate the Communist parties in democracies or she would cause ill will with her Allies.

"It is unfortunate that simultaneous with the Senate's constructive consideration of the United Nations Charter, there is occurring in New York a secret convention which may do much to undo our work here," he said in a statement.

Senator Wiley said the convention was being held by the Communist Political Association. Its purpose, he said, was "apparently to ratify the new revolutionary line of class warfare approved by the national committee of that association. Then, it is expected that the Communists will reassume their roles as an active political party."

Truman Curbs 'Junket' Plans Of Legislators

It's Stay Home or Pay Own Way Unless Congress Has Formally Approved Trip

WASHINGTON, July 26 (AP)—The White House put a damper today on "junket" plans of many members of Congress who had hoped to spend the Congressional recess touring the world.

In effect, the President said stay home or pay your own expenses unless the trip has formal approval of Congress.

An estimated 100 House members had arranged official and unofficial foreign tours between now and the re-convening of Congress on Oct. 8. Just how many will be affected by President Truman's directive on the subject was uncertain.

But at least four House committees expressly authorized to travel during the recess went ahead with their plans.

The President's memorandum, sent to Speaker Sam Rayburn by White House aids, in effect reiterated a recent ban laid down by the late President Roosevelt against Congressional tours under Army or Navy auspices and at Army or Navy expense unless they had been formally approved by Congress.

Within the last few months word reached Capitol Hill that President Truman believed any member of Congress who wanted to go abroad should be given an opportunity. Immediately a general exodus started.

The new regulation was understood to have resulted from an avalanche of applications to the War Department for clearance for free or cut-rate trips.

Committees already authorized to travel will pay their own way out of Congressional funds.

A subcommittee of the House Foreign Affairs Committee will leave Aug. 5 for England, France and Italy. They will be followed on Aug. 12 by another group from the same committee to visit Russia and the Balkans.

On Aug. 28 about twenty members of the House Commerce Committee will leave for England and Europe to study newsprint, communications, aviation and petroleum.

About Aug. 7 six members of the State Department subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee expects to leave for foreign capitals. They have been invited by the State Department and do not consider their plans affected by Mr. Truman's directive.

Two other House committees—Roads and Territories—plan to investigate in Alaska and Latin-American during the recess.

Several other groups, not specifically authorized to travel, are awaiting clarification of the President's order.

Pan-American Road Spending Built Good Will, Says Lutes

WASHINGTON, July 26 — (AP) Lt. Gen. Leroy Lutes told the Senate War Investigating committee today that the $44,220,000 expenditure on the Pan-American highway had accomplished one main purpose of improving relations with Central American countries.

Chief of Staff of the Army Service Forces, Lutes asserted that it was understood from the outset that this was "one of the principal advantages to be derived from the project."

Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) commented that a "controlling factor" in the whole matter appeared to have been an effort to aid the economies of the Central American countries.

The project, involving construction of 905 miles of road between the Mexican-Guatemalan border and the Panama Canal, was begun by the Army in July, 1942, and was dropped Oct. 31, 1943, after some 600 miles was completed.

The Army Service Forces recommended it originally as a land route for movement of war materials to the Canal Zone. It was intended to connect the canal with a railroad ending at the Mexican border.

Under Ferguson's questioning, Lutes acknowledged that the railroad had been unable to move the construction materials needed and much had to be sent by ship.

Denies War Hindered

He repeatedly denied, however, that work on the project had interfered with the war effort. Earlier, the committee had put into its record a memorandum by Lt. Gen. Eugene Reybold, chief of Army engineers, dated April 9, 1943, which said the work had interfered with the war effort.

The Army General Staff had approved the project only on condition that no critical materials be used and that it not interfere with conduct of the war.

Senator Robertson (R-Wyo) read from data submitted by the Army that 75 tons of rubber and 480,000 gallons of gasoline were allocated to the project. However, Col. J. P. McNamara, an Army Finance officer, testified that he did not believe that amount of gasoline actually was sent to the project.

"In point of fact," Lutes said, "the amount of critical materials, transportation facilities and manpower used on the project was so small as to be almost negligible in relation to the benefits sought to be obtained from the project and particularly in relation to the entire war effort."

He said only 100 tons of new steel were allocated to the project. Some 600 tons of salvaged steel also were used, he added.

Lutes testified 2,685 pieces of construction equipment were used but called this "only a small percentage" of this country's equipment pool.

McNamara said much of this equipment eventually was transferred to other projects. He estimated that, allowing for value of this equipment, the net cost to the Army of the work done was $36,000,000.

M'MAHON URGES ITALY BE GIVEN FULL ALLY ROLE

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Recognition of Italy as a full ally was advocated as "long overdue" by U. S. Senator Brien McMahon (D-Conn.) in a statewide radio broadcast tonight which originated from his office here.

Senator McMahon declared that he hoped that Italy would be accorded the right of joining the United Nations at the Big Three conference which is now going on at Potsdam.

"Should, through the pressure of great obligations and heavy duties at Potsdam, the three leaders conferring there fail to make some provision for the Italian nation," Senator McMahon said, "I promise you that I will endeavor to secure passage of a measure now pending in the Congress when it reconvenes in October."

Senator McMahon declared that while there has been some improvement since V-E day, conditions still are desperate, since civilian transportation facilities, factory areas and entire communities were wiped out during the war.

"Italy has earned the right to be accepted as a member of the United Nations by the blood of her men, the famine of her children and the suffering of her women," Senator McMahon declared. "To continue to humiliate Italy by refusing her admission once more to the family of nations would not be in keeping with the spirit of the great conferences at Tehran, Yalta, and Potsdam.

"We promised the people of Italy when we entered their country that we came as liberators and not as conquerors."

He quoted President Roosevelt's statement on Italy, made in a radio address on July 29, 1943, and continued:

"Certainly the Italy of tomorrow, the democratic Italy that all of us desire must be brought into being. The people are waiting for the opportunity to carry these ideals through to fruition.

"I trust that this entire situation will be thoroughly and earnestly canvassed by President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin. I hope they will evolve a formula by which Italy will be permitted to achieve the greatness of destiny which is rightfully hers.

"To make sure that the people of Italy have the chance to get their fair share of the necessities of life, I trust that the penalty of once having been an enemy nation will be removed."

Speaking of the measure to make it the policy of this country to make Italy a member of the United Nations, Senator McMahon said:

"Surely nothing could be more fair than that. I hope that this can be done and that the Italian nation will again be accorded her rightful place among the freedom-loving nations of earth."

Transport Director Resigns

Washington, July 26 (AP)—Charles P. Taft, of Cincinnati, has resigned as director of the Office of Transport and Communication Policy in the State Department.

GENERAL DOUBTS MASS RAPE STORY

WASHINGTON, July 26 — (AP) General Jacob L. Devers, replying to allegations by Senator Eastland (D-Miss) said today he believed there was no mass rape by French colonial troops in Stuttgart.

He said, however, that there were cases of individual attack on women because "I know that they (French Army authorities) shot at least 12 soldiers, Moroccans, Algerians and Goums" on charges of rape. He added that other cases were reported.

Dever discussed the matter at a news conference, in response to question.

One report, the General said, was that 2,500 women had been raped in a tunnel in Stuttgart after the German city fell to Allied troops under Devers' command in late April. He asserted his own belief that the figure was nearer 300 and that these were individual cases.

Devers said he based his opinion on an investigation which he ordered immediately after the stories reached him. The General said he went into Stuttgart personally and left an inspector there to interview reported victims. An American doctor accompanied the General. In no instance, Devers asserted, was evidence found of the alleged mass rape.

Eastland had said the reports described the Colonial troops allegedly involved as Senegalese, who are African natives of Negro stock.

Devers said that to his knowledge only four Senegalese were in the Stuttgart area, the Colonial contingents being made up of Moroccans, Algerians and Goums.

Senators Find Inspection Lax At Plane Plants

Assert in Curtiss-Wright SurveyThatArmyRetains Inefficient at Their Jobs

WASHINGTON, July 26 (AP).—The Army's inspection procedure at Curtiss-Wright airplane plants in Buffalo was labeled "inadequate" by the Senate War Investigating Committee today.

"Existing inspection and engineering deficiencies are being poorly handled," the committee said in a report. "Army Air Force inspectors who are known to be inefficient are retained in their positions."

Presenting the report to the Senate, Senator Hugh B. Mitchell, Democrat, of Washington, chairman of a subcommittee which held hearings in Buffalo, told his colleagues that both the company and the War Department had promised immediate correction of "deficiencies."

G. W. Vaughan, Curtiss-Wright president, said in a statement that the company "welcomes the committee's recommendations and will make the fullest possible use of them in the interest of maintaining high standards of quality and production." He added: "We are gratified to have the committee confirm that 'Curtiss-Wright and the men and women employed by the corporation have made valuable contributions to the war effort.'"

The committee was critical of the C-45, two-engine cargo plane made by Curtiss-Wright. It said the plane has "a comparatively unsatisfactory service record, due principally to fuel system difficulties, gas tank leakage and hydraulic troubles, all of which contributed to high maintenance."

Steps have been taken to correct some of these defects, it was added.

Expressing amazement, the committee said it found that the War Department kept no records of airplane accidents occurring outside the continental United States.

For that reason, statistics are incomplete and inconclusive, it said, but those available "indicate that the C-46 has a generally worse accident rate than the C-47 and the C-54, which are comparable planes."

The C-46 has been used in flying supplies from India to China over the Himalayan "Hump."

STRIKES PERIL B-29 RAIDS

Patterson Issues Sharp Warning To Engine Workers

Washington, July 26 (AP)—Robert P. Patterson, acting Secretary of War, said tonight that airplane worker strikes in Chicago and New Jersey will stop the B-29 attacks on Japan unless the men go back to work at once.

Thus, he said, the strikes will be doing something the entire Japanese empire has been trying unsuccessfully to achieve.

Patterson's Statement

Patterson said in a statement:

"The entire Japanese empire has been unable to stop the heavy B-29 attacks on Japanese war industries but the strikes at the Wright aeronautical plant at the Paterson (N.J.) and Dodge division of the Chrysler Corporation in Chicago will stop those attacks unless the strikes are terminated at once.

"These two plants manufacture four-fifths of all B-29 engines. The supply of these engines is so short that the B-29 attacks on Japan will be reduced within a matter of days if these strikes continue. That will mean an unnecessary prolongation of the war."

Union Spokesman Replies

In Chicago, Robert Wright, president of Local 274, United Automobile Workers, the striking union, replied to Patterson by asking him to send telegrams to both union and management, and said that it might be "possible that the people will return immediately to work and wait further negotiations."

Wright's statement asserted such a telegram would "restore the confidence of the people who are working in the Dodge Chicago plant that there are people who are interested in winning the war with Japan, and who are not like the people in Chrysler who are interested only in making a profit out of the war."

Upward of 18,000 workers were out at the Dodge Chicago plant, world's largest airplane engine plant, in the second day of a strike which a union spokesman said involved "a tremendous accumulation of grievances."

Engine Production Halted

At Paterson, N.J., part of the 30,000 striking workers at five Wright plants shouted down back-to-work pleas of CIO union executives as the work stoppage at plants in Wood-Ridge, Paterson and East Paterson continued.

Officials of the Dodge and Wright plants said production of B-29 engines had been halted by the strikes. Only one plant, a Wright factory at Lockland, Ohio, employing 4,500 workers, continued to produce the war-vital engines.

Fists flew as fights among members of union factions broke out in Paterson. Loudspeakers carried proceedings of Wright strikers to an overflow crowd in a street outside union headquarters.

204th Dispute

Company spokesmen described the Dodge-Chicago strike as "carefully organized," and asserted it was called "without presenting a grievance or demand, or any way attempting to follow bargaining procedure."

The company reported a meeting with union representatives was held to discuss ways of getting the men back to work and added the company told the UAW men it "would discuss any grievance they wished to present after they called off the strike and returned to work."

The Dodge strike was the two hundred and fourth labor dispute at the plant since manufacture of B-29 engines began in 1943. But the present walkout marked the first complete production stoppage.

The 48,000 workers involved in the Illinois and New Jersey work stoppages comprised more than half of the nation's total idle.

Detroit Pickets Withdrawn

In Detroit, picket lines were withdrawn at the United States Rubber Company, where some 5,000 workers have been on strike since July 14 in protest against the dismissal of twelve employés. Some 900 workers went through the picket lines Wednesday as officials of the CIO-Rubber Workers Union and army personnel urged the strikers to return to their jobs.

At Springfield, Ore., the Springfield Plywood Corporation was operating under the management of army officials who took over control Wednesday on orders of President Truman, and efforts were under way to expedite more than 9,000,000 board feet of war orders on hand. More than 300 workers walked out July 19 in a dispute over refusal of the NLRB to allow a bargaining election.

CASUALTY RISE OF 5,741 INCLUDES 3,327 KILLED

Navy's 2,963, Army's 2,778 in Week bring Total to 1,058,842

Washington, July 26—(AP)—The Nation's war casualties rose to 1,058,842 today, an increase of 5,741, including 3,327 killed, in the last week.

Army figures included 920,220 killed, wounded and missing, an increase of 2,778 over last week. The Navy reported 138,622 casualties for an increase of 2,963.

Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson gave the War Department figures at a news conference. He listed Army killed at 196,918, wounded, 569,696, missing, 35,708 and prisoners, 117,898. Of the prisoners, he said 94,965 are officially recorded as exchanged or returned to military control.

The Army's totals last week were 194,447 killed, 568,976 wounded, 36,303 missing, and 117,716 prisoners.

The Navy casualties as of July 23 were announced as: Killed, 51,219, wounded, 72,066, missing, 11,578, prisoners, 4,759. These compared with July 19 totals of killed, 50,363, wounded 70,072, missing, 11,431, prisoners, 3,793.

Patterson said 349,197 of the Army's 569,696 wounded have returned to duty. The Army report covers its casualty status through July 21.

Suwannee Hit by Kamikazes

WASHINGTON, July 26 (AP).—The escort carrier Suwannee received damage from suicide plane attacks on two successive days, last Oct. 25 and 26, during the battle for Leyte Gulf, the Navy reported today.

The second suicide crash, which was accompanied almost immediately by a bomb hit, put the ship out of operation.

The Suwannee's battle damage was first announced by the Navy April 6 after she had been repaired at the Puget Sound Navy Yard and returned to action.

Since mention of Japanese suicide tactics was still forbidden under Navy security regulations at that time, however, the ship's damage was described only as bomb hits. Since then, however, the security rule has been lifted, and the Navy today completed details of the action, which began at the height of the battle off Samar between Japan's large battleship force and the little escort carriers of the United States Fleet.

Spice, Snap Characterize 'Ickes' News Conference

WASHINGTON, July 26—(AP) Sitting in on one of Harold Ickes' news conferences is something like getting a quick digest of an almanac, the morning newspaper and Joe Miller's joke book.

The Secretary of the Interior had another one of his get-togethers today and even the prospect that he may move out of his post didn't seem to dull his interest. He caught a hundred-odd queries and tossed back replies with the usual spice, snap and succinctness.

He covers a lot of ground. For instance today he summed up the coal situation in Europe and at home—said it was bad both places and getting little better. And he said again that the fuel oil situation at home is going to be tight.

He replied to 13 different questions in 13 different ways and still told nothing about any plans to move out of the cabinet.

He touched upon proposed shipments of oil to the Argentine. He said a report on the fishing rights of Alaskan Indians would be along shortly. And the same for the Parker river wildlife refuge in Massachusetts. He said the hunting regulations for the country would be announced in about a week.

He was asked about pay differentials among territorial employes and turned to his undersecretary for the answer. Undersecretary Abe Fortas replied that the question now was being discussed "at high levels." Ickes turned back to the reporter and complained: "He won't tell me."

A woman reporter queried: "Wouldn't you like to stay on in your present job until V-J day?"

"Are you making me a proposition?" he asked.

Someone wanted to know whether Ickes would like to see a coal commissioner named such as there is in organized baseball and whether he'd like the job. "What's it pay?" He wanted to know. The reporter's reply was that the baseball job pays $50,000. "Salary or expenses?" the secretary inquired.

Someone was anxious to end the already long conference and asked if there was anything else on which the secretary would like to express an opinion. "You could try me," Ickes suggested.

But no one did and the 40 reporters left what may be the last regular news conference of the dean of the cabinet, "the Old Curmudgeon," the 71-year-old Harold Leclair Ickes.

Six Kinds of Canned Foods Take More Points Sunday

Reduction Ordered in Rationing Values of Nearly All Meat.

WASHINGTON, July 26—(AP) Six kinds of canned and bottled foods will cost more ration points beginning Sunday but citrus juice and catsup will have lower point value.

The OPA announced this tonight after ordering reductions in values in nearly all cuts of beef, veal and lamb for the period from Sunday through Sept. 1.

Depends on Container

Ten or 20-point increases, depending on container size, were assigned for canned spinach, asparagus, apple sauce, apples, apricots, and grape juice.

Grapefruit juice and blended orange and grapefruit juice in 46 ounce cans will require 10 points instead of 20, while 10 points will buy two number 2 cans of such juice. The value previously was 10 points for each number 2 can.

OPA said that new supplies of asparagus and spinach will be only about half the amount available for civilians from the previous pack.

Smaller civilian supplies of both canned apples and applesauce are also in prospect, OPA said, adding that canned apricot supplies for civilians for the coming year will be about one third less than last year.

Grape juice supplies were described as dwindling rapidly.

New point values for the most widely used containers of the processed foods being changed are:

Spinach — Number 2 cans 30 points, up 10; number 2 1-2 cans, 50 points, up 20.

Asparagus—Number 2 cans, 30 points, up 10.

Applesauce—Number 2 cans, 20 points, up 10.

Apricots—Number 2 1-2 cans, 50 points, up 20.

Grape juice—Pints, 40 points, up 10; quarts, 70 points, up 20.

Grapefruit juice and blended orange and grapefruit juice—46-ounce cans, 10 points, down 10; number two cans, 10 points for two cans previously 10 points a can.

Tomato catsup and chili sauce—14-ounce containers, 10 points, down 10 points.

Meat Supply Boosted

The cuts in meat point values were made possible, OPA said, by a boost of nearly 10 per cent in the August supply over current levels.

All but one of many reductions, effective from next Sunday through Sept. 1 are one or two points a pound. The single exception is boneless rump of beef, which is down three points.

Most steaks are down two points, with one or two point cuts for roast, chops, and other cuts.

Cut point values on all pork cuts and other red point foods are being maintained.

Price Administrator Chester Bowles said the lower point values for most meat together with the eight-point cut in the butter value which became effective July 15 would "ease the strain on red-point budgets." He attributed the meat point reductions and the supply improvements to three developments:

1.—A slash in the amount of meat required by the armed forces.

2.—The slaughter control program put into effect May 1 to increase shipment of meat across State lines to shortage areas.

3.—A "fair distribution" which became effective in June. This requires slaughterers to ship into the same geographical areas they served early in 1944.

OPA estimated that meat supplies in August will be up about 9.5 per cent from this month. There will be more beef, veal, lamb and mutton, but less pork.

10 BILLION IN CUTBACKS IS AID TO RECONVERSION

Industry is Taking Advantage of Decline in War Contracts

Washington, July 26—(AP)—American industry, taking advantage of a $16,300,000,000 cut in war contracts affecting nearly 2,500 plants during the first half of the year, has made excellent progress toward reconversion.

So saying, WPB added in a statement that while reconversion cannot go faster than resources are released from war production, some industries have made outstanding progress.

Mentioned particularly were manufacturers of automobiles, electric appliances, domestic refrigerators, laundry equipment, sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, cooking and heating stoves, commercial refrigerator equipment, plumbing and heating equipment, office equipment and printing and publishing machinery.

Despite the good start toward reconversion, WPB refused to predict when individual manufacturers will be back in civilian production or when their products will reach the market.

In another report covering June munitions production as well as contract cutbacks in the first six months of 1945, the agency said the production rate by December will be 32 per cent under March, the last month of full two-front output.

Easing Of Control On Wages Sought

Washington, July 26 (AP)—Public members of the War Labor Board tentatively proposed today to ease just a little the rigid wage controls which have stood for most of the war.

The members of the board who wield the balance of power between an equal number of labor and industry representatives, and thus generally control board policy, will have a formal plan ready for Economic Stabilization Director William H. Davis by early next week.

A rough outline of the proposal, to permit without board approval pay increases which are agreed upon through collective bargaining or otherwise by employers and employés but which do not necessitate price increases, already has gone to Davis. He left on a two-week Maine vacation with this proposition.

U. S. Destroyer Honors Joseph P. Kennedy Jr.

Family of Former Envoy's Son and Officials at Launching

QUINCY, Mass., July 26 (AP).—The U. S. S. Joseph P. Kennedy jr., a 2,200-ton destroyer named in honor of the heroic eldest son of the former American Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, was launched today at the yards of the Bethlehem Steel Company.

The ship was sponsored by Miss Jean Kennedy, of Hyannisport, Mass., sister of the Naval Air Corps lieutenant who was awarded posthumously the coveted Navy Cross.

Lieutenant Kennedy was reported missing a year ago when he failed to return from a special bombing mission in the European war area and later was declared dead. He was awarded the Navy's highest decoration "for extraordinary heroism and courage in aerial flight as a pilot of a United States Liberator bomber on Aug. 12, 1944."

Born in 1915 at Nantasket, Mass., and a graduate of Harvard and the Harvard Law School, Lieutenant Kennedy enlisted in the Naval Reserve Oct. 15, 1941. He had been promoted to the rank of lieutenant only a month before his death.

Among those attending the ceremony were Governor and Mrs. Maurice J. Tobin, Representative and Mrs. John W. McCormack, William J. Foley, District Attorney of Suffolk County; Mr. and Mrs. John F. Fitzgerald, Kennedy jr.'s grandparents, and the entire Kennedy family.

Assisting Miss Kennedy as sponsor were Miss Mary Carroll Mann, of East Hampton, L. I., and Miss Mary Jo Gargan, of Lowell, who acted as maids of honor.

A reception for the sponsors followed the launching ceremonies at Neighborhood House.

Naval Academy Assigns Women As Instructors

Annapolis, July 26 (AP)—For the first time in its century of existence, the Naval Academy has assigned women to its staff of instructors, the Public Relations Office disclosed yesterday.

The women, all members of the WAVES, are Alta Gray, Cumberland Center, Maine, s/2c; Katherine Ushec, Jersey City, N.J., s/1c, and Rosemary Grimes, Oakland, Cal., s/2c.

Misses Gray and Ushec are assigned to mechanical work involved in installation of equipment used for marine navigation and operation of Link trainer instruments.

Miss Grimes has been assigned to the Annapolis naval air unit as a Link trainer instructor.

She will give basic training to plebes freshly arrived from civilian life, and later will instruct young pilots in instrument flying and radio range under indoor artificial horizons.

Chiang's Aide At Fort Knox

Fort Knox, Ky., July 26 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Chien-shih Tu, military aide to China's Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and deputy commandant of the national defense college at Chungking, is a visitor at Fort Knox where he will remain until Saturday.

May Not Refuse Jobs To Japs or Germans

Albany, July 26 (A. P.).—New York employers who refuse jobs to persons of Japanese or German blood because of their racial origina are violating the State's new anti-bias law, a member of the Commission Against Discrimination asserted today.

Julian J. Reiss said in an interview that "the law protects all persons in the United States excepting those known to be enemy aliens. If a firm refuses employment to a Jap, for instance, only because he is a Jap and we are at war with Japan, the firm is in violation." He added that hiring exceptions could be made for firms engaged in vital war work where the War Department requests that persons of certain nationalities not be employed.

WRITER'S MATE WOUNDED

SAN FRANCISCO, July 26—(AP) One of the last mortar shells fired by the Japanese on Okinawa wounded Marine 1st Lt. Robert Herwig, former University of California football star and husband of Kathleen Windsor, author of the best seller "Forever Amber," Marine corps sources revealed today. A shell fragment struck Herwig just above the knee on the 82nd day of fighting. He had been wounded twice before on Guam, where he won the Navy cross for outstanding heroism.

Super-Mustang Ready For Action in Pacific

Fastest of Propeller-Driven Planes Does 460 Miles

INGLEWOOD, Calif., July 26 (AP).—North American Aviation, Inc., announced today that America's fastest propeller-driven plane, named the P-51H Mustang, has been in production for months and is now ready for action in the far Pacific.

The company said the new plane was designed to meet the Army Air Forces' demand for a fighter with more speed, longer range and higher ceiling for exacting Pacific combat conditions.

Although exact performance figures are secret, the War Department permitted the company to disclose that the P-51H will travel "more than 460 miles an hour," has a combat range of "more than 2,000 miles" and will operate efficiently "up to 42,000 feet."

"Fittings to carry ten 'zero rail' rockets under the wings give the P-51H a destructive blast equal to a destroyer's full broadside," said the announcement.

The new Mustang climbs 26 per cent faster than earlier models, is 10 per cent stronger, 700 pounds lighter and has 37 per cent more range, the company stated.

9,996 TROOPS DUE AT BOSTON TODAY

BOSTON, July 26—(AP) The greatest number of military personnel to arrive in Boston on one day since the victory in Europe—a few less than 10,000—are listed to debark from three transports tomorrow.

Three brigadier generals are among the 9,996 persons due to arrive aboard the Wakefield, a Coast Guard manned Navy transport, the SS Explorer and the SS Santa Maria, both operated by the War Shipping administration.

The three brigadiers, from the advance detachment of the Sixth Army corps, are Reuben E. Jenkins of Columbus, Ga., Eugene L. Harrison of Brownsville, Tex., and Emil Lenzer of Washington, D. C.

CHURCHILL WAS BORN NOV. 30, 1874, AT BLENHEIM CASTLE, WOODSTOCK, OXFORDSHIRE. ALTHOUGH HE LIKED TO RECALL THAT HIS MOTHER WAS AN AMERICAN--SHE WAS THE FORMER JENNIE JEROME OF NEW YORK--HE ALWAYS THOUGHT OF HIMSELF FIRST AS A BRITON AND A LEADER OF THE BRITISH PEOPLE. "I DID NOT BECOME THE KING'S FIRST MINISTER," HE SAID AT ONE CRISIS, "TO PRESIDE OVER THE LIQUIDATION OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE."

KA182AEW

LONDON, JULY 26-(AP)-THE LABOR PARTY TOOK OVER THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT TODAY WITH POWER ENOUGH TO SHIFT THE FOUNDATIONS OF ONE OF THE WORLD'S MOST SOLID ECONOMIES.

IT SURGED INTO OFFICE WITH THE INTENTION OF NATIONALIZING EVERY BASIC INDUSTRY IN THE UNITED KINGDOM, MAKING THE "OLD LADY OF THREADNEEDLE STREET"--THE BANK OF ENGLAND--PUBLIC PROPERTY, AND ULTIMATELY NATIONALIZING LAND.

THE SWEEPING SCOPE OF THE SOCIALIST PROGRAM MADE IT ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE TO JUDGE, AT THIS TIME, THE FULL EFFECT ON THE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL LIFE OF GREAT BRITAIN. NEVERTHELESS, CONSERVATIVE OLD ENGLAND APPEARS TO BE IN FOR ONE OF THE GREATEST REFORMS OF ITS LONG HISTORY.

PREMIER CLEMENT ATTLEE AND HIS PARTY HAVE SAID THEY INTEND TO GAIN CONTROL OF EVERY INDUSTRY WHICH HAS MADE ENGLAND GREAT, TO PLACE THEM IN THE HANDS OF THE PEOPLE AND IF POSSIBLE TO MAKE THEM STRONGER AND MORE PRODUCTIVE.

ONE OF THE LABORITES' FIRST GOALS IS THE CONSOLIDATION OF EVERY FORM OF INLAND TRANSPORT. THEY WISH TO WELD INTO ONE ECONOMIC WHOLE, UNDER GOVERNMENT CONTROL, ALL RAILROADS OF THE UNITED KINGDOM, ALL COMMERCIAL CARRIERS ON HIGHWAYS AND ALL COASTAL SHIPPING.

COMPLETELY OUT OF PATIENCE WITH THE COUNTRY'S COAL MINING SITUATION, THE LABORITES PROPOSE TO TAKE OVER EVERY COAL MINE IN THE COUNTRY, OPERATING THEM NOT ONLY TO GIVE MINERS A COMFORTABLE LIVING WAGE BUT TO PRODUCE ENOUGH COAL FOR BRITAIN'S DOMESTIC NEEDS AND ENOUGH SURPLUS TO MAINTAIN A HEALTHY EXPORT TRADE. MODERNIZATION OF THE WHOLE COAL MINING PRACTICE IS A PART OF THIS PICTURE.

THE NEXT STEP IN THEIR PROGRAM IS NATIONALIZATION OF THE COUNTRY'S IRON AND STEEL INDUSTRY, LONG A BACKBONE OF BRITAIN'S INTERNATIONAL TRADE, AND THEN NATIONALIZATION OF THE BANK OF ENGLAND.

WHILE THESE MEASURES MIGHT SEEM EXTREME TO THE AVERAGE AMERICAN READER, THEY HAVE BEEN THE MAINSTAY OF THE SOCIALIST PROGRAM FOR DECADES. NOT UNTIL NOW HAS THE LABOR PARTY GAINED STRENGTH TO PUT THEM INTO EFFECT.

THE LABORITES ALSO STAND FOR THE NATIONALIZATION OF LAND, BUT THEY HAVE NOT PROMISED VOTERS THAT THIS PROGRAM WOULD BE PUT INTO EFFECT IMMEDIATELY. GREAT BRITAIN HAS BEEN A NATION OF LANDLORDS, IMMENSELY RICH, AND LABORITES RECOGNIZE THE FINANCIAL MOUNTAIN WHICH MUST BE SURMOUNTED BEFORE THE GOVERNMENT CAN JUSTLY GAIN CONTROL OF AGRICULTURAL RESOURCES.

A34

IN MANY QUARTERS THERE HAS BEEN A DEMAND THAT BRITAIN'S LAND BE PUT TO THE FULLEST POSSIBLE USE. THAT'S WHAT THE LABOR PARTY SAYS IT HOPES TO ACHIEVE IN GAINING CONTROL OF BIG ESTATES OF FARMLAND AND FOREST.

WHILE AMERICAN OBSERVERS MIGHT GASP AT THE BREADTH OF THE LABOR PROGRAM, ENGLISH SAID THEY SHOULD CONSIDER THAT BRITISH SOCIALISM IS A VERY MILD VARIETY AND HAS A LONG, LONG WAY TO GO TO ACHIEVE EVEN ITS PRIMARY AIMS.

SOCIOLOGICALLY, THE COUNTRY IS FAR BEHIND THE UNITED STATES, BRITISHERS ASSERT. THE GOVERNMENT ENFORCES NO MINIMUM HOURS, MINIMUM WAGES OR SOCIAL SECURITY. PERHAPS THE BEST SOCIAL SECURITY PROGRAM CAME FROM SIR WILLIAM BEVERIDGE, A LIBERAL DEFEATED IN THE GENERAL ELECTION. WHILE TALKING ABOUT A GRAND PLAN OF NATIONALIZATION, THE LABOR PARTY MADE NO SOLID PROMISES FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OF THE WORKINGMAN'S HOURS OR WAGES.

JUL 27 1945

BY HENRY B.JAMESON

LONDON, JULY 26-(AP)-TODAY'S SOCIALIST LANDSLIDE SWEPT OUT OF OFFICE SCORES OF BRITISH POLITICIANS, CABINET MINISTERS AND WARTIME EXECUTIVES WHOSE NAMES HAD BECOME WELL KNOWN TO AMERICANS.

THE COUNTRY'S TWO BEST KNOWN AMBASSADORS--WINSTON CHURCHILL AND ANTHONY EDEN--WERE REELECTED, BUT THEY WERE STRIPPED OF THE VAST POWER AND PRESTIGE WHICH HAD BEEN THEIRS SINCE THE GLOOMY DAYS BEFORE DUNKERQUE.

INSTEAD OF BEING HEADS OF GOVERNMENT WHEN PARLIAMENT RECONVENES NEXT MONTH, THEY WILL BE JUST TWO MORE MEMBERS OF THE MINORITY PARTY, WITH CHURCHILL THE LEADER OF THE OPPOSITION. EDEN IS A CAREER DIPLOMAT WHO HAS BEEN IN POLITICS ALL HIS ADULT LIFE.

CLEMENT ATTLEE, TITULAR HEAD OF THE LABOR PARTY, WHO WAS REELECTED BY A BIG MAJORITY FROM THE LIMEHOUSE DISTRICT OF LONDON, WILL SUCCEED CHURCHILL AS PRIME MINISTER. PORTLY ERNEST BEVIN, MINISTER OF LABOR IN THE WARTIME COALITION GOVERNMENT, AND HUGH DALTON, FORMER PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF TRADE, ARE COUNTED AS LABOR'S MOST LIKELY CHOICES TO SUCCEED EDEN.

WITH SOME OF THE CONSTITUENCIES STILL TO BE HEARD FROM, AT LEAST 27 OF CHURCHILL'S MINISTERIAL AND CABINET APPOINTEES HAD BEEN DEFEATED.

FROM THE VERY START OF THE DELAYED COUNT OF BALLOTS CAST ON JULY 5 A STRONG SWING TOWARD SOCIALISM WAS CLEAR. HEADS FELL RAPIDLY AMONG THE CONSERVATIVES. SHOCK FOLLOWED SHOCK AS THE DAY WORE ON.

BRENDAN BRACKEN, FIRST LORD OF THE ADMIRALTY AND ONE OF CHURCHILL'S CLOSEST ADVISERS, LOST TO GEN. SIR MASON MACFARLANE, LABOR, BY 6,000 VOTES IN A WEST LONDON DISTRICT. AIR MINISTER HAROLD MAC MILLAN LOST BY ABOUT 9,000 VOTES, AND SIR JAMES GRIGG, MINISTER OF WAR, RAN 4,000 BEHIND HIS LABOR OPPONENT AT CARDIFF.

LABOR'S "BIG FIVE" RODE IN SIDE BY SIDE AS HERBERT MORRISON, HOME SECRETARY IN THE WAR CABINET, AND ARTHUR GREENWOOD, DEPUTY LABOR LEADER, JOINED ATTLEE, BEVIN AND DALTON IN THE VICTORY RANKS.

LABORITES SWEPT THE BIG CITIES, WINNING AT LEAST 41 OF THE 62 SEATS IN LONDON COMPARED WITH 22 IN THE LAST ELECTION.

SIR ARCHIBALD SINCLAIR, LIBERAL PARTY LEADER AND SECRETARY FOR AIR IN THE COALITION GOVERNMENT, WAS NOSED OUT BY THE CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE. MOST OTHER LIBERAL CANDIDATES WERE BEATEN BADLY, AMONG THEM AIR VICE MARSHAL BENNETT, WHO WAS HEAD OF THE RAF'S FAMOUS PATHFINDER FORCE.

OUTSIDE OF THE PRIME MINISTER HIMSELF, THE CHURCHILL FAMILY DID NOT FARE SO WELL. MAJOR RANDOLPH CHURCHILL, HIS SON, WAS BEATEN AT PRESTON, AND DUNCAN SANDYS, HIS RED HAIRED SON-IN-LAW WHO WAS MINISTER OF WORKS AND HOUSING IN THE PRESENT GOVERNMENT, WAS ROUTED IN A BLITZED LONDON DISTRICT WHERE HOUSING IS A PRIME ISSUE.

A9

THE PRIME MINISTER WAS RETURNED BY A 17,000 MAJORITY, BUT HIS OPPONENT, ALEXANDER HANCOCK, WOODFORD FARMER WHO ENTERED THE RACE AT THE LAST MINUTE, SURPRISED VETERAN OBSERVERS BY POLLING MORE THAN 10,000 VOTES. EDEN WAS REELECTED BY A 17,600 MAJORITY.

GEOFFREY LLOYD, MINISTER OF INFORMATION, WAS DEFEATED AT BIRMINGHAM, WHICH HE HAD HELD AS A CONSERVATIVE SINCE 1931.

THE CONSERVATIVES ALSO LOST ANOTHER MINISTERIAL SEAT AT INDUSTRIAL BIRMINGHAM, WHERE L.S.AMERY, SECRETARY FOR INDIA, WAS BEATEN BY PAUL SHURNER (LABOR) BY 5,634 VOTES. AMERY HAD HELD THIS SEAT SINCE 1911. AMERY'S SON, CAPT. JULIAN AMERY, ALSO WAS DEFEATED BY A LABOR CANDIDATE.

OTHER CABINET MINISTERS AND PROMINENT PERSONALITIES WHO WERE OUSTED INCLUDED SIR DONALD SOMERVELL, HOME SECRETARY; RICHARD K.LAW, MINISTER OF EDUCATION; LESLIE HORE-BELISHA, MINISTER OF WAR FROM 1937 TO 1940; CAPT. A.S.CUNNINGHAM-REID, ERNEST BROWN, MINISTER OF AIRCRAFT PRODUCTION, AND SIR WILLIAM BEVERIDGE, WHO WAS AUTHOR OF THE FAMOUS SOCIAL SECURITY PLAN BEARING HIS NAME.

HORE-BELISHA WAS BEATEN BY A LONDON NEWSPAPER COLUMNIST, MICHAEL FOOT.

RALPH ASSHETON, CHAIRMAN OF THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY, LOST TO A WOMAN LABORITE IN RUSHCLIFFE, AND THE PARTY'S VICE CHAIRMAN, COL.

HAROLD MITCHELL, ALSO WAS ROUTED.

BOTH R.A.BUTLER, MINISTER OF LABOR IN THE "CARETAKER" CABINET, AND R.S.HUDSON, MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE, ARE IN AGAIN. AS IS SIR MAXWELL FYFFE, SOLICITOR GENERAL, AND COL. CLIFTON-BROWN, CONSERVATIVE SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE.

CHURCHILL

BY ALEX H.SINGLETON (760)

LONDON, JULY 26-(AP)-IN THE TWILIGHT OF HIS CAREER, BRITAIN DROPPED WINSTON CHURCHILL INTO THE ROLE HE ONCE LOVED BEST---AN UNFETTERED CRITIC OF THE GOVERNMENT FOR WHICH HE TOILED, SWEAT AND WEPT.

FOR CHURCHILL, BRITAIN'S MAN OF DESTINY IN HER DARKEST HOURS, PROVED UNABLE TODAY TO PULL HIS CONSERVATIVE PARTY---AS HE DID HIS COUNTRY---TO VICTORY.

ALTHOUGH IN DEFEAT, HE GAVE AGAIN TONIGHT THE V FOR VICTORY SIGN AS HE DROVE THROUGH THE GATES OF BUCKINGHAM PALACE TO TENDER HIS RESIGNATION TO KING GEORGE VI---AND TO JOIN THE LIST OF PRIME MINISTERS WHO HAVE DIRECTED AND MAINTAINED THE POWER OF BRITAIN.

EVEN HIS OPPONENTS, WHO AVOIDED CRITICISM OF HIS WAR LEADERSHIP DURING THE GENERAL ELECTION CAMPAIGN, WOULD NOT DENY HIM HIS HISTORICAL POSITION WICH SUCH OTHER WAR LEADERS AS PITT AND LLOYD GEORGE.

CHURCHILL'S FACE WAS GRAVE AS HE DROVE INTO THE PALACE WHERE HE HAD GONE SO MANY TIMES THROUGHOUT THE PAST SIX YEARS TO REPORT TO HIS SOVEREIGN ON THE PROGRESS OF THE WAR. BUT HE SMILED WHEN HE SAW THE SPECTATORS WHO HAD GATHERED, AND WAVED HIS HAND IN THE FAMOUS SALUTE--WHICH BECAME THE SYMBOL OF HIS DETERMINATION TO CRUSH HITLERISM.

JUL 27 1945

IN A VALEDICTORY STATEMENT, HE SAID:

"I REGRET THAT I HAVE NOT BEEN PERMITTED TO FINISH THE WORK AGAINST JAPAN. FOR THIS, HOWEVER, ALL PLANS AND PREPARATIONS HAVE BEEN MADE, AND THE RESULTS MAY COME MUCH QUICKER THAN WE HAVE HITHERTO BEEN ENTITLED TO EXPECT.

"IT ONLY REMAINS FOR ME TO EXPRESS TO THE BRITISH PEOPLE FOR WHOM I HAVE ACTED IN THESE PERILOUS YEARS MY PROFOUND GRATITUDE FOR THE UNFLINCHING, UNSWERVING SUPPORT WHICH THEY HAVE GIVEN ME DURING MY TASK, AND FOR THE MANY EXPRESSIONS OF KINDNESS WHICH THEY HAVE SHOWN TOWARDS THEIR SERVANTS."

CHURCHILL REMAINED CLOSE TO NO. 10 DOWNING STREET AS THE EARLY RETURNS BEGAN TO COME IN. THE LABOR PARTY VICTORY DID NOT DISCLOSE ITSELF IMMEDIATELY, BUT BEGAN SLOWLY WITH REPORTS SHOWING THE SEIZURE OF ONE SEAT, THEN THREE SEATS, AND LATER 15 SEATS IN COMMONS. WITH THE TOPPLING OF ONE CONSERVATIVE AFTER ANOTHER, A STRONG WIND OF POLITICAL OPPOSITION TO THE CONSERVATIVES SHOWED ITSELF.

ATS

UPON CHURCHILL'S MASSIVE BUT AGED SHOULDERS, THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY HAD PUT THE MAJOR BURDEN OF CARRYING BACK TO WHITEHALL WITH HIM A GOVERNMENT UNDER SHARP CRITICISM FROM A RESTIVE PUBLIC, NOW RELEASED FROM THE IMMEDIATE PERILS OF DAY-TO-DAY ENEMY ACTION FROM ACROSS THE NARROW WATERS OF THE CHANNEL.

THE BURDEN PROVED TOO BIG AS THE RETURNS SOON REVEALED. IN HIS OWN CONSTITUENCY, CHURCHILL WAS RE-ELECTED TO HIS SEAT, BUT THAT MUST HAVE BEEN SMALL CONSOLATION TO THE VETERAN STATESMAN.

SOLDIER, JOURNALIST, SCHOLAR, TRAVELLER, ADVENTURER, ARTIST, AUTHOR--EVEN BRICKLAYER, HE HAS A GREAT ZEST FOR LIVING AND WORKING. HE HAS HELD NEARLY EVERY IMPORTANT POST HIS GOVERNMENT HAS HAD TO OFFER---PRIME MINISTER, MINISTER OF DEFENSE, UNDER SECRETARY OF COLONIES, PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF TRADE, HOME SECRETARY, FIRST LORD OF THE ADMIRALTY, MINISTER OF MUNITIONS, SECRETARY OF WAR AND AIR, SECRETARY FOR THE COLONIES AND CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER.

PERHAPS NO STATESMAN HAS TRAVELED AS FAR IN SEARCH OF GOOD WILL FOR HIS COUNTRY. IN QUEST OF VICTORY, HE JOURNEYED TO MOSCOW, TO QUEBEC, TO WASHINGTON, TEHRAN AND YALTA. THEN, WITH VICTORY WON IN EUROPE, HE MADE THE LAST OF HIS MANY TRIPS---THIS TIME IN SEARCH OF PEACE.

BUT HE RETURNED TO LONDON TO FIND DEFEAT FOR HIS DREAM OF GUIDING BRITAIN TO FINAL VICTORY OVER JAPAN.

WHATEVER HIS FUTURE ROLE, HOWEVER, CHURCHILL IS CERTAIN TO BE REMEMBERED AS THE MAN WHO RALLIED BRITAIN TO STAND AGAINST THE NAZIS WHEN THE "EMERALD ISLE" STOOD ALONE, THE MAN WHO BROUGHT OTHER NATIONS TO BRITAIN'S SIDE, THE MAN WHO HURLED DEFIANCE AT HITLER IN PROSE THAT WILL BE READ IN ADMIRATION LONG AFTER HE IS GONE.

HE PROMISED HIS PEOPLE, WHEN HE BECAME PRIME MINISTER WITH THE FALL OF THE CHAMBERLAIN CABINET, ONLY---"BLOOD, SWEAT AND TEARS." AND WHEN THE OUT-MANNED, OUT-EQUIPPED RAF HURLED BACK THE LUFTWAFFE IN THE BATTLE OF BRITAIN, CHURCHILL VOICED THE SENTIMENTS OF FREEDOM: "NEVER HAVE SO MANY OWED SO MUCH TO SO FEW."

IF CHURCHILL'S PREVIOUS YEARS OF SERVICE AS A MERE MEMBER OF THE HOUSE SETS THE PATTERN FOR HIS NEW ROLE, CLEMENT R.ATTLEE, THE NEW PRIME MINISTER, FACES A SHARP, ALERT CRITIC. FOR WITH CHURCHILL'S RETURN TO COMMONS BY HIS WOODFORD CONSTITUENCY, HE WILL BE ENABLED TO SERVE IN THE HOUSE AS LEADER OF THE OPPOSITION---195 MEMBERS TO LABOR'S 390, ON THE BASIS OF THE RETURNS TODAY.

NEVER SHY AT ACCEPTING A PARLIAMENTARY BOUT WHEN HE SERVED FIRST AS CONSERVATIVE, THEN AS A LIBERAL, AND AGAIN AS A CONSERVATIVE, THERE WAS NO DOUBT CHURCHILL WILL CONSENT TO ACT AS THE WATCHDOG OF HIS PARTY.

MQ927PEW

LONDON, JULY 26-(AP)-ANTHONY EDEN, FOREIGN SECRETARY OF THE DEFEATED CHURCHILL GOVERNMENT, SAID TONIGHT HE WOULD RETURN TO THE POTSDAM CONFERENCE IF HE WERE ASKED, AND WOULD CONTINUE TO DO HIS BEST TO HELP.

HE MADE THE STATEMENT IN REPLY TO A QUESTION.

A MEMBER OF PARLIAMENT SINCE 1923, AND FOREIGN SECRETARY SINCE DECEMBER, 1940, EDEN WON REELECTION TO PARLIAMENT WITH A 17,500-VOTE MAJORITY, BUT SAID "I DEEPLY REGRET THE NATIONAL DECISION."

THE DAILY MIRROR CRITICIZED CHURCHILL'S TACTICS IN CALLING AN ELECTION AT THIS TIME, ADDING: "PLEASE, GOD, WE'VE SEEN OUR LAST STUNT ELECTION."

THE MIRROR SAID FURTHER, HOWEVER, THAT "THE NEW LABOR GOVERNMENT

INSTEAD, THE NEWSPAPER SAID, ATTLEE WILL BE ACCOMPANIED BY ERNEST BEVIN, WHO HAS BEEN MENTIONED AS A PROBABLE SUCCESSOR TO ANTHONY EDEN AS FOREIGN SECRETARY.

"THIS ELECTION IN NO WHIT DETRACTS FROM CHURCHILL'S TREMENDOUS RECORD AS WAR LEADER," OBSERVED THE NEWCASTLE JOURNAL.
THE BIRMINGHAM GAZETTE JIBED AT HIS POLITICAL CAMPAIGNING. "MR.CHURCHILL'S WAR RECORD," IT SAID, "SAVED HIM PERSONALLY, BUT IT HAS BEEN IMPOTENT TO SAVE HIS UNFORTUNATE ASSOCIATES. CHURCHILL'S ELECTIONEERING EFFORTS PROBABLY COMPLETED THEIR OVERTHROW. THERE'S BEEN NOTHING LIKE IT SINCE BALAAM."
THE NOTTINGHAM JOURNAL AND NORTHERN ECHO FOUND THAT THE "REAL MORAL" IN THE ELECTIONS OUTCOME IS "THE INEQUITY OF OUR ABSURD ELECTORIAL SYSTEM," ASKING: "HOW CAN A SYSTEM BE JUSTIFIED IN WHICH 11,000,000 VOTES FOR LABOR RETURN 385 MEMBERS WHILE 3,200,000 CONSERVATIVE VOTES RETURN ONLY 184 CONSERVATIVES, AND OVER 2,000,000 LIBERAL VOTES RETURN ONLY 10 MEMBERS."

ALBERT LEBRUN, LAST PRESIDENT OF THE THIRD REPUBLIC, DISCLOSED A CRITICAL POINT IN THE PROSECUTION'S CASE WHEN HE SAID PETAIN HAD THE LIST OF HIS CABINET MINISTERS ALREADY PREPARED WHEN THE PRESIDENT CALLED HIM IN BORDEAUX TO FORM A NEW GOVERNMENT TO SUCCEED THAT OF PAUL REYNAUD. USUALLY IN FRANCE IT TAKES DAYS TO LINE UP A NEW CABINET.

ONE OF THE JURORS TRIED UNSUCCESSFULLY TO GET PETAIN TO DISCLOSE WHEN HE PREPARED THE LIST. THE PROSECUTION CONTENDS THE MARSHAL HAD BEEN PLOTTING FOR SOME TIME TO SEIZE POWER AND OVERTHROW THE REPUBLICAN FORM OF GOVERNMENT.

PETAIN SAT WITH HIS EYES CLOSED AND APPARENTLY DID NOT HEAR THE JUROR'S QUESTION. ORDERED BY THE COURT TO ARISE, PETAIN REMAINED SEATED UNTIL A POLICEMAN TOUCHED HIM. HIS LAWYERS EXPLAINED THE QUESTION AND PETAIN SAID IN A COLD VOICE:

"THAT LIST--WELL, I HAD CONSIDERED SOME NAMES BUT THE LIST I TOOK FROM MY POCKET WAS NOT THE ONE THAT CAME INTO EFFECT. THERE WERE SEVERAL LISTS."

NEW YORK, JULY 26-(AP)-THE JAPANESE NEWS AGENCY DOMEI REPORTED THE BRITISH-AMERICAN-CHINESE ULTIMATUM TO JAPAN YESTERDAY TODAY IN THESE WORDS:

"A PROCLAMATION WAS ISSUED IN POTSDAM YESTERDAY (THURSDAY) IN THE NAME OF CHURCHILL, TRUMAN AND CHIANG KAI-SHEK CALLING UPON THE JAPANESE TO ANNOUNCE UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER OR SEE THEIR HOMELAND DESTROYED, REUTERS REPORTS FROM POTSDAM. STALIN'S NAME WAS CONSPICUOUS BY ITS ABSENCE IN THE PROCLAMATION."

NEW YORK, JULY 26-(AP)-THE MAGAZINE NEWSWEEK SAYS MARSHAL STALIN PRESENTED PRESIDENT TRUMAN AT POTSDAM WITH A JAPANESE PEACE OFFER PROVIDING FOR AMERICAN OCCUPATION OF KOREA AND FORMOSA, BUT NOT THE HOME ISLANDS.

THE JAPANESE OFFERED TO WITHDRAW FROM MANCHURIA IN FAVOR OF MOSCOW AS A PRICE OF RUSSIAN NONINTERVENTION, THE MAGAZINE SAID, ADDING:

"MOREOVER, THEY OFFERED TO "RECOGNIZE THE PRINCIPLE OF INDEPENDENCE" OF INDO-CHINA, BURMA AND THE PHILIPPINES AND TO SUBMIT TO AMERICAN OCCUPATION OF KOREA AND EVEN FORMOSA ON ONE CONDITION--THAT THE JAPANESE HOME ISLANDS SHOULD REMAIN FREE OF AMERICAN INVASION AND OCCUPATION."

NEWSWEEK, WHICH DID NOT GIVE THE SOURCE OF ITS INFORMATION, SAID ALSO THAT WIDAR BAGGE, RETIRING SWEDISH MINISTER TO JAPAN, TRANSMITTED TO THE UNITED STATES EARLY LAST MAY A "JAPANESE REQUEST FOR CLARIFICATION OF THE AMERICAN 'UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER' FORMULA."

BERLIN, JULY 26--(AP)--THE FIRST BRITISH MILITARY TRAIN ROLLED INTO BERLIN TODAY WITH A CARGO OF 605 TONS OF CANADIAN FLOUR FOR GERMAN CIVILIANS IN THE CITY.

JUL 27 1945

APPROXIMATELY 8,000 TONS OF FLOUR WAS REPORTED TO BE EN ROUTE TO THE BRITISH SECTOR IN BERLIN--A LARGE PART OF IT BEING FROM CANADIAN STOCKS UNLOADED AT ANTWERP. BRITISH TRUCKS ALREADY HAVE BROUGHT IN 2,000 TONS OF POTATOES FROM WESTERN GERMANY.

OFFICIALS SAID THE BRITISH INTEND TO ASSUME COMPLETE RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE FEEDING OF 900,000 CIVILIANS IN THEIR SECTOR OF BERLIN BUT UNTIL FINAL ARRANGEMENTS ARE COMPLETED PRESENT FOOD STOCKS WILL BE TURNED OVER TO SOVIET AUTHORITIES FOR DISTRIBUTION.

BERLIN, JULY 26--(AP)- THE ISSUANCE OF MARSHAL GEORGI ZHOKOV'S DRASTIC ORDER CONFISCATING ALL STOCKS OF GOLD, SILVER, PLATINUM AND OTHER VALUABLES IN THE SOVIET OCCUPATION ZONE WAS FOLLOWED BY RUMORS TODAY THERE WERE WIDESPREAD RUMORS TODAY OF HIDDEN PLANS BY GERMANS TO ATTEMPT TO HARBOR THEIR HIDDEN RICHES BRITISH OR TO AMERICAN SECTORS OF BERLIN.

EVEN WORKING CLASS FAMILIES LIVING IN CELLARS IN THE RUSSIAN PART OF THE CAPITAL ARE TALKING OF MEANS OF GETTING THEIR SMALL HOARDS OF PRECIOUS METALS "TO SAFETY."

THE SWEEPING DECREE COMMANDED ALL GOVERNMENTAL UNITS, COMMERCIAL ORGANIZATIONS AND PRIVATE PERSONS IN THE TERRITORY OCCUPIED BY THE RED ARMY TO GIVE UP WITHIN FIVE DAYS ALL GOLD AND SILVER COINS AND BARS AND ALL PLATINUM BARS; ALL FOREIGN BANKNOTES, COINS, DOCUMENTS OF OWNERSHIP OF WEALTH AND VALUABLES, AND ALL CURRENCY ISSUED FOR THE TERRITORY FORMERLY OCCUPIED BY GERMANY.

SEVERE PUNISHMENT WAS THREATENED FOR DISOBEDIENCE.

JUL 27 1945

THE MEASURE WENT FAR BEYOND ANYTHING YET PROMULGATED IN WESTERN GERMANY. HERE ASSETS OF HIGH AND MIDDLE CLASS NAZIS TENTATIVELY HAVE BEEN SEQUESTERED BY AMERICAN AND BRITISH AUTHORITIES BUT NO ACTION AFFECTING ALL OF THE POPULATION HAS BEEN TAKEN. THERE HAS BEEN NO INDICATION THAT ALTHOUGH MANY BERLINERS ARE HOMELESS AND HUNGRY MOST OF THEM HAVE A FEW COINS HIDDEN AWAY. CIVILIANS HAVE FREEDOM OF MOVEMENT THROUGH THE TRIPARTITE SECTORS OF BERLIN BUT AMERICAN AND BRITISH GUARDS HAVE ORDERS TO HALT FAMILIES MOVING THEIR POSSESSIONS FROM RESIDENCES IN THE RUSSIAN SECTOR UNDER A JOINT POLICY TO PREVENT MIGRATION.

SALZBURG, JULY 26-(AP)-HIROSHI OSHIMA, JAPANESE AMBASSADOR TO BERLIN WHEN GERMANY CAPITULATED, LEFT FOR THE UNITED STATES WITH A RECOMMENDATION THAT JAPAN SURRENDER UNCONDITIONALLY, HIS SECRETARY TOLD U.S. THIRD DIVISION AUTHORITIES HERE.

THE SECRETARY, SAN FRANCISCO BORN TOSHIO YAMANAKA, AND OSHIMA FELL INTO AMERICAN HANDS WHEN U.S. DIVISIONS MARCHED INTO BAD GASTEIN, AUSTRIA, EARLY IN MAY. OSHIMA WAS ONE OF THE 33 HIGH RANKING MEMBERS OF THE JAPANESE DIPLOMATIC CORPS WHO LANDED IN NEW YORK, JULY 11. THE REMAINDER OF THE ENTOURAGE, INCLUDING YAMANAKA, IS SCHEDULED TO SAIL FROM LE HAVRE TODAY. JUL 27 1945

OSHIMA AND HIS STAFF WERE IN BERLIN UNTIL MID MARCH. THEY SURVIVED AMERICAN BOMBING OF THE GERMAN CAPITAL ONLY AFTER HARROWING EXPERIENCES, WHICH, YAMANAKA SAID, CONVINCED THEM OF THE FUTILITY OF CONTINUING THE FIGHT AGAINST SUCH OVERWHELMING SUPERIORITY OF AIR POWER. THE SECRETARY SAID OSHIMA WAS EXTREMELY ANXIOUS TO PREVAIL UPON HIS GOVERNMENT TO MEET ALLIED TERMS IMMEDIATELY.

THE PLANE TRIP FROM SALZBURG TO PARIS GAVE THE JAPANESE AN OPPORTUNITY TO SEE THE WRECKAGE OF OTHER GERMAN CITIES SMASHED BY ALLIED BOMBER FLEETS!

BEFORE THE DIPLOMATS LEFT SALZBURG, IT WAS SUGGESTED THAT SOME OF THEM MIGHT BE EXCHANGED FOR IMPORTANT AMERICANS HELD PRISONER BY THE JAPANESE, FOR INSTANCE, LT.GEN.JONATHAN M. WAINWRIGHT, HERO OF BATAAN AND CORREGIDOR.

GUAM, JULY 26-(AP)-APPROXIMATELY 250 BRITISH CARRIER PLANES PARTICIPATED WITH ADMIRAL HALSEY'S THIRD FLEET IN DESTROYING REMNANTS OF THE JAPANESE NAVY, TUESDAY.

(250) NIGHT LEAD CHARTER

WASHINGTON, JULY 26-(AP)-THE SENATE'S EVIDENT INTENT TO RATIFY THE UNITED NATIONS CHARTER MEANS THAT "WE HAVE WON THE PEACE," SENATOR PEPPER (D-FLA) DECLARED TODAY.

PEPPER TOLD HIS COLLEAGUES ON THE FOURTH DAY OF DEBATE ON THE CHARTER THAT WOODROW WILSON, FATHER OF THE OLD LEAGUE OF NATIONS, AND FRANKLIN D.ROOSEVELT "ARE WATCHING FROM BEHIND THE VEIL OF IMMORTALITY."

THE SENATE MADE ONLY A SMALL DENT IN THE LONG LIST OF MEMBERS STILL WISHING TO BE HEARD ON THE CHARTER, MEANWHILE, AND THERE GREW SOME DOUBT ABOUT REACHING A VOTE SOON. THE MOST OPTIMISTIC GUESS WAS SATURDAY AND THERE WAS SOME THOUGHT OF GOING OVER UNTIL MONDAY.

PEPPER AND SENATOR AUSTIN (R-VT), VEHEMENT SUPPORTER OF THE TREATY FOR INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION TO PREVENT WAR, TOOK UP MUCH OF THE DAY. AUSTIN, OUTLINING THE MACHINERY OF THE NEW LEAGUE, FORECAST ITS SECURITY COUNCIL WOULD HAVE SUCH GREAT ARMED FORCE THAT NO NATION COULD HOPE TO STAND UP AGAINST IT.

"THIS WHOLE CHARTER," HE SAID, "IS BASED ON THE THEORY THAT IF ARMED FORCE IS TO BE USED AT ALL, IT WILL BE A SUPERIOR FORCE."

PEPPER DEVELOPED A LENGTHY ARGUMENT AGAINST THE IDEA, HELD BY SOME, THAT THE SUPPLEMENTING AGREEMENTS FOR USE OF TROOPS BY THE WORLD SECURITY COUNCIL SHOULD BE CONSIDERED TREATIES.

THE FLORIDIAN JOINED THE SCHOOL OF THOUGHT THAT THE AGREEMENTS, STIPULATING THE EXTENT OF AMERICA'S CONTRIBUTION IN TROOPS AND RESOURCES, SHOULD BE PASSED AS JOINT RESOLUTIONS REQUIRING ONLY A SIMPLE MAJORITY OF BOTH HOUSES RATHER THAN AS TREATIES NEEDING TWO-THIRDS OF THE SENATE.

(ADVANCE) WASHINGTON,JULY 26-(AP)-A 221,000-MILE FRONTLINE TOUR--THE WAR'S LONGEST FOR ANY MAJOR NAVAL UNIT--PUT THE LIGHT CRUISER SANTA FE THROUGH 42 AIR STRIKES, 12 SHORE BOMBARDMENTS AND FOUR SURFACE ACTIONS.

JUL 27 1945

AND DURING THOSE 25 MONTHS, THE SANTA FE SANK SEVEN JAPANESE SHIPS AND DOWNED AS MANY ENEMY PLANES.

TELLING THE STORY TODAY OF HER RECORD TOUR OF ACTIVE DUTY WITHOUT A MAJOR OVERHAUL, THE NAVY SAID THE SANTA FE DID NOT LOSE A MAN OR SUFFER ANY SERIOUS BATTLE DAMAGE.

THE VESSEL'S TOLL INCLUDED AN ENEMY ESCORT CARRIER, A LIGHT CRUISER, A DESTROYER AND FOUR CARGO SHIPS. SHE ALSO WAS THE SHIP THAT WENT ALONGSIDE THE STRICKEN AIRCRAFT CARRIER FRANKLIN TO HELP FIGHT FIRES ABOARD THE CARRIER AND TO REMOVE MORE THAN 800 MEN, MANY OF THEM WOUNDED, FROM THE FLAMING FLATTOP.

RECENTLY RETURNED TO THIS COUNTRY FOR ROUTINE REPAIRS, ABOUT 1,500 WORKERS SPENT NEARLY A MILLION MAN HOURS AT THE TERMINAL ISLAND DRY DOCKS, SAN PEDRO,CALIF., COMPLETING THE SHIP'S LONG OVERDUE OVERHAUL AND PATCHING MINOR DAMAGE INCURRED WHILE ASSISTING THE FRANKLIN.

NOW SHE IS BACK ON THE FIRING LINE COMPLETELY OUTFITTED WITH THE NEWEST EQUIPMENT AND INCREASED ARMAMENT.

THE FRANKLIN WAS NOT THE FIRST SHIP FOR WHICH THE SANTA FE PERFORMED A RESCUE MISSION. DURING THE FIRST CARRIER AIR STRIKE ON FORMOSA LAST OCTOBER SHE REMOVED 233 MEN FROM A MEDIUM SIZED WARSHIP WHICH HAD BEEN BADLY DAMAGED BY BOMBS. HER OFFICERS AND MEN WERE AT BATTLE STATIONS FOR NEARLY FIVE DAYS AND DOWNED TWO JAPANESE PLANES WHILE COVERING THE DISABLED UNIT UNTIL SHE WAS TOWED BEYOND ENEMY AIRCRAFT RANGE.

IN HER 25 MONTHS OF COMBAT, THE SANTA FE FIRED MORE THAN 1,650,000 POUNDS OF PROJECTILES AT THE ENEMY, INCLUDING 33,323 ROUNDS DURING SHORE BOMBARDMENTS AND SURFACE ACTION, AND ANOTHER 174,330 ROUNDS OF AA SHELLS AT ATTACKING JAPANESE PLANES.

THE SANTA FE WAS COMMISSIONED AT THE NEW YORK SHIPBUILDING CORP., CAMDEN, N.J., NOV.24,1942.

CHICAGO, JULY 26-(AP)-OUR SOLDIERS HAVE BEEN VICTORIOUS IN ARMS IN EUROPE, SAYS CHARLES A.LINDBERGH, BUT "WE HAVE NOT ESTABLISHED PEACE OR LIBERTY" THERE AND MANY "SO CALLED LIBERATED NATIONS HAVE SIMPLY EXCHANGED THE NAZI FORM OF DICTATORSHIP FOR THE COMMUNIST FORM."

"THERE IS LESS SECURITY THERE NOW THAN EVER BEFORE, AND LESS DEMOCRACY," THE NOTED FLYER WHO RECENTLY RETURNED FROM A RESEARCH TRIP TO EUROPE, WAS QUOTED BY THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE TODAY.

LINDBERGH, IN A DISCUSSION OF INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS WITH TRIBUNE EXECUTIVES YESTERDAY DURING A STOP-OVER ON A BUSINESS TRIP, WAS QUOTED BY THE PAPER AS SAYING THAT "THE FEAR OF CONTINUED WARFARE AND REVOLUTION IS WIDESPREAD IN EUROPE."

"AND IF A THIRD WORLD WAR COMES WITHIN ANOTHER GENERATION, OUR CHILDREN WILL FIND IT WORSE THAN THE ONE WE ARE NOW FIGHTING," SAID LINDBERGH WHO WENT TO EUROPE TO STUDY ENEMY DEVELOPMENTS IN JET AND ROCKET AIRCRAFT. "NEW WEAPONS WILL BE USED; THESE ARE ALREADY INVENTED BUT WERE NOT DEVELOPED ENOUGH TO PUT INTO THIS WAR WITH THEIR FULL EFFECTIVENESS."

THE MAN WHO SKYROCKETED TO INTERNATIONAL FAME IN AVIATION 17 YEARS AGO AFTER HIS NON-STOP FLIGHT TO PARIS WAS QUOTED AS ASSERTING THAT "WE ARE IROBABLY NO FAR FROM

THAT "WE ARE PROBABLY NOT FAR FROM THE TIME WHEN MEN WILL FLY THROUGH THE AIR WITH THE SPEED OF A CANNON PROJECTILE."

LINDBERGH WAS QUOTED INDIRECTLY BY THE TRIBUNE AS ATTRIBUTING THE GERMAN AIR FORCE COLLAPSE TO THE FIGHTING QUALITIES OF OUR AIRMEN, TO THE GERMAN ATTACK ON RUSSIA, TO THE AMERICAN MASS PRODUCTION ABILITY AND TO THE INCOMPETENCE OF THE NAZI FORM OF GOVERNMENT.

"SELDOM IN HISTORY HAS A NATION BEEN DEFEATED AS COMPLETELY AS GERMANY," HE SAID. X X X "YET THE DISTURBING FACT REMAINS THAT WHILE OUR SOLDIERS HAVE BEEN VICTORIOUS IN ARMS, WE HAVE NOT SO FAR ACCOMPLISHED THE OBJECTIVES FOR WHICH

"THE IDEALS OF JUSTICE AND TOLERANCE HAVE VANISHED FROM A CONTINENT. FREEDOM OF SPEECH AND ACTION IS SUPPRESSED OVER A LARGE PORTION OF THE WORLD, ESPECIALLY IN THE SO-CALLED LIBERATED NATIONS, MANY OF WHOM HAVE SIMPLY EXCHANGED THE NAZI FORM OF DICTATORSHIP FOR THE COMMUNIST FORM.
